VERDICTS TOTALING $7,000 RETURNED BY JURY

Two verdicts, totaling $7,000, against Charles C. Dodd and Roscoe K. Burrows of Mystic, were returned by a jury in the superior court at New London Tuesday morning. One verdict, $5,000, is in favor of Andrew Startz of Mystic, administrator of the estate of his son, Andrew Francis Startz and the other verdict, $2,000, is in favor of Mrs. Gertrude Startz, mother of the deceased. MRS. GAYLORD ATWELL DISCUSSES CURRENT EVENTS

An especially interesting address on current events was given Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel by Mrs. Gaylord Atwell of New York city under the auspices of the Woman's City club. Her address, the keynote of which was peace, was listened to by an unusually large audience.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Atwell spoke of President Hoover's message, referring to the League of Nations clause as standing out as less constructive than the remainder of his message. She quoted the president's few lines on peace, the longing for which is just as great in Europe as it is in America, Mrs. Atwell pointed out that the great aims of President Hoover are: To abolish intemperance; to abolish poverty and to abolish wars.

President Hoover is a good American, so is ex-President Coolidge. Both have a good abundance of gray matter; they have strong, sterling and honest characters.

Mrs. Atwell spoke of the individual contacts of President Hoover's cabinet. "Take them all and all, it is a pretty strong cabinet," said Mrs. Atwell.

Mrs. Atwell spoke of the revolution in Mexico asking her audience What was the cause? She said that the opinion was advanced that it was purely a political or religious affair, or a combination of the two. President Hoover has placed an embargo on the shipment of arms to the rebel forces, she said, but the U. S. government is shipping arms to the federal forces. Is it a wise thing to do? Mrs. Atwell asked. The audience on a vote favored the sending of arms to the federal forces.

In concluding her interesting address, Mrs. Atwell declared that the Kellogg pact will be nothing but a gesture unless we get behind it, think of it and talk about it.

SIX TELEPHONE CALLS FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

The fire department had a busy day Tuesday, responding to six alarms, one in the morning and five in the evening, but the department did not respond. This was for a brush fire off Palmer avenue extension near the Mondon residence, which was completely destroyed by fire early Monday morning. The call was referred to the fire warden of the town of Preston. A brush, two grass, rubbish, dwelling house and chimney fires made up the total of calls for the day.

The first call came in at 11.37 o'clock for a grass fire on land owned by Samuel Mandell at No. 33 Summitt street. Engine 3, Squad A and Acting Deputy Chief D. J. Brennan responded. The damage was slight.

About an hour after the department returned from the Summitt street fire there was a call for a rubbish fire at 1.05 o'clock on property owned by Alyman Schwartz at No. 12 Maple street. Engines 3 and 6, Squad A and the deputy chief responded. Only slight damage resulted.

At 2.25 o'clock an oral alarm was received at the fire station at Greeneville for a fire in the one and a half story dwelling owned and occupied by Mrs. Annie Avdevich at No. 12 Third street. A rubbish fire was started by boys beside the house and it spread to the clapboards. A man from Wolfe's garage with an extinguisher held the blaze down until Engine 2, Squad A and the deputy chief responded.

The fourth call was for a brush fire off Hickory street, this coming in at 3.35 o'clock. The land is owned by Gilbert S. Raymond and Engine 2, Squad A and the deputy chief responded, using pump cans and brush to put out the blaze. The cause was laid to boys playing with matches or smoking cigarettes.

Engine No. 3 was called at 5.37 o'clock to extinguish a grass fire off Goldberg avenue on land owned by James Hiscox. It was the second grass fire for the day.

A chimney fire in the house at No. 17 Hobart avenue was responsible for the fire department's fifth call. It was in the house owned by Jeremiah Fitzgerald and occupied by Peter Chabot and others. Nine gallons of chemical were used here to smother the blaze. Engine No. 1, Squad A and the acting deputy chief responded.

A Mrs. Avery of Preston notified the department at 6.35 o'clock in the evening that there was a brush fire off Palmer street extension. The matter was referred to the Preston fire warden and a later call was received announcing that the blaze was under control.

Discharged from Hospital.

Patients discharged from the W. W. Backus hospital Tuesday were Miss Sadie Portelance, of No. 30 Huntington avenue and Mrs. Jeremiah Delaney and infant son of Hanover.

Tells Dyspeptics What to Eat
Strict Diets Often Unnecessary
It is a well known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequent indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acids, stops food fermentation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comfort means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by making Bisurated Magnesia your daily after-eating protection.

PLAINFIELD PROS FACE STRONG TEAM TONIGHT IN LONG ISLAND PROFS.

Tonight's Lineups.

L. I. Pros.	Plainfield
Cerovsky, rf	rf, Kasper
Stucksbury, lf	lf, Brusso
Franks, c	c, Williams
Raush, rg	rg, Bernot
Redmond, lg	lf, Dissinger

Another one of those good basketball attractions is slated for the Plainfield Community house this evening when the Long Island Professionals, one of the leading professional basketball teams in the east, clash with the Plainfield Pros.

The L. I. Pros who are champions of all Long Island have a team that is second to none in the east which is saying considerable in view of the fact that there are some pretty fast clubs. The roster of the Pros show players who are nationally known in basketball circles and who have had plenty of basketball experience. The forwards are Cerovsky, former American and National league player; Stucksbury and Roxbury, comprising the fastest and smartest forward combination ever seen on a basketball court. They formerly played with Chicago, Rochester, Centralia, Detroit and Paterson American league clubs.

The center position is handled by Franks who was formerly center with the Visitation club and is rated as one of the best centers in the east. The guarding is done by Redmond, Cuccinelli and Raush. Redmond is said to be one of the great guards in the game and has held Beckman, Banks and other American league stars scoreless while playing in the American league. Cuccinelli was formerly with a Metropolitan league team but is better known as a baseball playing having been a second baseman with the Columbus A. A. team and the Cincinnati Reds of the National league. Raush was a star in the Hudson County league last year.

The record of the L. I. Pros include victories over the following teams, Original Celtics, Renaissance Five, Brooklyn Visitations, Kingston, Catskill, Paterson, Assumption Triangles and Detroit of the American league. Since 1922 the team has won 181 victories and lost but 29 games.

It can readily be seen that the Plainfield club is up against stiff opposition in tonight's battle. Manager Salisbury will use his regular lineup which is playing some basketball at the present time.

For the preliminary game the Buddies will clash with the Putnam club which played here earlier in the season. The Putnam team has the noted star, Jack Cronin in its lineup. Dancing will follow the games.

MALCEWICZ AGREES TO TERMS LAID DOWN BY SONNENBERG

BOSTON, March 12—(AP)—Joe Malcewicz, who has hopes of separating Gus Sonnenberg fro mhis wrestling title with a headlock Friday night in the Boston Garden, bowed to the champion's will today when he accepted a "protect yourself at all times" clause as a part of the terms for the championship match.

Malcewicz and Dr. Jimmy Brown, Sonnenberg's representative, conferred with Promoter Paul Bowser today and after accepting Leon Burbank, of Boston as the referee, started to squabble about the regulations governing situations when one or both were forced out of the ring.

The challenger demanded that the referee protect the wrestling climbing back into the ring but Brown refused to accept this restriction, claiming it would result in an unfair handicap for the champion. Both sides agreed that the principals would return to the center of the ring and resume the match if both fell outside at the same time.

Malcewicz went through a stiff workout this afternoon, taking on four partners at 10 minute intervals. He prepared for Sonnenberg's "flying tackle" by having these assistants butt and ram him in the stomach.

Sonnenberg had an easy time breaking away from Dan Koloff, when the latter tried to apply the Malcewicz brand of headlocks. Both planned to end their training for the match, the first major engagement of Sonnenberg's champion with a light workout.

NORWICH ALL STARS WIN GAME FROM NEW LONDON FIVE

Roller hockey has again been resumed at the Olympic Rink, the Norwich All Stars winning from the New London's Roller Rink team—7 to 6 last night. Some of the best team-work of the season was seen at the game, the score at the end of the first session being four to nothing in favor of Norwich. New London began piling up their points in the second and third sessions which were of fifteen minutes duration.

In spite of the exceedingly fast and rough playing, none of the players were injured during the game. The All Stars are playing a return game some night next week at the roll rink in New London.

Martin J. Farrell, referee. Goals—All Stars, Cooke 3, Wilson 2, MacGregor 2. New London—T. Manken 2, B. Manken 3.

YANKEES NOSE OUT TAMPA BY SINGLE RUN IN SEVENTH

TAMPA, Fla., March 12—(AP)—The New York Yankees opened their exhibition season today by beating out the Tampa club of the Southeastern league, 1 to 0. Tony Lazzeri did most of the hitting for the world's champions against the Class "B" pitching. He connected for three of the champions' eight hits. Babe Ruth failed in four attempts.

In the seventh inning, Lazzeri singled after Elias Funk had ramped out a double and pushed over the only run. Red Sweeney was pitching for Tampa, Myles Thomas and Al Sheal pitched for the Yankees.

FAVORITES IN FOUR-BALL TOURNEY HARD PRESSED

MIAMI, Fla., March 12—(AP)—Favorites in the second day combinations of the sixth annual international four-ball matches rode to victory today, but not until after they had been all but routed at lesser figures held the whip hand in the first part of the day's events.

The defending champions, Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, made the most startling recovery of the day as they strode home four and three ahead after laboring for a part of the morning round under a four hole handicap amassed by Ed. Dudley, Los Angeles and Al Espinosa, Chicago.

Walter Hagen and Leo Diegel seeded in the lower bracket presented a large gallery with an uphill battle in the afternoon. Hagen and Diegel trailing Johnny Golde, Paterson, N. J. and Billy Burke, Westport N. J., 2 down at the end of the morni round, came back to win two up. Hagen dropped an eagle three on the second round of the windswept course, to demonstrate his accuracy.

Sarazen split honors with Hagen, the Italian having started his drive for victory with an eagle on the 17th hole of the morning round.

Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and Henry Ciuci., Bridgeport, Conn., advanced to the semi-finals by winning a stubbornly contested battle from Charley Mayo, Jacksonville and Flushing, L. I. and George Christ, Davenport, Fla., and Rochester, N. Y. one up.

Willie MacFarlane, Westchester, N. Y., and Harry Hampton, Chicago and Key West, Fla., put in their bid for semi-final consideration with their decisive 7 and 6 elimination of Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City, and Craig Wood, Bloomfield N. J.

The defending champions loafed about the course through the first nine holes of the morning round, but straightened out in the return trip, getting decisively under way to victory with Sarazen's eagle on the 17th hole. That and his victory at the 15th hole, coupled with the advantage the partners gained on two earlier holes, brought them even with Dudley and Espinosa at the end of the morning round.

The champions accomplished the feat of the day when they emerged after the outbound trip in the afternoon with five holes out of the nine to their credit.

Sarazen's eagle easily was the feature of the day's play. He had approached the green of the 232 yard 17th with a good shot to lie 45 feet from the cup. As a gallery of several hundred spectators watched, he placed a chip shot squarely in line with the flag and into the cup for a 2 under par count.

The defending champions will meet MacFarlane and Hampton tomorrow in the semi-finals. Hagen and Diegel will encounter Turnesa and Ciuci in the other division.

RAIN HALTS MAJOR LEAGUE PRACTICE SESSIONS

ATLANTA, Ga., March 12—(AP)—Rain, the bugaboo of many a major league manager with his squad in spring training made its appearance in widely scattered sectors today to interrupt the seasoning of players preparatory to the annual roster trimming.

The Chicago White Sox, however, were not to be kept inactive because of rain at Dallas, Texas. Lena Blackburn took his squad into a gymnasium for a workout. The release of Wilsomerski and Ehlers to the Palestine club of the Lone Star league and transfer of Wilson, Cox, Ward and Jeffries to Dallas to the Texas league was announced.

Sunshine replaced rain at San Antonio and John McGraw and his full squad of Giants were out for an afternoon workout with Eddie Roush, outfielder, and Bill Terry, first baseman, in uniform for the first time.

The St. Louis Browns were out for a short workout at West Palm Beach, Fla., despite a drizzling rain. Frank McGowan, outfielder is the only Brown missing and he has been listed as a holdout.

Elsewhere exhibition games were the order of the day, with regulars beginning to show form.

WINDHAM CONCEDE TITLE TO CHAPMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 12—Windham high school will not enter into any negotiations as far as a play-off for the conference basketball championship is concerned. This decision which means the conceding of the conference title to Chapman Tech now holding a half-game lead, was reached at the school today and was urged mainly through the present illness of Coach Thomas A. Callaghan. Principal Egbert A. Case is to notify E. Stanley Taylor, secretary of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island athletic conference of Windham's withdrawal from the race.

Coach Callaghan, who is president of the conference, was taken ill Monday and is now confined to his home. Although Windham is but a half-game in the rear of Tech in the conference standing, there still looms the possibility of having to play the much discussed "postponed" game with Putnam high school in order to clear the way for the final play-off with Tech. In consideration of this possibility of two games and other matters such as the decline of the season and the illness of the local coach, it was felt that it would be to the best interests of the players and all concerned to automatically give up the championship to the New Londonites.

SUB BASE TAKES DECIDING GAME OF SERIES FROM Y SENIORS, 41 TO 28

The Sub Base Five of New London took the third and deciding game of the 1929 series with the Y. M. C. A. Seniors, 41 to 28, at the local Y. M. C. A. court last night. The game after a slow start developed into a real fast battle after the first half.

The Sub Base opened strong and soon held a commanding lead which they refused to relinquish. The locals were slow in getting started and at the end of the half the Sub Base was out in front with the score standing in their favor 20 to 8. However, the second half was an entirely different affair for the locals fought on even terms throughout the half but were unable to overcome the lead of the first stanza. In the second half the locals scored 20 points while the Base kept pace with 21 points. Roland Harris was the high scorer in this half with five baskets and with his one in the first half lead the locals. Ditmer with six baskets to his credit was high scorer for the Sailors. WIDE ENTERED IN MILE EVENT ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, March 12—(AP)—If all the runners were like Edvin Wide, the honeymooning school teacher from Stockholm, there would be more action on the track this winter and less in the disciplinary council chambers of the A. A. U.

Without having run a single mile race this season, the trim and smiling bridegroom is to take on a pack of the world's best runners at the distance in this year's edition of the "mile of the century" at the K. of C. games at Madison Square Garden Saturday. His entry typifies the good-natured, open-hearted spirit which has marked his running in eight meets in five different cities since January 26.

In all of them Wide's success has been as marked as his popularity. Meeting all sorts of fields on all kinds of tracks and conceding generous handicaps whenever his opposition was weak, Wide has swept through those eight races without a single defeat and stands out today as the only runner still unbeaten among the top-notchers of the indoor season.

Two great two-mile performances, the fastest of the year a 9:05 4-5 accomplishment at Boston on Feb. 22 and a 9:07 mark in winning the national two-mile championship here the following night are the high spots of his record. Another notable achievement was a 9:12 two-mile on the flat floor of the 102nd Engineers's armory, the best ever recorded at the distance on those smooth boards.

VON PORAT BEATS HEENEY IN SAVAGE BATTLE

CHICAGO, March 12—(AP)—Otto Von Porat, scholarly appearing Norwegian walloper, knocked a few more chips off Tom Heeney, the hard rock from down under when he decisively defeated him in a savagely fought ten-round battle in the Coliseum tonight.

Heeney at the finish presented a bloody spectacle, hanging on desperately, or backing away from the Norwegian's vicious assault. The New Zealander suffered an ugly gash in his lower lip in the tenth round. In a twinkling his face was crimson with blood.

Von Porat, displaying unusual boxing skill for his awkward-appearing style, was credited with winning seven of the ten rounds, with the opening two going to Heeney and the seventh being called even.

Von Porat actually outboxed the ranged New Zealander, but he could not upset him. In tribute to Heeney's courage, he came charging in to meet Von Porat's heavy assault and refused to back up until the sixth round when he began to tire and slow up.

The battle was fought before a crowd of close to 10,000 with the receipts amounting to approximately $55,000.

The verdict of Referee Ed Purdy and the two judges was unanimous for the lanky Norwegian with the Johnny Evers jaw.

HUNTER FILES UNEXPECTED ENTRY FOR TENNIS TOURNEY

NEW YORK, March 12—(AP)—Frank Hunter filed an unexpected entry today for the National indoor tennis championship beginning Saturday in which he becomes a joint favorite with Jean Borotra of France.

The New Rochelle, N. Y., veteran, who is ranked second to Bill Tilden in the country, previously indicated definitely that he would not compete, but has yielded to a desire to try conclusions again with the bounding Basque whom he eliminated in the National outdoor championship last fall. Hunter has been playing in the south and is rounding into good condition. Borotra, who cabled his entry from France, is reported now on his way here.

The two internationalists top a field of some 70 players which includes Bill Aydelotte, the present champion; Herbert Bowman, Gregory Mangin and other stars of the Metropolitan district. Entries closed today.

BRUINS CLINCH TITLE IN NATIONAL HOCKEY LOOP

BOSTON, March 12—(AP)—The Boston Bruins clinched the American championship of the National Hockey league for the second consecutive time here tonight by overwhelming the Chicago Black Hawks, 11 to 1, in a spectacular game which contained much open play.

During the game every member of the Boston team, with the exception of Hitchman, Owen and Galbraith, participated in the orgy of scoring, establishing a league record for this season. Gainor, Oliver and Clapper each netted two shots and Carson, Weiland, Shore, Lane and Klein flashed the light once.

After the game, the Bruins management announced that the first game of the play-off, expected to be with Les Canadiens, would be played here next Tuesday night.

"BIFF" JONES GIVES HUMOROUS TALK TO FOOTBALL MEN

NEW YORK, March 12—(AP)—"Biff" Jones and Major Philip Fleming gave representatives of a good share of the 71 colleges with which West Point has athletic relations an insight into army sport and army humor today.

At a luncheon of the Western Universities club attended by college men from as far west as Stanford and even Sydney, Australia, the big bluff Army football coach wished "bigger and better football teams for all except Illinois, Stanford, Notre Dame and Ohio Wesleyan" which happen to be on the Cadets' schedule for 1929.

Confessing in the light of his team's defeat by Stanford last fall that the western boys "run a little faster and handle the ball a little better—on certain Saturdays," Jones said Roy Riegels' backward run at least had proved that the west was human and not infallible.

"I understood they don't let their football players go on the one-way streets out there now," he remarked. At the same time he expressed the opinion that the publicity that came Riegel's way may make him an All-American next year.

Major Fleming, the Army's graduate manager of athletics, said his own "equipment for a football game consists of one cigar but the matches are gone."

Seriously he declared. "If Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of Eton, we expect that the next war will be won on the athletic fields of West Point."

SCHMELING TO AGREE TO NO CONTRACT NOT SIGNED BY HIM

BERLIN, March 12 — (AP) — Max Schmeling, German heavyweight boxing sensation, will not agree to any reputed contracts for fights in the United States, unless they bear his own signature. He made this declaration here today when told of reports he had been matched with Paulino Uzcudun, the Spaniard, in June.

No contracts have been signed for Schmeling to fight Uzcudun, it is now understood to be the plan of Madison Square Garden officials to match the German with Jimmy Maloney, in Boston this spring, the winner to fight the survivor of a bout between Paulino and Jack Sharkey.

SONNENBERG THROWS MYERS IN STRAIGHT FALLS

CLEVELAND, March 12—(AP)—Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg of Detroit and Providence, R. I., world's heavyweight wrestling champion, retained his title here tonight by throwing Fred Myers of Chicago in two straight falls.

Sonnenberg combined a butt, half nelson and a crotch hold to win the first fall in 23 minutes. The second came on an arm lock in 11 minutes.

Tommy Drake, Holland mat champion defeated Jack McCarthy of Chicago, taking a fall on a half nelson in fourteen minutes.

SENATORS WIN FIRST EXHIBITION GAME OF SEASON

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12—(AP)—The Washington Senators with their old pitching ace Walter Johnson at the helm went into their first game of the training season today and emerged victorious over the Boston National league entry 5 to 2!

Johnson used three of his hurling hopefuls, Burke, Liska and Brown, and they held the Braves to six hits while their mates were registering eight, mostly where they counted. Smith and Cantwell di dmound duty for Boston.

REDS BLANKED BY ATHLETICS FOR SECOND TIME

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 12—(AP)—The Philadelphia Americans defeated Cincinnati today, 3 to 0, in a six inning game that was called because of rain.

A triple by Foxx in the second after Simmons's single gave the Athletics their first tally. Bunched hits in the fourth accounted for the other runs.

By winning this game the Athletics made it two games to one in their series with Cincinnati.

Forgione Kayoes Lee

PORTLAND, Me., March 12—(AP)—Vincent Forgione, Philadelphia middleweight, knocked out Laddie Lee, of Portland, in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-round bout here tonight. Until a sudden left hook floored Lee, the fight was spectacular and even, with the Portland boy shaking Forgione considerably with heavy punches.

Thil Defends Title

PARIS, March 12 — (AP) — Marcel Thil, French middleweight champion successfully defended his title tonight, knocking out the challenger, Ivan Laffineur, in the second round.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Yap Yap at Home

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Some folk can never be alone;
Their worst companionship their own.
—Old Mother Nature.

"Who is Yap Yap?" asked Peter Rabbit.

Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak looked down at him for a moment. "Yap, Yap," said he, slowly, "is about the same relation to Johnny Chuck as Jack Rabbit is to you. Out where he lives they call him Yap Yap the Prairie Dog. But he isn't a dog at all. He and Johnny Chuck belong to the same family. So he is a sort of small cousin of Johnny Chuck."

"I suppose by that you mean," said Peter, "that he isn't as big as Johnny Chuck."

"That's just what I mean," replied Wanderer.

Peter was getting interested. "Does he look like Johnny Chuck?" he inquired.

"Enough like him so that you would know that he and Johnny Chuck were relatives," said Wanderer.

"Does he sit up like Johnny Chuck?" insisted Peter.

"My goodness, Peter, but you are full of questions!" replied Wanderer. "Yes, he sits up like Johnny Chuck, only more so. I mean by that, he spends more of his time sitting up than Johnny Chuck does."

"Of course, he lives in a hole in the ground," said Peter.

"Of course," replied Wanderer. "His hole is rather different, though. I think if you should get down into Yap Yap's hole, you would have difficulty in getting out."

"I don't have any difficulty in getting out of Johnny Chuck's hole," said Peter. "In fact, there is an old hole of Johnny Chuck's grandfather over in the dear Old Briar-patch. Sometimes Mrs. Peter and I use it in bad weather. If I can use an old house of Johnny Chuck's, I don't see why I should have any trouble with one of his cousin's houses."

"Johnny Chuck's hall goes down at a slant, doesn't it?" said Wanderer.

Peter nodded. "Doesn't Yap Yap's?" he asked.

"No," replied Wanderer. "It goes almost straight down and it goes down deep. At least, that's what I've been told. It isn't quite straight down, but it is pretty near it. Then it branches off way down deep. Yap Yap isn't much like Johnny Chuck in one thing."

"What is that?" asked Peter.

"Yap Yap likes company," replied Wanderer. "You don't find Yap Yap living by himself. He wants a lot of his relatives living right close by, so that he can go visiting whenever he feels like it, and that is pretty often. Did you ever see the home of Banker the Swallow in a sandbank?"

"Certainly," replied Peter. "You mean, of course, the Swallow who lives in a sandbank. He always has a dozen or two of his friends living in the same bank. What has that got to do with Yap Yap the Prairie Dog?"

"Only that Yap Yap has his friends around him just the same way. Their ponces are so close together that it is only a few steps from one to another. That is the way Yap Yap likes to live," explained Wanderer. "Each house has a nice mound around it and on these mounds Yap Yap and his friends like to sit and gossip, while they keep watch for enemies. Johnny Chuck wouldn't like it at all there. Johnny likes to be by himself too much. You ought to see Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote hunting Prairie Dogs. I saw them doing it once."

POETRY

A Modern Wit

A supercilious nabob of the east—
Haughty, being great—purse-proud, being rich—
A governor, or general, at least,
I have forgotten which—

Had in his family a humble youth,
Who went from England in his patron's suit.
An unassuming boy, in truth,
A lad of decent parts, and good repute.

This lad had sense and spirit,
But yet with all his sense,
Excessive diffidence
Obscured his merit.

One day, at table, flushed with pride and wine,
His honor, proudly free, severely merry,
Conceived it would be vastly fine
To crack a joke upon his secretary.

"Young man," he said, "by what art, craft, or trade,
Did your good father gain a livelihood?—
"He was a saddler, sir," Modestus said,
"And in his time was reckoned good."

"A saddler, eh! and taught you Greek,
Instead of teaching you to sew!
Pray, why did not your father make
A saddler, sir, of you?"

Each parasite, then, as in duty bound,
The joke applauded, and the laugh went round.
At length Modestus, bowing low,
Said (craving pardon, if too free he made),
"Sir, by your leave, I fain would know
"Your father's trade!"

"My father's trade! by heaven, that's too bad!
My father's trade? Why, blockhead, are you mad?
My father, sir, did never stoop so low—
He was a gentleman, I'd have you know."

"Excuse the liberty I take,"
Modestus said, with archness on his brow,
"Pray, why did not your father make
A gentleman of you?"

Winter Roses

There are winter roses,
There are flowers that spring
Out of snowy gardens
Just as in the spring;
Roses of bright moments
When the heart can feel
The sweet of southern breezes
Out of memory steal.

Soft seas surge and murmur
Through that tropic of
The heart that basks forever
In the sun of love;
And there is no winter
When roses do not rear
Their loveliness to soften
The bitterness of fear.

Yes, I have the roses,
And I have the breezes, too,
From soft seas warm and pleasant
In valey of magic dew;
The roses of the winter
That in my old heart bloom
To veil the marble places,
To hide the aching tomb.

CHIROPRACTIC CASE GETS ATWOOD INTO COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 12—Herman S. Atwood, M. D., of Stonington, with offices in the Westerly Furniture building, High street, was before Judge Oliver H. Williams Tuesday morning in a special session of third district court. On complaint of Dr. Byron U. Richards, M. D., of Providence, secretary of the Rhode Island State Board of Health, he was charged on May 27, 1928, with the practice of medicine in Rhode Island without first securing a certificate from the Rhode Island State Board. On his plea of not guilty the case was set down for hearing Friday next.

On Feb. 1st the respondent was complained of on the part of the State of Rhode Island by Dr. Byron U. Richards for practicing medicine without a license. He was represented by Attorney Augustine T. L. Ledwidge and the case was continued to Feb. 15th. At that time the complaint charged that from Dec. 17, 1926, and continuously thereafter he gave chiropractic treatments to Mrs. Harvey Arzamarski, receiving compensation and not first obtaining a Rhode Island certificate. D. Harold Rogers became surety in the sum of $1000 for his court appearance. March 1st, Attorney Ledwidge announced in the regular Friday session of third district court, that by agreement with Benjamin McLyman, assistant attorney general of Rhode Island, who was to represent the state the case would again be continued two weeks, to March 15th.

CHINESE RESTAURANT REPORTED BOOZE JOINT

Venetian Gardens, an Italian restaurant, which succeeded John's restaurant, formerly the Canton Chinese restaurant on the second floor at 22 Main street, has closed. There have been reports that liquor could be purchased there. The chief of police when asked as to its closing stated that it was without a license, consequently could not do business. As these victualizing licenses have to bear the chief's signature there may be police authority in the matter of its being closed.

BRUSH AND GRASS FIRES MAKE WORK FOR COMPANIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 12—Brush and grass fires have started for the season in Westerly and Pawcatuck, the Pawcatuck fire department being engaged in response to telephone calls in fighting two fires of this nature. The first one was at 1:15 p. m. on Lorraine Mill property, Prospect street in Pawcatuck, where the presence of the firemen prevented the spread of the blaze to adjoining houses. The fire started on land adjoining the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company.

The second fire was on Hinckley Hill. The blaze began over Wequefequock way and was carried through the woods by the strong south-westerly wind. Some 150 acres of land were burned over and a quantity of second-hand lumber about the Atherton place on Hinckley Hill became fuel for the flames. A call was sent into the Liberty street fire station and Chief Engineer Francis J. McMahon and eight or ten took the Ahrens-Fox pumper to the last hydrant on West Broad street, from which the pumper sent water through a line of 1200 feet of firehose. It was 3:45 p. m. before the firemen returned to the station. As in the Mechanic street section, the firemen prevented the flames from approaching a number of houses located near the burned-over area.

Monday afternoon Fire Chief George E. Egger, of Westerly, and men were called out for a brush fire in the wooded section of county east of Beach street, across from River Bend cemetery. The firemen went in response to a telephone call and prevented the blaze from setting fire to a summer shack located in the woods. Lands of Mrs. Thomas J. Banyon were among those burned over by the brush fire.

TRYING TO SAVE MATES, QUARRYMAN INJURED

Joseph Taveresto, residing at 45 1-2 Pierce street, suffered painful injuries Monday afternoon while engaged in his work as a quarryman at the Smith Granite company quarry, on Quarry Hill. A large stone was being hoisted and had started to slip in its hoisting chains. To prevent the stone falling and crushing workmen employed below Taveresto pushed the heavy piece of granite with the result that it swung around and pinned him at the shoulders. He was taken to his home where Dr. J. Gordon Anderson was called and found his left shoulder-blade broken, as well as three ribs. He also suffered injuries to his shoulder joints. At 2 p. m. Dr. Anderson had him taken to the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital for further examination and treatment.

Struck But Not Injured

Ernest Hall of Lester avenue was struck and knocked down Monday evening by an automobile driven by Norman C. Church at the corner of West Broad and Coggswell streets. Mr. Hall was crossing the street when the Church car started into Coggswell street. The driver was going slowly and jammed on his brakes when the pedestrian's form suddenly loomed up before his machine. Mr. Hall was struck and knocked down, but sustained no injuries and was able to continue on his way.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENTS HELP RALLY IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 12—(AP)—Prices rallied rather listlessly on the stock market today, in response to several favorable industrial developments and a drop in the call money rate to 6 per cent for the first time since Feb. 20.

After an irregular opening, the market generally headed upward, with a long list of important issues recording extreme gains of 1 to 8 points, but there was a rush to take profits just before the close, which sharply cut down the advances.

The supply of call money was more abundant than the market has experienced in about three weeks, but trade situation was inclined to regard the situation as largely temporary, probably resulting from the accumulation of funds at the banks for the income tax payments March 15. Time money held firm at 7 3-4 per cent.

The fact that none of the out-of-town reserve banks holding meetings yesterday raised their rediscount rates, was somewhat reassuring to speculative circles, but expectations of a higher rate at New York, either this week or next, remained fairly general. The taking of more than $10,000,000 in gold in Germany failed to bring expectations of a large flow of gold into New York. A rise of 1-4 of a cent in rate for sterling cables gave rise to reports that the central banks were co-operating to prevent any such development.

Commission houses advised their customers to extend commitments with extreme caution, and total sales fell off to 3,061,760 shares, the smallest full day's business since last month.

The day's operations were largely professional, and much of the day's advance appeared to be the result of the driving to cover of over extended shorts.

Conspicuous in the day's news was a further mounting of copper prices, the domestic price rising 1-2 of 1 cent to 20 cents a pound, after publication of the February report of the American bureau of metal statistics, showing a sharp drop in stocks of the red metal on hand. There were several favorable dividend actions, including a jump from $2 to $4 in the annual rate of Western Electric, a rise from $1.60 to $2.60 in Loose-Wiles annual payments, and resumption of dividends by Rio Grande Oil.

A few of the volatile issues made sharp gains. Rossia Insurance jumping nearly 22 points, and Radio (old) stock, mounting to 13 1-2 points to 464 1-2; only to fall back to 467. American Express climbed nearly 13 points, Coppers as a group moved ahead on the higher red metal price, Greene Cananea, Anaconda, and Kennecott making extreme gains of about 3 points. Miami sold at 50 3-4, a new high.

Allied Chemical, American Railway Express, A. M. Byers, Commercial Solvents, Electric Auto Lite, Foundation, Montgomery Ward, National Cash Register, and Underwood Elliott Fisher recorded extreme gains of about 3 to 7 points, but some of these were cancelled.

U. S. Steel sold up 3 points, but lost most of its gain. American Telephone improved on the higher Western Electric dividend. Some of the oils improved, Atlantic Refining mounting about 2 points, reflecting reports of a plan to retire its preferred stock, and Standard of California responding to a favorable earnings report for 1928.

Rails and utilities were inclined to heaviness. Among soft spots were Allis Chalmers, Brooklyn Union Gas, Coty, Crosley Radio, Ingersoll Rand, International Paper, Otis Elevator, Victor Talking Machine, Nickel Plate, Southern Railway, and Wright Aero, all of which sold off about 2 to 5 points.

In the commodity markets, wheat moved up more than 2 cents a bushel on reports of damage to the winter crop, and cotton closed steady after a sinking spell.

The foreign exchanges were largely firm in response to unusually active demand for sterling, the cable rate mounting to $4.83 3-8. The Canadian dollar, however, fell to a discount of nearly 3-4 of a cent.

The average for the industry a year ago was between 82 and 83 per cent.

MACFARLANE NAMED ALDERMAN TO SUCCEED W. E. JACKSON

WILLIMANTIC, March 12—Chauncey E. MacFarlane, a former councilman, was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Alderman William E. Jackson at a special meeting of the common council held immediately after the postponed March meeting tonight. Mr. MacFarlane, who was nominated by Alderman W. E. Webber, president of the council, received four out of the five votes cast. The opposition was by Alderman C. A. Lamoureux, republican, who had nominated Wilfred A. Gagnon, for the office. Aldermen Webber, E. B. Lewis and O. L. Willard, republicans, and John Reilly, democrat, voted for MacFarlane.

As the special session convened Alfred R. Handfield, member of the First District republican committee presented a petition signed by about 175 residents of the district, requesting the board to elect Robert A. Hanna to fill the vacancy. After presenting the petition Mr. Handfield said "We realize that council has sole power to elect an aldeman to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Jackson but we feel that in such a case each ward should have a say in the selection of its representative." The petition on behalf of Mr. Hanna had been drawn up Sunday and some 50 first ward voters occupied the gallery of the council in moral support of their request. It had been indicated by the first district people that in the event that Mr. Hanna was not considered for election by the council they would throw their support to Mr. Gagnon. In order that the special meeting tonight would be held according to provisions of the charter the aldermen filed a waiver of notice to a special meeting. Corporation Counsel W. A. King read the charter with respect to the clause explaining the manner of election in a vacancy which is to be the effect that the council elects and that the mayor has no voice except in the case of a tie. With five aldermen present as was the case tonight three votes were necessary for choice. Alderman Lamoureux and Reilley acted as tellers.

The monthly meeting which had been recessed while the special session was being held, was reconvened by Mayor Charles A. Gates who announced that Alderman MacFarlane would assume all of the standing committee appointments held by the late Alderman Jackson, with the exception of the chairmanship of the police committee, to which Alderman Eugene D. Lewis was appointed, placing Alderman MacFarlane in second position on that committee. The standing committee on which Alderman MacFarlane has been appointed, and his position on each follows: Fire, second; library, chairman; light, second; ordinance, third; police, second; sewers, second; streets, second; water, second.

Considerable business, new and routine in nature, was transacted during the session. The outstanding item was a resolution authorizing the police committee to appoint a regular member of the police department to serve as clerk in the office of the chief, subject to the orders of the chief. This resolution, which was introduced by Chairman Lewis of the police committee, is designed to give the chief the liberty of taking whatever hours of duty in the office or on the street as deemed advisable by him, eliminating the present system, which necessitates that the chief remain in his office during regular duty hours. A petition of the Willimantic Baseball club, signed by Major Joseph R. Morrison, asking for the use of Memorial field as a ball park for the coming season, was granted. The resignation of John H. Shea as a supernumerary of the police department was accepted. Corporation Counsel King called attention to Shea's truthfulness of his misbehavior at a recent hearing granted him and also in this instance. Alderman Lewis added that in view of Shea's truthfulness and of his efficiency when in proper behavior it was hoped that in the future he could be re-appointed.

It was voted to pay a refund of $134.75 to C. E. MacFarlane for taxes paid on the 1925 grand list, it being explained by City Clerk Arthur L. Clark that the tax was paid Feb. 4, 1927 and paid again Dec. 29, 1929. The sum of $150 was voted paid to Campbell Bros. on a deficiency in the garbage collection contract which they hold. The mayor and city clerk were authorized to borrow the sum of $10,000 to pay current expenses, the latter two resolutions being introduced by Alderman Lamoureux.

The police committee will purchase four silent policemen and a semaphore traffic signal at a cost not exceeding $250, according to a vote taken tonight. The new silent cops will replace the present "dummies" now in use along Main street and will be equipped with flashing lights. The police committee was also authorized to cause the printing of a new police manual to be drawn up under the supervision of the committee. These resolutions were by Chairman Lewis. As an amendment to a recent vote, Alderman Webber introduced a resolution that the water where water rents were delinquent is not to be shut off until April 8.

It was voted that a check, left with the city clerk by James F. Donohue be returned conditionally, according to a resolution introduced by Alderman Lamoureux. Alderman Webber announced on behalf of the fire committee that the Jackson street fire house had been renovated as a club home and was now ready for occupancy as headquarters for the veteran organizations of the city.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Gem—Willimantic

Theatre-goers of Willimantic and surrounding towns will be given another treat during the week when the Gem theatre presents more of the Vitaphone all-talking pictures. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday "The Terror" will be the attraction with May McAvoy, Louise Fazenda, Edward Everett Horton and a big supporting cast. As a play it ran for three years on the London stage and is now a most successful all-talking picture. The program will be nicely balanced with three Vitaphone vaudeville acts.

On Saturday, Sunday, Monday, comes the hit of hits with Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool." This attraction needs but little introduction, only to say it will be at Willimantic's most popular theatre for three days with extra shows on each day.

B. Gotthelf & Co.

The B. Goetthelf & Co., Max Silberman proprietor, announces the re-opening of its store at 94-100 Main street on Thursday morning, March 14th after having been closed for a ten day period of renovation. The popular business house, which for years has served the Norwich public has undergone a complete change during the past ten days and those that take advantage of Mr. Silberman's invitation to visit the place will be pleasantly surprised with the improvements that have taken place. The interior of the place has been redecorated and several of the departments enlarged to meet the demands of an increased trade. New cases for garments have been installed, new rugs have been laid and a most up-to-date line of furnishing, that will add to the comfort of the patronage, have been brought into use. It is understood that in the very near future Mr. Silberman contemplates remodeling the front of the store to co-incide with the interior improvements.

The latest, smartest and most popular models of ladies, misses and children's wearing apparel will be on display with the opening of the store Thursday morning. Garments and hats that will be worn this spring are featured at moderate prices. Included in the millinery stock are all the newest and smartest modes in dress and sport hats, particularly the famous Ballibuntal, creched viscas and bakore.

Spring Opening

And Window Contest

Thursday, Friday, Saturday March 14th, 15th, 16th

Thursday evening, March 14th, will be the official opening and window contest, and in addition to a strong array of merchandise, which will be offered by Norwich Merchants, there will be many valuable awards—useful and decorative articles for the person and home—given to the window shoppers.

HOW TO OBTAIN AN AWARD

Over 10,000 circulars are being distributed throughout the city. There are also several hundred of these circulars in each of the stores participating. Every merchant who is co-operating in this event will give, absolutely free, one article. Of the 10,000 circulars there are many awards. A number has been assigned to each merchant and the award with the number to each thereto will be conspicuously displayed in his window.

AWARDS WILL BE GIVEN ON SATURDAY

The merchants of Norwich extend a cordial invitation to all residents of Eastern Connecticut to visit the stores during the Spring Opening Days and share in the many advantages which the occasion offers.

FERRY RESTORATION PETITION AT NEW LONDON TO BE DROPPED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 12—A petition was started in circulation Saturday last when the ferryboat Mohican was taken from the route between this city and Groton. This was because the lessees, Captains George Crandall and David Sheehan vacated their lease, through permission so to do by the city council, owing to the operation of the ferry being done at a loss. Now the petitioners have abandoned their idea of continuing with its circulation. The petition was intended to be presented to the city council requesting that the ferry trips be resumed, inasmuch as patrons were greatly inconvenienced by the suspension of the trips. However, when it became evident to the circulators that the presentation of the petition would be of no avail in securing the placing of the boat back in service, the circulation was ended. At present a caretaker is kept on the boat and a fire is maintained in the boiler, in the event that an emergency might arise that would necessitate the moving of the boat from the New London slip.

Patrolman Harry Watterson reported at police headquarters today the existence of a quantity of rubbish in the rear of the Nash Motor Sales company place, corner of Rosemary and Williams street.

APRIL FOOL JOKERS STARTING IN EARLY

The police were kept busy a half hour tonight attempting to run down an emergency telephone call for assistance at the address given, 45 Squire street, but after a visit to the house where the purported trouble existed none of the occupants were at home. The first call was received at 7.30 o'clock when a woman requested that officers be sent to the house without delay. While Officers Braxton Hill and Henry Hick were speeding to the house, another call was received urging the hurrying of officers. Fifteen minutes later the officers reported that the occupants of the house were not at home and no one in the neighborhood could be found who had knowledge of any trouble having occurred on the street. Now the police are wondering whether they were not the butt of some joker.

Thomas C. Montgomery, 491 Montauk avenue, made complaint to the police tonight that a gang of boys were causing him much annoyance. Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell was sent to the location of the trouble and dispersed the gathering.

Patrolman Dennis Murphy discovered the entrance of the store of N. Haddad, 201 Main street, unlocked. The owner of the store was notified and secured the building for the remainder of the night.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Solomon entertained a score of their friends at cards at their home, Pearl street, tonight.

ELECTRICAL ORDINANCE IS NOT POPULAR

The council, meeting as a committee, listened last night to the proponents of a proposed ordinance that will regulate electrical work performed in this city and, which, if passed, will bring about drastic and serious changes in the performance of the work. The committee will meet again Monday night, the 25th inst., in the office of City Manager Holt, when the matter will again be considered. The ordinance is generally opposed by others than those interested in its passage, principally electrical workers, and if such an ordinance is passed it will not be framed in the same phraseology as that presented last night, but will be subjected to numerous and important changes.

CARELESS WITH HER MONEY, WOMAN CAUSES EXCITEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 12—Carelessness with her money caused a woman employe of the Kaybrook Manufacturing company, 37 Hempstead street, much uneasiness and the police no amount of needless trouble late yesterday when the woman, through her employer, had police headquarters notified that she had been robbed. The woman declared that $100 which she had intended depositing in a savings bank had been stolen while she was at her work. In reality the money had not been stolen, but was left at her home in the woman's hurry to go to work. Shortly before the end of the day's work she informed her employer that the money, which she had in her pocketbook and which had been placed upon her work-bench when she returned from lunch, was missing and that no one had entered or left from the work room during the afternoon. Convinced that the money had been stolen, the employer notified police headquarters and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Policewoman Jane Cassidy were sent to the manufactory. Detective Cavanaugh questioned the woman, who was positive that the money had been stolen, for she stated that it could not have been lost otherwise. The officer suggested that possibly the money had not been brought by the woman when she returned to work from lunch, but this the woman stoutly denied. It was decided that all of the employes be searched and they willingly submitted, men and women. While the search was in progress, Sergeant Cavanaugh again questioned the woman and induced her to send a messenger to her home and make a search for the money. This she finally consented to do and when the messenger returned the information was brought that the money had been on a table where the woman had left it in her haste to return to work on time.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 12—Earl C. Branch, 892 Bank street, emergency clerk employed by the Whelen Drug company, corner of State and Bank streets, was in the police court today charged with the embezzlement of $130. Branch's bond of $1,000 was reduced to $500 and he obtained a surety. He was arrested yesterday at the instigation of spotters of the company, one of whom claims to have purchased smoking material for 35 cents and that Branch rang up but 35 cents on the register. ANNOUNCEMENTS

St. Mary's Players

Life has all kinds of people. Some are straightforward, some untrustworthy, some bluffs, etc. Regarding the latter they are loud in laughter and dress, fluent in speech—a congressman would find it difficult to hold his ground in their presence, and if they can flower their speech with some sentences in a foreign tongue—oh, then, they surely make a hit! The flappers think he's grand, and even mothers are impressed. Is the lady of the house taken with this social ass in this play? She is. Is the father? Not so you'd notice it. He has some ideas of his own as to who should be allowed to entertain his daughter and hang his hat on the hall-tree. See this show and learn more about this.

Breed Theatre

Irene Rich stars in "Beware of Married Men," a Warner Bros. production which is scheduled for the Breed theatre for a run of two days, commencing today.

Irene Rich as Myra Martin has a role which admirably displays her versatility. She is the business-like secretary of a divorce lawyer, a gray-haired "social worker," and a captivating young woman conscious of her power over mere man, all within the course of one of the most amusing comedies of the season.

The reason for the story is Myra's flapper sister who is being courted by a married man-about-town, whose wife retains Myra's employer as her lawyer. Myra sees the way the wind blows and adopts a disguise which turns the trick, saves her sister and causes some uproarious moments.

Clyde Cook also plays detective. Myrna Loy is the disillusioned wife, Stuart Holmes the gallivanting husband, Richard Tucker the lawyer, Audrey Ferris the flapper sister and Hugh Allan the young lover who mends the flapper's broken heart.

Archie L. Mayo directed "Beware of Married Men," which was adapted for the screen by E. T. Lowe, Jr., from the story of Franz Jacques.

George Jessel, the famous stage and screen entertainer, will be seen in his new screen comedy, "Ginsberg the Great."

Broadway Theatre

The utmost directorial care must be exercised in creating a photo-drama where characterization is the chief consideration. Hollywood's leading directors declare.

A striking illustration of this rule is seen in "The Battle of the Sexes," coming to the Broadway theatre tomorrow. In this picture, D. W. Griffith not only had one definite personality to work with, as is common in most motion pictures, but five vivid characters, each completely indispensable to the structure of the drama.

The play is primarily a character study of the typical American home, with its moments of supreme happiness and depression, all of which is reflected in the character development of the leading players.

For example: Jean Hersholt is made to go through a complete stage of building up until he appears as the ideal family man, then there is a period of degeneration when he meets the home-wrecker (Phyllis Haver) and relinquishes his home and family ties for her sake. The end of the picture finds him regenerated and once more the family man—but a wiser one.

The same holds true of Belle Bennett, who plays the wife of Hersholt. She passes through the stages of happiness, bitterness and again happiness. Phyllis Haver remains the same character throughout the run of the picture, but her part calls for affectations of love for Hersholt and a duality of motives that makes of her portrayal easily one of the best things she has ever done.

A specially prepared sound accompaniment is a feature of the presentation of "The Battle of the Sexes" at the Broadway theatre. The musical score and sound effects personally devised by Hugo Riesenfeld, celebrated composer and conductor, formerly musical director for the Criterion, Rialto and Rivoli theatres in New York city, are given by the Riesenfeld orchestra through the medium of the new sound reproducing apparatus installed for the benefit of Broadway patrons. Perfect synchronization between action and sound is achieved throughout the entire exhibition.

Palace Theatre

The reckless abandon with which the jazz-crazed youth of today fling themselves into the mad chase after the illusive "good time" is vividly depicted in "The Road to Ruin," which will close at the Palace theatre today.

Jazz and gin, sex and sensuality, cars parked on shady lanes, sporty roadhouses, wild strip poker parties, are among the highlights of this most unusual picture, which graphically illustrates the terrible results of parental neglect and ignorance in the handling of modern youth.

"The Road to Ruin" is up to the minute, and as Sally Canfield, exotic Helen Foster, a new screen luminary, gives an astonishingly realistic portrayal of the errant flapper. Others of especial note in the cast are vivacious Virginia Roye, Grant Withers, Tommy Carr, Folrence Turner and Charles Miller.

The co-feature, entitled "The Clean-up" is quite a thrilling entertainment. Charles Delaney is starred, expertly supported by a cast including Betty Blake, J. P. McGowan, Charles Hickman, Harry Myers, Bruce Gordon and Lewis Sargent.

Basically, the picture is a melodramatic thriller, but there is also a sweet love story to temper the thrills. Or add to them, depending whether danger or love thrills you the most.

Mr. Delaney enacts the character of a young editor who is bent on cleaning up the town inhabited by his readers. He is not the sort to sit safely at his desk and tell the police how to do it. No sir, he leads the fight in person, risks his life intemperately and in a thrilling finale personally engages in mortal combat the leader of the racketeers. He saves not only his own life, but the life of the girl he is engaged to marry.

Thursday will bring to the stage of this theatre five headline acts of vaudeville headed by George Fredricks & Co., a scenic novelty revue with laughs, love interest, beautiful scenery and songs. This is one of the most novel acts on the American stage today. Four other top-notch acts will appear on the same program.

The photoplay: "Tommy Atkins," made famous by Rudyard Kipling, a figure known wherever romance is read, is the central character in the motion picture of that name which comes to the Palace theatre on Thursday for three days. The drama takes its title from the name applied to every English soldier. Around this character in song and story has been woven a series of stirring adventures photographed in the picturesque Soudan and near London.

LECTURE ON JEWELED WINDOWS AT SLATER HALL

A large audience at Slater Hall heard the lecture given, on Monday evening by Charles Connick of Boston, under the auspices of the Norwich Art association, the subject being "Jewelled Windows."

Mr. Connick said that the answer to the question, "Is the making of stained glass a lost art?" is "No. The art is not lost; we have in it an artist's medium for use today just as in the past. For a time in this country the art appeared to be lost, and the men here made transparent pictures instead of windows. Many of these examples of glass pictures are to be found all around us.

An artist who had also been a decorator, studied the windows of Chartres cathedral and found that the glass had a semi-opacity that toned the light. He and a glassmaker in Philadelphia invented an opalescent glass. The first ones made were really beautiful windows, but as he worked the artist found that he could get tones of color and he began to make pictures in glass. As he was a real artist his pictures were real and sincere but the men who followed him, the makers of "art glass" windows, were not artists, but money makers. In the business for profit, and everything became mechanical, standardized, until they even kept stock windows made up, ready for customers who did not know the difference. As a result our churches became ugly and the windows lost their original purpose as a means of letting light into a building letting it in in vibrations of color, but remaining a part of the architectural design.

A great architect designed a lovely Gothic memorial chapel in which he wanted to put real stained glass windows and he began to study some of the famous old windows, but before he was ready to submit his plan someone sold the donor of the chapel an "art glass window." The artist's forceful remarks when he saw it roused other artists to the feeling that realistic pictures had no place in church windows, and the incident marked the beginning of serious effort for real stained glass windows and a study of the two fundamental laws of the old craft.

These two laws are: First, the radiation of color and light, and secondly, the absorption of black in light and color.

Mr. Connick showed lumiere slides showing the effect of strong light and of distance on simple designs in colored glass, illustrating the problems with which artists have to deal in planning windows for great churches. He also showed the difference between a colored lithograph and the same design in glass, with the light vibrating through it, and the difference in color at different times of the day. He said that a person could not feel that he really knew a window until he had seen it in all changes of light and season. A window is at the mercy of the weather in the results of corrosion that form a patina on the weathered side of the glass that affects the color. Blue withstands the patina best, changing least of all and white glass is most affected by it and least durable.

The windows of Chartres cathedral are valuable not only for their great beauty, but also because they make us feel so keenly the spirit and poetry of the times in which they were made. Most of them are 13th and 14th century work, but the beautiful "Notre Dame de la Belle Verriere" (Our Lady of the Beautiful Glass) is said to have been saved from the fire that swept Chartres in the 11th century.

Mr. Connick calls this Notre Dame window one of the three greatest stained glass windows; the other two bein gthe Jesse Tree window at Chartres and the Crucifixion window at Poitiers.

The Jesse Tree shows the descent of Our Lord from the old patriarchs and prophets and scenes from His life. This was a favorite subject with the early glass makers.

In these most beautiful windows the figures are not realistic pictures, but parts of a design, pure and simple, and fit into the window as details of the whole architectural structure. Even the old guild marks showing symbols of the donors' trades are not like our modern advertising.

In connection with some fine slides of windows in Rheims cathedral Mr. Connick said that these were made before the war, but that many of the windows at Rheims have been very well restored with original panels that were saved during the shelling by French soldiers who cut out sections of the windows, bent the leads so that the panels could be folded together and carried them out under fire to safe hiding places.

The windows in the cathedral of Sens are said to have been made by the same workmen that made those at Canterbury cathedral, which are very similar.

Griseille windows, where flowing patterns in black were painted on white or gray glass and used to set off panels of glowing color, were much used in the 14th and 15th century windows and the use of these and of white glass is very common in the English windows because the English climate, with its lack of strong light, makes it very difficult to let in light enough through colored glass.

In contrast to these older windows, with patterns in glass that still retained architectural features, Mr. Connick showed one of the transparent pictures made by John LaFarge, then a series showing the attempt made by Burne-Jones to get back to the old tradition, modern examples done by a group of Irish artists, and American work with his own from the children's corridor at Calvary church, Pittsburgh, and the Dante window at Princeton chapel.

In illustrating a detail of the Dante window Mr. Connick showed several slides illustrating the development of the pattern in pieces of clear glass to the painted and completed panel.

He said, in closing, that glass is a medium not only for a craftsman, but also for the creative artist who tries, with the soul of a poet, to make the glass sing with color and light as poets make words sing with rhythm and sound.

NORWICH TOWN HOME CHAPTER HAPPY ON 32D ANNIVERSARY

The March meeting of Home Chaper of the King's Daughters, held Monday afternoon at Johnson home, proved a gala time for the attendance of 76. This was the observance of the 32nd anniversary of Home Chapter. The leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, presided. Among those present was Mrs. George H. Prior, branch president of King's Daughters, who was a special guest. The meeting opened with a hymn, scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. Manning, followed by reports. Announcement was made that the next meeting of the chapter sewing society would be Thursday March 14th, at the home of Mrs. William H. Whitman, 232 West Town street. A silver collection was taken at this meeting, netting $13.75 to be added to the chapter fund. A humorous playlet, arranged by the leader entitled Packing the Missionary Barrel, was put on by several members to the merriment of all. The characters were in old fashioned costumes, some of which were unusually quaint. Musical numbers and the address by Mrs. Prior precede the playlet. The program follows:

Vocal solo, An Open Secret, Miss Lois Manning; for an encore she gave To You; addres, Power and Service, Mrs. George H. Prior of Jewett City; motion song, Lullaby, Janet Cowan; vocal solo, Roses, encore, The Song That Reached My Heart; playlet, Packing the Home Missionary Barrel. Characters, Mrs. Brown, hostess, Mrs. Earle H. Christman; Mrs. Dimps, short and stout, Mrs. George Turner; Miss Flinn, a simpering spinster, Mrs. Roswell F. Brown; Mrs. Green, a bosser, Mrs. John C. Atterbury; Mrs. Jones, a confirmed invalid, Mrs. William H. Manning; Mrs. Lam, a widow, Mrs. Thomas Keen; Mrs. Marks and Mrs. White, willing helpers, Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice and Mrs. Charles Cross; Mrs. Hicks, a strong minded woman, Mrs. Jabez Bailey; Sophie, a Polish girl, Mrs. Charles Burke. There followed A Bird Song by Janet Cowan. Mrs. Walter Cowan was the piano accompanist throughout the afternoon.

When the women started to pack the barrel it was discovered grape juice, dried apples and jellies were all that had been donated, so it was quickly decided to eat the jellies. The Johnson Home matron provided crackers to go with them. Each participant in turn sampled this little treat.

During the play the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Prior, who substituted for Mrs. Manning. The Chapter motto and another hymn, brought the meeting to a close. During the social hour the chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. David M. Dean, assisted by other members, served ice cream and cake.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

AMERICAN INTERESTS FEEL EFFECTS OF REVOLT IN MEX.

Business Men Have Called Upon the State Department to Ask the Mexican Government to Loosen Up on Embargo Which Has Prevented Shipments of Urgently Needed Supplies—Imports of Coal and Explosives Are Needed by American Mining Interests—A Considerable Amount of Perishable Vegetables Intended For Shipment to the United States Are Denied Export Facilities.

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP)—American business interests in Mexico have begun to feel the pinch of the revolution and have called upon the state department to ask the Mexican government to loosen up on the strict embargo which has prevented shipments of urgently needed supplies.

The Mexican authorities already have deferred to representations made by Ambassador Morrow and have permitted some shipments to come through at Naco, for the Cananea mines and the Gil government has indicated that because it regards the revolutionary situation less serious it hopes to regulate shipments in such a way as to work a minimum of hardship upon the civilian population.

Imports of coal and explosives are needed by American mining interests. In the states of Sonora and Chihuahua there is a considerable amount of perishable vegetables intended for American consumption and the Mexican government has begun to permit a passage of these under the guarantee that the money derived from their sale will remain in the United States and thus insure that it will not fall into the hands of rebels to be used in furthering their activities.

Throughout Mexico there are vast American mining, oil and other interests, estimated by American government officials to be worth approximately two billion dollars. Many of these have been forced to curtail their activities. It is held that unless supplies from the United States can get through, the plants might have to cease operations entirely with a resultant loss to American investors.

The state department has been informed the Ambassador Morrow has sent Edward Lowry, a secretary of the American embassy at Mexico City, to confer with the governor Guajaiajara on the situation of Americans in that state. Word was received that the governor is loyal to the federal government and has been mobilizing agrarian forces to replace troops moved to the front and accordingly no concern is felt for American citizens or business in that region.

While no news reached the state department as to the activities of General Calles, who is leading his columns northward toward Chihuahua where a major engagement may occur with the rebels, scattering reports from American officials in Mexico indicated continued activity between the rebel and loyal armies.

From Mazatlan in Sinaloa on the Pacific coast, the objective of the rebel forces proceeding southward, reports stated that the revolutionists had again appeared at LaCruz and Quila, but that they shortly retired. At Manzanillo conditions were reported quiet and Americans were not in any danger. Eleswhere scattering engagements were reported.

In connection with the retention of General Borquez at Nogales by American immigration officials, it was indicated that while the general had been released, rebels who appear on American soil hereafter might be held. This it was pointed out, would be in keeping with the spirit of the Pan American treaty which would bind countries of the western hemisphere to detain rebels against constituted governments when they appear on foreign soil. This treaty has not been consummated by the United States since consent of the senate has not yet been voted.

Secretary Kellogg however, feels that there is no opposition to the treaty in the senate and it is considered likely therefore that the American government would seek to carry out its intent so far as practicable.

PROTEST TO HOOVER ABOUT NEW ENGLAND SHIPPING

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP)—The administration policy of absolute conservation of government oil, the rehabilitation of trade in New England and the resulation of salmon fishing in the state of Washington were among the subjects placed before President Hoover today by a sucession of calers from Capitol Hill.

Another, Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, republican representative from Massachusetts, said she told Mr. Hoover that she felt New England was being discriminated against with regard to ships, shipping and shipping rates and that in her opinion conditions would be improved generally throughout New England if this situation could be corrected.

The farm relief problem was brought up by Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, who declared the agriculture committees of the house and senate would cooperate in evolving a remedy for the agricultural depression.

During the day it was learned that, while the resignation of Charles H. Burke as commissioner of the bureau of Indian affairs in the interior department is to be accepted, Burke will be continued in the government service in another post.

The medal presented to the president today was a gold reproduction of bronze emblems which were sold to the inaugural day crowds as souvenirs, the proceeds were used by the local committee to help defray the cost of the celebration.

DIPLOMAT DRIVES LOAD OF WHISKEY INTO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP)—The first truck load of embassy liquor to be brought to the capital since the Washington police said they would arrest private truck owners using their vehicles for this purpose arrived today unmolested. The truck was accompanied by a member of the diplomatic corps who personally took over the steering wheel and drove the truck into the city.

At least two private truck owners have been warned by Washington policemen that unless some diplomat with the usual immunity credentials accompanied them on the truck their loads would be halted.

In one case an attache of an embassy was following a truck in his private automobile, but this was not considered sufficient to give the truck immunity from seizure for carrying liquors.

These warnings were given by the police some time before the passage of the Jones law imposing more severe penalties for dry law violators. Several embassies, which previously had adoped the method of entrusting their shipments to private truck owners, have now adopted the custom of the majority of the diplomatic missions by hiring the truck and having it driven or accompanied by an attache enjoying diplomatic immunity.

HEAVY SENTENCES FOR GANGSTERS IN BOSTON

BOSTON, March 13—(AP)—Four gangsters recently found guilty of holding up a dice game in a South End pool room, were given heavy sentences by Judge Edward T. Broadhurst in superior court here today after motions for a new trial had been denied. Americo Tutella was sentenced to from 24 to 28 years in prison and the others, Pasquale Vallarelli, Carmino Ventola and Angelo Polcari, to from 21 to 24 years.

In imposing sentence, Judge Broadhurst pointed out that Tutella had a record of 17 convictions, that Ventola, according to police records, began a career of crime at the age of 8, and that the others also had records. He hoped their sentences would be a lesson to young men engaged in this business. The four were arrested a few days after Anthony Chiampa 19-year-old South End gangster and boxer, was found shot to death.

BUSINESS DISTRICT OF GALENA, ILLS., IS FLOODED

GALENA, Ills., March 13—(AP)—Waters from the swollen Galena river flooded the business district here today, paralyzing traffic and forcing many concerns to close.

The river, which divides Galena and West Galena, already has reached the highest stage on record here and was still rising tonight.

The business section for nearly three blocks on Main street was under several feet of water, and business along Commerce street for more than a half a mile was suspended.

The post office was surrounded for a block on all sides by high water, and persons whose business took them there had to travel by boat. The city hall was abandoned early today when flood water seeped in and almost drowned 11 vagrants who had spent the night in jail. In the excitement, they were forgotten, and were not rescued until nearly noon.

Other cities in this area also reported rising waters. Across the state line in the vicinity of Monroe, Wis., creeks and streams were reported out of their banks, flooding highways and railway tracks. A Milwaukee train was marooned near Gratiot overnight. Families residing in lowlands have prepared to abandon their homes.

THEFT OF 100 BOOKS OF LIQUOR PRESCRIPTIONS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 13—(AP)—Providence police have sent out a general alarm for a sedan automobile bearing a man and woman who are declared by prohibition agents to have stolen at least 100 books of prescriptions for covernment liquor from doctors' offices, in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

According to Deputy Prohibition Administrator John W. Morrill, the prosperous looking couple several times paid visits to doctors' offices to be certain that the doctors are out. Then, when the maid or office nurse is absent from the room, the books are stolen, taken to New York and sold for fancy prices. Authorities say five Providence physicians lost their prescription books in this manner last Saturday and Monday and that approximately 75 physicians in various cities and towns in Massachusetts have reported similar thefts.

The woman is described as "an attractive blonde." Providence police have been ordered to watch all garages and to pick up the car for the federal men on sight.

WOULD LOOSEN LAW ON THE KILLING OF DEER

HARTFORD, March 13—(AP)—Less stringent regulations regarding the killing of deer by farmers, was requested of the fish and game committee of the legislature today by a number of residents of North Stonington and vicinity. The region, according to a number of farmers, is "infested" with deer, to the detriment of the crops.

Two bills, seen as an alleviation of the present difficulty, were favored. The first, introduced by Representative William Marvin, of Lyme, would repeal the portion of the statute requiring farmers killing deer on their property to file a report of the circumstances. The second, advocated by Representative Edward L. Dennis, of Scotland, would eliminate the necessity of reporting killings, but would provide that the deer could not be removed from the premises of the owner, thus prohibiting sales.

ALL AUSTRIA IS DEEPLY MOVED BY TRIPLE TRAGEDY

VIENNA, March 13—(AP)—All Austria has been deeply moved by the triple tragedy of the beautiful actress, Helen Resch, her two-year-old son and her mother, all of whom were found dead today from asphyxiation. Unrequited love for Prince Ernest Windisch-Graetz, grandson of the late Emperor Franz Josef, was the apparent cause.

"Bury me with the photographs of my two great treasures, my lover, Ernest, and my baby son, Franz Josef," said a note left by the 29-year-old actress whose beauty made her the toast of the city when she starred recently in an Americanized operetta. Prince Ernest is 24 years old and is a son of the Archduchess Elizabeth Maria, only daughter of the late emperor.

It was stated that the couple had been living together for three years. A few days ago, however, it was reported that the prince had become betrothed to a wealthy, aristocratic heiress.

Fraulein Resch appeared as usual at last night's performance, returning home at midnight. She had telephoned to the prince that she, her mother and her child had been threatened with eviction from their flat unless the rent was paid. She also reproached him for his coolness and alleged disloyalty. Then she penned her farewell note to him.

"I gave you my soul, my honor and my life," said the message. "Now you appear to love another, so I am leaving life's stage forever. I have danced my last dance and sung my last song.

"I bid you an affectionate farewell. Bury me with your photograph and that of our beloved child."

Investigators were convinced that after penning this note, the actress went into the bedroom where her son and mother were asleep, turned on the gas and laid down to die with them.

THREE PERSONS WERE KILLED BY EXPLOSIONS

The first blast occurred at 1 o'clock. Two hours later, while crowds surrounded the scene, the second building was shattered.

Racketeers were blamed for the destruction by some officials, while others attributed the havoc to natural gas explosions.

State and municipal authorities joined in the investigation.

Claims Made by Mex. Federals and Rebels

Both Maintain They Are Control of Important way Center at Saltillo

(By The Associated Press)

Federals and rebels are both claiming possession of the important railway center at Saltillo, which commands the direct railway line from Mexico City to Monterey and the American border, in the principal new development of the Mexican revolutionary campaign.

An official Mexico City communique yesterday afternoon reported federal troops from Monterey in active pursuit of retreating rebels beyond Saltillo after having occupied the city in the morning.

But rebel General Murrieta, in command at Juarez, denied Saltillo had been evacuated and said he had been in communication with its rebel garrison as late as 10:30 a. m., when it was stated that there was "nothing new to report."

Mysterious and brief conversations took place between Gen. Francisco R. Manzo, rebel second in command, and V. M. Vaques, federal Mexican consul, in a hotel lobby at Nogales, Ariz. They later denied they had seen each other.

Gen. Augustino Olachea, whose sudden declaration for the federal cause was a sensational blow to rebel courage, entrenched his force of Yaqui and Mayo Indians behind barbed wire entanglements at Naco, Sonora. The loyal governor, Abelardo Rodriquez, of Lower California, who has been named federal commander in his province and at Naco, was on his way to conference with Olachea, passing through United States territory. Federals claim Olachea's move had cut off rebel forces in Chihuahua from those in Sonora. Speedy capture of nearby Agua Prieta was expected by the government.

While federal advance on Torreon, rebel headquarters where 22,000 revolutionaries are reported concentrated, seemed to have been slowed down by difficulties in repairing destroyed railroad track.

Trouble for the federals nearer home was announced in the government's own bulletin, which stated that loyal troops from Vera Cruz and the south had been ordered to Irahuato, in the state of Guanajuato, to fight local uprisings.

The government claimed to have ample loyal forces in every region to suppress rebellion.

Defeat of federal forces at Carneros, San Luis Potosi, and death of their commander, Gen. Carera-Torres, were reported to rebel officers at Nogales, Sonora.

Rebels who cross the American boundary line will probably be interned in accordance with the spirit of the unratified Pan-American treaty providing for internment of individuals rebelling against the constituted government, it was said at the state department.

United States government officials at El Paso were considering dispatch of two airplanes to patrol the Mexican border against rebel gun-runners.

Labor leaders in the Mexican Federation of Labor telegraphed their support to the government and secretary of the Pan-American Federation of Labor at Washington.

Half Dozen Cities M[illegible]oned by Snow

[illegible]zzard Has Raged Unabated in Central Wyoming For Forty Hours—One Fatality.

DENVER, Colo., March 13—(AP)—Winter laid siege on the Rocky Mountain region with renewed intensity today, marooning a half dozen or more cities behind deep snow while high winds and low temperatures brought suffering and privation to the inhabitants. The blizzard, coming on the heels of springlike weather, had a bitter sting.

Wyoming was the hardest hit state of the region although nowhere were extremely low temperatures reported. Eastern Montana felt the sting of the belated blizzard keenly. Miles City, in that state, was covered with more than a foot of snow.

One fatality was reported. Henry Folster, 38, of Laramie, Wyo., died of exposure on a passenger train where he found refuge after stumbling through the snow for about 10 miles after he abandoned his truck, which became stalled near Virginia Dale, 39 miles south of Laramie.

The storm has raged unabated in central Wyoming for forty hours. The town of Sheridan, near the Wyoming-Montana boundary, experienced the worst winter weather of two years. Ten inches of snow blocked traffic on the city's streets and huge drifts on the highways in the vicinity virtually isolated the city from communication.

Air mail service was hampered, but the fliers continued to carry the mail slightly behind schedule.

TWO TRAGIC DEATHS AT THE DAYTONA BEACH SPEEDWAY

Auto Traveling at More Than Three Miles a Minute Got Beyond Control of Its Driver, Lee Bible, Daytona Beach Garage Mechanic—It Crashed Into a Sand Dune, Killing Bible and Charles Traub, a News Reel Cameraman—Accident Occurred Just After Bible Had Crossed the Measured Mile Course—It Was Witnessed by About 20,000 Spectators—Bible Had Never Driven a Race Car, Except at a Few Small Dirt Tracks in Florida.

OCEAN SPEEDWAY, Daytona Beach, Fla., March 13—(AP)—Lee Bible, 42 year old Daytona Beach garage mechanic, rode to a spectacular death today in the 36 cylinder racing car with which he was attempting to break the world's speed record of 231 miles an hour. Speeding at more than three miles a minute the machine got beyond his control and crashed into the sand dunes, striking and killing also Charles Traub, a news reel cameraman.

The accident, one of the most tragic in the history of beach racing here, occurred just after Bible had crossed the measured mile course at a speed of 202 miles an hour and was witnessed by approximately 20,000 spectators, who lined sand dunes for miles.

Roaring over the course at such a terrific speed, the car, owned by J. M. White of Philadelphia, quickly disappeared in a haze that hung over the beach and those who sat in the grand stand a mile away were unable to see just how the accident occurred.

Eye witnesses, who were standing on the dunes at the end of the mile, declared Bible attempted to run too far out on the course near the surf. They said the driver, evidently believing the car would run into the ocean, lifted his foot too quickly from the accelerator. With the power shut off so suddenly at that speed, the car started to swerve from the course.

Witnesses said Bible probably slammed on his brakes and attempted to swing the machine back into control but in doing so turned the steering wheel too far. The machine went out of control, spun around twice on the beach and turned over. It bounced high into the air, going into a barrel roll and smashed into the dunes with a terrific impact. Traub, who was standing on the beach taking pictures of the race, attempted to get out of the way, but the car was traveling too fast.

Traub was struck squarely by the speeding car just before it crashed into the dune. His body was severed and mangled beyond recognition.

While the car was turning over, and just before it struck the dunes, Bible's body was hurled from the machine onto the beach. Witnesses said he attempted to sit up, gasped and fell back on the sand, dead.

The Triplex, which held the world's record of 207 miles an hour before Major H. O. D. Segrave of England boosted the mark up to 231 last Monday, was demolished. After rolling for several hundred feet over the beach it struck the high dunes and rolled back onto the course, rightside up. All four wheels were torn loose and one of them rolled across the course into the surf. None of the tires blew out, however.

The front 12 cylinder motor was torn loose from the frame, but the two rear motors remained in place. The steering wheel was broken and the hood and cowling was stripped from the machine.

Bible never had driven a race car, except at dirt few small dirt tracks in Florida, and the middle west and had staked his life on the opportunity to make a name for himself.

When White brought the car here last year, he stored it in Bible's garage and turned the majority of the mechanical work on it over to him.

After Ray Keech of Philadelphia, drove the Triplex to a record of 207 miles an hour at that time, Bible felt the urge to again return to the racing game, and asked White to let him drive the car this year.

While said he had taken a particular liking to Bible, and because of the work the mechanic had done on the car, decided to let him drive it this year in "repayment of all the things he did for me."

When the opportunity presented itself to Bible, he made application for membership into the A. A. A. so that should he break the record, it would be officially recognized. Officials of the organization, however, held up the application until after he could make several test runs to prove his competence as a driver of such a high speed car.

Bible made two test runs in bad weather yesterday, attaining a speed of 190 miles an hour. When he brought the machine onto the beach today, he sent it roaring south over the course on a preliminary trial at a speed of 180 miles an hour.

Spectators at the north end of the course saw the tragedy clearly. Bible's body, which was thrown from the machines as it rolled over the beach, was badly broken.

Bible is survived by his widow and two children. Traub, who was about 30 years old, is survived by his widow.

White did not witness the accident. He trailed along in a car over the beach, and learned of the tragedy only when he came upon the crowd standing around the wreckage.

Trembling and shaken and with tears rolling down his cheeks, he was helped into his machine and taken to his hotel on the verge of collapse.

It was not known whether Mrs. Bible witnessed the accident. But she had said earlier in the day that she would be at the track to "see my husband break this record."

After Bible had gone north on his fatal run, the crowds, which had stood up in the grand stand and gave him a mighty cheer as he roared by, sat down as the machine disappeared in the haze, thinking the driver had made his run successfully and was preparing for another run.

Several hundred spectators were standing on the dunes when the speeding car went out of control and they narrowly escaped death when it struck the dunes almost at their feet.

THIRD TRAGEDY IN TWO YEARS OF SPEEDSTERS

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—The death of Lee Bible on the famous sand straightaway at Daytona Beach is the third tragedy in two years to mark attacks upon the world's automobile speed record.

J. G. Parry-Thomas, the famous English driver, was killed March 3 1927, on the sands at Pendine, Wales, in an attempt to beat his own mark of 172 miles per hour, made in 1926. The latest record feat of Major H. O. D. Segrave has thus added more than 59 miles per hour to the record since then.

Frank Lockhart American automobile racing champion, was catapulted to death in his Black Hawk machine at Daytona Beach April 25, 1928, in a vain effort to eclipse the mark of approximately 207 miles per hour, set by Ray Keech in the White Triplex that today crashed with Bible at the wheel.

In recent years, the toll of racing dare-devils included Jimmy Murphy, twice American national champion as well as winner of speed classics in Europe, and Dario Resta, famous Italian driver who numbered the Indianapolis 500 mile race among his victories. Both were killed in 1924.

Lockhart was driving a light Stutz racer and it blew a tire as it neared the timing wire. Hurtling end over end, it jumped four times into the air and travelled 1,000 feet before it came to rest in the sand.

The driver's unconscious form was tossed from the tumbling machine as it somersaulted down the beach. The hospital doctors said he had died almost instantly.

Lockhart died on April 25, 1928, in his second unsuccessful attack on the record. On the previous Feb. 22 he had skidded into the ocean during a speed trial not half a mile from the place where he was later killed. As he took his last ride, Lockhart's wife sat in an automobile on the beach and witnessed his spectacular death.

His body fell almost at her feet as she ran to his aid.

A group of policemen, reporters and cameramen narrowly escaped being mowed down by the whirring car.

TRAUB HAS BEEN WITH PATHE FIRM FOR 15 YEARS

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Charles R. Traub, the cameraman killed today when Lee Bible's giant racing machine catapulted across the sands of Daytona Beach, has been with the Pathe firm for 15 years.

Traub has been stationed at Miami for sometime and had scored several picture beats for them, Pathe officials said, his latest being pictures from inside the S-4 when she was sunk off the Florida coast to test the new "submarine lung." He also made several pictures from inside a diving bell on the ocean floor during the tests.

Major Ross Wyntock, one of the editors of Pathe, left for Daytona Beach last night to take charge of the body.

SEGRAVE HAS CANCELLED ANY FURTHER TRIALS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 13—(AP)—Lee Bible "did not die in vain," Major H. O. D. Segrave, British racing driver and holder of the world's land speed record, said tonight in paying tribute to the former garage mechanic who was killed today in the crash of the giant Triplex while attempting to better the record.

"It is just one of those things which occasionally happen and which must be expected in the development of high speed racing," said the British driver who set a mark of 231.36 miles per hour Monday.

Major Segrave had intended to make an attempt to boost his own record, but cancelled any further trials.

"In due respect to White and Mrs. Bible, I am through," he said.

He did not see the crash.

"It is most impossible to tell the cause of accidents like that," said Major Segrave. "The car always is completely demolished and we may never know exactly what happened. When Bible went by the grandstand, he seemed to be all right and to have the car under control.

"I watched it go down the course and everything seemed to be lovely until the car suddenly went out of control. It was too bad, but just one of those things you have got to expect."

PRINCIPAL HARROUN LONG IN EDUCATIONAL SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 13—News of the death of James L. Harroun, principal of the Natchaug grammar school for the past 35 years, as announced in Wednesday morning's issue of The Bulletin, cast a shroud of sorrow over this community. Expressions of regret were being received today by the family from many former students of the school, a number of whom have risen to prominent positions in this and other cities. Condolences were also received from the teachers who served at the school under the able supervision of the late principal. Principal Harroun died at 11.30 o'clock Tuesday night in St. Joseph's hospital where he had been a patient for the past 11 days.

Mr. Harroun was born in Corfu, N. Y., September 23, 1863, a son of George and Fannie Harroun. Besides his wife, Mrs. Nina Beardow Harroun, he leaves one son, J. Kenneth Harroun of Marion, Ind., and two daughters, Mrs. E. W. Collins of East Hartford and Mrs. C. G. Bailey of Washington, D. C. All members of the family had arrived in this city in fearing for the worst as attending physicians gave up hope.

Principal Harroun was to complete 35 years as head of the Natchaug grammar school this year and his forty-fourth year as a teacher. Born on a farm in Corfu, N. Y., he spent his spare time working on the place in his early 'teens, studying whenever opportunity presented. When 17 years of age he entered the Brockport, N. Y., normal school and studied laboriously for three years in a preparatory course of teaching. For one year he taught in one of the "little red schoolhouses" in West Greece, N. Y., then entering Rochester university for one year's study.

He taught for three years in the Corfu high school and then served for one year as principal of the Spring Valley, N. Y., high school.

He became supervising principal of the Wequonnoc grammar school in Taftville, this state, in 1890. On December 15, 1892, he was united in marriage with Nina Beardow in a wedding performed in Taftville by the late Rev. G. N. Kellogg.

Mr. Harroun came to Willimantic in 1894 to take the position of principal of the Natchaug school. An efficient educator, a strict disciplinarian and able supervisor, Principal Harroun won and held the strongest respect, if not actual affection, of the hundreds of pupils who went through the grades and of the many teachers who served under him. It was during his administration, or in July 1914, that the old frame structure was torn down and the new brick building to which a spacious addition has since been built was erected, making it one of the most attractive and largest grammar school structures in the eastern section of the state.

Principal Harroun's long and honorable record placed him as dean of Windham educators. He was recognized as one of the most thorough and efficient grammar school masters in the state. Principal Harroun devised a plan of attendance credits under which any room in the grades could gain a half a holiday a month if showing a perfect attendance for the preceding month. By this means each pupil was not only ambitious to be on hand for every session but also took care to see to it that others were as well. The plan functioned well for many years.

Mr. Harroun wrote, and the town school committee published, a course of study for grade schools, which is of unusual merit, not only because of its practical methods, but also for its suggestions as to how character building may be interwoven with the daily teaching. He was also principal of the Windham town evening schools for the years 1907 to 1917.

He was first president of the Willimantic Young Men's Christian association and served 13 consecutive years in that capacity. Recognition of this service was made at a past officers' night held at the "Y" in February.

For many years Mr. Harroun took an active interest in bowling, featuring in candlepin bowling for which he established a record of the town with a score of 233 big pins. He also attained considerable fame among American chess players, having won some notable games with skilled competitors. He once played a draw game by correspondence with the noted J. H. Stapfer the game lasting one year and a half. His interest in athletics led him to follow closely the school games and the presence of Principal Harroun at a contest never failed to contribute to the enthusiasm of the players.

Mr. Harroun was affiliated with the Congregational Church Brotherhood and was an active member of the chamber of commerce.

BUCK BLOCK ON MAIN STREET SOLD TO ROSEN BROTHERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 13—Announcement was made today of the completion of one of the most important real estate transactions of the past year in the sale of the Buck block at 646 Main street by the Windham National bank to Ike Rosen and Rosen Brothers. The Buck property consists of a four story brick structure with three stores on the ground floor. At present the former Lemus dance hall is located on the second floor while the remaining stores are occupied as tenements. The structure was used for many years as a grain and feed store by the Buck Grain company and some four years ago was remodeled into stores and a dance hall.

Mr. Rosen will remove his clothing, dry goods and shoe store from the Rosen block which he built some years ago on Broad street and which has since exchanged ownership on several occasions. Extensive renovations will be made to the newly purchased block. Mr. Rosen will take over the space occupied as an office by the Parker-Elliott Coal company up to recently and will establish a modern department store with departments on the first, second and third floors. He will retain the top floor for storage purposes. The dance will be included in the diversion of space for the departments. The purchase price was not made known but it is understood to be one of the largest involved in a local transaction of that nature in many months.

Mrs. Frances Herrick, member of the state board of education for the blind, delivered an interesting work on her work at the March meeting of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., held at the home of Mrs. Albert E. Welch, 70 Pleasant street Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Frank Larrabee, the regent, presided. At the conclusion of her talk Mrs. Herrick presented Miss Ivy Mead, the pioneer home teacher in the homes of the Hartford district, who has over 100 blind pupils under her supervision. Miss Mead told many interesting anecdotes of her experiences and exhibited samples of the Braille and Moon systems of lettering. Articles made by the blind people were then placed on exhibition, a feature of the show being a practical demonstration by Richard Gummer of Hartford, a pupil, who made rush bottomed stools and chairs, and Miss Sabra Burdick, another pupil, who did needlework. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. Welch was assisted by Mrs. F. E. Guild, Mrs. George M. Graves, and Mrs. S. C. Higbee while the pourers were Mrs. Julia Larrabee and Mrs. Theresa Congdon.

Commander Dr. W. P. S. Keating of James J. Mead post, No. 19, American Legion has received the keys to the former Jackson street fire house which has been entirely renovated, on order of the common council, as quarters for the veteran organization. The keys to the new quarters were turned over to Commander Keating by Alderman William E. Webber, chairman of the fire committee. The extensive repairs and alterations to the building were made under the supervision of Fire Chief Wade U. Webster. The repairs included the refinishing of walls, ceilings and floors, repairing the heating plant and reconditioning the bath facilities. The housing committee of the legion post, with James J. Lee as chairman, will continue active to secure adequate furnishings for the new quarters. The large front room on the second floor formerly used as a parlor by the volunteer firemen will be utilized as a meeting hall. Card and billiard tables will be provided for the room. Lounging room and parlor furniture will be secured for the first floor. While the furniture owned by the local Y. D. association has been donated for the new quarters there still remains much to be secured and it is proposed to stage a series of whist parties during the spring and early summer months to raise funds for the equipment.

The American Legion will observe its tenth anniversary next Friday.

The Y. M. C. A. will inaugurate a ground school on aviation to cover a series of 15 lessons next Monday night. About 30 students have already enrolled for the course. A nominal fee of $25 to be paid in installments will be charged for the course. At the group meeting held to discuss the formation of a class Tuesday night, Lieutenant Dixon of Hartford introduced H. C. Young of this city as vice president of the Yankee Flying club of Hartford. Mr. Young is expected to become a licensed pilot in the near future. The course is to be sponsored by the educational committee of the "Y" and General Secretary Albert B. Smith stated that the organization will receive no profit whatsoever from the fees paid.

The upholstery of the truck was somewhat damaged but the blaze was extinguished by employes before the arrival of the firemen.

WARRENVILLE

REDS AND BLUES ARE TIED IN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONTEST

The attendance at the Baptist church Sunday was unusually large for the season, both for the morning service and at Sunday school. The number at the Sunday school session was the largest recorded for many months, due to the efforts of the two teams in their contest for best attendance and most new pupils. This week the Reds and the Blues tied for points, which was encouraging to the Blues, who have been slightly behind every Sunday so far. They hope to make a still better showing next week and wipe out the lead which the Reds still hold. At the morning service Rev. E. B. Verney preached on Christian Womanhood, under the title Bethany. Jesus in His dealing with women, especially with Mary and Martha, showed that He recognized the importance of women's influence in making the world better. Every life influences the world for better or worse and a tremendous responsibility rests on women to make their lives count on the side of all that is good. Mrs. William Downes sang a solo, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Z. B. Bicknell. The subject for next Sunday was announced as Olivet—a sermon on Christian Suffering.

COLCHESTER

TOWN BUILDING PROJECT STARTS UP SITE QUESTION

One of the principal topics of discussion among people in the business section, Wednesday, was the plans now under way for the selection of a suitable site and the erection thereon of a brick building with fireproof vault for the housing of the town records. At the adjourned town meeting Tuesday afternoon it was voted to expend not to exceed $4,000 for that purpose. One of the duties of the recently appointed building committee is to search the records to ascertain the definite ownership of the site before the new building is erected. There is thought to be a question as to whether some of the proposed sites in the center of the village are town property or borough property.

E. MacFarlane of Willimantic elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Alderman William E. Jackson, is well and favorably known in Colchester, having been a frequent visitor here for many years.

Real spring-like weather was enjoyed here, Wednesday, the mercury reaching 72 degrees at one p. m.

DANIELSON

FRANK THERIAQUE CRITICALLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 13—Frank Theriaque, otherwise known as Frank DeForest, of Battey street, Putnam, was probably fatally injured just before 11 o'clock this morning, when the Overland touring car he was operating went out of control, crashed a bank at the side of the highway, then shot across the road and turned over. Theriaque was pinned beneath the car and sustained a compound fracture of the skull and other injuries. Armand Billings of Danielson, who was riding with Theriaque, was thrown clear of the car and landed in the roadway. He sustained a cut that required one stitch to close, under his left eye, and minor cuts and bruises. The accident happened at the top of the grade on the state highway just north of the town farm, three miles north of here. Theriaque was driving south from Putnam toward Danielson at the time. The injured men were attended at where the accident occurred by Dr. F. P. Todd of Danielson and Dr. R. C. Garcia. Later Theriaque was removed in an ambulance to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam. The accident was investigated by State Officers Elton Nolan and Emil Castagna of the Danielson barracks. Up to this afternoon it had not been determined how the car came to go out of control. Theriaque is a brother of Arthur and George DeForest of Danielson. The condition of the injured man this afternoon was such as to cause grave doubts as to whether he will recover. The car was badly wrecked.

This afternoon Attorney E. L. Darbie, Patrick Riley and Frank J. Gorman, members of the special committee of the town to procure certified public accountants to audit the records of the town of Killingly, met in Attorney Darbie's office and conferred relative to the report. Following the conference Attorney Darbie said that the committee will meet again, possibly on Thursday. Recommendations relative to the report will be drawn up, to later be presented to the voters in connection with the report, which was received here about a month ago. When these recommendations are prepared and approved by the committee the selectmen will be asked to call a special town meeting to hear the report of the committee and to receive the report of the auditors.

On the eve of the annual borough caucus, Warden Harry E. Back stated this afternoon that he will not be a candidate for re-election this year, and would retire from his place at the head of the borough government at the end of the present month, or more accurately, in the early days of April, following the annual borough election. This will not be good news to the people of the borough who appreciate that Warden Back has done splendid work, with no compensation whatsoever, and especially because he has been such a rigid economist in the administration of borough affairs, a policy that has resulted in a gradual reduction of the tax rate. In this connection it may be mentioned that Attorney Back expresses the opinion that the borough will be able to get along on as low a rate as 7 mills this year, a reduction from the 8-mill rate of last year and several mills lower than the rate when Warden Back took office. This reduction will offset in some degree the advance in the town tax rate voted this week. Warden Back is retiring purely in the interest of his health and to relieve himself of as many duties outside his profession as possible.

One of the matters heard by the judiciary committee at Hartford yesterday was that having to do with increasing the salary of the judge of the town court of Killingly from $1,000 to $1,200. Judge Sabin S. Russell and Attorneys E. L. Darbie and Harry E. Back appeared in favor of the measure. No one appeared in opposition.

As a matter of fact, the money paid as salary to the judge of the local court is for the performance of a dual service—he is required to do the work of the clerk of the court as well as that of the judge. The majority of town courts that have the volume of business of the Killingly court have both a judge and a clerk, and each receives a salary.

It so happens that there is a state police barracks in this town, a fact that materially increases the amount of business transacted by the local court. This is not presented in any sense as criticism, but to point out that a considerable amount of business originates here through the valuable presence of the state officers. It may be illustrated by pointing out that state officers working here may, and frequently do, order men into court for some violation or other of the laws, many times these persons being residents of other towns of the state, or of some other state. Instances are the recent prosecution in the town court of cases having to do with men operating motor vehicles without a license. The work of the judge of the local court has grown materially in the past few years, but the salary has not kept pace with the added burden.

At the home in West Brooklyn at 10 o'clock this morning a funeral service for Frances A. House was conducted by Rev. W. E. Newton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Orleans, Mass., and formerly pastor at Attawaugan. During the service a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Ashworth, Mrs. Mabel Leavens and W. W. Reimer sang Lead Kindly Light, and Jesus, My Saviour, Pilot Me. The bearers were a son-in-law, Alexander Dallas, Sr., and five grandsons, Alexander Dallas, Jr., Francis Arnold, Henry House, all of Hartford, and William and Donald House of Brooklyn. Burial was at Haddam Neck. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Westcott Road is the name selected for the new highway leading east from Main street, at Hutchins street, by the warden and court of burgesses in regular monthly session last evening. The name seems particularly appropriate in view of the fact that it runs in part through property formerly of the Westcott estate and bears a family name long prominent in the annals of Danielson. Incidentally, selection of a name makes it easier for the public to designate the highway definitely, instead of calling it "the new road," "the Providence highway cut-off" or other cumbersome and unsatisfactory appellations. It is understood the new name applies to that section of the new street between Main and the junction of Stearns and Reynolds streets at the trunk line route to Providence.

Among other minor matters the meeting considered was that of repairs to a barn on the borough farm, shingling of this structure being authorized.

Homes where acts of prostitution are alleged to be committed appear to be in for raiding. This was not denied in official circles today, but the acknowledgement made that complaints about these places have been received and that the matter is under investigation. No objection was made to publicity being give the fact that raids are contemplated unless the situations complained about are immediately cleaned up.

Tonight found a number of residents of Danielson at the Congregational church in Wauregan to hear a Lenten sermon preached by Rev. Edwin H. Byington, D. D., of Boston.

Charles P. Gager of Windham was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so. He was fined $10 and costs, a total of $20.37. Gager was ordered into court by State Officer Donald J. Geddes.

Again today March compensated for the roughness of its early days by turning on a flood of sunshine that sent the temperature up to 68 degrees during the early afternoon.

The epidemic of illness that has prevailed for many weeks is apparently dying out in this town, with fewer patients each week.

Danielson will be represented Thursday evening at the dinner to be given by the county commissioners at the Nathan Hale hotel in Willimantic.

There was an informal opening of the baseball season of 1929 this afternoon when boys got out bats and balls for a "one-old-Cat" session in a field in the southerly section of the borough.

These are days of tribulations for men operating trucks over country roads, now deep with mud in many places. Excavations here in Danielson show about a foot of frost remaining in the ground.

James Quinn, 59, dropped dead while at his work in a mill at Pascoag, R. I., yesterday afternoon. The body of Mr. Quinn is to be brought to Dayville for burial. Mrs. Quinn, who survices her husband, was Miss Delia Cooney of Dayville prior to their marriage 17 years ago. They have no children.

The mails are bringing and taking away St. Patrick's day greeting cards, which are presented in great variety this year.

Nightly now those who are interested in such sport are watching for the first run of suckers near the function of the Quinebaug and Assawaga rivers. The fish are taken with spears when the run begins.

Michael Cronin is recovering from an injury to his foot sustained some time ago.

Miss Blanche C. Boisselle of Attleboro is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

A highway that has broken through with loaded trucks is that running from Attawaugan to Attawaugan crossing, a road that usually is in very good condition.

JEWETT CITY

POST OFFICE ENLARGEMENT TO BE STARTED SOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 13—Plans are under way for an enlargement of the post office. Representatives of the Corbin company were in town today, to complete final arrangements for the new contracts. The present frontage will remain as it is. Along Fanning court the office floor will extend through to the rear of the building, more than doubling the depth. Among the benefits to result will be provision for greatly extended floor space, for the office force to assort and distribute the largely increased incoming mail. Instead of receiving the hundreds of sacks across the office lobby, the star route, R. F. D. and depot transfer trucks will load and deliver at the new door in the rear addition. Postmaster W. T. Crumb has included in the plans which the department has accepted, a closed space in the left front, designated as the postmaster's office. Other changes will include the moving of the registry, stamp and money order windows to a point nearer the distributing table and dispatching cases. Postal clerks, in the railway service, have been often benefited, where every second gained in train distribution counts, by the finely madeup mails received from the Jewett City office.

Mr. Crumb, as well as the post-office inspectors who have been here recently, know that speedy distribution and dispatch is only possible when facilities are at their best. Increased patronage, taken with the advanced rating of the office to second class, have both had favorable bearing on the proposed changes for the better. New boxes and improved equipment will provide for the public the best possible service.

No local record of recent date, has anything comparable in temperature contrasts with the jump of the last few days. Seventy degrees rise is recorded from 1 a. m. Sunday to 11.20 a. m. Thursday, during which time the mercury rose from 6 to 76 degrees above zero.

Some thought Wednesday that such a radical change might be better appreciated if in the same number of hours, the mercury dropped from 6 above to 70 below zero.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church is to meet at the parsonage this (Thursday) afternoon.

A social time is planned for to-night (Thursday) at the close of the meeting of Faith chapter, O. E. S.

Fred Hebert is confined to his home on School street, where he was suddenly stricken with a shock, while playing with his baby. He has been employed by the Red Wing Co., for six years. Many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

John A. Owen and his cousin, Mrs. Farnham of Providence spent Wednesday in town calling on Mr. Owen's friends. Mr. Owen was a Jewett City resident for years.

STATE D. A. R. OFFICERS ACKNOWLEDGE HOSPITALITY

Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R. met in the chapter room Wednesday afternoon. The regent, Mrs. C. E. Spicer presided. The call was read to the state convention at Windsor March 19-20. A letter of acknowledgment was read from the state regent and vice regent for the delightful hospitality they enjoyed at their recent visit to this chapter.

An article on the Flag was read by Miss Ida J. Foster. Mention was made of an historic cut leaf oak which stands on the one time Francis S. Young property on East Main street When State's Attorney Arthur M Brown was a member of the constitutional convention in 1902 Senator Hawley gave each man a tiny slip of an oak tree. Attorney Brown set his tree out at his mother's home and it has grown to be a large, beautiful tree.

New England Supper.

Pachaug grange hall was filled on Tuesday evening with patrons of the old fashioned country supper. Nobody ever drew a blank at a grange supper. This was no exception. The great platters of juicy corned beef were flanked with a grand assortment of vegetables. Relishes, rolls, salads, pies and coffee, completed a wonderful menu. The supper was in charge of the Economic committee of the grange, Mrs. Grace Webster, Mrs. Chauncy Roble, Mrs. Victor Campbell, Mrs. Thomas Brown. The waitresses were Misses Francis Montgomery, Margery and Eunice Webster, Grace Campbell, Mary Lewis, Helen Weaver and Mrs. Ellen Young.

PUTNAM

S. M. WHEELOCK NAMED HEAD OF PUTNAM COUNTRY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 13—Silas M. Wheelock was again re-elected president of the Putnam Country club last evening at the annual meeting of the organization. The other officers of the club to hold office during the forthcoming season will be: First vice-president, Charles E. Dean; second vice-president, W. K. Latch of Danielson; secretary, J. Dyer Potter; treasurer, Thomas H. Decoudres; governors for three years, L. H. Mellor, W. F. Rafferty and Herbert Petler of Danielson.

Reports of the officers read at this meeting indicated that the club was in good standing, both financially and in membership. It was officially announced last night that "Chet" Irwin, well known in New England golf circles, will come to Putnam this year as golf professional to supplant Tyler Andrews, who has resigned.

Many in this city and in surrounding communities who read of Thomas L. Taylor, Putnam's oldest colored citizen, who is now the last surviving member of the crew of the Union steel clad, the "Monitor," which appeared in this column a few days ago, have been busy searching through old treasure books containing pictures of the Civil war, in an effort to find a likeness of Mr. Taylor as he looked when a group was taken of the crew of the "Monitor" after the battle with the rebel ship, "Merrimac." This writer has been informed by one, that in "Hopper's Official Civil War" collection of pictures taken with the permission of the United States government there is a photo of the crew of the "Monitor." In this now treasured tintype stands the then Tommy Taylor. Many resemblances and facial features of the slave powder monkey who took part in the first clash of steel clads are to be seen. There is also another photo of the crew of the monitor "Roanoke," which Mr. Taylor served aboard after his enlistment in the Union navy. Of interest to those who are interested in searching through old volumes, it has been reported that similar pictures of the crew of the "Yankee Cheese Box on a Raft" are contained in Brady's official collection of photos of the Civil war.

Forty years ago today, according to one who was here at the time, snow was two feet in depth and the mercury was hovering at depths as low as zero. The snow continued all March 12, the night, and the day after, the storm becoming famous in weather history as the "Blizzard of '88." That was just 41 years ago today. But today what a change. At noon the temperature was recorded at 71 degrees, one notch higher than yesterday. Only patches of snow were to be seen in a few places in the city. Overcoats were temporarily discarded and one very noticeable sign that warm weather is either present or ahead was the fact that several automobiles were on the highways with tops closed back, and the drivers enjoying the balmy spring weather.

Putnam's first official robin has been seen and the report verified. Mr. Redbreast was seen this morning, chirping his merry song on Farrows street, and the warm delightful rays of the morning sun penetrated the trees on the street that are slowly showing evidence of buds.

Frank Therriaque of Battey street, Putnam, was taken to the Day Kimball hospital shortly before noon today, suffering from injuries received in an auto accident south of Attawaugan, near Elmville. An examination at the Day Kimball disclosed that the man was suffering from a compound fracture of the skull and internal injuries. According to the hospital report this afternoon the man could live but a few hours, owing to the seriousness of his condition. A detailed account of the accident in which the Putnam boxer figured, will be told this morning in the Danielson column of this paper.

Capt. William J. Jarvis of the local police was informed this morning that Boston police authorities are seeking Peter DeRitta and Raymond Kelly, Providence youths arrested Saturday evening on charges of clothing store larcenies. As told in this morning's Bulletin, Captain Jarvis and State Officer Scranton of Danielson barracks were in Worcester yesterday where they questioned the youths in connection with a missing suit of clothes from the clothing store of Milot & Williams in this city. Captain Jarvis said that he examined property in the possession of the youths now being detained in Worcester for hearing, but could find no trace of the Putnam suit, alleged to have been taken. Captain Jarvis said today that Boston police authorities believe that the arrest of Kelly and DeRitta will tend to clean up several clothing store robberies in that city, and were coming to Worcester to question the boys today.

Dr. M. J. Bullard, recently returned to her home in this city after a period of illness, is reported as making a speedy recovery.

Lower Main street as a rule is the quiet sector of Putnam and everything that transpires in that vicinity is done in a smooth and peaceful manner, but yesterday the opposite was true. Just about two minutes before the old tower clock was to sound the arrival of high noon, a blast that fairly rocked every object within hearing distance of the Seder block took place. "It's the Mexican rebels," said one hectic person who had heard, not seen but was inclined to believe. "Maybe it's an anarchist," said another who rigorously scanned every inch of pavement from Richmond street to Canal street. Windows in the office blocks went up and craning necks came popping out, cautiously observing what had happened and holding their ears in anticipation of a second explosion. Within the moment there came another report that sent a series of echoes chasing each other the length and breadth of the city. At this such exclamatory phrases as "we're shot," "cover yourself," call the police" and "they may get us the next time," were drawled out by those who were in the vicinity of the ghost of the abolished fire lane, as they scurried to cover.

As a few brave and nervy residents of the city made their way from between the office buildings where they had sought protection from a suspected bombing plane and peeped around the corners, there was Judge M. H. Geissler's well-known Buick standing alongside the offices of Torrey & Geissler, with a giant muffler lying graciously in a bed of early season peaches in front of Bartlett's grocery store. And just then the old tower clock struck the hour of high noon and the tired business men could be seen going to their homes, relieved that the Mexicans had not picked out Putnam as a rendezvous. Then the chief justice of the little court across the river stepped from behind the wheel of his favorite Buick and was heard to exclaim, "I was just trying to see if it would start without the starter and without applying the spark, but I guess it isn't practical," as he reclaimed the accessory that had momentarily taken its place among the peaches.

Simon Berthiaume of Mill street, Putnam, arrested two weeks ago by Putnam police on a charge of non-support and whose case had been continued until today, has been discharged from the city court list of waiting cases. The case of Berthiaume was taken in hand by a well-known local lawyer and two weeks was granted by Judge Geissler in which to prepare the case for an airing in court. It was said this morning that the prosecution had dismissed the charges. No explanation accompanied the dismissal, the defense said.

St. Mary's Boy Scout band made its initial spring appearance today at the weekly noonday luncheon of the members of the Putnam Rotary club. The youthful artists under the direction of Rev. Joseph D. Casey, curate at St. Mary's church, rendered four inspiring military numbers, closing their programme with the national anthem. The Boy Scout band has not appeared in public since the winter months set in, but behind closed doors they have undergone tedious hours of practice to get themselves into shape for their spring scouting and patriotic activities.

The Rotarians extended a cordial vote of thanks to the band members and their leaders for their programme. A number of visitors from Webster and Danielson were present at today's luncheon.

The office building of the local telephone exchange, one of the finest buildings in the city, is now undergoing an annual painting and cleaning, inside and out. In addition to this the company, in view of providing employes with additional means of escape in the event an emergency should arise, is installing a fire escape in the rear of the structure.

The members of the central fire station were called out at 11:15 a. m. today to extinguish a brush fire on Farrows street. The booster tank provided the necessary water supply to bring the blaze under control without property loss.

This is the second alarm for brush fires to come to the attention of the firemen in less than a day. Fire Chief Thurston has stressed the need of property owners exercising care when burning rubbish and disposing of lighted cigarets and other lighted products.

A second four stroke alarm brought the firemen to Gilman street, where an exhaust explosion in a sedan being operated by Mrs. Howard Sherriffs, caused it to catch fire. The blaze was quickly put out by the firemen, with little damage being caused the car.

Chauncey R. Talbot, father of Representative Leon A. Talbot and Putnam business man, entered St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester yesterday for observation, previous to an operation.

Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin has given notice of the following events to take place during the forthcoming week on the educational programme of the town school department. A meeting of all the public school faculties will be held in the Putnam high school on Thursday, March 14. Mr. Farrin will give a special instructors' account of the National Superintendents convention of Cleveland, for the benefit of the teachers unable to make the journey.

Superintendents of Northeastern Connecticut will hold a meeting at the Putnam Inn on Monday evening, March 18, at 8:30 o'clock.

Supt. Leon M. Farrin has been invited by Webster school officials to be one of the judges at the debate at Bartlett high school to be held in Webster on Friday evening, March 15.

A meeting of the playground committee of the Parent-Teacher association will be held at the Israel Putnam school on Monday, March 18, at 4 p. m. The subject of this meeting will deal principally with the planning of the opening of the playgrounds at the elementary schools of the city.

The school department is highly appreciative of the co-operation of the Putnam Music shop and Chandler & Morse company in furnishing radios for all of the schools on Inauguration day, March 4, so as to enable the pupils to receive an account of the inaugural ceremonies.

RUSSIAN FARMS REQUIRE LARGE-SCALE OPERATION

LENINGRAD, (AP)—With the population of Russia increasing approximately 3,000,000 a year, A. I. Rykov, chairman of the council of peoples' commissioners, is convinced that large-scale farming operations are necessary if the country expects to meet her own food demands.

The commissioner is quoted as saying that the demand for grain in soviet Russia is growing more rapidly than agricultural production and that agriculture must be reorganized on the basis of large-scale farming as represented by collectivist and state farms.

Small-scale farming of the peasant, he says, is the main cause for the technical backwardness of Russian agriculture.

Beauty Shops say, "Give your hands

Beauty Care right in the dishpan"

RECENTLY, 305 of the finest beauty salons in the United States reported this interesting fact—

"With all our experience,"—these experts said—"we cannot distinguish between hands that never wash dishes and hands that use Lux in the dishpan. . . . Evidently, Lux gives real beauty care."

These experts observe thousands of hands and they know! In their own words, Lux means "beauty care" right in your own dishpan!

Isn't this a startling idea? Yet women instinctively know it is true. Washing their fine things in the gorgeously sparkling Lux suds, women themselves noticed how smooth and white their hands looked afterward.

Now they are washing dishes with Lux to give their hands the same gentle beauty care—three times a day!

The secret is simple . . .

Lux is so utterly pure, so delicately refined by the special process used in its making, that it protects the precious beauty oils—the youth oils—of the skin. Many soaps dry up these oils, leave the skin parched—red and drawn looking.

Best of all, this beauty care costs almost nothing. Lux for all your dishes costs less than 1¢ a day!

HOGGING THE ROAD.

If the attitude of the companies or individuals operating bus lines is judged aright, it is not the desire that their drivers should attempt to hog the road. They realize that others have a right to a part of it, a right to pass on good pavement and a right to something besides the ditch or gutter. That means just what it should mean, that the road is for all and it is to be expected that through fair treatment of others fair treatment will be received in return.

Nevertheless there are bus drivers who occasionally take a contrary course. They seem to carry the impression that they have a right of way over so much of the highway that they are not required to yield anything and if the driver of a small car wants to pass he must take his chances with the soft shoulders and the ditch. Busses are of a size which occupy a large share of many of the highways even when they are traveling about as far over on the right as they can get. When they hang to the center and disregard the honk of the car behind, when appealing for a chance to pass, they are taking advantage of their size, playing unfair and creating resentment which is about the last thing that their owners can afford.

Every time there is such road hogging it creates a situation inviting an accident. Either the car that had a right to pass will take a chance on the soft shoulder and the ditch or it will hug the bus so closely that in either instance trouble may quickly follow.

There ought to be no such situation. There is no excuse why a reasonable appeal from a car behind should not be responded to by a bus quite the same as by any other car. Often it is but a signal that the car is going ahead. The expectation is that the bus, truck or other car will yield. It might be possible to make it even if a small car didn't swing to the right but when it comes to a bus or a truck there is so much road coverage that a passing is difficult on certain roads unless a fair part of the highway is granted. The driver who is responsible for hogging is a liability rather than an asset and it is not surprising that bus owners take that attitude.

WHERE EXPERIENCE IS NEEDED.

What is involved in breaking the automobile speed record of the world is illustrated by the tragedy that occurred at Daytona beach when Driver Bible and a cameraman were killed and the White Triplex demolished. What might have been the toll had the car gone out of control at some other point on the beach is easy to contemplate.

When a machine is being driven at a speed of 100 miles an hour it is traveling much more rapidly than the average person is used to. When it adds another 100 to that and then goes still 31 miles faster it is covering so much ground that the driver of the Golden Arrow, Major Seagrave, used a special sighting device and aimed for a target in order to keep on the course.

The experience of Driver Bible makes it evident that only those who are thoroughly experienced in fast driving should be permitted to hold the wheel of the cars which set out to make a new world's record. That doesn't always furnish positive assurance that there will be no accident, for others have occurred, and there is never any telling when something may go wrong with the machine or its tires, but it is a provision that ought to be insisted upon in the interest of safety for all concerned.

Everything must be working perfectly, even to the human being who is guiding it, when going out for a record under such conditions. Probably it will never be known just what happened. Witnesses will have their views and explanations will be offered that will probably come close to the mark but there will be a common feeling that one with no more driving experience than Bible had should not have been allowed to drive in that test.

OPPOSED TO REVOLUTIONISTS.

It must have been evident to the Mexican government that the United States intended to give it the full benefit of a neighbor maintaining a constitutional government, but if there has been any doubt about it it must have been dispelled by the announcement of the state department that no recognition will be given to the Mexican rebels by the United States government.

This development is no different than was to be expected. It is in fact in accord with the policy which has been set forth on previous occasions and the one on which emphasis has been laid when revolutionary conditions have developed in nearby republics.

Even the Mexican rebels have probably expected nothing else. They had no reason to think that the United States would side with them. They had no ground for believing that they could draw assistance from this country either in the form of supplies or war materials. They could not anticipate that there would be any favors which this country could do for them in their effort to break down the lawfully established government of the republic to the south. Yet it was in spite of such reasonable expectations that the revolution was started and now in the knowledge of our declaration it is being continued in the face of discouraging prospects.

It is possible that the revolutionists figured that they could accomplish the overthrow of the government in jig time, that it would be only a matter of days before they would be in control and therefore it would be unnecessary to take into consideration any part which this country might play or any handicap which the lack of recognition might have.

What takes place in Mexico will be between the federal and rebel forces. This country will not participate. It will not take a hand in Mexico's internal affairs, and from all indications there will be no need for it, but it upholds the government in its opposition to the revolt and is ready to forward such supplies as are needed. This is in accord with its policy of standing by properly established governments and its announced opposition to the running and ruining of countries by revolutions.

LIMITING ROAD LOADS.

Highways are not easily or cheaply obtained. They cost much money, especially the modern ones, and such precautions as are needed for their protection are wise.

We read with interest where the highway department of the state of Michigan has established a limit on the weight of loaded trucks using the different forms of roads in that state. It fixes a limit of 450 pounds of load for each inch of tire width on vehicles using gravel roads, while that limit is increased by 75 pounds per inch of tire width for vehicles using cement roads.

Michigan gives recognition to the fact that the spring of the year is one of the worst for roads of all kinds. Even the well built cement or gravel roads feel the effects when the frost is coming out of the ground. It is possible to be wrecked because there are those who insist upon sending loads of great weight over them at the worst possible time. Not only is the damage done by one but it is made much worse by others and it doesn't take long before an expensive piece of reconstruction must be undertaken.

When the spring breakup comes the undiscovered places where the cement surfacing has been undermined may quickly be broken by overloads, and that is particularly true if it happens to be at a point where a bit of bad foundation work escaped the eye of the inspector.

If the building of roads is a costly operation it must be appreciated that it is much cheaper to protect such expenditures through the limiting of the loads that are allowed upon them during the spring than to place no restriction on the weight of loads and then shoulder the cost of reconstruction.

Road surfaces are bad enough in the springtime without making them any worse than is necessary. Prevention of needless conditions is possible in the opinion of the Michigan highway department and from the limits that have been fixed it considers it is obtainable through restricting the loads. It is a decision that jibes with what has been done in other states for the purpose of meeting the same situation and it is bound to be accepted as common sense.

IN THE INDIAN BUREAU.

The bureau of Indian affairs has occasionally experienced such administration as to call for changes. For a number of years there has been opposition to Commissioner Burke of that bureau. From such action as has been taken and from the hearings that have been held it doesn't appear that there has been anything irregular in the conduct of that bureau, but there has been an uneasiness created among the Indians which has not been pleasing. It has created dissatisfaction where satisfaction should prevail.

Attention has been directed to the fact that Commissioner Burke has been disposed to impose orders which interfered with the Indians in their tribal practices. It would seem that he had tried to pry them away from their old established customs and to require them to abandon certain of their much cherished celebrations. In doing this the point has been made that no fact was used with the result that resentment and ill feeling followed.

It is not improbable that the purpose was to help the Indians, or at least there is no reason for thinking otherwise, but it was a plan that did not work out well and even though it seemed to be evident that it was not causing satisfaction it was still insisted upon. There was an arbitrary conduct of affairs that created friction.

This has been the cause of criticism and complaint, all of which will probably be smoothed out now that Commissioner Burke has sent in his resignation. In the interest of harmony it should successfully meet the situation and indicate to his successor what not to do when he takes up the duties of the office.

FREE AIR

"Lake Geneva for the week end! Gregory, how perfectly heavenly. But—but—Oh, dear, you know we've spent our amusement budget up to the end of September. I simply don't see how we can afford it."

"Leave it to your fairy godfather; or, rather, leave it to his friend. There aren't many like Bob; he thinks of everything. Listen, Gloria. It won't cost us a cent."

"Oh, but you know, dear—"

"Not a cent. Here's what Bob did. He found out that they wouldn't be using one of the company cars this week end and he's turned it over to me. No train fare—no tips—no taxis. That's what I call an invitation."

"But how glorious! You're sure you haven't forgotten how to drive?" Gregory smiled a patient, superior, masculine smile. His wife began to sort her wardrobe.

"How about gasoline, Gregory?"

"Full tank, dear. Don't worry."

"Yes, but I mean who's to pay for it? Do you realize how close to the edge we've been running?"

"Hummm. I hadn't thought of that. I suppose that when Bob's done so much the least we can do is to pay for our own gas."

"Oh dear. Well, let's forget it and enjoy the drive. Can't you look at anything except the road?"

"What? Oh—uh—yes. The road—certainly."

"Is anything the matter?"

"Perhaps I'm just not used to this car. It feels rather as though the hind end was trying to sneak around in front. I wonder—" They stopped abruptly, and he got out.

"Flat!" he reported. "Thank heaven, there's a spare, and we're right by a service station."

"Can't you change it yourself?"

"Can't afford to. I'd ruin more clothes than the job will cost!" A quarter of an hour and a half a dollar passed gently out of their lives. At last they were again under way, determinedly cheerful. The motor snickered spitefully and died.

"Can you beat it? The gauge still says 'full' and she's as dry as a convention speech. Just sit still. I'll get a lift back to a station." A half hour later he got the motor started.

"I had to make a dollar deposit on this ten-cent can," he confessed, "and I'm afraid it's too late to go back. We'll fill up at the next place."

"Oh, dear. Maybe we can bring it back tomorrow. Let's hurry. Gregory, before something else happens."

They hurried.

"Considering everything," said the police magistrate, "we'll make it just $7 for the first offense. And $3 costs. The clerk will give you a receipt."

"Can anything more happen?" asked Gloria mournfully as they started again. The sun was sinking fast.

"I don't see how. Flat tire and fine and gas and can—murder. It comes to just $13. There goes our luck!"

"It can't be worse."

"Scraw-w-wuk!" said the hen, raining feathers about them.

"She were a good layer," insisted the owner. "I couldn't take less than $2, and I'm robbin' myself." Gregory hauled out his billfold, too dazed for argument. They rolled off again. They discovered that one headlight was out.

"Bob, old man, we've had a great visit. By the way, I find I came off without my wallet. Could you stake me to the price of our tickets?"

"Delighted, Gregory. But it's too bad, I can't understand why my man can't find what's wrong with that car I got you."

"We won't mind the train." Gregory assured him. Gloria wore a puzzled expression. At the first opportunity she took her husband aside.

"Why did you borrow that money? You had $5 left."

"That was long ago. You see, I had to give the five to Bob's chauffeur to make sure he wouldn't fix that short until we were gone."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Where is Norwich Going?

Mr. Editor One hears within the past few days of a proposed increase in water rates, due to heavy debts. With the increase of taxes, gas and electric rates, and water, where is Norwich going? If we stop to think, why can not the people realize that all these increases are due not to the necessary increase of actual costs, but to mismanagement and personal gain of a few. Why then, should the public be made to bear these needless burdens?

To meet these costs, landlords will be forced to raise rents, and when the cycle is completed, people and businesses will be moving from Norwich to places where living is less costly. Yet our chamber of commerce is trying to make Norwich grow. Let them tackle the political problem, strike at the root of Norwich's real cause of its present trouble, eliminate these unnecessary increases, let the public know when meetings such as the last town meeting are to be held and see us grow. New hotels, little businesses, Babson reports made over to suit our vanity, and Rose of New England advertising will do little good compared to making Norwich fundamentally livable. The chamber has a strong man at its head and the members, citizens and merchants, should support him to the last in making a firm drive to reduce these wastes of public moneys.

At Thamesville we had two iron rolling mills, shipyard, boiler works, steam engine works, printing press works, town foundry, water wheel and organ factory.

On the Greeneville road the Norwich and Worcester railroad shops, Norwich Lock shop, W. H. Pace Boiler Co., Col. Mowry, A. H. Hubbard Paper Mill, Franklin Iron Foundry, Gilmore Bros. Iron Foundry and Shetucket Foundry on Franklin street and Alfred H. Vaughn foundry on Ferry street, all are gone; not one here today.

With the J. M. Huntington & Co., ships discharging their loads of molasses and sugar and other products from the West Indies, to be distributed to all parts of New England and the Norwich and New York Transportation Co., the Norwich and New York Propeller Co., with steamers every day going to and from New York there was something doing on our water front in those days. What a sight it used to be to see the 12 and 18 mule teams from the Hayward Rubber Co., at Colchester loaded with rubber boots and shoes to be shipped to all parts of the world and then reloaded with supplies for the return trip to the rubber works. Some contrast between now and then.

Why is Norwich, with all of the wonderful natural facilities in the way of water power, and the Thames river connected with one of the finest harbors at New London on the Atlantic coast, stunted in growth when such cities as New Haven have grown from 50,836 in 1870 to 162,537 in 1920, Hartford from 37,819 in 1870 to 134,036 in 1920, Bridgeport from 19,816 in 1870 to 143,555 in 1920, Waterbury from 13,148 in 1870 to 91,715 in 1920, while Norwich with its background of water power, railroad connections and Thames river was in the race with a population of 16,659 in 1870 and has 29,685 in 1920?

What is wrong with us, we have had our boards of trade and chambers of commerce for the past 40 years and have just got a real revaluation of the taxable property of the town of Norwich and what a howl has gone up! Also a municipal gas and electric department and what a mess!

In an address by the late Hon. Chas. F. Thayer, mayor of the city of Norwich to the court of common council, Jan. 7, 1901 he said: "How shall we answer the question suggested by our position at the foot of the column? Divine Providence upon whom the most of our shortcomings are cast is not chargeable with our sloth. The sun continues to shine upon us, our just share of the rain still falls upon our water sheds, the great natural highway to the sea remains open, no plague, famine or other great disaster, properly classed as an act of God has visited our city to diminish either its population or its property. We shall never grow great upon false pretenses. We may in truth herald to the world that a lot of ground in Norwich 12x20 feet in size sold for $500 but when we state the further fact that this was a lot in the cemetery it indicates no real estate boom.

"The period of our most rapid growth was, say from 1830 to 1860 but since the latter date the names of these Norwich gentlemen have been transferred from the city directory to the tablets in Yantic cemetery and it is this city of the dead alone that has increased its population."

If he is in the spirit land floating around at this time do you suppose he would notice any great change in conditions? I think he would be willing for us to postpone his dream of the 20th century of a city without a taxpayer or tax list until the 21st.

AN OLD TIMER.

Norwich, March 12, 1929.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 13— Jim Good of Iowa, once captain of the mighty house appropriations committee, is in the army now. And thereby comes much speculation among army folk. What part will this congressional veteran play as war secretary in solving the several highly complicated legislative aspects of military affairs left over from the administration of Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis?

The Hoover war secretary marks quite a change in policy in a way. After eight years of complete domination by officers and ex-officers of the A. E. F., the war department goes back completely to non-military control.

The late Secretary Weeks was not of those whose reputations rested largely on their work "over there," to be sure; but he was a naval academy graduate and with him General Pershing came to complete power as chief of staff. It was not very long before men of the A. E. F. filled virtually every important department assignment. Dwight Davis was an A. E. F. man of note, boasting even a valor medal.

Knows Political Ropes

But neither Weeks nor Davis had anything like the background of appropriation legislation and political exigency experience in the house Jim Good brings to bear. Great hopes are building among regular officers that he will prove adept in persuading both President Hoover and congress that the time is ripe to alleviate some of the conditions as to promotion, housing and even as to the efficient training of the troops.

Secretary Davis was a youngster in national politics. His cabinet job came to him in circumstances that prevented his displaying any aggressive development policy. Coolidge budget theories block him at every turn. They had hampered Weeks, but that elder statesman of the republican party had influence sufficient to override even presidential policy where he thought such a source necessary for national defense. And Jim Good is another party stalwart and legislative veteran. The army hopes for much from him.

Davis There Till Summer

Incidentally, Dwight Davis apparently is planning to stay in Washington until midsummer unless the diplomatic post he is said to desire should open to him before that time. His home here is under lease until June.

Many commentators credit Davis with the hope of being named ambassador to Germany as his next public job. Whether this is true or not, the Bystander does not know; but it would be understandable.

Davis is young enough to look forward to election to the senate and there are a lot of voters of German ancestry in Missouri. The Berlin post could conceivably be made to aid senatorial ambitions.

"LENT AND MY CHURCH"

Memory Verse for Thursday

"The field is the world" (Matthew 13:38). (Read: Mark 9:33 to 42).

MEDITATION: I love my church because in every way it is big. It keeps bringing the loftiest and most sublime themes to me for my contemplation. It opens to me a wide outlook upon life. Nothing human is alien to its interest. No race or people in the world is outside the pale of its sympathies. It brings India and China and dark Africa within the needs, the fears, the hopes of their teeming millions and makes them my neighbors. Its field is no little kitchen garden in my own town, its field is the world. So it enlarges my life.

PRAYER: Heavenly Father who hast made of one blood all nations, cleanse my heart of all hatred and all impious prejudice, that with charity for all and malice toward none I may we come to my sympathy and my help all Thy children of whatever color or race or condition, that so I may follow Christ Jesus in whom there is neither Jew nor Greek nor any alien. For His sake, Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Janitors "Dry Us Up"

By Harold M. Hays, M. D., New York City

As one steps into a subway, a congested street car or a crowded theatre, he is at once greeted by a series of sneezes, coughs and barks which, unless he is one of the afflicted, makes him feel that he is being attacked physically by a number of individuals, although of course consciously they would do him no harm. He visualizes what these sneezes, coughs and barks are doing. He can see the atmosphere sprayed with infinitesimal streams of thin vapor, in which, along a spider's web of moisture, are traveling millions upon millions of germs (bacteria) which, when transmitted to a second person who is susceptible, can cause any one of a number of distressing symptoms.

There is a barking season just as there is an apple season, a strawberry season and an asparagus season. At such a time, an irritation or tickling sensation takes place in the throat or down in the windpipe that causes a dry, irritating cough, which has a harsh metallic quality and sounds more like the yelps of a barking dog than anything else.

A dry cough or "bark" is seldom accompanied by fever and, as a rule, a person can go about his business as usual, feeling irritated when he is around others who are sure that he has the "con," and feeling especially sore at the world in the wee small hours of the morning when he wants sleep badly and can't get it because of a little feather feeling in his throat that makes him bark.

When is the barking season and why? Most often the trouble starts in the fall months when a person is at his best physically—and why? Because our civilization and manner of living in the larger cities insists that as soon as cool, bracing, health-giving air visits us the janitors must at once turn on the steam heat and dry us up completely. The radiator, as now constructed, takes all the moisture out of the indoor air, and so we breathe a dry, choky oxygen that reacts very irritatingly on the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

Hygienists have recognized for some time that dry air is very irritating. Steam heat and dry air radiators evaporate all the water in the air of a room so that dust and bacteria float round at ease and enter any cavity they find, particularly the nose and mouth.

Humidifiers should be placed in rooms in connection with radiators. If you can't find one of these new-fangled things, and the air of your house is especially dry, it's easy enough to get a few pails of water to put on your radiators.

Not all barking coughs are due to dry air, however. If your "bark" gets balky, you should go to your family physician, who may satisfy you by finding something serious the matter—diseased tonsils, a paralyzed recurrent laryngeal nerve or an aneurysm.

Little Talks on Thrift

Compulsory Thrift Has Never Been Successful

Parents and teachers are today fully agreed upon the importance of teaching thrift in the school and at home. But regarding the proper method of inculcating the desire to be thrifty into the mind of children there is still much to be learned. The first thing to be remembered by parents and teachers is that thrift cannot be fostered by compulsion.

Thrift is fundamentally a matter of mental attitude.

The saving of money, the elimination of idleness, the development of efficiency are all matters which primarily must depend for their success on the state of mind of the individual. Before a child can be impressed with the value of saving money or anything else, he must have an understanding of all that thrift involves. He must have an appreciation of its benefits, also the sacrifices it sometimes involves. He must be aware of all that it means in the development of a career. He must have a correct prospective of present economies as related to future benefits. He must know and desire thrift. He must thoroughly comprehend the whole plan of thrift practice.

Until such a condition has been reached any effort to compel a young person to follow these practices will only arouse antagonism.

It is true, of course, that an employer can compel those who work under him to save a certain portion of their earnings. In some isolated cases individuals may, through this method, be started on the right road. But, broadly speaking, any form of compulsory thrift will arouse discontentment, resentment and prejudice upon the part of employes, both young and old, that will do infinitely more harm than good. Moreover, the chief benefit of thrift, namely, the development of personal discipline, will have been lost—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

TO FIND MONEY VALUE OF "QUALITY" PRODUCE

WASHINGTON, (AP)—To what extent quality is a factor in the successful marketing of farm produce is expected to be revealed by a survey the agricultural department of the chamber of commerce of the United States is conducting among manufacturers and converters of foodstuffs.

Specifically the chamber wants to know of instances in which poor quality of the product as it comes from the farm necessitates costly changes in manufacturing processes, higher handling costs, losses due to poor keeping qualities with consequent lower prices to producers. Too, the survey is expected to determine whether there has been a gradual decline in the quality of such products and whether it is localized or general.

The difference between success and failure, the chamber says, often is the difference between the producer who grows "just potatoes" and the producer who raises a particular quality of potatoes to meet a definite demand.

A committee of judges composed of one representative of the chamber of commerce and three members of the business and professional women's club will review the windows and will render their decision on the basis of the following considerations:

Light, 10 per cent; arrangement, 15 per cent; color 20 per cent; originality, 20 per cent; selling, 15 per cent; neatness, 10 per cent; eye appeal, 10 per cent; total 100 per cent.

After the judges have reviewed the windows, they will return to the Wauregan hotel for the purpose of comparing notes. The store, which in their consideration, has the best window display in each of the various twelve classifications, will receive a beautiful engraved shield Friday morning. Merchants have been urged to have their windows in readiness for inspection not later than six o'clock tonight.

Another feature, which is creating a great deal of interest and comment on the part of the buying public throughout eastern Connecticut is the plan adopted this year of distributing 10,000 circulars throughout Norwich and the surrounding territory. There are also several hundred of these circulars in each of the stores participating. A number has been assigned to each of the circulars and out of the 10,000, there are several circulars which bear the same number that is printed on a little card in the window of the various merchants participating. The number indicates that that merchant has agreed to award one article to the person holding the corresponding number. A number of merchants are taking part in this feature and the following awards are to be made:

Ableman's Shoe Store, slippers; Arcadia Candy Shop, 2 lb. box candy; Baby Shoppe, baby jacket; Barney's, hat, value $5; Carl Berkoff, flat iron; Belt Bros., a smoked shoulder; H. B. Beckwith, silver cake plate; Bob's Men's & Boys' Shop, man's shirt; Buckingham Shop, vase; Caron's Specialty Shop, dress; Clever Craftsman, Permatex shopping bag; Collins' Millinery, hat, $5; Cranston company, china; Dawson Shop, hand-painted hat; Diamond's Shoe Store, pair shoes at $5; Disco Bros., Thermos bottle; Dunn's Drug Store, box of candy; Eagle Clothing Co., shirt; Eaton Chase Co., flashlight.

Ferguson's, silverware; Franklin Hardware, garden set of tools; Gilbert Furniture Co., table lamp; Hanover-Curland Co., ukulele; Interstate Furniture Co., boudoir lamps; Geo. W. Kies Co., Comfy slippers; the Lee & Osgood Co., bottle of perfume; L. K. Liggett Co., hot water bottle; J. C. Mara, hot water bottle; Thom McAn, pair of shoes; Metropolitan store, rayon slip; Mandell's Shoe store, ladies' shoes; Model Booterie, house slippers; Mohican Market, basket of fruit; Morley's Hat Store, shirt; Norwich Gas & Electric Dept., Telechron kitchen clock; John Ogulnick, 23-piece tea set, hand-painted china; O'Neil Electric Co., toaster; the Pasnik Co., doll; the Plaut-Cadden Co., bridge lamp; the Porteous & Mitchell Co., bed set; Max Rabinovitch Ladies' shop, hot; the Reid — Hughes Co., Huntnut's or Woodworth's toilet set; Schwartz Bros., mahogany card table; Savard Bros., umbrella.

Shetucket Harness Co., piece of luggage; Silberman's, Priscilla sewing cabinet; Smith's Pharmacy, hot water bottle; Smith's Shoe store, ladies' hose; United Fruit & Vegetable Co., combination basket; F. W. Woolworth Co., tea set; the Worth shop, two-piece jersey dress; J. M. Young & Sons, gallon maple syrup.

It is confidently expected that, with the prevalence of warm weather and the spring atmosphere, that thousands of shoppers from all over eastern Connecticut will take advantage of this attractive program and will not only review the windows that have been attractively decorated for the event; but will take advantage of the fashion show at the theatre.

If the Norwich chamber of commerce could condense the message it has to the people of Norwich into the simplest form, it would be this: "Spring is just around the corner. Lines of merchandise are complete and await inspection. Quality and prices are right. Patronize your local merchant—he pays his taxes here, helps to support our institutions, gives employment to a very considerable portion of the population, enters into the civic life of the community, and tries to render service by carrying a dependable line of merchandise, to satisfy the wants of the people in his particular business. He is encouraged to do this in something more than a perfunctory manner when his customers rely upon him for whatever they may require. The progressive merchant asks nothing more than a fair opportunity to gratify the tastes of the buying public."

Norwich has the advantage of serving a considerable portion of eastern Connecticut. In this respect, these stores are more adequately equipped with a large variety of merchandise, and, therefore, are in position to command a large share of the retail business. Naturally, a certain portion of the business goes to the larger city.

TRIAL OF NORWICH SUIT STARTED WEDNESDAY

In the superior court at New London Wednesday, trial of the $2,000 damage action brought by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Smith of Norwich against Louis S. Vergason, also of this city, was started. The plaintiffs seek to recover money paid for alterations on Mr. Vergason's house. They claim that on June 1, 1926, they agreed to go and live in a house owned by Vergason, a great-uncle to Smith, and that the uncle was to live there with them. The plaintiffs were to pay one-half the cost for certain alterations to be made to the house and at the decease of the uncle, the latter was to devise and bequeath to them all of his possessions.

The plaintiffs claim that they went there to live and carried out their part of the contract but when a dispute arose, the uncle told them to go and live elsewhere, that he would pay them for their share in the alterations and all other agreements were off.

The plaintiffs alleged that the defendant has not paid them what is due.

Conn. Boy in Health Tests

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in Connecticut, are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Connecticut mother, Mrs. Robert Prendergast, 59 Seymour St., Hartford, says: "Robert is absolutely the picture of health, now, with his ruddy cheeks, bright eyes and plump, sturdy little body and he stands at the top in every health test.

"Much of the credit for his perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood for every upset spell and to keep his bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and he has had an easy time with them. He always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

LONG ISLAND PROS NOSE OUT PLAINFIELD IN VERY CLOSE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 13—The Long Island Pros displayed one of the best passing games seen here this year when they defeated the Plainfield Pros here tonight 36 to 34. The visitors played a brilliant defensive game also and the game see-sawed back and forth throughout the first half, Plainfield leading at half time, 18 to 16, through nice passwork and shooting. Several remarkable long shots were made during the first half by the Long Island Pros keeping the crowd on edge.

At the beginning of the second half the visitors went out and tied the score and then on a long shot by Yerkes fourged ahead to hold the lead for about ten minutes. Plainfield then came from behind to tie the score and went into the van to take a seven-point lead which was short-lived. Cerovsky came through with three long baskets after which Redmond dropped in another long shot from the center of the floor. Bernot and Kasper also came through with long baskets to tie the count at 34 all. With the game fast drawing to a close Cerovsky put his team into the lead with a basket as the final whistle blew.

The Plainfield team displayed a wonderful brand of basketball, their passing being of high calibre and their shooting was very accurate.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies defeated the Putnam Headquarters team 26 to 24. The Buddies were handicapped by the loss of three of their regulars and were forced to use all available subs. The feature of this game was the shooting of the two Plainfield forwards, Tommy Lang and Iky Mercier. The summaries:

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 13—(AP)—With a three-run rally in the eighth inning, the New York Yankees opened their annual exhibition series with the Boston Braves today with a 8 to 3 victory. Both teams are training here. Gehrig, Byrd, Lazzeri and Lary supplied the slugging at the expense of Pitcher Henry Wertz in the Yanks' big inning while Byrd also produced two runs in the second with a homer inside the lot which scored Gehrig ahead of him.

Although wild, Henry Johnson and Gordon Rhodes let the Braves down with four hits. Yankee errors, two by Lary and one by Rhodes, helped the Braves.

Score by innings:

New York (AL)	020 000 130	6	10 3
Boston (NL)	000 111 000	3	6 1

DARTMOUTH LACKS EXPERIENCED OUTFIELDERS

HANOVER, N. H., March 13—(AP)—The absence of experienced outfield material became apparent here today, when 40 infield and outfield candidates reported to Coach Jeff Tesreau of the Dartmouth baseball team.

Tesreau expected to line up an almost veteran infield with Hal Booma and Chick Shea fighting for the first base post, Ed Jeremiah on second and Capt. Bob Walsh on third base. The Dartmouth coach has several excellent shortstop prospects, including Red Rolfe, captain of last year's freshman nine, to fill the hole he made when he shifted Captain Walsh to third base.

Y SENIORS TO END SEASON WITH N. Y. TRIP

The Y Seniors, now setting the pace for the city's basketball teams, will have a fitting close to their season next week with a trip to New York. The boys, who have given Norwich one of its best Y teams in years will leave next Thursday, the 21st, and will be gone about three days.

Arrangements are under way for a game or two on the trip. One will probably be with the Stamford Y. M. C. A.

The Seniors have won nine and lost ten games with only city series contests with the Academy remaining, the second of which will be played this evening. The Yers had the honor of giving the champion New London Whalers one of their stiffest games.

PAULINO SIGNS CONTRACT WITH THE GARDEN CORP.

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish angle of the heavyweight triangle most favored to produce the next champion, placed his near future tonight in the hands of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

The squat Basque, with the aid of his large managerial cabinet, debated for several hours a contract giving the Garden exclusive rights to his professional services for one year and then signed the document in the offices of William F. Carey, vice-president and successor to Tex Rickard as the guiding hand in the corporation's affairs. The agreement also gave the Garden the right to stage Paulino's title defenses through the next three years if the Basque succeeds in winning the crown Gene Tunney tossed aside last fall.

The snaring of a Paulino gave the Garden a virtual monopoly on the three heavyweights Carey plans to sic at each other this summer in a brief series of outdoor spectacles calculated to produce a new heavyweight king. With Jack Dempsey all but counted out of active glove slinging, the Garden believes that the field of contenders has narrowed down to Uzcudun, Jack Sharkey, of Boston, and the socking German reproduction of Dempsey, Max Schmeling.

Although Schmeling, a sensation in three fights here that culminated in a knockout of Johnny Risko, the Cleveland rubber man, is now visiting his homeland, the Garden holds a document giving the corporation the exclusive rights to his services for a period of two years.

The situation in respect to Sharkey is much simpler. The Boston sailor, after whipping Young Stribling in the battle of the Everglades at Miami Beach, gave Carey first call upon his services this summer. The big New Englander will receive the same guarantee he exacted for the skirmish in the southland—$100,000—with the added privilege of 25 per cent of the gate receipts.

The tentative lineup of the talent now under the Garden wing will bring Sharkey and Uzcudun together in the first major "shot" of the open-air season at the Yankee stadium June 27. Schmeling, who probably will open his return engagement with Jimmy Maloney, the burly Boston Irishman now staging a comeback, will be saved for the final round of the abbreviated tourney sometime in September. This match also is considered a fixture for the Yankee stadium.

YALE BASEBALL SQUAD HAS OUTDOOR PRACTICE

NEW HAVEN, March 13—(AP)—The mild weather tempted Joe Wood, baseball coach of Yale, to take some of his first string material outdoors for practice today. Although Yale field was damp and soggy in spots a light fielding and batting drill was held. Sawyer and Loud, regular pitchers, took turns in the box with Rudd, a promising twirler winding up the session. The practice in the open unusually early for a Yale team, will continue if weather permits.

SECOND CITY TITLE GAME TONIGHT

The climax of the Norwich basketball season may be reached this evening. It all depends on the result of the game the Y Seniors and Academy have scheduled.

The second game of their three-game city championship series will be staged at the Y gym, starting at 9 o'clock, with a preliminary at 8 o'clock between the Y Emps and Peerless Finishers which latter game may be termed as for the junior city title. A large crowd is expected.

The Seniors can cop the title of Norwich, both city and town, by winning tonight for they met back the Wildcats a week ago Saturday, 22 to 13 in a fast game that was anybody's until the last quarter. The Seniors were the favorites going into the first game and of course still retain the upper hand in the betting, although the plucky fight that the schoolboys made in their first game will be taken into consideration by anyone laying any money on the result.

N. F. A. might have won the first game had not Frank Barber, right guard, been forced out on personal fouls in the third quarter. He was playing a brilliant game until this happened and was greatly instrumental in leading the schoolboys in the running. Tonight he will probably have a little better good fortune and maybe the final result will be different. The opening game of the series was played on the night of the worst snow storm of the winter but tonight there probably won't be anything to keep the crowd away and a good turnout is expected. The third game of the series is set for Saturday night.

SOME GARDNER LAKE WINTER SPORT ENTHUSIASTS

L. to R.—William Ricker, Miss Mildred Dunn, Walter Weidman, Miss Mildred Tortiseshell, DeWitt Parsons, Arthur C. Brown.

MILD WEATHER BRINGS END TO ICE-BOATING AT GARDNER LAKE

The exceptionally warm weather of the past two days may be welcomed by most people but is frowned upon by the members of the Gardner Lake Winter club. The reason for this is that the mild weather marks the termination of their ice-boating season at the lake. However they are not complaining for soon the canoeing and sailboat weather will be here.

Perhaps there are only a few people in Norwich who realize that ice-boating is becoming one of the popular winter sports at the lake. When one speaks of ice-boating a person's thoughts usually picture the long reaches of water in Canada and at Red Bank, N. J., where the sport flourishes. Few realize that within ten miles of Norwich on any winter afternoon when the ice is not covered with snow several of these ice-boats can be seen swiftly slipping over the smooth surface of Gardner lake.

The accompanying photograph taken at the lake recently shows a few of the members of the club enjoying the popular winter sport. In the picture appear two of the ice-boats, a motor sled and several persons with skate sails. The large ice-boat in the right foreground is owned by Arthur C. Brown and the one on the left by Bill Ricker of Norwich. The motor sled in the center is the property of DeWitt Parson and Walter Weidman. Others with skate sails are William Ricker, Mildred Tortoiseshell and DeWitt Parsons. Mr. Wiedman is seated on the motor sled while Mr. Brown stands in front of his ice boat. Miss Mildred Dunn is standing by Mr. Ricker's boat at the left of the picture.

The ice boats and motor sled are the work of their owners who built them from the ice up. The motor sled is driven by an air plane propeller, usher-type, attached to a 20-horse power motorcycle engine. The sled is capable of making 40 to 45 miles an hour. The speed of the ice-boats depends on the wind.

The Winter club has enjoyed a very successful season, and an especially long one with the weather conditions being very favorable. Last Sunday was perhaps the best day of the year for the club and although in March, the air was crisp and the ten-inch ice hard and smooth. The members made the most of their opportunities and the closing day of the ice-boating season was a decided success.

The official wind-up of the winter season comes within a week or so when at Bill Ricker's Camp Smiles a banquet is to be served. The membership of the club is much larger than the number that appear in the photograph as there are a number of New York people who come to the lake for weekends and to enjoy the winter sports.

FRISCO SEALS HANG DEFEAT ON PIRATES

PASO ROBLES, Calif., March 13—(AP)—Nick Williams' San Francisco Seals defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates here this afternoon 10 to 1. Walter Mails made the Pirates walk the plank during the four innings he was on the mound and allowed but two scattered hits. Thurston who pitched the last five innings for San Francisco allowed a like number of blows, one being a home run inside the lot by Captain Traynor.

For the Seals, Red Kvingo got a home run inside the fence while Gus Suhr hoisted one over the right field boards for the circuit.

San Francisco gathered a dozen hits to four for the Pirates.

MALCEWICZ CONFIDENT OF BEATING SONNENBERG

BOSTON, March 13—(AP)—Joe Malcewicz, known to wrestling as the "Utica Panther," ended his training here today, supremely confident that he would wrest the heavyweight mat championship away from Gus Sonnenberg, when they grapple Friday night in the Boston garden.

Malcewicz announced that he had been training earnestly since he was matched with the titleholder and predicted he would be in much better shape than Sonnenberg, who has been touring the country wrestling at least twice a week since he butted Ed "Strangler" Lewis off the championship peak less than three months ago.

The challenger explained that Sonnenberg's "barnstorming" was not the best training method and, that his own recent matches with Earl Craddock, Joe Stecher and "Strangler" Lewis, all rugged encounters, had given him a physical edge which the champion could not hope to equal except by long and hard toil, an activity which Malcewicz claimed, the

During his workout today, the challenger took on his usual four sparring partners at ten minute intervals. He practiced his favorite headlock on them as they tried to toughen his body by butting and ramming his stomach, the organ on which the champion concentrates when he launches his "living tackle".

Sonnenberg, who interrupted his training to fulfill a mat engagement in Cleveland, was expected to return to Boston tomorrow and go through his final workout during the afternoon.

YALE CLINCHES HOCKEY SERIES WITH HARVARD

NEW HAVEN, March 13—(AP)—A combination play by a pair of Yale substitutes clinched the hockey series against Harvard here tonight in the third 10 minute overtime period. The victory, besides giving Yale a championship year marked the first time in four years that the Elis have downed their Cambridge rivals on the ice.

The winning score was caged by Nelson, substituting for Luce at center ice who took a passout from Bent, substitute wing, from behind the Crimson net and shot the puck behind Newell, goal tend. Both teams were exhausted from the strenuous play with few chances being taken to dent the opposing defense. The marker which ended the long drawn out battle came after five minutes and 57 seconds of play.

Both teams had their individual stars, Harvard cheering Newell, its third string net guardian for a number of remarkable saves while Albert Bigelow, defense player, contributed the scores which kept the Crimson in the thick of the fight. Luce, Palmer and Nelson stood out in the play of the Elis.

Yale took an early lead in the first period when Luce and Palmer dented the opposing net within six seconds of each other after Albert Bigelow opened the scoring for Harvard by saging a rebound. Palmer's shot which sent his team into the lead came following the face-off when he dribbled down the left side of the rink and shot 20 feet.

Harvard's second goal which tied the score was the result of A. Bigelow's alertness in following his shot which rebounded in front of the net.

FEATURE INDOOR BASEBALL GAME THIS EVENING

The drill shed of the state armory on McKinley avenue this evening will be the scene of a real heated indoor baseball game when the P. O. Clerks and the Letter Carriers meet. This little announcement may explain seemingly unnecessary haste with which the letter carriers have shown on their routes during the past few days. It has been no uncommon sight to see a letter carrier running from house to house in the delivery of his mail, the reason being that he has been getting in trim for the game tonight.

Mike Murphy, that genial employe of Uncle Sam, is the captain of the Letter Carriers' outfit and when approached regarding his team was very reticent but intimated that either Hazelden or Counihan would do the pitching. George McFarland is the peerless leader of the Clerks and boasts of a number of old time indoor baseballers in his lineup. John Burns or Joe Sandberg have been mentioned as possible pitching choices.

Eddie Edwards will be the referee and refreshments will be served after the game. When the captains mentioned refreshments the writer was under the impression that restoratives would have ben more apropos.

BIG BOY BURLAP PROVES TO BE POPULAR WITH FANS

Big Boy urlap may never be a champion of the world, but in one respect he is the champion of Gene Tunney, who recently retired as king of the heavyweights. The results of a popularity contest sponsored by "Self Defense," a boxing magazine, shows that the Westerly heavyweight finished one place better than the retired champ.

The contest was won by Young Stribling, as the result of a large number of votes that were cast for him from the south. The Macon heavyweight carried the solid south and this gave him his margin of victory over Jack Rudko, who captured second place. Frankie Wine, west coast heavyweight, was third, Pinkie Urquidi, Indian bantam, fourth, and the redoubtable Jack Dempsey fifth.

Other well known boxers that Burlap finished ahead of were Mickey Walker, Otto Von Porat, Ernie Schaaf, Young J. Thompson, Knute Hansen, Mike McTigue, Leo Lomski, Sammy Mandell, Jack Gross and Big Boy Peterson.

James Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, acted in capacity of judge in the contest.

WESTERLY

JURY SELECTED WEDNESDAY IN VENNARD-LIHME SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 13—Trial of civil cases with jury in the Westerly adjournment of the February term of superior court for Washington county was begun Wednesday morning at Westerly before Judge Herbert L. Carpenter, the fifteenth day of the court term.

The automobile damage case of Edwin D. Vennard, former Watch Hill Coastguardsman, vs. Harold Lihme, son of Watch Hill summer cottager, C. Bel Lihme, former resident of Chicago and now of New York, was the first case to be called.

Previous to taking up the Vennard-Lihme case the contested divorce petition, Rosaline Bliven vs. Archibald LeRoy Bliven came before Judge Carpenter. Judge Wayne B. Whitman represented the respondent and Judge James O. Watts, the petitioner.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer F. Edwards was the only witness and testified to the serving of the papers in the petition for the divorce and the motion for the custody of children and alimony upon the respondent, a service made Feb. 20, 1929. Judge Whitman declared that Judge Baker had entered a decree in the previous court sitting without proper notice upon the respondent. In this technical objection he claimed that the statutory period of 48 hours exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays had not expired when the decree was entered and that he was unable to see Mr. Bliven until late Saturday morning after the judge had entered the order and the holiday of Washington's birthday had intervened.

Judge Carpenter ordered when the attorneys had concluded "Tranmit all papers by Saturday to Providence and let Judge Baker pass upon it and vacate his own decrees, "if he's wrong, let him correct it, if right stick by it." Referring to the two district court judges, the opposing counsel, Judge Carpenter said "Judges in the superior court don't fight like judges in the district courts," and added "transmit papers to Providence and have case heard on merits." Disposition was finally made in having the papers remain in Westerly until Monday to hear case on its merits. The superior court, Judge Carpenter said, would sit until a week from Friday if Attorneys Ferguson and Rathbun began to fight in their case.

Clerk Caswell directed the jurors to answer to their names as called when Judge H. W. Rathbun for the respondent in the auto damage case asked that the jurors be taken out while he argued the point of the case being dismissed. Judge Carpenter and Attorneys Ferguson and Rathbun went into chambers and upon coming out Judge Carpenter directed the sheriff to take the jurors out of the court room.

In asking for a dismissal of the case Judge Rathbun stated that Sept. 21, 1925, the defendant had asked the plaintiff, a non-resident of the state for surety for costs and a bill of particulars. Surety for cost was not filed in September, 1926, as the court order had not been complied with, a motion to dismiss was filed for failure to comply with court order. It was later that surety for costs was filed.

Judge Carpenter denied the motion and also the exception.

Judge Rathbun then stated that an agreement had been made for Dr. Michael H. Scanlon to give the plaintiff a thorough physical examination and Tuesday afternoon it was agreed by attorneys that the examination be made. Attorney Ferguson claimed that it was due to a misunderstanding that Vennard did not appear to be examined and every effort was made for the examination Wednesday morning. Judge Carpenter asked if this might not be made immediately and as Dr. Scanlon was in court, he excused the jurymen until 2 p. m. for the examination to be made.

Edmund Hindle of Bradford, born in Bradford, England, foreswore allegience to King George and was made a naturalized citizen of the United States.

The entire afternoon session was required to empanel the jury of twelve men to hear the Vennard-Lihme damage case for a second time in the Washington county superior court. The short form of selecting jurymen as in Providence county superior court was followed. All the jurymen were excluded from the court rom and admitted one at a time, placed on the witness stand and examined under oath before being permitted to take a seat in the jury box as "acceptable for the time being." Plaintiff's Attorney Ferguson exhausted all four of his pre-emptory challenges to jurymen and Attorney Rathbun all but one, example of the intensity with which the suit is being fought.

In this $50,000 damage suit growing out of the Vennard-Lihme motorcycle-auto crash at the junction of Elm and School streets on the afternoon of Sept. 13, 1924, when court adjourned soon after 4 p. m. Wednesday, Judge Carpenter warned the members of the jury not to talk about the case among themselves or in their families. Spare jurors were excused from further duty during the court session and were paid off and discharged.

Grover C. King, soda water manufacturer of Westerly was appointed foreman of the jury which includes: Merton T. Champlin, truck driver, Wakefield, South Kingstown, challenged by Ferguson; Arthur P. Chase, Exeter, truck driver, excused and absent by reason of serving in federal jury in Providence; James F. Haggerty, weaver, Bellville, accepted, Joseph W. H. Cole, farmer, Kingston-Usquepaug road. Challenged by Ferguson; Joseph A. Foster, weaver, Shannock. Challenged by Ferguson; Edmund R. Greene, mason, Tuckertown, Exeter. Accepted; Henry A. Congdon, gardener, Kingston. Accepted; William H. Caswell, chauffeur, North Kingstown. Accepted; Sylvester M. Murano, insurance salesman, Westerly. Challenged by Ferguson; Irving S. Saunders, ice cream manufacturer, Hopkinton. Accepted; William G. Sweet, gardener, Narragansett. Challenged by Rathbun; Clifford A. Woodmansee, merchant, Kingston. Accepted; Arthur E. Cole, trucker, Wickford. Accepted; Hoxsie C. Niles, wagon shop proprietor, Hopkinton. Challenged by Ferguson; Elfonzo E. Johnson, painter, Westerly. Challenged by Rathbun; Arthur F. Clarkess, carpenter, Wickford. Accepted; Jesse N. Townsend, loom fixer, North Kingstown. Accepted; William H. Browning, clothing salesman, Westerly. Accepted; Joseph F. Bray, machinist, Westerly. Had discussed case and opinion was affected by sympathy. Excused; John F. Dumelow, lacemaker, Richmond. Accepted as the last juror.

When the jury box was filled and the oath administered there remained but 14 of the venuemen who had not been called.

Trial of the case will be resumed Thursday morning at 10:45.

POETRY

Anticipation

I know that Spring is coming,
For I saw a crow today,
And I heard him caw and I know a thaw
Is somewhere on the way.
I feel the March wind blowing,
But it's sort o' lost its chill,
And warm tints show in the sunset's glow
O'er the brow of the western hill.

The pussy buds are swelling
On the willows in the swale,
And the bluejay's scream from the frozen stream
Blends in with the saw-whet's wail.
And the day is not far distant
Till I see the buds on the oak,
And through my dreams hear the rush of streams
And the green frog's plaintive croak.

And can't you hear in memory
The roar of the swollen brook?
And can't you see how each cedar tree
In the old swamp used to look?
And can't you see the sunset's glow
That is left o'er the hilltop's crest,
When the sun dips down from the mountain crown
Into a crimson west?

—G. T. Ashby, in Kennebec Journal.

What I Live For

I live for those who love me,
For those I know are true,
For the heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit, too;
For the human ties that bind me,
For the tasks by God assigned me,
For the bright hopes left behind me,
And the good that I can do.

I live to learn their story
Who've suffered for my sake,
To emulate their glory,
And follow in their wake;
Bards, martyrs, patriots, sages,
The noble of all ages,
Whose deeds crown hist'ry's pages,
And Time's great volume make.

I live to hail the season,
By gifted minds foretold,
When men shall rule by reason,
And not alone by gold—
When man to man united,
And every wrong thing righted,
The whole world shall be lighted
As Eden was of old.

I live to hold communion
With all that is divine,
To feel there is a union
'Twixt Nature's heart and mine;
To profit by affliction,
Bear truths from fields of fiction,
Grow wiser from conviction,
And fulfil each grand design.

I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true,
For the heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit, too;
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that I can do.

—By George Linnaeus Banks.

IDEAS FOR THE DYE-WISE

PRIZE LETTER — FROM MESOPOTAMIA, OHIO.

"No Dye to Compare with Sunset"

Says Mrs. Chandler

"Having a peach colored linen dress to darken, I obtained Navy Blue Sunset Dye, but made the solution weak as I desired a lighter shade than Navy. It came just what I wanted. I still wear the dress and it has been laundered all winter.

"Delighted with my first Sunset experience, I dyed a flat silk crepe of soft blue and white with tiny checks of black. I used Old Blue Sunset making the dye bath stronger than called for in order to cover the black thread. It came out darker than Old Blue, a smooth, even color. I dyed a light gray figured wool dress, simply darkened it about two shades with Gray Sunset, and it looks like new material.

"I dyed a heavy, white wool sweater using Dark Brown Dye, and the result was perfect. My latest venture was a tan silk dress, the bottom heavily embroidered. I used Black Dye, and the result is highly satisfactory, a perfect black with a beautiful lustre.

I have never found any dye that compares with Sunset. They give maximum results with minimum labor, are so clean and free from discoloration of the hands, utensils, pressing board, etc., they are a joy to use, directions are so simple yet comprehensive."—Mrs. J. S. Chandler, Mesopotamia, Ohio.

For fast dyeing use Sunset Soap Dyes, 15 cents a cake. For beautiful tinting use Dytint, wonderful new tint in a big box, 10 cents.

Burgess Bedtime Story

How the Coyotes Got a Dinner
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The clever always find a way
To have a dinner every day.
—Old Man Coyote.

Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak had come from the West, as you know. Not only had he traveled a long way East, but he had traveled a long way South from his summer home. In his travels he had seen many interesting things and had become acquainted with many interesting people, as is the way with most travelers. So it was that Peter was learning a great deal from him, for Wanderer and Mrs. Wanderer had chosen to rest a while in and around the Old Orchard before turning back for the nesting season.

"Did you say that you once saw Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote catch a dinner of Prairie Dogs?" inquired Peter Rabbit.

Wanderer nodded. "That's what I said" replied he. "Of course, it wasn't the Old Man Coyote and the Mrs. Coyote who are living on the Green Meadows here. It was a couple of their relatives out in the West who go by the same name. I just happened to be passing a Prairie Dog town. There was a little tree not far from it and I stopped there to watch Yap Yap and his friends. Being up high, of course, I could see a lot farther than they could, and presently I saw Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote heading for that Prairie Dog town.

"After a while, Mrs. Coyote lay down on the grass, while Old Man Coyote kept on. I wondered why Mrs. Coyote didn't come along, too. When Old Man Coyote was fairly near one of those mounds on which sat a Prairie Dog, the latter saw him. Instantly he gave the alarm. You ought to have seen those Prairie Dogs disappear. It was funny. Yes, sir, it was funny. Every one that was sitting on a mound dived down. Those that were running around between the mounds scampered for the nearest hole. You know, the hole is always in the center of one of those mounds. An instant after they had all disappeared they had all popped up again. Old Man Coyote kept right on. Yes, sir, he kept right on. He kept right on until he was right in that Prairie Dog town. Then all those heads disappeared again. It was just as if that Prairie Dog town was deserted.

"You should have seen Mrs. Coyote move then. She didn't waste any time. In no time at all she was flattened out in the grass, right close to one of those mounds. Old Man Coyote kept right on. He sniffed at one doorway after another, and finally went off, apparently about his business elsewhere. After a while one of those Prairie Dogs poked his head out. He saw Old Man Coyote some distance away and still going. He scrambled out on top of his little watch-tower, for that is what each mound is. Then he barked. Almost right away the heads began to pop out all around and out scrambled the Prairie Dogs, each one sitting up the way Johnny Chuck sits up, and all of them telling Old Man Coyote what they thought of him.

"At last the Prairie Dog who lived in the hole beside which Mrs. Coyote was hiding poked his head out. By this time many of the Prairie Dogs were beginning to run about, visiting back and forth. The one nearest to Mrs. Coyote sat up and, of course, he looked right straight over toward Old Man Coyote. Mrs. Coyote didn't move. The Prairie Dog left the mound and went over to visit a neighbor. Another came out of the same hole. It was then that Mrs. Coyote came to life. My, how quick she moved! She caught this one and gave it a shake. Then, like a flash, she was across and had caught the other. Such a scrambling as there was among those Prairie Dogs to get back to safety!

"Now Old Man Coyote had been watching, and the instant Mrs. Coyote moved he had turned back. He came trotting up on a broad grin. There was a fat Prairie Dog for each of them. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it. The Coyotes are smart. Yes, sir, they are smart. You want to watch out, Peter Rabbit, that they don't play some such trick on you!" "I'll watch," said Peter.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY OF CALL MONEY SENT THE PRICES OF STOCKS UPWARD

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Prices achieved higher levels throughout the list on the stock market today, but widespread nervousness over the possibility of higher federal reserve rediscount rates kept trading at a moderate pace.

An array of pleasing business developments, and an abundant supply of call money gave impetus to the forward movement, but with the New York Federal Reserve bank meeting tomorrow again holding out the threat of a higher rediscount rate, and the prospect of another flurry in call money with the mid-month shifting of balances Friday, the rank and file declined to be drawn into the market.

There had been some talk of a rise in the Boston Reserve bank's rate today, but Wall street was not surprised that it was left unchanged, as that bank's reserve ration has recently risen from around 50 to more than 70 per cent. There was much guess work as to the probable action of the New York Reserve directors tomorrow, but there was no penetration of the secrecy which the directors have maintained as to their intentions. Wall street, however, was inclined to the belief that a higher rate would be postponed until next week, when the mid-month settlements will be out of the way.

An increase in brokers loans is expected despite the reduced stock market activity and the recent sag in prices. Predictions of the higher loan total were based on the fact that the new radio common stock, previously traded on a when issued basis, had to be paid for this week. Call money again renewed at 7 per cent and fell to 6, but time money was scarce at its abnormally high rates. Little was available under 8 per cent for the 30 day maturity.

The weekly steel trade reviews reported increasing pressure for deliveries, despite the fact that mills are operating practically at capacity. Inability of mills to keep up with demands has in some centers handicapped makers of finished products. March promises to set another new record, both for daily and monthly ingot production. Further favorable dividend actions and earnings statements were reported. American Sugar Refining reported 1928 earnings of $7.60 per share, against $1.49 in 1927, although conditions in the industry remain unsettled. Michigan Central paid a $100 dividend, against $40 previously.

Steels, coppers and utilities led the advance. The old radio stock sold up more than 12 points at one time, and the new stock was accumulated heavily, a block of 15,000 shares changing hands at 94, up more than 2 points, just before the close. Allied Chemical Victor, Johns Manville, Peoples Gas, Commercial Investment Trust, Commercial Solvents, and Wright Aero mounted 6 to 8 points.

Oils displayed more buoyancy than for some time past, reflecting the substantial drop in crude production as reported by the American Petroleum Institute, and the more optimistic attitude taken toward the prospects of general curtailment. Mexican Seaboard and Houston Oil mounted 4 and 5 points, while Atlantic Refining improved on rumors of a refinancing plan to be launched by the directors at their coming meeting, and Standard of New York advanced on further reports of negotiations for Vacuum.

In the steels, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem sold up about 4 and 5 points. Pacific Lighting was a strong point of the utilities, mounting 5 points to a new high on reports of negotiations for Southern California Gas. Calumet and Arizona led the coppers with a jump of more than 5 points.

Among the few soft spots was Rossia Insurance, which sold down 9 points at one time in profit taking on yesterday's gain of nearly 22 points, but regained about half its loss. A. M. Byers lost 5 points.

In the commodities cotton futures closed steady after absorption of considerable profit taking. Wheat sagged on better reports from the winter belt, and corn was also carried lower.

Foreign exchange rates were generally firmer, as the demand rate for sterling mounted 3-16 of a cent to $4.85 1-16. The Canadian dollar, however, fell to a new low for the year at 99.19 3-4 cents.

SENATE

The senate was called to order by Lieutenant Governor Rogers at 12:15. Chaplain Ayer offered prayer.

The following bills were taken from the calendar and passed.

S. B. No. 288, providing for biennial elections of town officers in Plainfield instead of annual elections on an approval of the majority voters. Cities and boroughs.

S. B. No. 433, amending an act concerning disinterment permits. Public health and safety.

S. B. No. 62, providing for $2,500 industrial fund in establishment and continuance of school industries. Appropriations.

Sub. S. B. No. 204, imposing fine of $500 or imprisonment of more than thirty days or both on anyone misrepresenting any insurance contract of his own company or attempting to induce the owner of a policy to replace his contract with that of another company. Insurance.

Sub. S. B. N. 206, reducing the par value of capital stock of the Connecticut Fire Insurance company. Insurance.

Sub. S. B. No. 207, reducing the par value of capital stock of the Connecticut Fire Insurance company. Insurance.

Sub. S. B. No. 207, reducing the par value of capital stock of the Connecticut General Life Insurance company to $10. Insurance.

Sub. S. B. No. 209, reducing par value of stock of Phoenix (Fire) Insurance company to $10. Insurance.

Sub. S. B. No. 210, reducing par value of capital stock of Hartford Accident and Indemnity company to $10. Insurance.

House bill No. 675 was taken from the table and passed. It provides for hearings before the public utilities commision at request of selectmen, mayor, common council, warden or burgesses, and issuance of orders by said commission if deemed necessary for installation of signal devices or flagmen at grade crossings, and providing penalty for neglect to comply with orders. The bill was tabled yesterday by request of Senator Smith of Manchester, but there was no opposition to it today.

The senate concurred with the house in recommending to the judiciary committee S. B. No. 232 which provides a remedy for "surprise" school district elections. It was introduced by Senator Conroy and provides that every school district shall hold an annual meeting every June and no person shall be eligible as a candidate for any office unless his name is filed with the clerk not later than May 15. The senate had passed this bill, but opposition now appears and the bill will be reconsidered. The bill was presented to prevent such occurrences as were created at the West Middle and Henry Barnard school elections.

The senate also rejected a bill aiming to protect people who own lands on streams and pollute those waters by use as swimming pools or recreational centers. Senate Chairman Peasley of the judiciary committee explained the bill was presented to meet a case of this kind now in litigation, but that the committee felt any person polluting streams had no right of protection against municipalities taking such property.

The bill providing for an increase from $15 to $25 as the amount of wages, benefits and insurance moneys exempted from attachment for persona services was rejected.

Two bills drawn by the secretary of state to assure early printing of town election ballots were also rejected. S. B. No. 457 provided that the nominating petition of tickets must be filed with the secretary of state at least four weeks prior to the election in order that names contained therein shall appear in the ballot or ballot label upon voting machines.

The other bill, S. B. No. 461, provided that all nominations of candidates for political office shall be made four weeks before election. Secretary of State Hizgins had appeared before the judiciary committee urging these changes. He said there was danger of delay under present conditions in having ballots printed in time.

The senate took from the table and rejected the bill calling for a system of unemployment insurance in the state. Senate Leader Peasley said it was "a socialist program that does not fit in any possible way into the system of Connecticut."

Another bill taken from the table was also rejected. It provided that on appealed non-support cases, the judgment shall provide for the support of the complainant from date of conviction in the lower court.

The following had forfeited rights restored to them under suspension of rules: Alfred J. Lariviere of Willimantic, and Willis G. McLelland of Waterbury.

The senate concurred with the house in passing a bill providing for a commission on the observance of the 200th anniversary of the settlement of Connecticut.

The senate adjourned at 12:47 until tomorrow morning at 11:15.

WILD ROSE LEADS POLL FOR NATIONAL FLOWER

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The wild rose has passed all other flowers in an effort to determine the most popular American wild flower. Of 86,023 votes cast thus far in a nation wide campaign the wild rose leads with 31,209 votes.

The columbine is next with 14,670 votes and the goldenrod third with 10,400. The golden rod is one of the flowers in which Thomas A. Edison says he will find rubber.

Campaigns are on in 21 states through women's clubs and schools. In all the campaigns the various wild flowers are studied over a period of weeks before the day set for the votes. The American Nature association which is conducting the search for the most popular wild flower reports that the bloxx violet and daisy are running strong, while dogwood and mountain laurel are holding their own.

CAGY BRIDGE PLAYER MAKES MOST OF HAND

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—S. A. Alexander knows how to make the most of a bridge hand.

His club bid was run up in seven and doubled. Mr. Alexander, with all 13 trumps in his hand, kept a sober face and redoubled. To the chagrin of his opponents and the decided relief of his partner he exposed his hand and chalked up 593 points.

To save addition, it was this way: contract, 100; slam, 100; honors, 100; bid, 168; bonus for game in hand, 125; total, 593.

IDAHO RUSTLERS STEAL QUARRY IN FAST TRUCKS

BOISE, Idaho—(AP)—Cattle rustlers of today are not as picturesque as they were once upon a time but according to Cowles Andrus, assemblyman, they are quicker.

The modern rustler works with a fast truck, picks up his quarry and has it on a distant butcher's block shortly afterward, Andrus says. He tells of a case where cattlemen in his district captured a rustler whose truck was equipped with complete butchering devices. A hand operated winch could draw a beef to the top of the truck for cutting, while inside were a butcher's block, knives and cleaver.

WORKING STUDENTS WIN BEST COLLEGE GRADES

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—A college statistician finds that young men who work their way through college make as good progress, if not better, in their studies than those who do not. The same man says that the impression that athletes make poor students is erroneous.

Dean Earl J. Miller of the University of California, at Los Angeles, collected the statistics and makes these announcements. The scholastic standings of more than 2,500 men earning their expenses wholly or in part were studied.

Students doing outside work, taken as a group, or when classified according to length of time spent at work, make as good or better grade than those men not working. In the case of students on probation for low grades, working students make a slightly better record," Miller said.

Athletes, debaters, student executives and others engaged in university activities in addition to class work make higher grades than those with no outside activities other than social, the dean claims.

HARDY PEST SURVIVES BOILING TEMPERATURE

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., (AP)—One of the mosaic diseases attacking tomato plants is found to be caused by an unidentified non-living substance that withstands a temperature of about 260 degrees for two and a half hours. These heat experiments were performed at Indiana Agricultural college on the disease known as fern leaf mosaic.

SILVER FOX FARMING PROFITABLE TO MANY

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Silver foxes are being raised successfully on numerous fox farms throughout the United States and Canada, and the pelts of ranch-raised foxes are being sold in increasing quantities every year. At the close of 1928 there were about 3,000 such ranches in this country, approximating an investment of $30,000,000.

However, there have been numerous failures, too, from lack of sufficient technical and practical knowledge. The department of agriculture has advised against hasty and ill-advised fox farm promotion.

"I love large audiences . . . especially when there's not a cough in a house-ful!"

"Those of us who are on the stage ought to be rated as experts on coughs. We study them constantly, because how we dread them!

"If an actor coughs, he can't say his lines. If the audience coughs, it won't hear his lines. So the nuisance of coughing gets us, going and coming.

"I smoke sparingly, when I smoke. But recently I was introduced to OLD GOLDS. Since then I've doubled my smoking ration. First, because I like OLD GOLDS; second, because they like me . . . they are so good to my throat.

"If you should attend a future performance of mine, and the lady next to you doesn't cough because she read this piece, you should be grateful to me for having written it. So should she . . . and so should I."

(SIGNED) Beatrice Lillie

Why not a cough in a carload?

OLD GOLD cigarettes are blended from HEART-LEAF tobacco, the finest Nature grows. Selected for silkiness and ripeness from the heart of the tobacco plant. Aged and mellowed extra long in a temperature of mid-July sunshine to insure that honey-like smoothness.

BEATRICE LILLIE . . . the beautiful and brilliant English musical comedy star, featured in the Broadway success, "This Year of Grace."

On your Radio . . OLD GOLD-PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR . . . Paul Whiteman, King of Jazz, with his complete orchestra, broadcasts the OLD GOLD hour every Tuesday, from 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over the entire network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

QUARTER HOUR SERVICE BEGUN BY G. & S. TRACTION CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—This afternoon the Groton and Stonington Traction Co. began a 15-minute service between this city and Groton as an experiment. Since the abandonment of ferry service between the two places it has been felt that more frequent trolley service would supply the resultant need of transportation. If patronage on the extra runs warrant the cost, the service will be continued. The petition at Groton asking for restoration of ferry service to this city is still in circulation and it is understood that it will be placed before the council meeting next Monday night.

NEW LONDONERS SHUN WATER —BUT THERE'S A VALID REASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—The water of Lake Konomoc, the city's source of water supply, has become contaminated with foreign substances within a few days, so much so, that users of the water for purposes of drinking have curtailed its use as much as possible because of the disagreeable taste of the usual palatable water. Inquiry at the office of the board of water works this afternoon following numerous complaints registered because of the distasteful water, resulted in the cause being ascertained. It was stated that the reservoir contains numerous species of organisms, which cannot be removed because of elemental conditions. The surface of the water on the reservoir is covered with ice and as soon as the ice disappears the water will be treated so that the organisms will disappear within a day or two. Analysis of the water has been made and a report received by the water officials was to the effect that the organisms are of a harmless nature. Nevertheless the water is so distasteful that residents are using other beverages to quench their thirst.

The building was formerly used by the C. F. Potter Furniture Co., which suspended business a week ago.

John N. and Rose B. Herbert have sold to Ellis W. Crouch a building lot on the former United States Housing corporation site.

Florence A. Maynard has sub-leased the residence, 405 Williams street, to Frank Harding. Mrs. Maynard recently leased the building from Louis Schwartz.

Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander today issued a release of tax warrant against Anna N. Pennell and Julia F. Fitzgerald. A warrant was served several weeks ago calling for the sale of real estate on Home street owned by Mrs. Pennell and Miss Fitzgerald because of taxes remaining unpaid. Since then the tax has been paid.

CHANGED WATER FOR HOOCH— HENRY JUNE GETS IN BAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—Henry W. June, 38, of Denison avenue, a former employe of the city's water department, started in the liquor business when he discontinued handling water and the change proved a most expensive one. This morning in the police court June was presented on a charge of violation of the liquor law and pleaded guilty, was fined $200 and costs, which he paid. June's arrest was the result of the drinks he served at his home last night, causing a fight among four of his patrons. The quartet, being arrested, they divulged the source of their supply of liquor, which resulted in June's arrest today. Donald MacLachlin, 13 Wightman street; Leroy Williams, 210 Montauk avenue, and Louis R. Titus and John F. Lonergan, the last two Submarine base sailors, went to the residence of June last night and imbibed freely of alcoholic drinks. When the quartet walked to Bank street they engaged in a fight. During the progress of the battle, Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Henry Hick appeared and arrested the combatants. When the quartet of fighters arrived at police headquarters and were questioned they imparted the information that they had purchased their liquor of June. This morning, Patrolmen Philopena, Braxton Hill and Clarence Wells went to June's house and arrested him. When MacLachlin, Williams, Titus and Lonergan were presented in court the charge against them of breach of the peace was nolled, in view of the fact that the information with which they supplied the police resulted in the arrest and conviction of June.

The only other case tried was that of a fisherman charged with intoxication, he having been arrested on State street last night by Patrolman Hill. He was fined $5 and costs.

John J. Ryan, Jr., 105 Blackhall street, has made complaint to the police that a 16-gauge shot gun was recently stolen from a building on Golden street and that he suspects youths of having committed the theft.

OLD COLONIAL GRIST MILL TO GRIND FOR SUMMER GUESTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—The wheel on the Old Town mill has been removed and is undergoing repairs. As soon as the repairs are completed the wheel will be put back in position and the mill operated for the benefit of summer visitors, many of whom visit the ancient mill annually.

Members of the police department started drawing this afternoon where by they will be allotted their annual vacation periods, each of two weeks. Some of the officers will start next month and others will be absent from duty as late in the year as November and December. The members do not obtain vacations during July and August because of the great volume of traffic and the transient population, which fact causes the vacations to extend until into the winter.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the drivers' licenses of Charles Faulkner, Submarine base, and David Fenster, 31 Starr street. The licenses were suspended several weeks ago.

Mrs. Helen Sheffott, clerk in the office of Director of Finance Carey Congdon, Municipal building, is ill at her home on Maple avenue.

A fellow too drunk to reveal his identity was arrested tonight by Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Braxton Hill, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He was locked up and will be among those present when the city court convenes tomorrow.

NEW LONDON, March 13—Frank Cables, 13 Hope street, reported to the police this afternoon that while his automobile was parked in the rear of the Peerless garage, Howard street, a thief went to the machine and applied his lifting talents, for when Cables returned to the auto he discovered that two tires, tubes and wheels had been stolen. No trace of the thief or the disposition of the plunder was obtained, it being the opinion of the police that the thief intends to use the equipment taken on his own machine. Certain owners of automobiles obtain tires and tubes for their personal use by stealing them from parked machines.

Frank A. Radcliffe, 112 Plymouth street, New Haven, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Braxton Hill, charged with violation of the city's parking laws. He furnished a bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow. Radcliffe, a salesman, parked his car on Main street and so far away from the curb that traffic was blocked for several minutes.

WATERFORD WOODLAND FIRE— CALL FOR LOCAL ASSISTANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—The first of the annual brush fires which cause the authorities of the surrounding countryside much work and alarm, occurred tonight in Waterford. The blaze was combatted by the Waterford department so there was no serious damage. When the fire was discovered it was burning briskly and a telephone message was sent to fire headquarters here. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds notified Fire Warden Perkins and that official had firefighters sent to aid at the burning woodland.

MOTORIST MINUS LICENSE, ALSO REGISTRATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—Homer McCullough, a member of the U. S. Coast Guard and of the crew of the patrol boat 223, was arrested this evening by Lieut. Henry Albright, state police, Groton barracks, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws, in driving a machine without having either license or registration. McCullough could not furnish a surety on his bond of $50 and was locked up. He will be in court tomorrow.

FOURTEEN MORE DRIVERS TAPPED BY STATE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 13—With excellent motor weather prevailing today, the state police renewed their campaign tonight, checking up on drivers of all kinds of motor vehicles, the officers extending their activities toward ascertaining whether the drivers possessed licenses, registration and proper equipment. As a result, 14 drivers were arrested in this city by Lieut. Henry Albright and Officers Bernard Kenerson, Joseph King, George Webber and Peter Busch. All the drivers were booked at police headquarters upon the various charges and will be given a hearing in court tomorrow.

Other officers are scouring the trunk lines in Groton and Waterford and additional cases will be presented in the Groton and Waterford town courts next Monday.

The state police a week ago arrested 27 drivers for failing to have licenses and the resumption of the activity of the officers is being taken, not only to compel drivers to comply with the law, but also to bring the number of accidents to a minimum.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

One of the finest vaudeville programs seen this season will be presented at the Palace theatre starting today. Opening this show is Dainty Ethel Marine & Co., a gorgeous scenic novelty revuette. Number two Weber & Ridnor in Laugh Clown Laugh. Number three will bring to the stage one of the most novel acts in vaudeville today with a moving train on the stage George Frederick & Co., a scenic novelty revue with laughs, love interest, beautiful scenery and plenty of songs—then comes Bobby Van Horn in a study of laughology and closing this wonderful program Varieites of 1929, one of the fastest moving singing and dancing girl acts.

For the screen attraction there was rather a strange coincidence in connection with the production of "Tommy Atkins," the story of two fighting men who love the same lassie, which is now at the Palace theatre.

One of the battalions of English troops taking part in the desert scenes where the troop goes to the relief of a fort making its last stand against rebel tribesmen, had not been in that section of the Soudan in the last 20 years. When it marched in the men looked around and shouted, for the last time they passed into the place they had gone in dead earnest and a real desert war was on.

Marching and fighting in the desert, the troops do some impressive action, and the view of a column in the distance against the bare background of the desert is most impressive. There is a thrilling defense of a fort and a British square fighting an action against overwhelming odds that is extremely realistic, and the technicalities are correct in every detail.

The picture was made with the aid of the British military authorities in Egypt. English soldiers took part in the military scenes, and the native tribesmen supplied the forces of the enemy. The latter were sometimes rather difficult as "supers."

Breed Theatre

Sisters have been principals on stage and screen in many stories but in none more intriguing, or more amusing, than "Beware of Married Men," the Warner Bros. production, starring Irene Rich which closes tonight at the Breed theatre.

Miss Rich is cast as the older sister whose mission, self-appointed, is the protection of her flapper sister. What happens in this process makes up the hilarious play. "Beware of Married Men" was adapted for the screen by E. T. Lowe, Jr., from a Franz Jacques original. Archie L. Mayo directed. The cast includes Myrna Loy, Audrey Ferris, Clyde Cook, Richard Tucker, Stuart Holmes and Hugh Allan.

"Ginsberg the Great," with George Jessel, a Warner Bros.' production is the added feature on today's program. Story and scenario were both done by Anthony Coldeway, and the cast includes Audrey Ferris, Gertrude Astor, Douglas Gerrard, Jack Santoro, Theodore Lorch, Jimmie Quinn and Stanley Sanford. Byron Haskin directed.

George Jessel's solemn mirth has never had more side-splitting play than in this tale of the tailor's apprentice, who studied music, joined the carnival, played "Jo-Jo the Dog-faced Boy," and "The Bearded Lady" grew heroic at the sight of burglary, croaked the crooks, and won fame, fortune and the tailor's pretty daughter! You'll root for "Ginsberg the Great."

Broadway Theatre

"The Battle of the Sexes," D. W. Griffith's latest United Artists picture coming to the Broadway theatre today is a realistic presentation of the theme of family discord and infidelity.

Years ago Griffith made a feature similar in theme in five reels—one of the first five-reelers made in this country—it was hailed as a great triumph and broke the attendance records everywhere.

For a considerable period Griffith had planned to make another picture of this type. In "The Battle of the Sexes" Griffith found just the type of story he was seeking.

The famous director selected a noted cast to bring the story to life. Jean Hersholt portrays the father who deserts his comfortable, middle-class home for a flapper and gold-digger played by Phyllis Haver. The mother is Belle Bennett and the daughter who brings about the reconciliation is characterized by Sally O'Neil, who will be seen in the role of a sweet home-loving girl. Don Alvarado impersonates Jim, Miss Haver's sweetheart.

"The Battle of the Sexes" has been called an epic of the modern home.

It has been synchronized with a splendid music score arranged by Hugo Riesenfeld of Rialto and Rivoli New York fame and is sure to delight the lovers of good music. In addition to the beautiful screen offering there is presented a very entertaining program of Vitaphone vaudeville. This entire program in conjuction with the Norwich merchants' style show of beautiful gowns on beautiful Norwich girls.

Laurence Tibbet Recital

Laurence Tibbet, singing at Slater hall on Friday evening, is the young American baritone, who made such a sensational success at the Metropolitan Opera, two seasons past. Following the second act of Falstaff the applause was unusually insistent, which was thought to be for a more established artist, but the acclaim was for Tibbet, and his appearance before the curtain was the signal for a tumultuous ovation. The masterly singing of the young artist, comparatively unknown, raised him overnight from one of the lesser lights to a Metropolitan star of the first rank.

Mr. Tibbet is in constant demand as a concert singer and his art has grown steadily in poise and finish.

The music critics are unanimous in praise of his naturally beautiful voice, but do not stop there, going on to point out his musicianship and fine interpretative sense. It is the consensus that Lawrence Tibbet is one of the foremost baritones in this country, and is winning fresh laurels at every appearance in opera and concert.

Sponsoring this noteworthy musical event are the members of the Norwich Rotary club, for the benefit of the Blackmar memorial fund for boys' work.

LABORATORY URGED FOR HYDRAULIC STANDARDS

WORCESTER, Mass.—(AP)—The official hydraulic laboratory of the federal bureau of standards would be established in Worcester if efforts now being made in Washington are successful.

A bill to establish such a laboratory is pending in congress, but it was reported that the desired facilities were not available in the United States until Representative George R. Stobbs of Worcester called the attention of the bureau to the fact that a laboratory has been maintained here for several years.

The laboratory is that of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

It has done considerable research work for power companies in Canada, the middle west, far west and New England.

PECANS, HICKORY NUTS, GROWING ON SAME TREE

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Both pecans and hickory nuts grow on the same tree in the yard of G. S. Spillers, Tulsa attorney.

The arboreal freak was created two years ago when Spillers and A. L. Burrows a banker, cut the top out of an 8-year-old hickory tree and grafted buds of the papershell pecan to the trunk. These took new life, fed by the sap of the hickory, and in two years the tree had a new top which bears an abundance of pecans while a few limbs below the budded section produce hickory nuts.

Spillers says the hickory provides a more hardy trunk than the pecan and increases the production of the tree.

VANISHED RACE LEAVES ODD PICTURES IN CAVES

BOISE CITY, Okla., (AP)—Carved on cave and canyon walls in the Oklahoma panhandle is the pictorial record of a vanished race, the Faraone Indians.

The pictographs are described by Alfred B. Thomas, history instructor at the University of Oklahoma, as unlike any other known Indian art. They are found only in a restricted area of the Oklahoma and Texas panhandle and in southern Colorado.

Animals now extinct are depicted by the Indians' rock carvings. Foundations of palisaded stone and timber houses once occupied by the Faraones still are found, but efforts to trace the history of the race have been futile.

Superimposed on the Indian carvings are more recent engravings telling of Spanish and Mexican occupation and the visits of such American adventurers as Kit Carson.

As the result of a bet that such a thing as a tandem bicycle was in existence, two young men who were visiting at Stockbridge, rode the contraption from the home of Arthur C. Monroe, its owner, to the scene of the discussion.

PROBATE COURT ADMITS LESTER WILL--DISAPPROVES THE CODICIL

Judge Nelson J. Ayling, in a decision announced late Wednesday afternoon, has refused to admit to probate the codicil of the will of the late Mrs. Frances Dawley Lester, widow of Daniel M. Lester. The original will, dated June 17, 1927, is admitted to probate, as Judge Ayling finds that Mrs. Lester was of sound mind when it was drawn up. With regard to the codicil, Judge Ayling finds that Mrs. Lester at the time of its execution was at a very low ebb and that for days prior to the execution of the instrument, she was at times mentally inaccessible and unresponsive. The codicil, which was dated June 12, 1928, is disapproved and refused admission to probate.

The complete text of Judge Ayling's decision, follows:

At a court of probate held at Norwich, within and for the district of Norwich, on the 12th day of March, A. D. 1929, present, Nelson J. Ayling, judge. Estate of Frances D. Lester, late of Norwich, in said district deceased.

In the matter of the petition of Dwight L. Underwood, of Norwich, Connecticut, praying for the reasons therein set forth, that an instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said decedent and codicil thereto, be admitted to probate.

The said hearing came by regular adjournments from the return day on August 3rd, 1928, to this day.

Dwight L. Underwood of Norwich, Conn., appeared in court and made sworn return that the order made by this court on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1928, directing notice to be given of a hearing upon the petition referred to in said order, has been complied with.

The court finds the facts stated in said return to be true, and therefore accepts the same and orders it on file and record.

Attorneys Andrew B. Davies, Arthur M. Brown, both of Norwich, Conn., Honorable John P. Taylor, of Troy, N. Y., and Frederick H. Wiggin of the firm of Bristol & White of New Haven, Conn., appeared in support of the will and codicil.

Attorneys Charles L. Stewart of Norwich, Conn., and Honorable Robert R. Lawson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., appeared in opposition to the admission to probate of the codicil, and to contest the same.

The court having fully heard the parties interested in said estate, finds the allegations contained in said petition as to the execution of the will be true; that there is no opposition nor objection to the admission of the will to probate and which will is dated June 17th, 1927. That said decedent executed the will referred to in said petition when of lawful age, of sound mind and according to law, to pass real and personal estate; and that said will has not been revoked.

Whereupon, it is adjudged that said will dated June 17th, 1927, be and the same is approved and ordered on file and record.

As to the instrument in writing, dated July 12th, 1928, purporting to be a codicil to said will, it appears that the decedent was of about the age of seventy-two years; that she was and had been for about six months prior thereto in poor health, a sufferer from arterior sclerosis, depressive melancholia, myocardial degeneration and exopthalmic goitre with vision reduced to about five per cent. of normal; that she was depressed and highly nervous. On June 25th, 1928, she went to Troy, New York in company with a physician whom she had known for a considerable period of time and there she was placed in the Samaritan hospital as a private patient. It appears that she was entered therein as a mental case by Dr. Thurman A. Hull, who took charge of her and nurses were engaged and paid the special rate fixed for that class of cases.

Whether there was actual psychosis is not in evidence but as time and her ailments advanced, it would appear from the testimony that at periods the patient was disoriented as to time, place and persons while in said hospital until she eventually sank into coma and died; that she was mentally disturbed and confused; called for absent persons and called the nurses by names of those friends and spent much time in excessive weeping and was greatly depressed and melancholy, both before and subsequent to the execution of said codicil.

It is true that a person suffering from periodic insanity may execute a valid will if done during a lucid interval but it must be clearly established in such a case that the testator had testamentary capacity to know and fully comprehend the results of his act.

The burden of proof of a will rests with the proponents of the document, but when this is done in the formal manner provided by statutory requirements a prima facia proof is established and the burden then shifts to the contestants to disprove those necessary requirements.

However, in case the document is secured by and for the personal advantage of one enjoying close, confidential relations as an attorney or physician, this presumption of law does not maintain, but on the contrary there is a prima facia presumption of undue influence. See Kirby's Appeal 91 Conn. 40. Also, Gager v. Mathewson, 93 Conn. 539.

Upon the whole evidence, I do not find that this presumption has been overcome.

As to the execution of the so-called codicil, four elements have developed in this case, to wit:

First—Forgery or spurious signature of the decedent.

Second—Fraud in securing the same.

Third—Undue influence.

Fourth—Testamentary incapacity.

As to forgery or spurious signature: handwriting experts were called who testified that it was not her handwriting. So far as that is concerned, she could have signed the paper by a mark; or the scrivener could have written her name for her with his own hand, or she placed her hand on his hand or arm or he guided her hand by using his own, provided she had declared it to be her act and had all other requirements as to testamentary capacity.

As to fraud; there is no evidence that actual deception or fraud was practiced.

As to undue influence; this seems to be merged into the question of mental capacity.

Some days before the codicil was drawn the decedent learned of the marriage and death of a favorite niece, whereupon she suffered further great depression, melancholia and collapse. This brings us to the question as to whether the decedent did have the mental capacity to form a rational judgment; and to comprehend of her own volition the proposed changes effected by the codicil.

According to the testimony of all nurses in attendance upon the deceased, and other persons not in interest, this capacity was absent. The nurses in constant attendance testified that the patient was mentally disordered and confused on the date in question and prior to the execution of the so-called codicil.

That the physical and mental status of the decedent at the time of the execution of the so-called codicil was at a very low ebb; that for days prior to the execution of said instrument, the decedent at times was mentally inaccessible and unresponsive.

Wherefore, it is adjudged, that said instrument in writing, dated July 12th, 1928, and purporting to be a codicil to the will of said Frances D. Lester be, and the same is disapproved and refused admission to probate.

NELSON J. AYLING,
Judge.

In the original will, Mrs. Lester bequeathed to Mrs. Abby Maude Parker, then residing in Brooklyn, N. Y., now deceased, the life use of 400 shares of the common and capital stock of the National Lead Co. The will provides that on the decease of Mrs. Parker, the life use of the 400 shares be given to Mrs. Parker's mother, Emma Clark Dawley.

By the terms of the codicil the bequest left to the late Mrs. Parker, was to be divided into eight parts and distributed as follows;

To Fannie Wright of Avaston, Ct., one part; to Dr. Lester G. Walker of this city, one part; to Mary Rose of Troy, N. Y., one part; to Dr. Thurman A. Hull of Troy, N. Y., five parts.

The admission to probate of the codicil was bitterly contested in a lengthy hearing before Judge Ayling in the probate court. Relatives of Mrs. Lester who contested the validity of the codicil claimed that Mrs. Lester was mentally incompetent and that Dr. Hull, beneficiary under the codicil, used undue influence to induce her to sign the codicil while he was her physician in the Samaritan hospital, at Troy, where she died July 22, 1928.

The numerous bequests in the will itself, admitted to probate, stand as drawn up by the late Mrs. Lester. The bequests in the codicil, however, are not recognized by the probate court.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

GROTON, March 14.—Roy S. Haggard of Stoughton, Mass., has been appointed principal of the Robert E. Fitch high school which is now under construction at Poquonnock Bridge, town of Groton. The new school will be completed in time for the opening of the school term in the fall.

In Mr. Haggard, the town of Groton has a man of broad training, wide interests, and varied experience. In his various capacities as teacher, principal, scientist, social worker, chemical engineer, research worker and educator, he has acquired a background which, together with his great enthusiasm and progressive views, fits him for the task which he has assumed as head of the new institution.

Born in Bloomington, Illinois, Mr. Haggard is the son of the Reverend Fren P. Haggard, D. D., for a long time secretary of the Baptist Foreign Mission society and editor of its magazine. He is of the same family as the English writer, H. Ryder Haggard.

His childhood was spent as a missionary's son in India, where until the age of 12 years he received the rudiments of education from his mother. After being graduated from the high school in Watertown, Mass., Mr. Haggard attended the Worcester Polytechnic institute and received his degree of Bachelor of Science in the year 1911 from Dennison university in Ohio.

Mr. Haggard assumed his first teaching position at the Newton Technical high school in Newton, Mass., and he resigned from this position to do graduate work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

During the European war, Mr. Haggard spent a year in Siberia with the Y. M. C. A. War Prisoners' Aid, leaving Russia just in time to escape the revolution. When he came home it was with the intention of returning to Siberia for business, but his return was prevented by the declaration of war in America.

He resumed his duties as instructor in science and mathematics at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in September, 1916, only to be inducted into service the following May to serve in the ordnance department. He was sent to the United States Nitrate Plant No. 1 at Muscle Shoals, where he worked on the direct synthetic Ammonia process by Haber. Later recalled as chemical engineer in the ordnance department in civilian capacity, he wrote the history of the Direct Synthetic Process.

The following year he was married to Miss Lucie B. Womble of Tuscumbia, Alabama. In the spring of 1921 Mr. and Mrs. Haggard left for New Hampshire, where the former engaged in business, and then went back to teaching in 1923 at the Manchester high school.

In 1925 he accepted the principalship of Stoughton high school Stoughton, Massachusetts and he has held this position until his recent appointment to principalship at the Robert E. Fitch high school. Last year Mr. Haggard received his degree of Master of Education at Harvard university.

GAVE TALK ON COAL AT ROTARY MEETING

"The Origin of Coal" was the topic of a very interesting talk given by Harold D. Larrabee at the noon meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Larrabee, who was introduced by Charles J. Twiss, told how millions of years ago the earth was covered by heavy tropical vegetation. There were upheavals of the earth's surface and this rank vegetation was broken down and covered with sand and silt. For millions of years it remained under heavy pressure and subject to the heat from the interior of the earth. Eventually it carbonized and became coal.

Mr. Larrabee received a hearty vote of appreciation for his talk. At the business session President Edward W. Jewett, who recently returned from California, presided and Dr. A. C. Freeman was song-leader. The primary balloting for the directors of the club took place and 16 directors were chosen, their names to be announced next week.

William G. Park, chairman of the committee in charge of the Tibbett concert on Friday evening, urged that the members of the Rotary club get out and sell some tickets if they wanted the affair to be a success. Mr. Park spoke very highly of the singing of Mr. Tibbett saying that he is to sing in the Kellogg concert program in Hartford next winter.

Among the numerous musical features of the meeting was the singing of Frank R. Murdy who rendered two very pleasing solos.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

FLOODS HAVE CAUSED TWO TRAIN WRECKS IN ALABAMA

Engineer and Fireman were Seriously Injured—Three Alabama Towns Are Covered With a Foot or More of Water—Alabama and Georgia Are the Principal Sufferers From Floods, But Great Damage Has Been Wrought in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska.

By The Associated Press

From the Mississippi eastward to the sea, the rain and warm weather of the past few days have caused rivers to overflow their banks, inundating some sections and threatening others with flood unless a falling temperature should bring relief.

The Mississippi itself, was not yet at the danger point, but its tributaries were boiling with swollen waters and precautionary measures were in force.

Damage by flood was suffered in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska with hundreds of acres of farmland inundated and hundreds of men working on dikes.

In the south, Alabama and Georgia were the principal sufferers. There were two train wrecks caused by flood and four communities were isolated. The Black Warrior river rose 31.6 feet in 24 hours at Tuscaloosa.

In New England, the Connecticut river was rising and flood gates were opened in readiness for high water.

The Mohawk river in New York state was rising at the rate of four feet an hour Thursday afternoon and high water cut off communication by road between Schenectady and Amsterdam. At Rectors' Crossing on the Fonda, Johnstown and Gloversville railroad the state highway was under four feet of water.

FLOOD IS GENERAL IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

ATLANTA, Ga., March 14—(AP)—South Central Alabama was virtually isolated today by the third deluge of flood water within as many weeks and several other southern states reported inconvenience occasioned by a 48 hour downpour of rain.

A trestle washout caused two train wrecks during the day in Alabama, resulting in serious injury to three trainmen. A half dozen fast passenger trains were detoured after a delay of several hours, highway traffic in South Alabama was paralyzed.

A tornado that accompanied the deluge of rain in South Carolina last night took nine lives in Six Mile Community, near Greenville, and probably fatally injured two others.

Three south Alabama towns, Rolling Garland and Glenwood, between Montgomery and Evergreen, were covered by a foot or more of water from small nearby streams and Townsend, Ga., still was under water about waist deep. None of these towns exceeds 1,000 in population.

Water also was invading Hickman, Ky., with slight damage, and the Mississippi river was over or near flood stage from Memphis to the mouth. No apprehension was felt by engineers, but the weather bureau issued bulletins at New Orleans and Memphis.

Probably the greatest immediate effect of the flood waters in Alabama was felt by the railroads and highways. John Young, engineer, and John Smith, fireman, both of Columbus, Ga., were seriously injured when their passenger train plunged through a washed out trestle, near Brantley, no passengers were hurt. Trainmen worked several hours to free Engineer Bostick Hamm, whose L. and N. freight train was wrecking by spreading rails near Castleberry, Ala.

The Black Warrior, Alabama, Coosa, Tomoigbee, and other south Alabama streams were rising at a fast pace. The Black Warrior rose 31.6 feet in 12 hours at Tusvaloosa, setting a record.

Most of the heavy rainfall in Georgia occurred in the Chattahoochee watershed, and occasioned little damage.

Western North Carolina joined the flood ridden section today as mountain streams began a precipitate rise. School was dismissed at Marshall, because of invading high water.

More rain during the next 12 hours was predicted for most of the flood stricken areas but a moderating tendency was noted by most weather bureaus.

APPEAL BY RADIO FOR AID FOR FLOODED TOWN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 14—(AP)—Gov. Bibb Graves tonight broadcast an appeal over radio station WAPI urging that relief be sent to Elba, Ala., as speedily as possible, declaring unless aid is given the stricken city within the next six or eight hours, that "all will be dead."

Governor Graves urged residents of the area adjoining Elba, to get there "now" as the town was in the gravest peril.

REPORT ENTIRE TOWN FLOODED IN ALABAMA

TROY, Ala., March 14—(AP)—Reports received here today from Elba, Ala., a town of 4,000 population, 32 miles south of here, said the entire town was flooded and the situation fraught with danger. A large crew of men was put to work here constructing rafts to go to the aid of the residents.

MOHAWK RIVER RISING AT RATE OF FOOT AN HOUR

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., March 14—(AP)—The Mohawk river continued to rise here at the rate of one foot an hour although a few miles west of the city it had begun to recede due to the breaking of an ice jam at the Boston & Maine railroad bridge near Rotterdam Junction.

The breaking of the ice jam sent an additional ten feet of water pouring down the valley and the water which had covered the Schenectady-Amsterdam highway west of Rotterdam Junction to a depth of six feet dropped to three feet.

Three new ice jams were reported forming tonight west of Rotterdam Junction and it was hoped these would prevent the water farther down the stream from rising too rapidly for safety.

From Scotia, a suburb of this city, to a point three miles west, the river was choked with ice and a fourth jam was forming at Scotia.

The barge canal terminal in this city was a foot under water tonight with the stream steadily rising.

HEAVY SNOWS AND FLOODS DIMINISHING IN WYOMING

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 14—(AP)—A combined offensive of the elements—heavy snows and floods and floods from ice-gorged rivers—was slowly diminishing in intensity in Wyoming tonight as a half dozen or more cities began to emerge from the trail of desolation left by one of the most bitter blasts of winter.

Miniature mountains of snow buried small towns in northern Wyoming. At dusk the snow caused a suspension of school work for the rest of the week.

Generally in this state the storm paralyzed highway transportation, leaving snowdrifts several feet in depth over many roads. The city of Laramie, in southern Wyoming, reported its streets were under several feet of snow.

Train service in the vicinity of Casper was hampered. Rivers in some parts of the state swelled to flood proportions.

Chris Lorenson, a trapper, and his family were surrounded in their camp near Shoshoni by a torrent of flood water from the Big Wind river and saved themselves only after Lorenson forced the stream, holding his infant child in his arms above his head. Mrs. Lorenson gripped his coat and clung to it until safety was reached.

Increasing anxiety was reported among stockmen over the effects of the prolonged storm. Heavy losses were feared. Storm conditions appeared to be passing.

STREAMS SUBSIDING IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, March 14—(AP)—Swollen streams of the middle west were less turbulent tonight and flood waters which had grown perilous in several sections were receding slowly.

At Galena, Ill., where the Galena river yesterday reached its highest flood stage on record and washed out the day's business the high water had receded entirely from the business district and the river was returning to its banks.

Other districts of the Mississippi in Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska also were less rampageous today as ice continued to break up and melt, permitting the flood waters to pass on down stream. The Platte river in Nebraska was a swirling torrent but observers felt the real danger was passing.

Unless there should be heavy rains in the next day or so, it was regarded likely that all the swollen streams would recede rapidly.

CONN. RIVER STEADILY RISING AT SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 14—(AP)—The Connecticut river was rising steadily here tonight, following the two days of warm weather and accompanying thaw and the continued rainfall of the past 24 hours. Flood gates at the dam of the Turners Falls Power and Electric company have been opened and the reservoir and above the dam is full. Tributary streams, including the Deerfield and Agawam rivers were on a mild rampage, but not to an alarming extent. The crest of the rise caused by the rains and thaw farther north is not expected here until tomorrow.

HAD DIVORCE ANNULLED JUST TO BE "ULTRA STYLISH"

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 14—(AP)—Miss Lena Kammerer, aunt of Mrs. George L. Homer, who died Jan. 13 in Boston, and whose will revealed that she had obtained a divorce from Homer in Miami seven months before her death without his knowledge, declared today that the divorce later was annulled. She said Mrs. Homer so informed her in a letter. Mrs. Homer visited relatives here in August following the divorce and told relatives about it, Miss Kammerer said.

"She just did it to be stylish," Miss Kammerer declared, and added that it was "ultra-stylish" to have the divorce annulled.

Mrs. Homer was born in Louisville and was buried here.

Information from Miami was that the petition was filed here last April 15 by Mrs. Homer charging her husband with excessive use of alcohol, cruelty and a violent and ungovernable temper. She alleged Homer shot at her December 12, 1927, while she was visiting some friends.

The divorce degree was rendered June 15, 1928, she was granted use of her maiden name.

Notice of the suit was published in a homestead paper as service on persons living outside the state is permitted under law by publication.

A NEW ANGLE TO THE ROBERTS-EASTMAN TRAGEDY

SMITHBORO, N. Y., March 14—(AP)—The investigation of the shooting of Jeff B. Roberts, 61, and Mrs. Gilbert Eastman, his 37 year old nurse, took a new turn today when a search was instituted for Theodore Haas, 40, who had been a boarder at the Roberts farm during the greater part of the winter.

Sergeant J. A. Murphy, in charge of the state police investigation of the double shooting, announced that he still believed that Roberts had killed the woman and then committed suicide but that he had ordered Haas apprehended so that every possible angle of the case could be checked.

Neighbors of Roberts and the Eastmans reported to the state police that they had seen Haas at the Roberts farm about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, between 10:30 and 11 o'clock—at the time when authorities believe the couple were killed—the neighbors also said they had seen Roberts' police dog acting queerly outside the house. When the bodies were found yesterday afternoon, both Haas and Roberts' dog had disappeared.

Dr. W. C. Wilson of Nichols, who discovered the bodies of Roberts and his nurse when he went to attend to the former yesterday afternoon, today expressed the opinion that the crime had been a double murder.

LANDED SHIPWRECKED SAILORS IN FALL RIVER

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 14—(AP)—The American oil steamer Swiftscout arrived in port here today from Curacao, B. W. The schooner was bound from Turk's Head, the Bahamas, to Yarmouth, N. S. Her home port was St. Johns, N. F.

Captain Albert C. Allen, of this city, skipper of the Swiftscout, reported that he had sighted distress signals flown by the McLean and sent out a boat which took off the crew. Besides Captain Thornhill, those rescued were: William Snook, William H. Young, Frank Lecour, John Barrett, John Green and J. Paul, all of Newfoundland.

Another Victory For The Poincare Cabinet

National Union Ministry of France Sustained by Chamber of Deputies.

PARIS, March 14—(AP)—Premier Poincare's national union cabinet today came through with flying colors what had been predicted to be a grave crisis, when the chamber of deputies sustained by a majority of 69 its demand for immediate discussion of bills permitting certain religious congregations to return to France and enjoy part of the property of religious associations sequestered by the state in 1904.

Radical and socialist members of parliament have been trying for three months to prevent consideration of these measures. It was thought this morning that they had made their last stand when the government was victorious by 60 votes. But at the afternoon session they moved the previous question and the government's majority increased to 72.

Socialist deputies thereupon announced that they would demand adjournment when the measures come up again Tuesday.

Premier Poincare and Foreign Minister Briand both made clear their determination to push the bills through because of the great national interest involved. They declared that French influence in many foreign countries, particularly in Latin-America, had been declining because French religious orders were unable to recruit their members in France to teach French language abroad.

LINDBERGH HAS LANDED IN BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, March 14—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh returned to the United States today from his visit in Mexico City with his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, thus apparently ending any prospect of an immediate marriage.

Piloting the regular air mail plane over the international route he formally opened last Saturday, Lindbergh reached here at 2:35 p. m., after taking off from Mexico City at 9:37 o'clock this morning. An eight minute stop was made at Tampico.

The noted flier found his personal plane awaiting him here and it was understood he planned to make an air trip eastward to New York. He made no announcement as to when he would leave Brownsville.

Four Mexican military aviators were among the group of passengers aboard the big air mail plane. They came to the border to accept delivery of four new planes purchased by the Mexican government from a Troy, Ohio factory for use in fighting the rebels. The craft will be flown to Mexico City probably tomorrow.

It was understood that Colonel Lindbergh returned to this country to discuss of various aviation matters which attention in connection with his work for various commercial air lines. He was silent about plans for his coming marriage to Miss Morrow, daughter of the American ambassador to Mexico.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers made by the New York Federal Reserve member banks showed a decrease of the week ending March 13 for the first time in three weeks, dropping $20,000,000 to $5,627,000,000.

The figures announced today by the federal reserve board showed that member banks themselves had heeded the recent warning of the board that use of federal reserve credit for speculative loans must be restrained. Their loans decreased $113,000,000 to $1,004,000,000 while the loans made for the account of out of town banks increased $5,000,000 to $1,761,000,000. The loans made for the account of individuals and corporations increased $29,000,000 to $2,862,000,000.

Mexican Troops Are Speeding To Torreon

Federals Would Force Decisive Battle Before the Rebels Evacuate the City.

By The Associated Press

The probability of a new border battle, this time south of Arizona, appeared Thursday night while the larger and more cumbersome central armies were moving nearer together in the state of Coahuila. Movement of the bulk of the rebel garrison from Nogales, Sonora, lent weight to a statement by General Francisco Borquez that the rebels were about to attack Naco.

Success in this maneuver would not only remove a federal thorn which has weakened the rebel advance force by holding reserves in the extreme north but would exact vengeane for the recent defection from their cause of General Olachea. This general, whom they had believed one of them, had seized Naco in the name of the federal government with the 1200 Indians of his command.

Four of the ranking officers of 85 former members of the forces of the rebel general, Jesus M. Aguirre were executed after a court martial at Vera Cruze. The others were given prison sentences. All had surrendered to federal forces at Achotal.

A government communique from Mexico City yesterday afternoon confirmed reports of a clash at Encantada, state of Coahuila, in which 30 rebels were slain and 30 captured.

The clash marked the advance of General Cedillo's federal column from Saltillo, which is keeping pace with Column Generals Almazan and Cardenas. They are converging on Viezca, 30 miles east of the rebel stronghold at Torreon.

The government bulletin added that unless the rebels from Saltillo had already fled toward Chihuahua, the federal junction at Viezca would make possible an attack to let "not a single insurgent escape."

The main rebel army at Torreon under its commander-in-chief, General Escobar, was prepared to move at a moment's notice. Its objective was not announced. General Escobar was organizing mass meetings of citizens to explain his conduct in leading the revolutionary movement.

Twenty three generals were listed by General Escobar as having joined the "renovating movement." He charged the Calles party in the government with "corruption in government" and "fanaticism" in an oppressive campaign against religious liberty.

General Calles ordered federal troops to speed up their advance on Torreon lest the rebels evacuate that city without a decisive fight and retreat toward Chihuahua. He commanded his forces to use every possible means to cut off their only means of retreat and force a battle at Torreon.

A QUIET DAY IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

HARTFORD, March 14—The day's session was uneventful but business was quietly and quickly transacted. Next week promises to be an attractive one with some important bills to be heard, including the so-called dirt-road bill.

The reason given for the rejection of the bill to build a dirt road from Coventry to the birth place of Nathan Hale within two years was that it was not the policy of the state to tell the highway commissioner how and when he should complete the work assigned to him. Although no report has been made on the petition of Arthur C. Brown for restoration of rights, it was said that the committee had voted unanimously to do so.

The privilege of training bird and 'coon dogs during the closed season which has long been desired by sportsmen was reported favorably by the fish and game committee today. The bills will allow field trials in which blank cartridges may be fired over the dogs, and 'coon hunters may take their dogs into the woods during September and October provided no gun is taken along.

The bill including in the trunk line system the highway leading from Lebanon to Willimantic that was favorably reported today was pleasing to Representative Waterman of Lebanon. He has been active in its support since its introduction in January.

A substitute for senate bill 121, on the calendar today and passed, provides for the payment of $8 for each day of attendance at court but no deputy sheriff shall receive more than one day's fee for attendance in any one day. It becomes effective on its passage. The bill concerning the duties of coroners and medical examiners has made changes in the present statute and provides: Whenever the deceased shall be unidentified, the medical examiner, or the coroner if he shall have succeeded the medical examiner in authority, shall order both hands of the body to be fingerprinted and a photograph to be made of such body, provided mortification has not proceeded so far as to make identification impossible or the nature of the cause of death was not such as to make identification impossible. Three prints of the photograph and of the finger-prints of both hands shall be made, one to be sent by the photographer, to the registrar of vital statistics of the town where death occurred, one to the state department of health and one to the state police department, where they shall be carefully preserved. The state department of health shall pay for the cost of making such photographs and finger-prints.

Sec. 3. Section 229 of the general statutes is repealed.

Andrews, deputy judge of the police court of Willimantic.

The fish and game committee presented a bill raised in committee that provides for steps to be taken to prevent the spread of tuberamia in wild rabbits. From the same committee favorable reports were received on H. B. 548, providing for the registration and licensing of all seines, traps, pots or other nets used in inland waters; H. B. 363, an act closing Ocean Hill Lake, providing for no fishing in said lake; H. B. 364, concerning forfeiture of fishing license; H. B. 362, providing that no provision of the general statutes should prevent the training of hunting dogs except between April 20 and August 1st nor shall any statute pra-

INCOME TAX PAYMENTS ARE EXCEEDING EXPECTATIONS

Receipts to Date Are $4,000,000 More Than Had Been Anticipated—With But One Day Remaining in Which Returns May Be Filed Officials Believe the First Quarter's Payments Will Equal if Not Exceed the $597,137,752 Collected in Like Quarter of 1928—Complete Returns Will Not Be Available Until Late Next Week.

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP)—Confident that a surplus will be rolled up, treasury officials are awaiting with interest the sum total of income tax payments now being made throughout the nation to learn the full effect the tax reduction bill enacted by the last session of congress, will have in the fiscal period ending tomorrow midnight.

These payments will afford the first opportunity to ascertain what effect the reduction in the rate on corporation incomes from 12 1-2 to 12 per cent will have in the amount of revenue. Because of the uncertainty of the corporation payments, treasury actuaries so far have been unable to accurately say just what amount of revenue will be derived from the new tax law.

A year ago the question of reducing the corporation rate was a most disputed subject at the capitol. The treasury insisted a reduction of more than one per cent would endanger the treasury surplus while democrats contended the rate could be lowered to 11 per cent with perfect safety. A compromise on the 12 per cent rate finally was effected.

Secretary Mellon today predicted that there would be a comfortable surplus in the government's income for the fiscal year 1929. Payments, including those from corporations and individuals, so far have exceeded expectations. Receipts to date are $4,000,000 more than expected.

With one day remaining in which income tax returns may be filed treasury officials believe the first quarter's payment will equal if not exceed the $597,137,752 collected during the first quarter of 1928.

Business men are viewing the returns, especially those by corporations from a standpoint that larger receipts under the lower rate may pave the way for another tax reduction.

Last year 135,000 corporations paid taxes while 360,000 others not subject to the tax made returns. Many of the latter class are expected to have incomes warranting tax payments for their 1928 business. The total income tax collections last year amounted to $2,169,417,231 while a total of 2,500,000 citizens paid such taxes.

Complete figures of March 15 income tax payments are not expected by the treasury to be available until late next week or the week following.

With more than a half a billion dollars in treasury certificates falling due tomorrow the treasury is issuing an additional offering of certificates totaling $475,999,500 which with the receipt of the first quarter's income tax is expected to meet all government expenditures until next June when the next installment of income taxes is due.

The treasury statement issued today showed that there was a balance of $16,402,952 while expenditures for the fiscal year starting last July 1, have exceeded receipts by $423,807,100 in comparison with an excess in expenditures of only $66,505,344 for the same period last year.

Total ordinary receipts of the government for the first 9 months of the year have totaled $2,276,861,765 as against $2,473,019,370 for the same period last year showing a decrease for the present year of $196,648,614.

INDIANS SEARCHING FOR BOY LOST IN SNOWSTORM

GORDON, Nebraska, March 14—(AP)—Two hundred Indians, familiar with this Sand Hill country as no white man is, tonight had joined the organized search for Willie Reeves, 6 year old ranch boy who disappeared Tuesday morning in a blinding snowstorm. The Indians were recruited from the Pine Ridge reservation and surrounding country. They traveled in wagon and on horseback.

The boy left the ranch, miles north of here, to look for a pair of lost mittens, and never returned. Three theories confront the searching parties. One is that he perished in the blizzard, another is he may have been given shelter by an Indian, and has been unable to communicate with his parents because of the storm. The third theory connects a rancher described as "queer". Officers working on the latter theory, plan a search of this "queer" man's ranch when they are able to reach it.

Ten automobiles carrying about 50 persons, battled huge snowdrifts today in an effort to reach the Reeves ranch. One party of searchers was reported marooned on an isolated ranch five miles north of the Reeves ranch.

A supply wagon, dispatched to them returned without reaching its destination. As yet, however, no anxiety was felt as to their welfare.

Guided by the Indians, the searchers again set out tonight to hunt for the little boy. The possemen planned the hunt to spread over a 45-mile area. Food is becoming a problem.

TO CHANGE MICHIGAN'S "LIFE FOR A PINT" LAW

LANSING, Mich., March 14—(AP)—Michigan's "life for a pint" law received a vital blow today. It now is probable that only transportation of liquor while armed while under the provisions of the habitual criminal law, will makes a fourth offense punishable by life imprisonment. The law as it now stands make a life sentence mandatory upon conviction of a fourth liquor offense of any sort.

The senate judiciary committee now holds a bill amending the state criminal code to exempt from life imprisonment under the habitual criminal law all felonies which do not draw a maximum penalty of at least five years upon a first offense. That automatically would exempt liquor offenses as the maximum penalty for a first dry law violation now is two years.

TO GIVE PUBLICITY TO TAX REFUND DECISIONS

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP)—The administration today decided to give publicity to decisions of the internal revenue commissioner allowing refunds, credits or abatements of taxes in excess of $20,000.

The action was taken pursuant to a provision in the first deficiency appropriation bill passed at the last session of congress, but in writing President Hoover transmitting the necessary executive order and treasury regulations, Secretary Mellon held that as a matter of legal interpretation this provision "would require no material change in the procedure or practices of the bureau of internal revenue."

"However, upon the assumption that this provision reflects an inexpressed congressional policy," he added, "and in order that the public generally may know that there is nothing mysterious about tax refunds and that there is nothing which the treasury desires to hide, I am recommending your approval of the proposals submitted herewith."

HOOVER HAS NOT SELECTED ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP)—Although President Hoover has not yet approached any individual with a view to having him serve on the commission he will appoint to make an exhaustive study of federal law enforcement and court procedure, the chief executive is according this subject a constantly increasing attention.

The first of what is expected to prove a series of conferences on this topic was held today. Dean Robert M. Hutchins and Prof. Charles E. Clark of the Yale Law school, called at the white house at the suggestion of Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut and talked with the president for more than a quarter of an hour. INQUEST IN JACKSON CASE TO BE RESUMED TUESDAY

WILLIMANTIC, March 14—The inquest into the death of County Detective William E. Jackson which was started in this city Feb. 13, the day on which Mrs. Jackson committed suicide after giving testimony, will be resumed by Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, in Danielson next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, he announced early this afternoon.

Coroner Bill said that he was unable at this time to state just who the witnesses would be at Tuesday's hearing but it is believed that they will include the three investigating officers and possibly Miss Juanita Jackson, who is expected to be recalled. Coroner Bill started the inquest after Tremor A. Rice had been indicted by a grand jury on a charge of murder of County Detective Jackson who was killed at his home on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 29. The inaccessibility of important witnesses is given as the reason for several delays in the inquest proceedings. The trial of Rice is scheduled to come up at the April criminal term of the Windham county superior court to be held in this city. It is also expected that Thomas Mazzola, charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rosaria Loreila, will be arraigned at that time.

Ninety officials and employes of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company from this city, Rockville and Stafford, assembled at the company's new service station on Bridge street last evening for the first and most enthusiastic house-warming party held by the company.

The celebration was to commemorate the completion of the remodeling of the building which is to house the service departments and the main storeroom of the company after April 1.

The activities of the party started promptly at 8 o'clock when Paul L. Moran, on behalf of the committee in charge of the arrangements, spoke a few words of welcome and then introduced Leon E. H. Morton, whom he referred to as the architect and contractor of the building, and remarked that although Mr. Morton had been connected with the company for a period of only a little over a year that to those who were in daily contact with him he surely seemed like one of the real old timers. Mr. Moran then introduced Curt Reinhardt, whom he referred to as one of the most active members of the company.

Mr. Morton then addressed the gathering and as a symbol designating the completion of the alterations of the building, presented the key of the building to Mr. Reinhardt, who accepted it on behalf of the service and stores departments. The key used in the ceremony was about three feet high and was inscribed with the word "Service." In accepting the key, Mr. Reinhardt remarked that he was sure that every man in the organization would continue, as in the past, to do his utmost that the best possible service would be rendered to each customer of the company.

At this point, the evening's merriment started at full swing. Everyone was attired in colorful paper hats and under a shower of confetti and paper streamers a grand march was started around the hall, headed by the company's 86,000 Volt band under the direction of Anthony Meehan as band master. The other members of the band were Clifford Greene, Louis Paolhus and Howard Jacobs. The march was followed by old-fashioned and modern dancing. John Wadsworth officiated as prompter for the square dances. Music for the occasion was furnished by the company's own master of music, Ralph H. Gibson, and his musicians.

At 10 o'clock, a buffet lunch was served by a caterer. Paul L. Moran, office manager of the company, then remarked upon the success of the bowling league which has just come to a close and announced that the members of the league would gather for their banquet within the next two weeks, at which time the manager's cup will be presented to the champion team.

Mr. Moran then called upon J. F. Ahern, manager of the company, who spoke to the employes regarding service to the customers and co-operation among themselves and their departments.

Mr. Ahern then called for remarks from Dave Loree, superintendent; Curt Reinhardt, assistant superintendent; Frank Milne, local superintendent at Rockville; John Hancock, local superintendent at Stafford, and other department heads of the company.

Dancing, singing and a general good time was continued until a late hour when all departed for their homes expressing their appreciation to the committee in charge of the arrangements and to Mr. Ahern and Mr. Loree for their co-operation in making the party such a success.

The committee in charge of the arrangements were: Joseph O'Brien, chairman; Leon E. H. Morton, John Wadsworth and Miss Rae Hevrin.

Joseph O'Brien of South Coventry, an employe of the works' department of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, sustained a possible concussion of the brain and bruised shoulder about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon when he fell from the rear of a company truck onto the pavement on Main street as the machine was being turned into Church street. O'Brien landed on his shoulder and his head struck the pavement with considerable force. He was rushed to a physician's office. The truck was operated by Lewis L. Keigwin.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 14—The Windham county commissioners, Urgel LaFrance, A. C. Keith and Burt J. Johnson, entertained nearly 150 guests from throughout the county at a banquet held in the Nathan Hale hotel here tonight. The reception which was held for the promotion of friendship and co-operation throughout the county opened with an excellent steak dinner. Music was provided by a three-piece orchestra. Louis A. Wolcare of Plainfield was toastmaster. After giving a brief history of the county he called on Mayor Charles A. Gates, who extended Willimantic's welcome to the visitors. Commissioner Keith told of the work being done, its value to the state, and the necessity of public co-operation. He termed the highway beautification project as one of the outstanding pieces of advertisement ever given the state.

BOYS CONFESS TO STEALING OF CARS

WILLIMANTIC, March 14—Confessions to a series of crimes that outstrip any thievery program ever attempted here by youths under 20 years of age were made today by Lionel Chasse, 18, and his nephew, Arthur Chasse, 19, who were taken into custody by Investigating Officer Arthur Hurley during an investigation of the theft of an automobile from the Leonard Brothers Garage, Inc. The youths reside respective at 75 Brook street and 7 Lincoln avenue.

Upon questioning, the youths admitted that they had stolen a Hudson brougham from the storage section of the Leonard garage. The theft was perpetrated last Sunday evening and in order to secure the car the boys were forced to move several other machines that blocked the way to the door. Officer Hurley found the machine in a garage on Raynes' court which had at one time been rented by one of the boys but was supposed to be unoccupied. The youths said that they had planned to paint the machine over this evening and sell it. The car was valued at about $400. In making a full confession of their criminal life the boys told of frequently taking possession of a car owned by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company and kept in a garage near the gas works. They said that they appropriated gasoline and oil and took the machine for "midnight rides." They also admitted the theft of articles of every description from automobiles parked along the streets and told of robberies committed in other places besides Willimantic. The pair will be arraigned in police court Friday morning.

E. H. BINGHAM AND WIFE OF HARTFORD KILLED IN AUTO CRASH AT CHAPLIN

WILLIMANTIC, March 14—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Bingham of 44 Gillette street, Hartford, were almost instantly killed shortly before eleven o'clock this morning on the Willimantic-Chaplin road when their car skidded on the slippery road and overturned pinning them beneath it. Mrs. Bingham was instantly killed while her husband lived for a few minutes, just long enough to inform rescuers that his wife was in the car with him.

James Ambrose of Providence, R. I., driver of a motor truck was about a quarter of a mile distant from the scene of the accident when the Bingham machine, a Pierce-Arrow touring car, skidded. As near as could be learned he was the only eye-witness to the accident. Ambrose said that the machine turned over several times before coming to a stop. When he arrived at the car the machine was upside down and only the head and breast of Mr. Bingham was visible. William Tishler of 69 Maybrook street, Providence, also arrived within a few minutes and the two men atempted to release Mr. Bingham but were unable to do so owing to the weight of the wreckage which held him pinned. Mrs. Bingham could not be seen and it was not until her husband spoke of her presence that efforts were made to extricate her.

Mr. Bingham was driving in the direction of Hampton. At a point on the Clark's Corner road, a short distance east of the Buttonball bridge marks in the road showed that the machine left the highway from almost the center and traveled onto the gravel shoulders proceeding along a flat stone gutter The stones in this gutter were torn up for a distance but for another stretch of about 12 feet the stones were untouched, indicating that the powerful machine bounded through the air, after which it turned over.

The few motorists who gathered at the scene were unable to lift the machine. A wrecker from the Hampton Hill garage was called for and the machine raised. Mr. Bingham had expired and he and his wife were placed to one side of the road awaiting the arrival of Medical Examiner Dr. Louis L. Mason. Dr. Charles A. Jenkins had been summoned previously. About noon Medical Examiner Mason and Officer Elton Nolan of the Danielson state police barracks examined the bodies. Examiner Mason was of the opinion that Mr. Bingham had sustained a fracture of the skull while his wife died from multiple injuries. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson was notified and he stated that he would hold an inquest in the mater at a later date. The bodies were removed to the undertaking parlors of Avery & VanZandt, and later taken to Hartford.

Mr. Bingham was for several years vice president of the Jewell Belting company and he was a representative of one of the oldest New England families, as indicated in his connection with the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut, of which he was governor for several years.

In the direct paternal line his ancestry is traced back to Deacon Thomas Bingham, who was baptized at Sheffield, Yorkshire, England, June 1, 1542, and was about 18 years of age when with his widowed mother, Anne Bingham, he crossed the Atlantic. He became a resident of Saybrook, Connecticut, about 1659 and for a time resided in New London but later settled in Norwich, Connecticut, with his mother and her second husband, Mr. Backus. Thomas Bingham became one of the original proprietors of that town in 1660.

Mr. Bingham also traced his ancestry back to the Rev. James Fitch, Robert Allyn, William Backus, Sr., William Backus, Jr., Thomas Bingham, John Gager, Thomas Leffingwell, Josiah Reed, Nehemiah Smith, Richard Bushnell, John Downs, Thomas Gates, Robert Roath, Josiah Rockwell, Josiah Standish, Richard Adams and Benjamin Burnham, who were among the founders of Norwich. His father, Henry Adams Bingham, was born at Lisbon, July 13, 1833, and remained on the homestead with his father until August 11, 1862, when he enlisted in the Union army.

Edwin Henry Bingham, was born on the old family homestead at Lisbon, Connecticut, May 30, 1862, the son of Henry A. Bingham and Nancy Standish Bingham. He went to live with his grandparents in Hanover and there attended the public schools until 1876, when with his mother he removed to Hartford and continued his education in the Hartford High school, from which he was graduated in 1880. Almost immediately afterward he took the position of office boy with the Jewell Belting company on March 14, 1881. For forty-six years he was continuously associated with this concern and won various promotions. For a number of years he was in charge of the tannery and in 1911 he was elected vice-president of the company.

October 26, 1899, Mr. Bingham married Miss Mary Elizabeth Goodwin, daughter of Charles S. and Mary Elizabeth (Lincoln) Goodwin. Mrs. Bingham died in 1924. In June 26, 1926, Mr. Bingham married Bertha Elizabeth Swan of Elmira, New York.

Mr. Bingham was for many years a member of the South Congregational church, of which he had served as deacon, and to which Mrs. Bingham also belonged. He held membership in the Congregational Club of Hartford, the Hartford Golf club and his membership connection included the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut. He was also a member of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, having joined October 20, 1891.

His nearest surviving relatives are and uncle, Waldo Bingham of Scotland and the following cousins, Walter Standish of Orange, N. J.; Hubert Allen, of Chicago; Mrs. William G. Park, of Hanover; Norman S. Standish, of Baldwin, L. I.; Ralph D. Standish, of Singapore; Miss Nettie L. Standish, of Norwich; Charles H. Standish, of Norwich; Myles E. Standish, of Norwich; Mrs. Mabel Saxton Standish, of Norwich; Charles A. Saxton, of Norwich; Lewis H. Saxton, of Norwich and Mrs. Charles Bartlett, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Bingham was a member of the American Association of University Women, the Ruth Wyllys chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Connecticut chapter of the national society, Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, and a member of the Hartford Society of the Archaeological Institute of America. She was a graduate of Elmira college with the degree of A. B., and before her marriage was a teacher of Latin in the National Cathedral School for Girls, of Washington, D. C. Fraternally Mr. Bingham was a Mason, belonging to Lafayete lodge of Hartford.

Mr. Bingham had been retired since the liquidation of the Jewell Belting company; Mrs. Bingham leaves a brother, Frederick W. Swan, of Elmira, N. Y., and a sister in Washington, D. C.

Randall Fire Damage $200

Both companies were called out Tuesday afternoon for a fire in the vacant house on West Mystic avenue, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth F. Randall, of St. Louis, Mo. The caretaker, H. C. Packer, had been there to burn off the dead grass, and evidently a part of the fire worked up from the casing of the cellar window into the petitions. Mr. Packer had been very careful in burning, setting only small patches at a time, so it is a mystery how fire happened to get to the house. Boys playing near, first noticed the smoke, and formed a fire brigade, at the same time sending one of their number to spread the alarm. Damage of about $200 resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, Mr. and Miss Joseph Dealey, Mrs. Ellery Burdick, Miss Evelyn Burdick and Mrs. Carrie Denison attended the meeting of Washington County Pomona grange Tuesday evening.

Interesting items regarding prohibition were read by various members present, and the meeting closed with the W. C. T. U. benediction. The the close of the meeting a ten-cent tea was served by the social meeting superintendent, Mrs. Charles W. Foote.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CONSERVING OIL.

One of the early acts by President Hoover is to let it be known that he intends to conserve the oil resources of this country insofar as it is within his power to do so.

In various ways it has been made apparent that a greater quantity of oil was being drawn from the ground in this country than was needed. The government has urged the elimination of waste and the protection of supplies, but still the drain goes on. Statistics which have been gathered clearly show that we cannot continue to go on as in the past without exhausting the supply especially when it is shown that we use 65 per cent. of the world's production of oil and yet own only 18 per cent. of the world's known supply.

It is to be realized that the new policy has no control over the oil producing companies. It is not a matter of government regulation. It is a case of going as far as the government can under the laws that exist, but it is a manifestation of the determination to set forth the administration's purposes.

Thus when the president states that the government will grant no more leases on the government oil reserves, unless ordered to do so by congress, it is apparent that leases are not going to be handed out just because of the asking. Conditions will have to be taken into consideration, and they undoubtedly will be, but the effect should be to curtail needless production.

There may be the exploitation of private oil lands but it is the intention of the administration to put the brakes on the overdevelopment of government oil lands, and when it is declared that orders in this respect must come from congress it is evident that there is a determination to avoid any of the deplorable experiences of the past. The idea is to conserve oil, as yet undiscovered, but over which the government has control. Conservation in regard to it was favored long ago, as the taking over of the land by the government showed, but the time has come when it deserves more attention and the administration is prepared to give it. It is a position that cannot fail to win commendation.

YOUR INCOME TAX.

This is the final day for the filing of the income tax return and at least paying the initial quarter of the tax. It is a day which has been dreaded by many. It is a day for which many have waited rather than turn their money over to the government sooner. It is the day for which many have waited through procrastination.

For a considerable army of those who are obliged to make return it would not make much difference whether the return date was the 15th of March or the 15th of July, the dawdling would be the same and there would be a mighty rush at the last minute, accompanied by much excitement and uncertainty.

It is a failing on the part of many to put off until tomorrow what ought to be done today. It works in many instances but when it comes to meeting federal obligations it is a different matter.

There may be legitimate excuses for many in not tending to their income tax report until the last minute, but for the rank and file there probably isn't. The inclination to delay accomplishes nothing. Rather is it a handicap. There is good reason why the details of the report should be looked up a sufficient time in advance to have it completed and ready for filing days ahead of the limit fixed. If there is a desire to retain the money as long as possible before turning it over to the representatives of Uncle Sam that can easily be provided for but contentment comes in being ready before the closing hour at the office of the revenue collector. It saves time, nerves and the possibility of forgetting it and thus earning a penalty.

Those who fail to get their reports and taxes in today, unless they have obtained an extension of time, will have something additional to worry about.

LAND WHICH MIGHT BE USED.

"We talk about being crowded, here in Rhode Island, and about having to import about nine-tenth of our foodstuffs from outside because of our dense population. But almost a third of our land surface is uninhabited and uncultivated. Obviously, we don't yet begin to know what crowding is."

Thus observes the Providence Bulletin after calling attention to the fact that the agricultural commissioner has reported to the legislature that there are 3900 farms, worth $35,000,000, containing 309,000 acres of land and supporting a farm population of nearly 19,000.

As a thickly settled state Rhode Island has an opportunity to call attention to the failure to utilize more of the tillable land of that commonwealth, for if it is necessary to import those things which can be raised in Rhode Island it is unfortunate that there is not sufficient enterprise within the state to make the most of the situation. Furthermore it should be apparent in a state of that size that the market for such products must be reasonably close. They are not subject to long transportation hauls, and nearness to market is an advantage which ought to be appreciated.

Within New London and Windham counties in this state there are more farms than there are in the state of Rhode Island but it is not difficult to find the uncultivated tracts, or those acres from which little or no return is received. Apply the same scrutiny throughout New England and the answer will be similar.

It is probably too much to expect that every last acre that can be cultivated will be planted to crops. It is to be hoped that it will be a long time before there is such a population as to demand anything of that kind, and yet there is an opportunity for putting to use much of the land that is now unused. If it cannot be employed for market gardening, fruit raising, dairying, for general farming, sheep raising and the like there is a good chance for raising trees which involves no great expense but means a steady yearly increase in assets and yielding a good return over a period of years in the place of nothing, as is the case now.

THE STRUGGLE FOR A RECORD.

The statement is attributed to Major Seagrave that he is through racing. He has established a new record and was contemplating another try in an endeavor to boost it from 231 to 240, the latter supposed to be the speed which the Golden Arrow is capable of making. The experience of Bible with the White Triplex has caused him to change his mind. Whether this is anything more than temporary remains to be seen.

It makes little or no difference whether the record stands at 231 or 240. Either one is highly creditable as demonstrating what can be done in the building of speed machines and what can be accomplished in guiding them. Naturally it is a combination that is restricted to the most favorable of speedways.

The motor vehicle that will make in the neighborhood of 231 miles an hour is not practical for other use. It is barred from the highways and there are very few race courses where such speed can be safely attained, while the Bible experience proves that safety then is a decided uncertainty. Its value therefore is chiefly for the purpose of establishing a record. Once that is accomplished there is an advertising value but such speed is prohibitive for a machine in ordinary use. There are even greater opportunities for using a record-making flying machine, a record-breaking motor boat, the locomotive, electrical or steam, that holds a speed record, in other activities, but the record holding speed machine is only good for racing or for exhibition purposes.

This doesn't mean that there will be no further efforts made to establish a new record, that new ideas for faster machines will not be worked out or that others will not be found to drive such a machine. As a matter of fact there are those who are always eager to aim for a new mark, whether any practical use can be made of it or not. It becomes a sporting event which never fails to interest the crowds and as long as honors, prizes, awards and audiences are to be had there will be those who will take all kinds of risks to get them.

HOOVER APPOINTMENTS.

It is customary when administrations change that resignations be placed in the hands of the president by members of the diplomatic corps. Such means that it is possible for the president to retain or release those he desires. There are always those who are anxious to give up such services as well as those who are desirous of stepping in.

According to Washoington reports Ambassador Houghton who has been serving at London is anxious to retire. He has made a good record both in Germany and England and resigned only last fall in order to run as senator from the state of New York. Thereafter he consented to carry on with the administration.

If reports are correct, President Hoover has former Vice President Dawes in mind for that post. Mr. Dawes is no stranger in Europe. He is a man of ability, a man who has been of much service to this country in several roles, and who is now about to head a commission to establish a budget system for the Dominican republic.

Mr. Dawes has been conspicuous in financial circles and was the one who did such a fine job in putting the budget system into operation in this country as the first director of the budget. If the president can prevail upon him to become ambassador to Great Britain there is no question but what he is convinced that he possesses the ability to fully and faithfully represent the present administration, and that it is believed will be his object in the choice of diplomatic representatives to whichever country they may be assigned. These, like other appointments, will be made on merit.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Chamberlain denies hitting the Kellogg pact, whic hgoes to prove that he is not a hit and run talker.

Talk about an escape proof prison reminds one of the talk that was once indulged in about an unsinkable ship.

There is a chance for endless debate when the question arises as to whether Mr. Hoover is the 30th or 31st president.

The man on the corner says: Some seem to like the nervous strain of completing their income tax report at the last minute.

It was expected there would be quite a heated rivalry to gain the distinction of being the first bitten by the teeth in the Jones law.

SKIN DEEP

"Miss America" homeward bound, nestled comfortably against the cushioned back of the Pullman seat and with keen satisfaction thought it all over.

She had been proclaimed by judges the most beautiful human being in the United States, and that ought to be enough to thrill any girl. She had been showered with honors, gifts, attentions. She had a contract to make a movie at Hollywood. Best of all was that cunning sports roadster which had been the first prize in the beauty contest. How the folks would stare when they saw that!

She had been interviewed a hundred times, her views printed on politics, crime, the movies, cosmetics, dancing, companionate marriage and her favorite brand of cigarettes. And all for being beautiful! She peeped slyly into a small mirror empaneled between the car windows. She wasn't bad!

How unconscious of her beauty she had been only a few weeks before an 'magnificent member of the graduating class at Clover Plains high school! Who had expected, even when she been chosen to go to Wichita to compete for the title of "Miss Kansas," that she ultimately would be selected the most glorious beauty in forty-eight states?

Suddenly she thought of Kate Riley, her high school chum. Kate had encouraged her, had told her she would win. Poor Kate! Kate would have no more chance in a beauty contest than a runty pig at the Clover Plains county fair. Kate had freckles. To be brutal, she even had a mole. Kate took no care of her complexion at all.

Her thoughts were interrupted by a remark she couldn't help overhearing: "Don't look now, but I want you to notice that extraordinarily beautiful girl over there."

Ah! "Miss America" drank deep.

She thought of George Hills, and of all the men she had met since leaving Clover Plains. It was surprising the way that kid measured up! Not only looks, but poise, and the way his eyes met yours. Nice, wholesome kid. No pretense about him. No "line." Maybe she'd marry him some day. She smiled. She had had five offers of marriage in the last ten days.

She thought of her family, wondered if her Brother Bill would be down with dad and mother to meet her at the station. She smiled again. No one in Clover Plains had ever told her she was particularly beautiful. In fact, Bill used to tease her about her "big ears." Brothers were so funny!

After luncheon she had another look at the certificate which entitled her to the delivery at Clover Plains, Kas., of one sports model roadster—which would be quite the spiffiest thing on wheels the village ever had seen—and dozed off happily.

The limited slowed down reluctantly as it approached Clover Plains. The town was one of those places marked with an "F" on the time table. Of course, had the engineer known his train carried "Miss America," he probably would have made one of his snappiest stops, with whistle and bell accompaniment.

As it was, he already had halted unceremoniously beside the little station before he noticed the crowd. Clover Plains was turning out. There was not only the band, but there was even the Rotary club quartet singing "Sweet Adeline."

"Miss America" heaved a huge sigh. She was home again. It was wonderful to see everybody. There were mother and dad, beaming with pride, eager to "hear all about it." And there was Bill waving a high school pennant for her! She looked about for George Hills. Surely he would be at the station to meet her. And there he was, pushing his way through the villagers. In his hand he carried a large bunch of peonies. For her. He shook her warmly by the hand. Congratulation!

"Oh, George, I didn't do anything!"

"You made the whole town proud of you." He handed her the bouquet.

"For me? How lovely, George. From you!"

"Well, not altogether. Jointly from me and from the most beautiful girl in the world!" Her face must have betrayed—something.

"I thought you'd heard," George stammered. "I thought Kate had written you. We're to be married in June. The flowers are from her garden—for you."

"Miss America" took the peonies sent by the "most beautiful girl in the world"; turned to talk to Willie Watkins of the Clover Plains Bugle, who wanted to know what she thought of Clover Plains.

It was from aboard a train bound for Hollywood that Kate Riley received a remarkable wedding present and a note.

"I hope that George and you will be very, very happy," said the note. The gift was a certificate entitling them to delivery at Clover Plains, Kas., of one sports roadster, the like of which had never been seen in those parts before.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 14— Seven Seven times in the two decades since 1909 new administrations have been installed at the white house. Five men have gripped the power of the presidency, two to succeed themselves in office.

But at each inauguration the incoming chief executive has found thorny aspects of the Mexican problem, growing out of the 20 years of almost continuous revolution below the border, awaiting his urgent attention.

President Hoover did not escape. His first conference with a cabinet officer, the first policy pronouncement of his administration, dealt with Mexico.

Endless Trouble

A tragic, endless story of strife and disorder is written in the news index file of The Associated Press office in Washington, headed "Mexico." It begins in 1909, six months after Taft's inauguration, when he exchanged greetings on Mexico's centennial with President Porfirio Diaz. By June, 1910, Mexico was in tumult, Diaz tottering to his fall, and by February, 1913, two weeks before President Wilson came to power, Mexico City was flaming with the horror of her "tragic 10 days." American non-combatants were among the dead and wounded; Taft was holding midnight conferences with his cabinet and warning Americans out of Mexico. Two weeks after Wilson was installed Madero and Suarez, Mexico's revolutionary leaders, had been shot to death.

Another four years and Wilson was preparing to succeed himself amid the thunder of guns in Europe. On Feb. 24, 1917, four days before his inauguration, The Associated Press published the "Zimmerman note" dealing with proposals for a German-Mexican alliance and Mexico's re-conquest of "lost territory in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona."

Bitter Legacy

Another four-year span and Harding came to his brief hold on the presidency. It was a delicate bit of diplomacy that confronted him. And on Aug. 2, 1923, when Calvin Coolidge, assuming the tasks of the dead Harding, Mexico faced him also with an almost baffling problem as it still faced him March 4, 1925, when he took office in his own right. In February of that year had come the incident of the seizure of the Evans hacienda in Mexico after its owner, Rosalie Evans, an American woman, had been shot to death from ambush. The anti-Catholic policies of Mexico were in force, the oil and land law controversies with the United States were tense. Only toward the close of the Coolidge administration was there hopeful promise of adjustment.

Now comes Hoover and a new Mexican revoution to compel his first executive pronouncement. Surely American presidents seem fated to find Mexico aways awaiting them on the white house doorstep.

"LENT AND MY GOD AND FATHER"

Memory Verse for Friday

"He is my God—my father's God" (Exodus 15:2). (Read Psalm 63:1 to 8 and Acts 17:22 to 28).

MEDITATION: My God is mine as He was my father's. He is a part of my inheritance. He belongs to me. That may mean that His manifestation in the world may be limited by my imperfect knowledge, by my capacity for knowing. But that does not distress me. To know God is an endless voyage of discovery, an infinite exploration. But that I do not know the whole world takes nothing from the reality of my home and the familiar hills. So I may be content with the "parts of His ways which are familiar. So much is real, so much is mine to enjoy now and forever. I know in part, but I know.I must not forget, for when I forget I forfeit my possession. Let me rest now in my riches for I have God.

PRAYER: O God whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain, yet dost deign to give Thyself to me, continue to make a dwelling place in my heart. For if I lose Thee, then I am poor indeed. Never leave me nor forsake me, O my God. Amen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thoughts Of Spring.

Mr. Editor: Slowly but surely we are near to that most wonderful season of the year, springtime, and as the last blast of winter goes down through the path of time we heave a sigh of relief, and look forward to a few short months of warmer sunshine with the return of the flowers and the birds, and we glory in the sight of nature once again decked out in all her glorious raiment. How I did love to wander out within the sound of running brooks, out through the woods, where everything we saw seemed to hold a story. The book of nature was open, and it seemed as though every page told a different story, for there is a something in nature's world which moves not alone the surface of the soul, but even its inmost depths and awakens a thousand memories.

Just imagine it is spring and the air so warm and balmy and this fills us with the joy of living. We together climb over the hills beyond Thirteenth street and when we arrive at the top we see a wonderful picture before us, and there comes to my mind a recent letter, a beautiful story of the "Bells" as told by one of your splendid writers who signs as "Quid Nunc," as he tells the story of early days of sleigh riding. But this is Sunday morning, and spring time, and now we look across the intervening spires of the churches. And now comes across the quiet air the sound of the church bells, each bell a different tone, each one telling a different story, but all united for one common cause, to glorify and to render homage to Him who gives us health and the joy of living. In these days of hustle and with our thoughts centered on more worldly things I question whether there are many who ever have been up here at the apex of what we knew as "Thayers" hill. As we listen to the pealing of the bells, we sit down and the quietness of our surroundings steal upon us and I think of that beautiful song where it says, The droning of the bees in the blossom laden trees, tells us spring had come again.

I love to quote from the beautiful thoughts of others who were lovers of nature, and I want to tell you the love of nature as told by that gifted son of Norwich, Donald Grant Mitchell, who wrote under the pen name of Ike Marvel. He was born in 1822 and died in 1908. "I thank God every day of my life for my lot was cast within the sound of babbling brooks and beneath the shadow of oaks. From all the pomp and bustle of the world I love to steal away for a few days and bathe my spirit in the freedom of the old woods, and to grow young again and to lie by the brookside and to count the white clouds as they go sailing by, softly, slowly over as holy memories steal over us. We dream, here is perfect quietness, solitude, and I lie here lost in thought with the music of the brook, the perfume of the flowers, the singing of the birds. I am away from the noise and turmoil of the city, and for two hours I have held sweet communion with nature and have worshiped at its shrine. Here I am lying upon the grassy bank of a stream that sang me to sleep in by boyhood days. The same old stream, never growing older, smiling in your silver rustle, calming yourself in some quiet pool. I love you as I love an old friend, and still the bells are ringing and I awaken from my reverie." But who is there who can describe the pleasure and delight or the contentment that can be found in the balmy air, among the green hills and splendid woods of old New England. Now I move along to another section of the hill into the woods and here an old legend that I recall tells me was an ancient Indian burying ground. Many years ago I wandered through here with a very old man and I was but a little fellow and he told me a rather fanciful story. He said his father had told him that here the children of the forest had laid the old man and their squaws when they had entered on their eternal sleep, and had gone to the happy hunting grounds. Even those untutored children of nature had a thought of another life.

The memories that peaceful country scenes recall are to us a benediction, and after a long, dreary winter, we love to get out into the country and get a glimpse of the smiling face of nature for it gives to us just a foretaste of heaven.

I cannot conclude this letter without a reference to a letter as of Saturday's issue, Feb. 23, 1929, in your "Social Corner" entitled "Looking Backward, and signed "Quid Nunc." This is very interesting, a splendidly written article and greatly appreciated by us boys of yesterday. By the way, "Quid Nunc," what is your real name? Am I asking too much through this question? I am just anxious and very much interested, that's all.

YOUR HEALTH

Varicose Veins now Treated by Injection less loss of time and money.

By Hilbert F. Day, M. D., Boston, Mass.

For the last twenty years I have been trying to help people who have had varicose veins, and for years before that other doctors have strived to relieve the symptoms that they cause.

When you say varicose veins to a doctor, he thinks generally of the enlarged veins that are seen on the legs. They are caused by many things—hard work, pressure on the veins in the pelvis during pregnancy, an occupation demanding standing; also, in some case, heredity. The symptoms caused by these veins are chiefly fatigued and are due to the fact that the blood that normally is running from the foot to the heart is, actually, when people are walking, about with varicose veins, running in the opposite direction, causing a stasis of blood in the legs to such an extent that the skin and the underlying tissues in the lower legs are not getting rid of the poorly oxidized blood.

When this condition has existed a long time, the afflicted individual is likely to have a troublesome eczema or an ulcer, and after an ulcer has developed a lot of time is lost in having the ulcer dressed and bandaged.

In America, up to a couple of years ago, the only method in general se for curing this condition wa the surgical removal of the broken down veins. This involved a major surgical operation a stay in the hospital of about two weeks and almost a month away from work. The symptoms of a great many people have, therefore, had to be treated by palliative measures by supporting the circulation with various types of stockings or with bandages.

Now we have a new method for treating these conditions. It is called the injection treatment. The principle involved is the destruction of the vein by the injection of a fluid directly into it. This acts immediately on the lining of the vein, fills it with a harmless clot, and allows the clot and vein ultimately to be absorbed.

This method has many advantages over surgical removal. It is less expensive; the patient does not have to lose time from his work or pleasure. He does not have to have an anesthetic. He can continue treatments until all the enlarged veins have been treated.

Unfortunately not all types of enlarged veins on the lower legs can safely be treated by this method. Some of the contraindications are heart disease, pregnancy and a present or pre-existing phlebitis. The number of people who fall into this classification is comparatively small.

Stories That Recall Others

He Knew What He Wanted

Little Junior loved pie! As it was the sole word of his vocabulary, he used it frequently. He called for pie in the beginning, in the middle and at the end of the meal. Everytime he was spoken to he answered with the word "pie."

It was Sunday morning and he was being baptized. The minister had moistened his fingers and was about to apply them to Junior's head, when, to the embarrassment of his parents, he reached out, and grabbing the bowl, lustily endowed it with the name of "pie."

Peculiarity of Pugilists

A certain gentle hearted woman celebrated her birthday with a party and following the dinner guests gathered around the radio to listen in on the Sharkey-Stribling fight in Miami.

The voice of the announcer proclaimed a preponderance of left handed blows from both fighters, and after a series of scrimmages in which such remarks as these came over the air: "Three lefts to the jaw" and "Retaliates with two lefts to the midsection," the guest of honor remarked, "Why, both of those men mus be left handed."

Climbing

First, Ziegfeld picked her for his "Follies." Next she was chosen for "Rio Rita" and now Warner Brothers will present her in the movies. Dainty Agnes Franey is climbing; helped by clever dancing and seldom equalled beauty.

Miss Franey says: "I don't believe in overlooking anything which helps add to your attractiveness. I am most particular about my hair and so many friends compliment me on its softness and lustre that I am sure my method of caring for it is right. Nearly all the girls I know here in New York are using it now. It is so easy. All we do is put a little Danderine on our brushes each time we dress our hair. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place wonderfully. It has gotten rid of my dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp so comfortable, that I don't shampoo half as often as I did before. And best of all, it gives my hair a softer, more silky and lustrous appearance than anything I've ever found."

Danderine quickly removes that city film from your hair; brings out its natural color, makes it fairly sparkle! Dandruff usually disappears when you use Danderine. Waves, "set" with it, stay in longer. It's delicately fragranced; isn't oily; doesn't show. It's economical. The 35c bottles will last several weeks. All drug stores recommend and guarantee it.

JUDGES ANNOUNCE WINNERS IN LOCAL WINDOW DISPLAY CONTEST

A window display contest and a style show at the Broadway theatre marked the annual spring opening held Thursday evening by the local merchants under the auspices of the Norwich Retail Merchants' bureau. Unfortunately the weather man did not smile on the opening night. A drizzle of rain marred the event but in spite of the unfavorable weather there was a good-sized crowd on the streets to inspect the many attractive windows. Shortly after 6 o'clock the judges, Miss Marion B. Palmer, Dr Lillian M. Lynes, Miss Mary E. Gray and Earl Arnold, secretary of the Willimantic chamber of commerce, started out on their tour of inspection.

After inspecting the numerous windows the judges met in conference at the Wauregan hotel and about 10 o'clock announced the prize-winning windows as follows:

Class A—Hardware and auto accessories: First, Franklin Hardware store; honorable mention, Eaton Chase Co.

Class B—Millinery: First, Collins Millinery; honorable mention, The Dawson Shop.

Class C—Shoes: First, Smith's Shoe store; honorable mention, Diamond's Shoe store.

Class E—Men's clothing: First, Gerry's store; honorable mention, Savard Bros.

Class F—Drugs and toilet articles: First, The Lee & Osgood Co.; honorable mention, Mara's Drug store.

Class G—Groceries: First, The Morican store; honorable mention, Belt Bros.

Class H—Jewelry and novelties: First, The Clever Craftsman; honorable mention, John Oguinick and The Buckingham Shop.

Class I—Furniture and home furnishings: Gilbert Furniture Co.; honorable mention, Schwartz Bros.

Class J—Electrical and Florists: First, Carl E. Berkoff; honorable mention, O'Neil Electric Co.

Class K—General: First, The Baby Shoppe; honorable mention, Fred C. Crowell.

Class L—Department stores: First, Porteous & Mitchell; honorable mention, The Boston Store.

The judges had considerable difficulty in deciding on the winning window in Class H, jewelry and novelties. In their opinion novelty stores should not be classed with jewelry stores. Jewelry stores should be classed by themselves and novelty stores should be placed in the general class, the judges stated. If this had been the case their decision in the jewelry and general class might have been somewhat different.

The judges made the suggestion that in future openings the merchants' bureau give more attention to these particular classes.

The fashion show took place at 8.30 o'clock at the Broadway theater under the direction of Miss Katherine Hempstead, assisted by 10 attractive models and a page. That the show was an overwhelming success was evidenced by the unstinted applause by the appreciative audience. The background for the presentation of the latest styles and shades in sport clothes, afternoon and evening gowns, etc. was artistically carried out by the use of ferns, enormous palms, and standing electric lights. The screen was gayly decorated with flowers.

Previous to the fashion show Miss Hempstead announced that the show was indebted to Gilbert's Furniture company for the stage furniture, Geduldig's greenhouses for the decorations, the Hanover and Curland company for the orthophonic, Collins' Millinery store for the hats and to Schwartz Bros. Furniture store. As the models came into view through an aperture in the curtain and gracefully promenaded the stage Miss Hempstead announced the features of the wearing apparel, while the orthophonic played softly.

The merchants participating in the show and the wearing apparel displayed follow: Porteous and Mitchell Co., white satin and Nine green evening dresses; hats: Reid and Hughes, afternoon dresses and hats: Caron's Specialty shop, coats and afternoon dresses: Worth's Specialty shop, sport clothes, featuring blue and red; Alling Rubber Co., rain coats; The Buckingham shop, sport and evening scarfs. The shoes worn by the models were furnished by the Model Bootery and the Collins' Millinery store furnished hats.

The models were Misses Marion Royce, Gladys Rice, Helen Risley, Mary Winters, Margaret Leith, Alice Gallup, Mary Gerard, Nonie Nagle, Alberta Boardman and Eunice Mason. Miss Gwendolyn Jones acted as page.

Many were the expressions of commendation heard after the show upon the work of the models and Miss Hempstead, who was in charge of it. The show is to be repeated this (Friday) evening and Saturday evening.

ADDRESSED MEETING OF NORWICH COLLEGE CLUB

The members of the Norwich College club listened to an entertaining talk by Rev. A. H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, at a meeting of the club Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Alif Stephens at No. 156 Washington street. Rev. Mr. Abbott took for the subject of his talk, which was illustrated with slides, The Way of a Book With a Man. Damaged Suit Settled

After a partial trial in the superior court before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury, the $2,000 damage suit brought by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Smith of this city against Louis S. Vergason, also of this city, was settled out of court. It was claimed by the plaintiffs that on June 4, 1924, they agreed to go and live in a house owned by Mr. Vergason, a great uncle to Mr. Smith, and that the uncle was to live with them. They claim that they were to pay one-half the cost of certain alterations to be made to the house and at the decease of the uncle, the latter was to devise and bequeath to them all of his possessions.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith claim that they went there to live and carried out their part of the contract but when a dispute arose, the uncle told them to go and live elsewhere, that he would pay them for their share in the alterations and all other agreements were off. Mr. and Mrs. Smith brought suit, when Mr. Vergason failed to pay them what was due.

C. A. C. STUDENTS ABANDON CHANGE IN COLLEGE COLORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, March 14.—At a meeting of the student organization, and called by President Willis Hadley Pratt, '29, of Hartford, the students of the Connecticut Agricultural college unanimously voted to drop the idea of the change in the college colors. The meeting brought forth arguments pro and con, with the issue on the alumni sentiment bearing the weight to carry the discussion in favor of the old colors of Blue and White.

The group also voted to drop from the college calendar the annual midyear formal dance that has been in existence for the past few years. This affair has been one that has been sponsored by the junior class, but this season proved to be an utter failure.

The matter of co-ed representation was also discussed and tabled until the next regular meeting.

An activities fee was adopted to go into effect in September, 1929. Various extra-curricula activities have suffered in the past through insufficient financing, and it was decided to have this fee paid by each student on registering for each of the semesters. The fee will give gratis admission to any activity drawing from these funds, and will be a distinct advancement over the old method of separate subscription. These topics were presented to the student body after being weighted by the Student Senate in a meeting held last week.

WEEKLY LUNCHEON MEETING OF LOCAL LIONS CLUB

A letter from Courtland Yount, director of the recent Norwich chamber of commerce expansion drive, was read at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday afternoon at 12:15 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting, opening with the singing of America, was presided over by President Kopland K. Markoff and the blessing was offered by Louis M. Crandall. A congratulatory letter was sent by the club to Roy Ferguson, president of the Lions club at Rockville, which was recently formed. Mr. Yount's letter to President Markoff is as follows:

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell has instructed me to write you in behalf of the campaign executive committee and express their appreciation of the willingness of the Lions' club to meet with the workers in the campaign on last Thursday, March 7.

This was a real contribution to the drive and it is such cooperation that makes for the success of all such movements. We have heard many comments on the fine spirit displayed by members of the Lions' club, not only in regard to combining their regular weekly meeting with ours, but for the splendid work they have done in this campaign.

C. A. C. PLANS BANQUET FOR VISITING BASKETBALL TEAMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 14—With the advent of the Class C and D high school basketball team to the Aggies for the annual basketball tournament, a plan has been devised to entertain the visiting teams during their stay at the institution, to take up the idle time that has hung heavily on the visiting athletes in past years.

The entertainment as planned by the athletic association will start after the basketball games that will be played in the afternoon on Friday. At 6.45 p. m. a dinner will be served in the college dining hall at which speakers, both local and from outside, will address the gathering.

President Charles B. Gentry will give the welcoming address to the visiting athletes. In response one of the coaches that is bringing a team to the tournament will give a short talk. Other speakers who are engaged are Albert W. Keane, sporting editor of the Hartford Courant, who has spoken here before. Andrew M. Sayers, '29, president of the athletic association, and former captain of football and Nathan G. Gatchell, '29, of Andover, who will represent the non-athletic activities. He is a member of Theta Alpha Phi, honorary dramatic fraternity and editor-in-chief of the Connecticut Campus.

The teams that were picked by the state committee have been paired off and will play in the following order: Friday afternoon at 2.00, Windsor will tackle Tourtelotte of Mechanicsville; 3.00 o'clock, Terryville and Litchfield; at 4 Madison will oppose Washington, with Saybrook and Putnam finishing up the afternoon play. The play this year has been confined to contests during the day, eliminating the fatiguing workouts in night playing.

The semi-finals will be run off on Saturday morning at 10 a. m. with the finals in the afternoon at 3.

The meeting closed with the scoutmaster's benediction.

RAISED BILLS APPEAR AT NORWICH BANK

That there is a money "raiser" operating in New London county has come to light the past few days with the appearance of several raised bills in Norwich and New London. The presence of the alleged counterfeiter was first noticed in Norwich Tuesday, when he tried to pass a counterfeit bill at the Bankers Trust company. The bill was discovered to be a bad one, it is said, but before the passer could be seized he made his getaway. The bill presented at the bank was a combination of a $20 and $5 bill. A bill of similar appearance was presented by a man at a New London theatre. The ticket agent attempted to notify the authorities when she noticed the faked bill but the man made his escape.

KILLED LARGE MUSKRAT NEAR CHELSEA BANK

A huge rat ran across Main street near the Chelsea bank in the business section of the city about 11:30 o'clock Thursday night. It was not the common ordinary rat, but a muskrat. Reaching a point in front of the bank, the rodent stopped and refused to budge inch, although stones were hurled at it. Two men came down Cliff street about that time and one with an umbrella went for the muskrat, only to come away with a broken umbrella. Noble Bruette approached the muskrat and succeeded in driving it onto the sidewalk in front of the Eagles' home, where he killed it.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

DANIELSON TOWNERS FACE FAST TEAM IN BOSTON CLOWNS TONIGHT

Tonight's Lineups

Boston Clowns		Danielson
Walsh, lf		lf, Gallup
Sherran, rf		rf, Armington
Slade, c		c, Williams
Slattery, rg		rg, Poirier
Karr, lg		lg, Godreau

The game shall at Danielson tonight be expected to be jammed to the doors when the above teams clash in what promises to be as fast and unique a game of basketball as any played this season. The Boston Clowns, widely known for their excellent basketball as well as for their entertainment features, present a touch nut for the Danielson Towners to crack. The Clowns come to Danielson tonight flaunting victories over the Boston Whirlwinds, Pere Marquette, Lowell, Plymouth and a number of other strong Bay State quintets.

Including in their lineup are a number of former college stars who are now playing professional basketball. They include Jack Sherran, former Boston college hoopster, Tom Slade and Jack Slattery, formerly of Holy Cross, and Charlie Karr of Harvard. Others with the team are Bill Walsh, former Red Sox baseball player, Jim Lenehan and Bill Tilt.

The Clowns appear in real circus suits and their half hour of antics before the game give the crowd quite a laugh. They are real comedians and their entertainment is well worth the price of admission alone. After their house-play they settle down to real basketball and the game will be one that should not be missed.

Manager Cleveland of the Towners is jubilant over the fact that Gallup is back in shape and with Armington, Burke, Williams, Poirier and Godreau ready for action he feels confident that he can take over the visiting combination.

Extra accommodations have been made for seating a large crowd and there will be room for all who come.

SINGER MEETS TAYLOR IN BOUT TONIGHT

NEW YORK, March 14—(AP)—Dapper Al Singer, shiny haired young featherweight who has reaped both fame and scorn in his first pair of battles with topnotchers of the class, gets his chance tomorrow night to make the critics take it all back.

The youngster they're calling "another Benny Leonard" will tackle blonde Bud Taylor, the brave bantamweight terror from Terre Haute, in a return ten round shindig at Madison Square Garden, tomorrow night while 20,000 or more of the fight faithful peer steadily at Singer's belt line.

Singer won his first match with Taylor on a foul in the fourth round. Bud, and at least half the spectators who crammed the Garden that night, thought the punch was fair, a smashing left hook that bit deep into Singer's solar plexus. Singer went down, half rose, and then stayed on the canvas when his seconds shouted foul and the referee stopped counting.

The day after the disappointing fracas, Singer himself demanded another chance at the ageing mid-westerner who once was considered the uncrowned champion of the 118 pounders. His supporters believe that move the most convincing evidence that Taylor really slugged the Bronx hero low.

REDS SWAMPED BY THE RED SOX, 13 TO 4

BRADENTON, Fla., March 14—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox ran rough shod over the Cincinnati Reds here today, 13 to 4.

There was no mystery to the ball served by Ash, a rookie hurler, and in the first inning the Red Sox piled up eight runs, added another in the second frame and then four more in the sixth.

Altogether, the Red Sox pounded Ash, Lucas, and Gudat for 16 hits, while Morris, Ruffing and Russell held the Reds to a dozen scattered safeties. The score:

Cincinnati, (N)	100 010 002—	4	12	2
Boston, (A)	810 004 00x—	13	16	0

Ash, Lucas, Gudat and Dixon, McMullan; Morris, Ruffing, Russell and Hefying, Gaston.

PROMOTERS DRAFT SET OF RULES FOR AMATEURS

NEW HAVEN, March 14—(AP)—Amateur boxing promoters of the state met this afternoon at the New Haven arena and discussed the new code of rules and regulations as proposed by Nathan Podoloff, manager of the arena. The code as agreed upon by the several promoters this afternoon will be presented to State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue for his approval. Donohue will in turn present his own code of rules and regulations together with the set proposed today by the state promoters, to the attorney-general, in an effort to bring about unity in the present state of unsettled affairs, existing between the commissioner's office and the state promoters.

One of the most important changes in the rules as proposed by the promoters today, was in the definition of the word amateur. Previous to today's meeting, Commissioner Donohue had defined an amateur as one who received prizes, but did not accept money for expenses. Further, in Commissioner Donohue's definition, the prize or trophy was to be engraved with the owner's name. In the rules as proposed today, an amateur could be given his actual expenses for traveling here from out of the city and the prize or trophy was not to be engraved. According to the promoters present, it would be necessary to pay expenses in order to have boxers appear in theb oxing bouts in this state, coming here from other towns and cities or from out of the state. The engraving on the prize was decided as unnecessary.

Another change proposed was in one of the present rules, in which promoters would be permitted to submit to deputy commissioners their card of bouts, without the formality of tendering the list of entries to the commissioner himself.

With one or two exceptions the proposed rules to be submitted to Commisioner Donohue are in reality the same as now govern the bouts in other cities, under the auspices of the A. A. U. The conditions of boxers as to their qualifications and standing as an amateur is proposed to start from April 1, 1929. After that date any changes in the status of the boxers, must be made. It was agreed that boxers be given a clean slate to start from April 1, but to lose their amateur standing after that time if it were deemed necessary by the commissioner.

According to the proposed rules of the promoters, no amateur boxer could be permitted to fight more than once every four days. It was understood that Commissioner Donohue favored an eight-ounce glove but the promoters decided for the present six-ounce glove for classes up to the 160 pound and eight for classes beyond that weight.

The rules and regulations as proposed today will be sent to the office of Commissioner Donohue and also to the office of the attorney-general, for their consideration. It is believed that a formal code will be drawn up before April 1 to govern the amateur bouts in this state.

HAGEN AND DIEGEL WIN FOUR-BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

MIAMI, Fla., March 14—(AP)—Walter Hagen today attacked the seemingly impregnable defense of Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell to win for himself and Leo Diegel a one-up victory and the championship of Miami's international four-ball golf matches here.

Hagen won the tournament on the 36th green after he alone had won three of the four holes scored by his team to overcome the three up advantage established by the defending champions at the 28th hole.

The defeat of Sarazen and Farrell began with the 453 yard 31st hole accomplishment of Hagen in sinking an 18-foot putt for a birdie 4. Hagen, however, was not alone in offering a superior brand of play, for Diegel placed his team square with the opponents with an eagle 3 from a 40 foot chip shot on the first hole of the afternoon round, and sank a birdie on the next green for another 3 to forge ahead. The match was evened a moment later by Farrell's 3-foot putt for a 3 on the par 4 third hole.

Until the last six holes of the match, it had appeared that Sarazen and Farrell would retain the crown they won in the 1927 international four-ball matches. They had advanced to a 3-hole advantage at the 28th hole when Hagen threw himself into the breach to gain victory for him and for Diegel at the 36th hole.

Hagen had presented once in the morning round a flash of the brand of play that won the tournament, when he dropped a 45-foot chip shot into the sixth cup for a birdie two to take the hole.

ATHLETICS BEAT PHILLIES IN FREE HITTING EXHIBITION

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 14—(AP)—The Philadelphia Americans defeated the Philadelphia Nationals here today, 9 to 6. Although outhit by the Phillies, the Athletics hit when they counted.

Borrelli, a recruit, starred at the bat for the Athletics, and drove in five runs. He hit a home run in the eighth inning with two men on, and also made a single and a double in five times at bat.

A finger on Dykes' right hand was cut by O'Doul's spikes when O'Doul slid into second while stealing in the fifth. Hale replaced Dykes at second.

Umpire Edward McLaughlin asked for a moment of silence before the start of the game in tribute to the memory of Sherwood Magee, National league umpire, who died in Philadelphia Wednesday night. After the players and spectators stood bareheaded, Eddie Collins, captain of the Athletics, expressed the sorrow felt by his team. The score:

Phil. (A)	001 014 030—	9	9	2
Phil. (N)	001 110 003—	6	12	1

Batteries: Ehmke, Shores, Cramer and Perkins; Roy, Baecht, Willoughby and Davis.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Emmett Carroll, Naugatuck high's sophomore forward, who dropped in the deciding points at the U. of Penn. tournament to retain Naugy's tourney title, lost eleven pounds while in Philly. He is almost certain to be captain at the Rubber Town next season.

Two former high school pitchers of this section are to get tryouts with the Hartford Eastern league baseball team this season. They are Joe Smith of Westerly and Lefty Callahan of New London. Smith pitched for Westerly high and Providence college and Callahan for Bulkeley.

Rogers high of Newport is a team like Naugatuck that got a bad start but has done well in the late season. Rogers set back De LaSalle five in Providence this week and showed a lot of power and improvement in so doing.

Bulkeley in New London has revised its baseball schedule to include 20 games, the same number as the Academy will play.

Bristol should win the Yale tourney.

SONNENBERG ENDS TRAINING FOR MALCEWCIZ TONIGHT

BOSTON, March 14—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, champion wrestler and the mat game's greatest figure, today ended his $50,000 training season for the defense of his title against Joe Malcewciz of Utica, N. Y., in the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

When Sonnenberg, or "Gus the Goat," as he is known hereabouts be cause of his butting and raming tactics, was matched with Malcewicz, he was about to start on a barnstorming tour of the country. It was first thought that he would have to abandon the tour and the fortune that went with it but the champion finally decided that he was physically able to fill every engagement and remain in shape for Malcewicz. While on tour, which started six weeks ago, Sonnenberg wrestled 25 times and received more than $50,000.

Though Sonnenberg has not suffered a single fall in the 25 matches in which he has engaged since he became the champion, Malcewicz has been conceded almost an even chance of defeating him.

SENATORS POUND CARD ROOKIES FOR VICTORY

AVON PARK, Fla., March 14—(AP)—Walter Johnson's Washington Senators hammered six Cardinal pitchers, five of them rookies, for seventeen hits and walked off with an exhibition game with the National league champions here, 12 to 9. After the veteran Grover Cleveland Alexander had held the Senators scoreless for the first three innings, Martin, a southpaw, blew up in the fourth and the Nationals batted around for six tallies. They added six more runs off Ryba and Winford in the sixth and seventh before Heise and Boykin stopped them. The Cards rallied but could not overcome the 12 run lead. The score:

St. Louis	011 000 520—	9	14	1

ACADEMY EVENS SERIES FOR CITY TITLE BY BEATING Y SENIORS, 14 TO 11

The Academy basketball team fought its way into a third and deciding game with the Y Seniors Saturday night by winning a stubbornly fought contest, Thursday night, 14 to 11 at the Y gym. The Seniors won the first game about two weeks ago, 23 to 18 but the Academy showed a sudden reversal of form and completely outplayed the Yers Thursday night to even the score. The deciding battle Saturday night promises to be one of the best games in some time at the local floor. The Academy is the present champion as the result of victories over the C. F. C. and Taftville Crescents last season.

A fairly large crowd saw the schoolboys, playing without their captain, Aime (Buck) LaCroix and coach, Court Whitney, give their more experienced opponents a good lesson in real fight and inflict the eleventh defeat in 20 games on the Seniors and probably the most surprising defeat of the local season. It was only the fifth victory in 20 games for the schoolboys, but it was their sweetest triumph.

The Seniors outscored the Red and White, 8 to 7 in the first half but soon after the third period started the Academy began to sense victory and gained the lead, never to fall behind. At the end of the third period, the Academy led 12 to 10. A neat field goal by Frank Barber and a foul toss, by the same player, and a foul shot by Les Pingree summoned up the scoring in the final session.

Frank Barber took up his brilliant work where he left off in the first series game and was the outstanding player of the evening. He led both teams in scoring besides holding Aubrey Brown, Seniors' sharpshooter, to a field goal and a foul. Pingree, with four points, led the Seniors with their meager total.

The general opinion was that if the Seniors do not show a lot more Saturday night than they put on display last evening, there will be no new champion this year, as seemed so likely only a couple of weeks ago.

In the preliminary the Y Emps easily took over the Peerless Finishers, 34 to 10. Lynch, of the winners, with nine field goals for 18 points was the outstanding player.

PUTNAM AND WINDHAM MUST PLAY POSTPONED GAME ON MARCH 22ND

A settlement of the basketball dispute that has shaken the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league was seemingly effected Thursday at a special meeting of the league at the Y. M. C. A. in this city when Windham and Putnam, the involved parties, were ordered by the league to play off a postponed game Friday, March 22. This game will be played at Putnam as the original one was scheduled for that city.

First Scheduled Jan. 19.

On January 19, Putnam and Windham were scheduled to play. Putnam found it had a heavy schedule that week and shortly before the game notified Windham of this, requesting a postponement. The controversy then came about last week when the regularly scheduled league season closed. Putnam demanded that Windham play this game off but Windham claimed that she had not agreed to a postponement in January and therefore thought there was valid claim for a forfeit. Putnam said that Windham did agree to postpone the game until some time near the end of the campaign.

The argument, therefore, became so important that the special meeting was called.

E. Stanley Taylor of Chapman Tech, New London, secretary of the league, presided.

Both Windham and Putnam representatives stated their positions clearly at the meeting and, after much discussion, members not involved in the dispute voted that the game be recorded as a postponed game and be re-played. The league then set the date for March 22, one week from tonight.

Must Inform Secretary.

Putnam and Windham are to inform the secretary of their position on the matter before Saturday, that is, whether they will play or not. If one team should notify Mr. Taylor of its refusal to play, then the other team will win by forfeit. If both refuse to play, however, then each will lose its league standing. Chapman Tech will automatically become league champion and N. F. A. and Stonington will finish in a tie right behind the New London school.

Should Windham play and beat Putnam, then a tie will exist with Chapman Tech and a playoff game will be necessary. The date of this playoff will be decided at the regular spring meeting of the league, at the Wauregan hotel here, Monday, March 25.

Those present at the meeting were: E. Stanley Taylor, J. T. Conway, H. H. Wardwell, Charman Tech; W. F. O'Brien, George Grant, Stonington; L. F. Noves, E. L. Robinson, Putnam; Ray A. Ebner, Windham; Frank Hamlen, Bulkeley; Matthew J. Sheridan, Norwich Free Academy.

Little Trouble Seen.

The meeting, which lasted two hours, was devoted solely to the basketball controversy. As both Windham and Putnam are understood to be perfectly willing to abide by the league decision, there is little doubt but that the game will be played next Friday.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM FORMED IN CITY

Plans are practically completed, it is reported, to form a girls' basketball team in Norwich, in fact, the team is already playing together in practice games at the Y. M. C. A. and has two games for the fag end of the season.

The team is picked from members of the women's class at the local association and has scheduled tilts with the Conn. Aggie Freshmen and Williams Memorial Institute lassies within the next two weeks. The W. M. I. game will be played here Thursday, March 21, a week from tonight as preliminary to an Academy-Coaches game.

Although only a few games will be played this year, girls' basketball is expected to get a good start for future seasons. Norwich has not had a girls team in years.

P. O. CLERKS BEAT LETTER CARRIERS

If you see your favorite postman limping up your front walk this morning to deliver your mail you can bet your bottom dollar that he was a member of the indoor baseball team that was defeated last night at the state armory 19 to 15, by the Postoffice Clerks. The Clerks, although they won don't feel so athletic this morning for it was a hard and strenuous game.

The game was not without its thrills, its casualties and its tense moments. The only alibi that the Carriers have is that they carried too many Saturday Evening Posts on Thursday and they were completely fazzed out which gave their opponents a slight edge. However they fought a valiant although losing battle. Great denendence has been placed on the broad shoulders of that peerless leader Mike Murphy, who was to bear the pitching burden. Alas, Mike after a strenuous bout with the Posts succumbed in the first inning and was taken from the box. Another of the Murphys went in, this time it was Danny Murphy. Anyone with such an illustrious name is a ball-player and Danny was equal to the task, that is, he lasted out the game.

The catching of Joe Sandberg pilot of one of the R. F. D. buggies, was the outstanding feature for the Clerks. It was Joe's brilliance that helped the Clerks to pull through to victory. John Joseph Burns was his pitching mate, Johnny being an old-time ball player with plenty of curves.

The only casualty of the game was Cy Sandberg who was crushed under the nonderous form of MacFarland as he slid into second base. Outside of the sore backs, lame legs and arms a nice time was enjoyed by one and all, with the exception of Eddie Edwards, the referee and McNurney the timer, these two being without friends.

The score by innings:

Clerks	6	0	4	8	4—19
Carriers	0	9	2	1	3—15

The lineups were:

Clerks—J. Sandberg c; J. J. Burns p; J. E. Burns 1b; Carney 1b; McFarland 2b; J. Edwards 3b; Doolittle ss; Buckley lf; Kenig cf; Socha rf.

Mrs. Teresa Koester of Pomeroy, O., has a waffle iron which is 125 years old, and which belonged to her great-grandmother, "Aunt Annie" Roush. The "baker" is composed of two pieces of wrought iron, with the handles riveted to them and so hollowed out that they hold a cake about the size of a man's hand. The back of each side of the mold carries ornamental figures that were intended to give the cake a fanciful appearance. The iron is opened and closed by means of a hinge, much like the operation of tongs. It weighs 20 pounds.

AUDIT COMMITTEE MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS TO TOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 14—Attorney E. L. Darbie, Patrick Riley and Frank J. Gorman, comprising the town's special audit committee, met again this afternoon at the office of Attorney Derbie and formulated a set of recommendations soon to be submitted to a special town meeting to hear the report of the auditors. The recommendations, included in a copy of the report which the committee will make to the meeting, are as follows:

To the Citizens of the Town of Killingly:

Your committee appointed at a special town meeting held October 19, 1928, to take charge of the special audit of the books and accounts of the town of Killingly respectfully report that, in accordance with the vote of said town, they engaged the accountant firm of Mahoney, Bowen & Co., of Norwalk, Conn., to make an audit and examination of the books and accounts of said town for a six-year period from August 1st, 1922, to July 31st, 1928, for the sum of two thousand dollars; that said audit has been completed and the report of the accountants turned over to your committee, who have carefully examined said report and lodged the same on file in the office of the town clerk.

After a survey of said report your committee would recommend:

1. That the selectmen and tax collector make a careful examination of the names and amounts due for unpaid taxes on the rate bills of said town, and a drastic effort be made to collect such taxes as are collecable and such accounts as are considered uncollectable be written off the books.

2. That the cash balance on deposit in the name of the Thomas J. Evans fund, Agnes H. Paine, secretary, be withdrawn and used for the support of the high school, and that the income from the Evans' fund each year be used for the support of said high school, in accordance with the terms of the trust, instead of being allowed to accumulate.

3. That a new valuation of all property owned by the town be established at one time, so that in the future the surplus would only be altered by the actual cost, thereby creating a standard value for computing annual depreciation.

4. That all moneys disbursed by the treasurer be paid by check and that no moneys be paid by the treasurer except upon an order from proper authority.

5. That, as soon as it can be advantageously accomplished, the town deposit fund and other trust fund owned by the town be invested in accordance with the statute relating to the investment of trust funds, instead of being invested in notes of the town as is now the practice, and that the income from said funds be used for the purposes directed in the instruments creating said trusts.

6. That all produce sold, and other income received by the town farm, be entered in books of account kept for that purpose at said town farm, and weekly reports be made in writing to the selectmen of all transactions in connection therewith.

7. That a system be adopted by the treasurer, when paying town orders by check, of entering against each order paid the number of the check by which said order has been paid; thereby enabling the auditors in more easily ascertain which orders the treasurer's checks apply to.

8. That, in the entries in the treasurer's cash book concerning dog licenses, the number of the receipt the money is in payment of be noted opposite said item in the cash book.

9. That the method of borrowing money and re-paying loans now in practice be discontinued and that all money borrowed and repaid be made under the supervision and direction of the board of selectmen.

10. Your committee in observing the trend of legislation in the state of Connecticut, at the present time, are of the opinion that the time is fast approaching when the state of Connecticut will require a uniform system of accounting in all towns, and have learned that such a system has been already adopted by many of the towns in the state. They would therefore recommend that the selectmen, or their agents, make a study of the methods used in towns having adopted this uniform system and install such an accounting system in the various departments of this town.

The 32 girls and boys of the town of Killingly that attend the State Trade school at Putnam were today mailed their checks for transportation money expended during the months of January and February. These students—there are 28 boys and 4 girls—get half rates for transportation and half of what their pay is refunded to them by the town.

A checkup of the stability of the Westfield Congregational church spire, the tallest on any church in this section of eastern Connecticut, has established what has been suspected for a considerable time, i. e., that it is not a true perpendicular and that it sways some in heavy winds. However, its condition is reported as absolutely safe from collapse at the present time. A method that has been suggested for stabilizing it is that of running a steel rod from the ground to the peak of the spire, these rods to be securely fastened at each end. This proposition is now being considered by church officials. The spire has been a land mark in Danielson for well toward two generations and is a fine example of such features of early church architecture in New England. The fact that the spire that needs attention now recalls to the minds of old residents that a spire that rose above the church originally crashed into the street one day many years ago but fortunately did not injure anyone. The estimated height from the street to the peak of the spire is about 165 feet.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was in Chaplin and Willimantic this afternoon investigating the deaths in an automobile accident in Chaplin of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bingham of 44 Gillett St., West Hartford, as more fully told in the Willimantic news this morning. Coroner Bill took possession of the personal effects of Mr. and Mrs. Bingham found in the car.

Jackson Inquest Tuesday.

Such additional witnesses as are to be questioned in the inquest having to do with the death of County Detective William E. Jackson of Willimantic have been summoned by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, to appear at his office here in Danielson next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The coroner will proceed with the inquest at that time, and, if it is possible, complete his accumulation of testimony at that time.

The judiciary committee has reported favorably to the house on a measure providing for an increase in the salary of the judge of the town court of Killingly from $1,000 to $1,200.

Frank Theriaque, so gravely injured yesterday in a motor vehicle accident on the state highway just north of the town farm, remained in an exceedingly grave condition at the Day Kimball hospital today, with very little prospect of his recovery.

A present, but temporary, menace to operators of automobiles are the soft shoulders along the edges of the state highways, a condition that has caused two serious accidents in this territory within 24 hours.

The members of the new president committee for Connecticut college are: Dean Wilbur L. Cross, of Yale, chairman; Harrison B. Freeman, Hartford; Dr. Marion P. Whitney, Vassar; Miss Mary Buckley, Hartford; Mrs. S. H. Williams, Hartford; and F. Valentine Chappell, New London.

PUTNAM

INCORRECT FIRE SIGNAL DUE TO PERSON OPERATING BOX

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 14—The $3,000 loss at the home of Angelo DeBeradinis at 134 Walnut street, last evening was today attributed to the fact that the person who rang in the alarm closed the door of the box causing it to sound the code of box 32, located on Woodstock avenue, about two and one half miles from the scene of the Walnut street fire. The apparatus of the central fire station answered the Woodstock box call and was detained several minutes.

Supt. Thayer said today that the "phony" fire codes will not be eliminated from the fire alarm system until it is entirely equipped with the new type foolproof boxes with quick action doors. In his recommendations to the common council in January, Supt. Thayer recommended that the city purchase at least four of the new type boxes to replace those similar to box 24. While the tap at fire headquarters received a box 32 signal, the system was in perfect order, as a second alarm properly rung from box 24 was recorded correctly at the central headquarters a few minutes later.

Chief Thurston said last night that the firemen were absolved from any responsibility in directing the apparatus to the north end of the city on the first alarm received. Despite the handicap with which the firemen were forced to cope, their work in extinguishing the stubborn partition fire at the DeBeradinis home by saving it from complete destruction was remarkable.

A wrecking crew and many officials of the New Haven road, worked tirelessly for several hours Wednesday evening returning the giant 3504 engine to the rails which it left earlier in the day when it sprung a switch point in the Putnam yards. Engine 3504, weighing approximately 275 tons was switching cars in the local yards when it encountered a weakened switch point, about one hundred feet north of the tower. The extreme tonnage of the giant locomotive pryed the rails apart and dropped the sixteen wheels to the ground.

The weekly report of Health Officer Peter A. Gardner submitted Wednesday indicated that during the week there has been 9 cases of chicken pox and one case of bronchial pneumonia. According to Mr. Gardner four of the cases are outside the city limits and five are within the city limits.

A meeting of the combined faculties of the education department of the town and city was held this afternoon at the Putnam high school auditorium at which time Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin delivered an address on the 54th annual convention of school superintendents held last week in Cleveland, Ohio.

Frank Theriaque also known as Frank DeForrest, of 28 Battey street injured Wednesday in an automobile accident at Elmville was reported by the officials of the Day Kimball hospital today as somewhat improved, but still in a critical condition. Theriaque was said to be in a semi-conscious condition and is suffering from a compound fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Recovery was said to be doubtful today.

Capt. Foster of the Southbridge fire department spent Wednesday in Putnam.

A four stroke alarm at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon, sent the hook and ladder company scurrying to Lee street to a house occupied by Armand Bellerose, to extinguish a chimney fire. Several gallons of chemical were poured into the flaming chimney before the blaze was put out. Chief Thurston said that no property loss was experienced. Today's four call was the first alarm of the day and the eighth since Sunday.

The transferring of deeds of the Mechanicsville mill village owned by the Guerin Mills, Inc., of Woonsocket, R. I., took place yesterday and today it was disclosed that Edward J. Ball of Newton, Mass., had taken possession of the village not including the Beechmont mills of the French River farm in West Thompson. Records of transfer of the property on a warranty deed from Charles R. Crandell of Boston to Edward J. Ball of Newton, have been filed with the town clerk in the land records of the town of Putnam.

The members of the Anslem Mavotte post American Legion, No. 23, together with the members of the post auxiliary, will observe the 10th anniversary of the organization of the legion on Friday night. A banquet and meeting will be held at Arnold's Sea grill where an informal programme will be held.

"Spring is here," said Captain of Police Jarvis this afternoon when he arrested a seventeen year old boy for theft of a bicycle tire. Each year about this time the police have to devote their attentions to youths who insist on taking accessories to equip the two wheel vehicles for spring riding. Capt. Jarvis said that the arrested boy took the tire from a wheel parked near the Putnam foundry, taking it to his home in North Grosvenordale. He will be arraigned before Judge M. H. Geissler in police court Friday morning.

Receiver George M. Coffin of the First National Bank said today that he had obtained no word from the American counsel in Mexico as to the whereabouts of his son, Frank T. Coffin, whom he believes to have been caught in the thick of the Mexican uprising.

The younger Mr. Coffin has been interested in aviation for a number of years and has been in that stormy country relative to the establishing of an air mail route. Mr. Coffin's interest in aviation dates back to 1910 when the Wright brothers commenced experimenting with the heavier than air machines. He was at that time one of their associates, and is now one of the few remaining, the rest being killed by air fatalities.

Mr. Coffin was doing considerable flying in Mexico during the past months and was last heard from about February 25. The elder Mr. Coffin, directing the affairs of the defunct First National bank stated that he has asked the American counsel to furnish him with whatever information they may have.

R. B. Bush of the Southern New England Telephone company addressed the pupils of Putnam high school this morning on the subject of "The History of the Organization of Our Company." The talk by the representative was accompanied by a moving picture programme of films on the following topics, "Now You're Talking," "When the Telephone was Young," and "Voices Across the Sea."

Officer Joseph Pace of the local police brought about the arrest of J. T. Demars of Bridge street today on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended. Demars was arrested a few months ago on a motor vehicle offense. He was found guilty of the previous charge, which resulted in the suspension of his license. He will be tried Friday morning in city court.

A number of town officials left this evening to attend a dinner given by the county commissioners at the Nathan Hale hotel in Willimantic.

With 80 points in nine games, Hall of Cornell has clinched runner-up honors. He has one more game yet to play but cannot hope to overtake Schaaf. Spaeth of Dartmouth is third with 65 and Carey of Princeton fourth with 64.

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will be glad to know how they may have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret lies in rubbing a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally, preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

Albert Dawley and George Green were callers at the Pine Grove farm recently.

William Bitzood and Herbert August were in Rhode Island yesterday looking for Mr. Bitzood's dog which went away a week ago Saturday, but did not have any luck. He is a spotted dog, black and white, with a large round black spot on his back. He goes by the name of Spot. On his collar he has three taxs and Mr. Bitzood's name.

Jefferson Barber's cold is worse.

Charles Douglas arrived home from Plainfield Monday. He has been gone about a week.

Mrs. Jacob Malbourne of Sterling took chicken dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington Sunday in Oneco. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington said they had a nice visit with her. They think she is all right and Mrs. Malbourne thinks Mr. Remington's folks are all right. Some one in Oneco was good enough to report all around all that Mrs. Remington fed Mrs. Malbourne on was griddle cakes and syrup. Who is it in Oneco sets any better table than Mr. and Mrs. Remington and who is any more willing to help than Mr. Remington? He will leave his work and go help any one that wants help. It doesn't make them feel very good to have people talk about them that way. Who would feel good to be talked about that way?

Mr. Bitzood was over Escoheag hill Sunday. He stopped to see a man by the name of Rueben Lewis. He is Mrs. Bitzood's cousin. He lives all alone. He was 81 years old the last day of December. Mr. Bitzood said he said he felt good, only he is quite deaf.

Mr. Bitzood stopped to see Mrs. Barber. She is an old woman, 84 last Sunday. She and her son live alone. Mrs. Bitzood has known her ever since Mrs. Bitzood was a little girl. That would be 71 years ago as Mrs. Bitzood will be 79 if she lives to see the 23rd of May. A nice old lady she is too. Mrs. Bitzood has a sister on Sterling Hill who will be 83 years old the 13th of April. Three sisters living all old, one Mrs. Ida Douglass 73 or 74 years old.

Albert Dawley Jr. is sick in Pachaug. He is with his sister, Mrs. Harold Bitzood. He has the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. James Congdon are on the gain.

Tuesday morning, a nice spring morning, birds singing all around. This makes the farmers think about getting up their summer wood piles so to be ready for their spring plowing and planting.

JEWETT CITY

SLATER PICTURES AND MEDAL TURNED OVER TO LIBRARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 14—As the result of the interest taken by Supt. W. A. Richardson, of the Fisk Rubber Co., local textile division, the Slater library received today certain photographs of members of the Slater family, together with a bronze medal. The pictures are of a date preceding the time when the Slater library was considered by John F. Slater as a gift to the manufacturing village of Jewett City. The medal bears date of 1878, and was struck by the Paris exposition of that year, as an award for the exhibition of Slater cheviots, which attracted much attention in France. The medal bears the inscription: Exposition Universelle Internationale, Paris, 1878. To John F. Slater. Republic Francaise. The photographs were to be seen years ago on the walls of the one-time "counting room" of the mill office. The medal has occupied a place in a back drawer in the mill safe for a half century. Attendant upon the passing of the Slater mills into other ownerships, these distinctively Slater belongings have found a place in the library. Records tell, and some older residents recall, the one-time Slater cheviots. Not long after the close of the Civil war, this grade of cotton cloth came into the market from the Slater looms. Strong, durable and of handsome patterns, 200 looms were rushed to keep up with the market demands. The cheviot was not a print, being dyed in the warp. There were close to 150 different patterns, all designed at the plant and classed by numbers. At the same time Mr. Slater was turning out over 2,000 yards a day of two patterns of ticking, and a style of white and blue cloth known to the market as "three and three."

The Recipe

It's doing your job the best you can
And being just to your fellow man;
It's making money—but holding friends,
And staying true to your aims and ends;
It's figuring how and learning why;
And looking forward and thinking high.
And dreaming a little and doing much;
It's keeping always in closest touch
With what is finest in word and deed
It's being thorough, yet making speed;
It's daring blithely the field of chance
While making labor a brave romance;
It's going onward despite defeat
And fighting staunchly, but keeping sweet;
It's being clean and it's playing fair;
It's laughing lightly at Dame Despair;
It's looking up at the stars above,
And drinking deeply of life and love;
It's struggling on with the will to win,
But taking loss with a cheerful grin;
It's sharing sorrow and work and mirth
And making better this good old earth;
It's serving, striving through strain and stress,
It's doing your Noblest—that's Success!

The Owl That Lives in the Ground

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

"What matters it where you reside?
A home is not a cause for pride.
—Billy the Burrowing Owl.

Peter had a lot to think of. He was becoming almost wistful. He sighed. "I wish I had wings," said he.

"What do you wish you had wings for?" demanded Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak.

"So I could travel the way you do," replied Peter.

Wanderer chuckled. "Better be satisfied as you are, Peter," said he. "Better be satisfied as you are. I am afraid that if you had wings you would soon make a good meal for Hooty the Owl or one of the Hawk family. Speaking of Owls, did you ever see an Owl living in the ground?"

Instantly Peter forgot his vain wishes. "What do you mean by living in the ground?" said he.

"Just that," replied Wanderer. "Did you ever see an Owl whose home was in the ground?"

"Certainly not," replied Peter. "Certainly not. The idea of an Owl living in the ground!"

"Billy the Burrowing Owl does," said Wanderer, good naturedly, not in the least offended at Peter's doubt. "I have never heard of Billy the

He is one of the neighbors of Yap Yap the Prairie Dog

Burrowing Owl. Where does he live?" asked Peter.

"He is one of the neighbors of Yap Yap the Prairie Dog," replied Wanderer. "I have many times seen him sitting on one of Yap Yap's watch-towers."

"That doesn't mean anything," said Peter. "I have more than once seen Hooty's cousin, Short-ear the Marsh Owl sitting in the grass on the Green Meadows."

"But that isn't being in the ground," protested Peter.

"Granted, Peter, granted," replied Wanderer. "But Short-ear has nothing to do with Billy. Billy is a Burrowing Owl and likes a nice hole in the ground just as much as you do. So when nesting time comes Mrs. Billy looks around for a nice, comfortable hole that no one else is using. Sometimes it is one that has been dug by Digger the Badger. More often it is one that Yap Yap or one of his friends is through with. Wherever you find Yap Yap and his friends you are pretty sure to find Billy the Burrowing Owl, called Billy Owl for short."

"Is he big?" asked Peter.

Wanderer shook his head. "No," said he, "he isn't what you would call big. Of course, you know Spooky the Screech Owl?"

"Certainly. I know Spooky the Screech Owl," replied Peter.

"Well," said Wanderer, "Billy Owl is just a little bit smaer than Spooky the Screech Owl."

"Pooh!" exclaimed Peter. "I wouldn't be afraid of him."

"No," replied Wanderer, "you wouldn't be afraid of him. But your babies might be."

Peter scratched a long ear with a long hindleg. Then he scratched the other long ear with the other long hindleg. "I suppose that's true," said he. "I certainly wouldn't trust one of my babies around where Spooky could catch him. Does Billy Owl bother Yap Yap the Prairie Dog?"

"They seem to be very neighborly," replied Wanderer. "Certainly Yap Yap isn't afraid of Billy. But I suspect that Billy Owl could tell, if he would, what becomes of some very small Prairie Dogs."

Maine can match the achievement of a California woman in receiving a radio concert from a saucepan on her electric range. A farmer living in Greenwood, at the junction of two roads, with the telephone wires making a Y, a prong of the letter running each side of his house, gets free radio in that way. He has a hole about the size of a plate cut in the door of his cottage, covered with a wooden patch for use when not "receiving." Evenings he opens the door and through the aperture floats all sorts of entertainment. While he is denied the power of selection, he is never troubled with static.

World's Easiest Driving Control

NO OTHER CAR in all the world controls quite so easily—with such complete lack of effort—as the new Nash "400".

Nash engineers have developed a new steering mechanism to achieve this result. An ingenious arrangement of roller bearings and a roller-tooth traveling in a worm gear, reduces friction to a minimum hitherto thought impossible.

Women drivers find new help and gain new confidence in parking. Little effort is needed to bring the "400" up to, or away from, the curb.

Gear shifting is just as easy. The "400" clutch pedal depresses at a touch, scarcely resisting the weight of your foot. The conveniently placed shifting lever moves smoothly, easily, from one speed to another.

If you ever find that driving a car tires you, try driving a Nash "400". It will give you an entirely new conception of how effortless, how pleasurable, motoring can be!

THE SUFFERING (?) WHEAT FARMERS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Grant county, Kansas, is a dry county;—that adjective "dry" has no reference to prohibition, in this case it means that the county lies in the arid district. When I was a boy and studied geography, all that region was called "the great American desert." Of late years, however, pioneers have discovered that crops may be grown on its soils, after a fashion and occasionally.

It can't be relied on to furnish a crop every year, nor any particular year. The rainfall is too small to nourish even weeds. Yet by the tricks and devices of so-called "dry farming" it is found possible to get a decent crop of the parched surface two or three times three years out of five.

Just why anybody should settle down on such land and try to farm it when there are hundreds of thousands of acres of better to be had for less money even in the eastern states, it is hard to understand. But many have done just that thing. One of the early settlers, still living, recalls how, when he first took over his quarter section, he had to walk 12 miles and back for his cooking and drinking water. He did this twice a week and could bring only 12 quarts at a time. When a well actually reached water, only five miles away, he considered it almost equal to a gold-find.

Now they are raising wheat on that same land. Not every year and not really bunkum crops, but enough to keep them digging away, each year trusting or hoping that it may turn out a profitable one.

It seems that last year was such a hoped-for exception. Fred Fowler of Ulysses, Grant county, had a 23,000 bushel crop of wheat which he sold for a dollar a bushel. That was certainly interesting for Fred. It has elements of interest for others, as well. One of the things which can't help but interest other farmers is to know what Fred did with his $20,000. Did he lay it by as a reserve fund wherefrom to meet the losses of some following lean year? Or did he buy up more arid land and plan to "blow it in" on a bigger seeding this year? Or what?

Well, we're not told what he did with all of his $20,000 windfall. The reporter who chanced along that way doesn't seem to have been interested in Fred's ideas of farm-financing so much as his plans for spending. He learned where $3,500 of the wheat money went, within a very short time after it was paid in.

Dry Farmer Fred Fowler took a part of the big roll over to Wichita flying field, bought an airplane for $3,500, took half-a-dozen lessons in managing the thing and then flew it back to Ulysses, where he received a welcome quite as hearty as could have been extended even to "Lindy" had that ace suddenly dropped down on the dusty plain.

Altogether, what with his travelling expenses one way, his lessons, his gasoline and oil, etc., it is reasonable to assume that the airplane stood him in not far from $4,000 when he nosed it down on the stubble of his home wheat field. That's one-fifth of his income for a whole year—an exceptional year at that, with no promise of a repetition this year, or even next.

What was his idea? He had no hesitation in explaining to the inquiring reporter just why he wanted that airplane.

It is to go fishing with.

As has been set forth, he lives in a "dry" county. Little rain falls on it and its very few brooks dry up almost immediately after any chance shower. There isn't a fish anywhere in that region or nearer than the Rockies, several hundred miles westward. In that sparsely settled new country, railroads aren't direct, nor are trains either frequent or fast. To get from Grant county, Kas., to the nearest good trout brook in Colorado by ordinary means of conveyance takes at least two days. And as much more to get back.

Dry Farmer Fred Fowler happens to be specially fond of fishing. He found that, if he had an airplane, he could fly to his favorite brook in two or three hours, give half a day to fishing and still have daylight enough left to get home before dark.

So he bought a $3,500 airplane, just to go fishing with.

Jim Woods, a farm neighbor, no sooner saw Fowler's plane than he also sped to Wichita, bought another one just like it for another $3,500, took his half-dozen lessons and flew it back to Ulysses. There is no information as to Jim Woods' views in regard to fishing. The assumption is that he got his plane just to show that he could afford it quite as well as Fowler and that he meant to keep his end up.

Now you and I never heard of either Fred Fowler or Jim Woods before, and probably never shall again. We don't care a hoot about either one or both, personally. But when I read the story about them it set me thinking.

For years and years the wheat farmers of the west, especially those of the arid regions where so-called "dry-farming" is practiced, have been complaining, not only among themselves but to the government and the whole world, about their hard times. They have asserted that they couldn't make both ends meet; that they couldn't afford the common necessities of life, to say nothing of its luxuries; that they were facing imminent bankruptcy. They have pleaded poverty with streaming eyes, and demanded help with doubled-up fists.

We farmers of the east, in the midst of our own somewhat strenuous adventures with stubborn soils and stacked markets, have heard and sympathized. We have been disposed to assume that where there was so much smoke there must be some fire. Yet certain things give some of us doubt as to the exact amount of sympathy we should emit.

When one Montana farmer, growing 40,000 acres of wheat each year, reported that he was making good money selling at the very prices which his neighbors declared spelled ruination, simply by resorting to more economical and thrifty methods of production, some of us began to wonder why those complaining neighbors didn't, also, use their heads.

When a careful study of the facts from vociferous Iowa showed that most of the farm bankruptcies in that state were due, not to underpaid farming, but to the abandonment of all real farming in order to get rich quick from land speculation, still more of us began to wonder why we should weep bitter tears over the losses caused to grasping speculators by their own blind greed.

Now comes this story from the dry-farming end of Kansas about wheat farmers buying airplanes at $3,500 apiece, solely for use as amusements.

I don't know how it strikes other people, but when farmers can afford $3,500 airplanes to go fishing with, I am going to put my handkerchief back in my pocket, dry my weeping eyes and start once more figuring out whether or no I can afford to buy a new cultivator to take the place of the worn-out old Planet, Jr. Even if I find that I can't afford that outlay, I'm not going to ask the government to pass a special appropriation for my relief. It would seem much simpler to write to one of those airplane owners and ask him to lend me 15 or 20 dollars. Or even give it to me, outright.

Of course, you and I know practically nothing about the special conditions of farming in dry western Kansas. But we know perfectly well what $20,000 amount to and what such a sum would accomplish in the way of improving the old farm and its buildings, putting in water supplies, clearing up stony or stumpy fields, straightening out undesirable "jogs" in the lines, etc., etc.

I'm wondering, among other things, whether the expenditure of $20,000 in sinking a deep well through the arid top-soil might not tap deep underground water-tables, and the installation of a power pump might not supply water, not only for household and barn needs, but also for irrigation. Perhaps yes; perhaps no. But I can't help feeling that even if such an attempt should prove a failure, it would be more sensible than buying airplanes to go fishing with.

If a farmer has bad luck, if his just-filled barns burn down with all his painfully gathered crops, or if a sudden freshet washes him out, or if a horde of grasshoppers eat his fields bare, or if he gets the flu just when everything depends upon his being well and strong—why, that's one sort of thing.

But when he makes a big crop and gets a big price for it, has "money to burn," as the slang phrase goes, and deliberately throws it away, buying useless contraptions solely for his own sport—that's quite another thing.

If this year proves disastrous to those Kansas wheat growers, returns them nothing to sell, compels them either to starve or call on their reserves, they will know that the $7,000 or $8,000 which they blew in for airplanes this year would have been ample to carry them through, had they saved it for the emergency.

I don't know how many of the suffering wheat farmers are broadcasting their woes from their own airplanes. Judging from the fact that the two above referred to are considered worthy a news story in a big western paper, it may be assumed that they are somewhat exceptional.

But the spirit which they illustrate is hardly exceptional. It is the spirit of "easy come, easy go," of "Go-day, come-day, God send Sunday," the spirit of utter disregard for the future and flabby self-indulgence in the present.

It isn't to be assumed that farmers have any more of this spirit than townsfolk. But they have their fair share.

And any share is too durn much.

THE FARMER.

VENNARD-LIHME CASE ON TRIAL THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 14—The second day of the jury trial of the $50,000 automobile damage case, Edwin D. Vennard vs. Harold Lihme in the Westerly court house Thursday before Judge Herbert L. Carpenter in Washington county superior court. When court opened at 11 a. m. Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun for the defendant moved for a jury view of the accident site, corner of Elm and School streets. Judge Carpenter granted the motion. The jurymen in company with Judge Carpenter, the attorneys, sheriff and deputy sheriffs, proceeded on foot to view the location of the collision, Sept. 21, 1924. The return in the court room was made at 11:45 and Attorney Ferguson outlined the suit.

Edwin D. Vennard, 21 years of age, Dec. 26, in the year of the collision was serving a second enlistment in the U. S. Coast Guard service, at the Walsh Hill station. On the afternoon in question he started for his home in Stonington on a motorcycle. The auto operated by defendant Lihme, approaching up School street from Main street came at a rapid rate of speed. He had just turned his motorcycle as he was proceeding slowly, up School street, in an endeavor to avoid a collision when he was struck and carried a distance of twenty feet. The Lihme car went 82 feet up School street before brought to a stop.

Vennard, who was picked up unconscious, was taken to the Providence Surgical hospital, where he was unconscious for several days. Among his injuries some complications resulted from a severe blow behind the left ear and a bone in his right arm was shattered. After a month's time a plate was inserted in the arm and the bone knitted, but he had lost the hearing of his right ear and the sight of his left eye was impaired, Mr. Ferguson stated that a witness of the former trial, Thomas Coy, had since died, and in time his testimony would be re-read.

The first witness called was William Riddell, a baker, of 66 Beach street who testified that on Sept. 23, 1924, at about 2:45 o'clock, he witnessed the collision. The witness said the automobile was going between 25 and 30 miles an hour.

Mrs. Lydia York Brown, of 79 Granite street, who was walking down School street, testified that she saw two girls following the collision, jump out of the Lihme auto and run down Elm street. Testifying in the afternoon session was Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Motorcycle Officer George E. Madison, Dr. James W. Beach of Providence and Highway Engineer A. L. Leon of Westerly.

To Open Fire Station

Tentative plans for the formal opening of the new Westerly Central Fire Station Headquarters building Union street have been made for a week from next Saturday, provided arrangements can be completed.

RADIO STOCK FEATURED THE MARKET WITH "BULL" PARTY IN FULL CONTROL

NEW YORK, March 14—(AP)—For the first Thursday in several weeks the stock market today refused to take on a dolorous aspect before the weekly federal reserve meeting, and the bull party held an old fashioned carnival, with Radio again providing the fireworks.

The old Radio stock, which has but a few more days of grace before being stricken from the board, was hurled up into the 500 class for the first time, making a net gain of nearly 34 points. The new stock was accumulated in tremendous volume, crossing the 100-mark in a rise of nearly 7 points.

The Associated Press index of 60 leading industrials was lifted 5 points to 218.8, a new high record, surpassing by nearly a point the previous high recorded two weeks ago. Trading took on new life, the day's turnover of 4,623,350 shares reaching the largest volume since March 1.

The fact that the New York Federal Reserve directors made no increase in the bank's rediscount rate after the close of the market had been regarded as fairly definitely forecast in the morning when the Bank of England made no change in its rate. With several foreign exchanges near the incoming gold point, a further increase at London is looked for before the rediscount rate is increased at New York.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent and held at that rate all day, although some was available as low as 6 1-2 per cent, in the outside market. Time money, however, held at the highest levels since 1920, giving no hope of permanent improvement in the credit situation. Taking of about $8,000,000 in gold in Germany was reported, bringing the current movement up to about $18,000,000. It was rumored, however, that some of his gold was for the purpose of pegging German exchange and preventing further loss of the yellow metal to New York.

A decrease of $20,000,000 in federal reserve brokers loans, announced after the close, was better news than had been expected. An increase had been looked for as the new radio stock had to be paid for this week. The New York banks decreased their loans by $211,000,000, but out of town banks put $34,000,000 and "others" $29,000,000 into the market.

Steels attracted strong support on the extraordinarily cheerful tone of the weekly steel trade reviews. Bethlehem, earnings of which are expected to approximate $4 a share for the first quarter, mounted about 5 points to a new top at 108 5-8, and U. S. Steel touched 158 in a like gain.

Motors made one of the best showings of the year, with General Motors touching a new peak at 83 1-2, up more than 5 points. Chrysler, Hudson and Packard also made good headway. Greene Cananea was a strong point of the coppers, making an extreme gain of 6 points.

Pacific Telephone, ordinarily an inactive issue, rose nearly 25 points to 200, but lost nearly half its gain. Rossia Insurance sold up nearly 14 points to a new top. American Radiator, International Telephone, Burroughs Adding Machine, DuPont, General Electric, Porto Rican American Tobacco A and Wright Aero were among issues selling up 6 to 10 points.

National Distillers mounted about 4 points to a new top, then fell back 11 points. Barnet Leather dropped 3 points to a new low.

Commodity markets were steady to firm, save for grains, which eased on more favorable domestic crop news. Cotton turned firm on unfavorable weather reports.

Foreign exchanges eased, with sterling cables dropping 3-16 of a cent to $4.85 1-4. The Canadian dollar ruled at a discount of a full cent.

We allow you $20 for your old range

—when you buy an Insulated Glenwood

This generous allowance, offered for the first time some weeks ago, is still in effect. There are several points about it however that we want to emphasize.

1. It is a bona fide allowance on our established prices for Glenwood Insulated ranges which have been in effect since we introduced these ranges in 1924.

2. It applies on the purchase of any Insulated Glenwood range, regardless of size or style.

Unless it's INSULATED it's not the BEST

3. It is offered for your present cooking equipment, regardless of its present condition and the kind of fuel it uses.

Think of the years that old range of yours has been in use . . . think of its present shortcomings, its black and rusty appearance, its lack of conveniences . . . and you will agree that our standing agreement to take it off your hands for twenty dollars is an offer worth investigating further.

Palace Theatre

One of the most entertaining vaudeville programs seen in this city for a long time opened at the Palace theatre yesterday. Opening this program is Dainty Ethel Marine & Co. in a gorgeous novelty scenic revuette, in the number two spot Weber & Ridnor with their songs and dances went over with a bang, for number three George Fredericks & Co. in one of the most novel acts in vaudeville today more than panicked the audience. This act is a beautiful scenic revue with a moving train on the stage with a real love story. You will certainly appreciate the scenic effects in this act. For number four Bobby Van Horn in his cute little way gave the patrons plenty of laughs and closing this program is Varieties of 1929 with plenty of girls in songs and dances.

Effective scenes of desert warfare are shown with convincing realism at the Palace theatre where "Tommy Atkins" an imported photoplay is giving patrons of the city plenty of thrills, several interesting novelties in picture development and a charming love story.

The desert battles are the real thing and the general military atmosphere is greatly assisted by the English regimentts and natives taking part in these episodes.

The scenes in England are carefully selected and the entire story was produced as a picture exactly on the spots near London and in the Soudan called for by the action of the plot. They are in every respect authentic as the company journeyed into Egypt to obtain actual locations, an idea back of all the imported pictures distributed by World Wide Pictures, Inc.

The picture is taken from a famous play that has a story full of interest and well adapts itself to treatment on the screen. It has been very skillfully handled and audiences this week found its construction admirable, while many scenes of suspense are effectively introduced and hold interest throughout.

It is a film built to popular taste with the added attraction of authentic atmosphere and new personalities to interpret a rapidly moving story.

"Tommy Atkins" is full of action, and the strong military flavor finds favor with American audiences.

Williams Tire & Supply Co.

C. B. Gilbert, president and treasurer of the Williams Tire & Supply Co., of 315 Main street, is a graduate electrical engineer of Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis. During the World war he volunteered and after spending a short time at Newport, R. I., was commissioned as an ensign in the navy and attended the short course at Annapolis Naval academy, later being commissioned to submarine service. After his discharge he entered the employment of the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing Co., as purchasing agent. Later when New London changed to commission form of government Mr. Gilbert was appointed the city's first purchasing agent and held that position until he bought out Mr. Baird of the Baird Tire & Supply Co., and changed the name to the Williams Tire & Supply Co., of which he has been treasurer for the last six years.

Everett D. Morrill of the Norwich Auto Electric Service opened up five years ago in Norwich and has been connected with that company up to the present time. He originally started on Bath street and later moved to larger quarters on North Main street and from there the business was sold to Joe Moore's Garage. Mr. Morrill has recently purchased the business again and has consolidated it with the Williams Tire & Supply Co.

After rendering service in the World war with the 26th division, in which he was wounded, Mr. Morrill took a three-year course in the Technical school in Boston and Springfield, Mass. Later he worked in the automobile electrical business in Springfield, Mass., before moving to Norwich, where he started in business for himself. Mr. Morrill is a well-known member of the Robert O. Fletcher post, of the American Legion, and the Norwich Rifle club.

At Slater Hall Tonight

Lawrence Tibbett was born in Bakersfield, California, thirty years ago. Following the tragic and heroic death of his father, the mother removed with her three little children to Los Angeles, where Lawrence, then aged six, began his education, which was completed there at the High School of Manual Arts.

Tibbett's course of preparation for eventual triumph war far removed from the conventional one. Always he had sung and studied, much of the time alone, but his professional debut was made on the speaking stage with a Shakespearean Repertory company. Following this came an engagement with the Civic Repertory company, to be succeeded by another with the California Opera company. When only twenty-three, he placed to his credit two ambitious undertakings, Iago in Shakespeare's "Othello," and in opera the dramatic role of Amonasro in Verdi's "Aida," sung in the big Hollywood Bowl.

Determining to become a concert singer, Tibbett went to New York for further study and professional connections. In order that his wife and twin boys could accompany him, he arranged to use all he had, borrowing on his life insurance, and took the risk. Five months later he was given a contract with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York, where an unprecedented triumph came early in his second season; success on success has crowned him since.

There is a rugged strength, simplicity and underlying gentleness about Tibbett that go to make the "Abraham Lincoln of Song," the truest description yet given of him; one bestowed by Messrs. Evans and Salter, also internationally known as the managers of Galli-Curci, Elio Schipa and other great artists. Tibbett has the American's keen sense of humor; it shows in his eyes and in his smile which is so infectious and winning. When he sings his voice reflects as a mirror the emotions of his songs.

For all his phenomenal gifts as a world famous artist, Lawrence Tibbett remains as always the modest, sincere, genuine American.

Be sure and hear him at Slater hall tonight where he appears under the auspices of the Rotary club for the benefit of the John Blackmar Boys' fund.

St. Mary's Players

Some debutantes, it seems, prefer a man "with a past" one who knows life—and women; one who has sown his wild oats—these should be sown before marriage, not after, according to Hoyle. Those who have no past are out of luck, i. e. on the stage. Now supposing the father of the house has a partner, his future son-in-law, so he hopes, who has no "past." Will he let that bother him? He will not. He will e t a "past" for him. How? There are various ways by which this can be brought about. What is the one taken in this play? That would be telling a little too much take from your interest in this show, so come and learn for yourself.

Breed Theatre

Thrills galore are in store for patrons of the Breed theatre with the showing of "Coney Island" which opens for a two-day run today.

Lois Wilson and Lucila Mendez are the stars.

One of the many features of Coney Island" is a ride down the giant "dipper," one of the largest and most terrifying riding devices in this country.

Another thrill is the fight, where half a dozen master battlers match themselves against thirty male riders on the roller coaster.

Romance, thrills, danger, suspense, surprise—all these things are truthfully depicted in Fox's stirring drama, which has been directed by Ralph Ince. "Coney Island" has been acclaimed in New York city. Many of the scenes were filmed at the resort, "Luna Park," "Steplechase," the million dollar pier, the cabarets, the Ferris Wheels. "The Giant Dipper" and many of the other attractions are actually shown in "Coney Island."

NEW LONDON PUBLIC WORKS DEPT. BUILDS SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 14—The first sewage disposal plant ever in this city was put into operation today in the Riverside Heights section. The plant will be a great help to New London in caring for sewage problems and is one of the finest in the state. The plant is near the Thames shipyard. It consists of three huge cement tanks, a brick chlorine house and the big glass structure that houses the drying beds. It was designed and built by the department of public works, under the supervision of City Engineer George E. Watters. Sept. 26, there was nothing on the site but trees and ledge, hence it is remarkable that it is practically completed for much of the work was done throughout the winter.

The workmen have put in nights and Sundays on the job. The city has had to acquire land and eventually a 50-foot strip between the shipyard and the plant will probably be leveled off into a street. The city will soon erect a wire fence about the entire plant and the surrounding land, the building will be cleared up, graded and seeded.

LATE CAPT. THOMAS PERRY ONCE LIVED IN GROTON

Captain Thomas Perry, 90, of Mystic, died from a heart attack Wednesday night at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. John F. Doherty of that place. Until the attack Mr. Perry had been in excellent health and the news of his death came as a great shock to many friends. At about 5.30 Mrs. Dougherty heard a noise in the room occupied by her grandfather and when she rushed to the room to find the cause she found Capt. Perry lying on the floor unconscious. A doctor was summoned and Captain Perry was revived for a short time. Within a few minutes he suffered a second attack which proved fatal. He was born in South Hadley, the son of Nehemiah D. and Betsy A. Avery Perry. Sixty years of his life was spent in Groton where he was associated with civic and fraternal activities. Seventeen years ago he went to Mystic to live. He is survived by a son, Harry W. Perry, a sister, Mrs. Adelaide Avery, of New Haven and eleven grandchildren.

Davis is a former sailor and has been arrested five times, four for breach of the peace. The other time was for intoxication. FATHER ALLEGES ATTACK ON DAUGHTERS AT HIS HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 14—Frank Sheriff, 36 Reed street, went to police headquarters tonight and reported an attack upon his two daughters, which he represents occurred at their home last night. That he did not have a telephone in his house was the only explanation he gave for not reporting the attack until 20 hours after he claimed that it was made. Naturally no attempt is being made to determine the identity of the alleged assailant for none of the occupants of the Sheriff household could give a description of the man. Sheriff said that his daughters, one 13 and the other 5, were asleep in bed and about 10 o'clock they were awakened by an intruder in the room. The man, Sheriff said, went to where the older daughter was lying and without making any sound seized her by the throat and started to strangle her. The younger girl, who had been awakened, began to cry and the alarm given by the child caused the man to retreat for the girl's cries aroused her mother. As the mother entered the sleeping room of the daughters, the fellow who had entered through an open window, left in the same way and disappeared in the darkness. Sheriff failed to summon the police, although there was an officer on duty a block away, at Bank and Reed streets, nor did he go to police headquarters until 6 o'clock tonight.

The continued cases of Louis Perkins, of Waterford, charged with manslaughter, and Lester C. Muller, United States Coast Guard, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and not having a license, will be heard in the Waterford town court next Monday forenoon. Both men are at liberty on bail, Perkins' bond being fixed at $5,000. Perkins was driving an automobile on the New Haven turnpike two weeks ago and at Mallory Hill, Waterford, where Nellie M. Beckwith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe L. Beckwith, Willetts avenue extension, was walking with three companions, on their way to Miss Beckwith's home, the four young people were walking on the side of the highway when the car driven by Perkins came along and plowed into the group. Miss Beckwith was struck and sustained a fractured skull, from which injury she died later.

Dr. Herman A. Tyler, United States Coast Guard, is nursing an injury to his eye, sustained earlier in the week, but it is believed that the wound will heal rapidly and with only slight inconvenience to the physician. A piece of wood, from which he was chopping kindlings, flew up and struck near the eye, breaking the flesh and producing much soreness.

The recent activity of the state police will have at least one satisfactory result to the officers at the Groton barracks, for many drivers who have failed to procure a license for the ensuing year and who have not been arrested will seek their renewal of license. The drivers realize that a continuance of driving without that document will ultimately result in their arrest, which means the payment of a fine greatly in excess of the fee charged for the license renewal.

Maurice Feldman, district manager of the United Music Co., has just returned from Onleyville, R. I., where he has just signed a lease on a store for a long term of years.

The new store will handle the same high-grade of merchandise that is handled in their other stores.

United Music Co. have been operating in New England for over 20 years.

Nash Auto

Better service to automobile owners will be the most important national contribution made by the Nash Motors Co. in the year 1929, C. W. Nash, president, predicted today following more than a month's personal participation in automobile shows throughout the country.

Since the first national exhibition opened in New York early in January, the industrial leader responsible for so many major advances in American motor car construction and quality, has traveled almost constantly to the various show centers. With C. H. Bliss, sales manager, and other company officials, he has visited most of the principal distribution centers. He has inspected Nash sales and service facilities in each point, has addressed thousands of dealers and salesmen on the Nash sales firing line and has made a special study of Nash service departments and improvements in service organizations.

"In all my years of automobile work," he added, "I have tried to take my every activity on the simple rule that everyone is entitled to the kind of treatment I would want in any given situation. That has been the policy of the Nash Motors Co. since its inception and, I am happy to say, most men in our organization are big enough to be able to step over into the other fellow's position whenever such a question arises and see his point of view as well as their own.

"In our case, service does not lie alone in making adjustments in an owner's car cheerfully and efficiently. It lies in giving the public the last ounce of value in our power for its money; in supplying our cars with all of the advanced features that are exclusive with Nash; in placing the lowest price on our cars compatible with good business, and in guaranteeing strict honesty and fair dealing to the public throughout our great merchandising organization in every part of the world.

"We are entering a year of high promise and are in the midst of the greatest public demand for Nash products in the history of the company. But in spite of all pressure that may be brought to bear on the part of buyers, the Nash policy of making every car as perfect as it can be made before it leaves the Nash factories will be adhered to as rigidly in the future as it has in the past. With a product that we know is 100 per cent. I look forward to our organization setting a new high standard in service for the industry in 1929."

Broadway Theatre

There are few pictures being made now that can evoke a large audience into a silence of tears and the very next moment make them laugh—a loud uproarious guffaw of spontaneous merriment—yet D. W. Griffith's "The Battle of the Sexes" shown at the Broadway theatre last night did that very thing.

The joys of the average home; its disappointments; its humor and small tragedies have been ably caught by Griffith who shows an innate sense of the romanticism lying behind America's greatest institution—the home.

The story is built upon the theme of a modern gold-digger who wrecks a man's home and steals the man to satisfy her own lust for gold. In the end she loses the man but is victorious in that she has accomplished her purpose—money. Throughout the story there is a strong upward current of pathos as the man's wife and two children struggle to regain their home—the old battle of the sexes.

Jean Hersholt, as the erring father, portrays what is easily one of the finest character roles of his great career. Phyllis Haver as the gold-digger, Marie, plays an unsympathetic role and is the direct cause of much of the comedy. Belle Bennett gives a sympathetic performance as the mother who becomes half-crazed; Sally O'Neil is natural as an unsophisticated home-girl who is instrumental in bringing her estranged parents back to the domestic fold and Don Alvarado as Jimmy plays the role of a male gold digger. The rest of the cast includes William Bakewell and John Batten.

COUNTY CAUCUS ENDORSED BILL PROVIDING $8,000 FOR BAR LIBRARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, March 14—At a caucus of the New London county senators and representatives, at the capitol, this afternoon, the bill calling for an appropriation of $8,000 to provide for the purchase of additional books an dmaking needed improvements at the bar library in New London, was endorsed by a vote of 17 to 7. Senator Mason Manning of Stonington presided at the caucus.

Attorney C. Hadlia Hull of New London, representing the bar association, spoke in support of the bill as did Representative Russell H. Corcoran of New London, sponsor of the bill. Letters from Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court and Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas, endorsing the bill, were read.

Senator Fox of New London inquired if it was obligatory upon the county the books asked for and Attorney Hull informed him it was not. Senator Lillibridge expressed the opinion that the matter should receive careful consideration before action was taken. He called attention to the fact that the county is facing the necessity of constructing a new county home which will involve a large outlay.

In reply to a question from former Senator Beckwith as to what the county expense will be during the next two years, County Commissioner George H. Bradford said: "It remains with you to say. It will be just what you vote." Mr. Bradford spoke in favor of the bill. He said New London county should provide the same facilities for the judges as are provided in the other counties in the state.

There was but little opposition to the bill. On motion of Representative Thomas R. Ball of Lyme the caucus endorsed the bill, 17 to 7.

MAD DOG SHOT BY DOG WARDEN BUSHNELL

Early Thursday evening the mad dog which terrorized a number of residents in Norwich Town, was captured in a wooded section in the rear of No. 562 Boswell avenue and was shot by Dog Warden Chester Bushnell. Selectman William S. Murray stated that the dog's head will be sent this (Friday) morning to the state laboratory for examination. Selectman Murray, Humane Agent Frederick H. Wyant and Warden Bushnell had been searching for the dog throughout the afternoon. A Boswell avenue resident notified them that a dog answering the description of the one they were looking for was in the wooded section in the rear of No. 562 Boswell avenue. They at once went there and located the dog which answered to the description of the one that had bitten several dogs in the Norwich Town section earlier in the day. The animal was a mongrel police dog.

The mad dog first made its appearance on Tannar street, where it attempted to bite a dog owned by Mrs. J. C. Hafner. Mrs. Hafner scared the dog away. It was frothing at the mouth. Several calls were received at police headquarters from Norwich Town people whose dogs had been bitten.

TWO CASES OF SMALL POX IN THIS CITY

Two cases of small pox have developed in this city, it was learned Thursday evening. Health Officer E. J. Brophy stated that one patient has a severe attack while the second patient is mildly afflicted. The patients are Lloyd Seifert, 6, and his sister, Shirley 4, children of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Seifert, of No. 459 Hamilton avenue.

As far as known about 20 people have been exposed to the disease, according to Dr. Brophy. These people have been notified and have been quarantined. It is thought that the children contracted the disease while visiting near Jewett City.

The cases were reported to Dr. Brophy by Dr. George Thompson of Taftville, who was called to the Seifert home to attend the children. They were taken ill on Tuesday, March 5, and the small pox developed Saturday, March 9, the two children breaking out with a rash.

Lloyd, the oldest of the two children, has a severe attack, while his sister only has a mild case.

According to Dr. Brophy these are the only cases in the city. Investigation is being made to learn whether there are any cases in the town of Preshaug, where it is thought the children contracted the disease.

GAVE LECTURE ON LIFE OF INDIANS

Under the auspices of Slater Memorial museum, an interesting and instructive lecture on the Indians was given Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Slater hall by Howard Bradstreet of Hartford. His talk was illustrated with a number of stereopticon slides and was heard by an almost capacity audience, the majority of whom were school children from the public and parochial schools.

Mr. Bradstreet gave his audience a wealth of information relative to the Indians that were living in this country previous to the coming of the white men. His slides were in the mort part from prints made by edrly settlers and now kept on record in various museums. A number of them are the property of Arthur L. Peale of this city, who is especially interested in the Indian settlers of Connecticut.

As the slides were thrown on the screen, Mr. Bradstreet explained each detail in the picture. His only regret, he stated, was that he was not an Indian himself, appearing before the children with Indian dress. The variety of views gave a graphic idea of the life of the Indian. With the aid of maps, Mr. Bradstreet pointed out the locations of different tribes in Connecticut and this country, saying that the tribes that lived in the Connecticut valley were of a peaceful nature.

Mr. Bradstreet made reference to the late Chief Occum of Norwich, who he said spoke to the school children at Hartford and so interesting was his talk and entertainment that he was to have been asked to appear there again, had he lived. A picture of an Indian standing with outstretched arms in evident conversation with a white man seated under a tree surrounded by Indians and white men prompted Mr. Bradstreet to say that the Indian reminded him of Mr. Occum, who at times took the same pose.

A number of the views showed groups of Indians in the cornfields gathering the corn, in the open, drying it and making it into meal, while others were pictures of various homes made of skin, adobe and a combination of the two. Small villages were shown with the cornfields, fireplaces and houses surrounded by barricades. An interesting picture showed the manner in which the Indians hunted deer. Pictures of arrowheads, cooking implements and other bowls were also shown. Mr. Bradstreet explaining how these were made with hammers and rounded stones, views of which were also exhibited with close-ups of hands making and using stone tools and implements.

One picture that brought loud applause was that of Chief Occum (Lemuel Fielding) in Indian regalia. This was the final view and was a fitting climax.

10,000 PERSONS MAROONED BY THE FLOOD IN ALABAMA

Residents of Flomaton and Brewton Are Reported in Danger, With No Food Supplies—Thirty Persons Have Been Rescued From the Town of Elba by National Guard Forces—Rumors That Hundreds of Persons Have Lost Their Lives Lack Verification—Five Planes Are to Drop in Parachutes Provisions and Supplies to the Sufferers.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 15—(AP)—The elemental forces of nature, which covered the towns and rural communities of southern Alabama with water, have so completely conquered man's devices for communication and transportation as to make accurate information as to what is happening in the flooded districts unavailable 24 hours after residents of Elba and other towns were driven to housetops and trees by rising water.

An estimate that 10,000 persons are marooned in the flooded districts and a statement from the Pensacola naval station after seaplanes had flown over the flooded area, and reports from outposts established by national guardsmen sent on rescue missions made up the sum total of information on the situation available tonight.

Rumors that hundreds of persons had lost their lives and that boats of rescue parties had capsized parties into nearby cities and towns, but none could be verified.

Several detachments of national guardsmen were reported to have picked up marooned persons in boats this morning, but nothing further was heard from them, except an unconfirmed report that one boat, manned by three guardsmen, had capsized.

A plane flew over the stricken area during the afternoon, after other planes had failed to make observation during the morning because of heavy fogs. Observers in the newspaper plane looked down on the towns of Brewton, Flomaton, Pollard and Harrington, on the main line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad between Montgomery and Mobile, they saw water standing high up on the houses in each of the places and noted that roadways and bridges had been washed out and flooded so that it would be impossible for food supplies to be brought in.

Brewton's business section was flooded, but there is a high section of ground on which residents have taken refuge, the observers reported. In the other towns over which the plane flew there also appeared to be places of safety.

Elba, however, was completely inundated, and guardsmen who went into that town in boats devoted themselves to saving women and children from the tops of houses on which they had taken refuge. There are approximately 4,000 inhabitants of the place. But no estimate as to the number rescued was made by the guardsmen.

Such scattered reports of their activities as the guardsmen were able to make during the day indicated that they had taken more than 100 persons to safety, but this was taken as giving only a slight indication of what was being accomplished. No reports of bodies of drowned persons having been found were made.

Some of the national guard officers near Elba reported that the water was falling, but the drop, if there was a drop, was not sufficient to relieve conditions. Other reports were that the waters of some of the numerous creeks and rivers in the flooded sections were on the rise while others were stationary or falling.

Of four men who left Troy, Ala., last night in an attempt to reach Elba only R. Stone was accounted for today after their light outboard motor craft turned turtle in Big Creek. Friends here believe the three others, Roy Hutchinson, Ralph Clark, and Tom Jacobs either had reached high ground or had taken refuge in a tree and would be rescued. Hutchinson's mother resided at Elba and the four were attempting to bring her to safety.

As the guardsmen pushed their way through into Elba, reports of alarming conditions were received from Geneva, to the south of Elba and in the path of flood waters that devastated that city and from Castleberry, on the Escambia river, Flomaton on the Conecuh and Brewton near the confluence of Burn Corn and Murder creeks. These streams have been running rampant fro days with crests not yet in sight.

An urgent appeal for food, medical supplies and blankets was made to Gov. Bibb Graves today by Lieutenant Donald Kelsoe, commander of the Enterprise unit of the national guard whose troops rescued 13 women and children from roofs and treetops.

Five planes left for Elba during the afternoon taking provisions and supplies of all kind which they planned to drop in parachutes to the guard unit on the southern bank of the river.

The Red Cross took an active hand in the rescue work.

RED CROSS SENDS FOOD AND MEDICAL SUPPLIES

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP)—The American Red Cross announced tonight that it was sending food and medical supplies into the flooded town of Elba, Alabama, by an airplane provided by General Butler at Maxwell Field, Montgomery.

Red Cross officials said they understood, after conferring by telephone with Miss Mabel Culter, secretary of the Montgomery chapter, that the supplies had been carried from Montgomery by 17 planes with the intention of dropping them on roofs of houses or on a high hill there crowded by refugees. The officials could not say whether the planes had succeeded, but it was their belief that the supplies had been dropped by night fall.

It was said the supplies, which included candles, would be sufficient to last until Saturday noon.

FOOD FOR 19 PERSONS SNOW-BOUND IN ROCKIES

LARAMIE, Wyo., March 15—(AP)—Replenished food supplies and the prospects of warmer weather today alleviated the plight of eighteen men and one woman storm-bound at Summit inn, high up in the Rockies where great snowdrifts have blockaded their only outlet over a mountain road.

Bucking drifts more than six feet deep through the rugged Telephone canyon, ten miles east of Laramie, two of the marooned men made their way here on snowshoes and cut a path over which they were able to return to Summit Inn with food, meat and medical supplies.

The return journey was made on pack horses which provided transportation back to Laramie for four of the marooned group, students of the University of Wyoming here. Three of the students Elmer Clausen, Don Harkins and Clarence Thompson, rode horseback from their prison of snow while another, Ben Buckley and two salesmen plodded along on foot.

With sufficient food to last for several days and fuel to keep them warm, others at the inn made no effort to reach Laramie until there is improvement in road conditions. The road is expected to be open within three or four days.

Among those marooned were seven passengers on an interstate bus line. Including Mrs. Jack McDonald and her baby. The travelers suffered from frost bites when they were forced to plod two miles from a point where the bus became stalled in deep snow.

A sled was sent from Laramie this afternoon in an attempt to bring the bus passengers here.

HEAVY RAINFALL OVER 24-HOUR PERIOD IN GEORGIA

ATLANTA, Ga., March 15—(AP)—Unprecedented general rainfall over a 24 hour period today sent Georgia rivers far above flood stage, cause one train wreck near Manchester in which a Negro fireman was killed, and in the southwestern part of the state for the second time in as many weeks provided an element of danger which called Red Cross officials into action.

Communities in the path of the raging Chattahoochee and Flint rivers, and, further down, of the Apalachicola, were warned to prepare for waters which would perhaps top record stages recorded in 1925.

Montezuma, on the Flint, Albany, and Bain bridge were expected to bear the brunt in that section, while West Point was considered a danger point on the Chattahoochee.

The wreck in which the Negro fireman was killed occurred on the A. B. & A. railroad, when passenger train No. 4 ran into a washout early today. The engine and several cars overturned. W. R. Cosby of Atlanta, the engineer, was injured.

RIVERS OVER IN GEORGIA, FLORIDA AND ALABAMA

ATLANTA, March 15—(AP)—Swollen far beyond their banks by torrential rains of the last sixty hours, a dozen rivers and many creeks tonight had spread over scores of square miles in three southern states, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

The waters had inundated half a dozen or more towns, isolated a score of others, marooned at least 15,000 persons and paralyzed rail and highway traffic.

While there were unconfirmed reports of 150 drowning at Elba, Ala., a city of 4,000 cut off yesterday by the rapidly rising waters of White Creek and Pea river, only four persons are known to have lost their lives as a result of the flood.

George Grice, 21, of Geneva, Ala., was the latest known fatality. He fell from a trestle into the swirling waters of the Choclawhatchee river late today and disappeared. An engineer drowned which plunged through a weakened last night in the cab of his engine trestle and a Negro fireman died in a similar manner in Georgia. The first death was reported from Geneva yesterday where a Negro drowned when his wagon turned over on a flooded highway.

On the Flint river in Georgia, Albany, Montezuma, Newton and West Bainbridgen repared for a recurrence of the floods of ten days ago, the third this year, with the highest crest of the year predicted.

FLOOD CONTINUES IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, March 15—(AP)—A flood menace continued to creep over various sections of the middle west tonight as many rising streams stretched outward.

Quincy, Ills., reported the Mississippi was rising rapidly and had reached the 15.4 feet state today, a rise of more than two feet since yesterday. There was no immediate danger however.

The Pecatorica river valley in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois was widely flooded, bridges and railroad tracks having bene washed out in several places. In Freeport, Ill., the Pecatonica had almost reached its high mark of the 1916 flood. At Winslow, Ills., boats had to be used for a funeral.

Rivers in upper Wisconsin were beginning to rise, the Mississippi having risen two feet at Prairie Du Chien. The Wisconsin, Fox and Wolf rivers also were swollen beyond normal.

In Iowa, the breaking of an ice jam in Little Creek near Mason City released a fresh torrent which swept down on Mason City and flooded many fashionable homes, among them the residence of Hanford Mac Nider former assistant secretary of war, whose family was forced to temporarily abandon its home. From Boone, Iowa, came a report that a farm hand was missing and was believed to have been drowned.

1,000 PERSONS ARE IN DANGER WITH NO FOOD SUPPLIES

NEW ORLEANS, March 15—(AP)—A radio message from the naval reserve station at Pensacola, Fla., to the New Orleans radio station late today said that Flomaton and Brewton, Ala., were "marooned by high water" and 1,000 persons were in danger with no food supplies.

30 PERSONS HAVE BEEN RESCUED BY GUARDSMEN

ELBA, Ala., March 15—(AP)—Thirty persons had been rescued from the town of Elba at 3:30 p. m., by national guard forces.

Two boats, were in operation, Dr. Stanley said, and others would be in use before nightfall.

Rescue work is being directed toward persons atop the smaller houses, the physician stated, as those in attics and atop the larger buildings were not considered in immediate danger.

The Story-Story school building was still crowded with a number of school children and treetops and roofs were still clustered with men, women and children.

LONDON, March 15—(AP)—An official report by a committee of the British medical research council found no benefits from the use of artificial light treatment.

BROUSSA, Turkey, March 15—(AP)—A long pending case involving three American teachers charged with disseminating religious propaganda in contravention of Turkish law came to a close yesterday, the court of appeals upholding sentences imposed upon the teachers by the Broussa petit court.

REPARATIONS EXPERTS ADJOURNED UNTIL MONDAY

PARIS, March 15—(AP)—The committee of international experts discussing revision of German reparations payments adjourned tonight until Monday without taking a final decision as to establishment of an international bank to act as trustee for such payments.

Reports of the sub-committees which were to have been incorporated in the final text of the scheme, were found incomplete, it was explained. These subcommittees will meet again tomorrow to consider some of the details for a report to the full committee of experts.

There has been some feeling among the experts that in the end it may be found expedient to postpone final organization of the bank until various governments have passed upon the experts' report.

Functions of the bank as a trustee, its capital and other resources, as well as its organization for transferring annuities to reparations creditors with the least possible friction in exchange, operations are said to have been decided. It remains to pass upon the makeup of the bank's directorate, a matter which the governments could decide themselves if necessary.

ELIHU ROOT DEFENDS THE WORLD COURT OF JUSTICE

GENEVA, March 15—(AP)—After energetic defense by Elihu Root of the practice of the World Court of Justice in allowing its judges to give dissenting opinions, the international jurists meeting here to revise statutes of the World Court decided today to continue this custom which French jurists thought should be abandoned.

Mr. Root declared that it was not wise in international law to force judges to bottle up their real views on questions, which in the interest of progress and real enlightenment should be published.

Dissenting views may be given in cases involving advisory opinions requested by the league council or in disputes actually submitted to the court for settlements.

Sir Cecil Hurst of Great Britain supported Mr. Root's position.

The jurists agreed that the articles stipulating that judges shall not exercise political or administrative functions should be supplemented by the words "Nor any other occupation of a professional nature."

SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE WITH MEXICAN REEELS

EL PASO, Tex., March 15—(AP)—Romance is mingled with mere inconvenience and the more grim spectre of death to the private citizen where revolution holds sway in the strife-torn Mexico.

Some who seek the thrills of warfare have found happiness in the warlike atmosphere and not a few soldiers of fortune from far-off European countries, wearing spick and span uniforms reminiscent of the World war, have cast their lot with the revolutionary forces of northern Mexico.

But the high cost of living presents some of the inconveniences. All but the wealthy suffer. A cup of coffee, for instance, costs 50 cents in the city of Torreon. Food prices of all kinds have soared. Banks have ceased to function, at least temporarily.

Mexicans who have aided the revolution have hanging over them the fear created by the report that one of the federal generals has already sentenced to death 500 citizens of Torreon.

MAN KILLED, TWO WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE IN DETROIT

DETROIT, March 15—(AP)—One man was killed, two wounded, probably fatally and a policeman was shot tonight in a running gun battle between two traffic patrolmen and the three men at Fourth avenue and West Fort street, near the Union station. The men opened fire when the patrolmen attempted to stop their speeding car.

The dead man was unidentified. His two wounded companions are Joseph Urshel, 23, and Ray Brown, 21, both of Detroit. The wounded patrolman is Fred Ryan. Physicians said his condition was critical.

Police were unable to learn immediately, because of the condition of the two surviving occupants of the speeding car why they fired on the policemen. Ryan and Lynn Auten, his companion officer, said they merely had intended to stop the trio because they were speeding.

SEVEN INDICTMENTS OF CHICAGO GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, March 15—(AP)—Seven indictments naming Jack McGurn and John Scalise as killers of the seven George Moran gangsters slain on St. Valentine's day were returned by the grand jury today before Judge Harry B. Miller in criminal court. Both men, alleged followers of Al Capone, are being held.

The indictments were the first returned by the grand jury in its investigation of the massacre. The state guarded closely its evidence and its witnesses, among whom were several of the close relatives of the seven victims of the gang firing squad. One of the chief witnesses was George A. Britchel, who was reported to have identified the two suspects as members of the murder band and to have heard one say: "Come on, Mac" to McGurn at the death scene.

Mexican Federals Take Durango City

Two Main Forces of Federals and Rebels Now Within Striking Distance of One Another.

(By The Associated Press)

Capture of Durango city by the advance guard of General Calles' army brings for the first time the two main forces of Federals and Rebels within striking distance of one another, and the military campaign of the Mexican revolution is moving faster.

Federal cavalry occupied the city Friday morning, announced Colonel Tapia, chief of the presidential staff. Its fall is of major strategic importance since it opens a new railroad and a new line of advance for the Federals against the main body of Rebels at Torreon.

Rebel troops were said to have fled from Durango before the Federal advance, presumably retreating northward.

General Calles was expected at Durango by noon Friday to establish his headquarters before the final drive on Torreon. He hoped to find the Durango-Torreon railway line in better condition than that from Zacatecas.

Rebel leaders at Juarez, however, denied the Mexico City claims of victory and declared that the Calles army was actually far south of Durango, at Rapauto, in Guanajuato state.

They added that Canitas, previously claimed as well within Federal lines, was really held and strongly fortified by Repel General Urbalejo at the head of 12,000 men.

Rebel headquarters in northern Sonora announced receipt of a telegram from General Iturbe, commanding the Rebel advance against the important seaport of Mazatlan, stating that Federal troops had revolted south of Mazatlan and were cooperating with him. Iturbe was said to be only 69 miles north of Mazatlan, which he expected to reach within five days. He had 4,000 troops against 2,000 Federals.

Meanwhile the Rebels are standing fast in Torreon. General Escobar, Rebel commander-in-chief, told The Associated Press that he had no intention of evacuating the city. He said recent Rebel troop movements near Torreon were only for maneuvering purposes.

Legation Liquor Seized By Police

Truck Load of 60 Cases Was Later Delivered to the Legation—Matter to Be Reported.

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP)—A truck load of liquor for the Siamese legation was seized today by Washington police and the truck driver, who was not a member of the legation, was arrested. The consignment of 60 cases later was delivered to the legation by police under supervision of a revenue officer.

Luang Chara, the third secretary of the legation, said that none of the liquor was taken by the police as evidence.

State department officials said they knew nothing of the incident.

It was indicated, however, that the legation proposed to report the matter to the department.

The seizure of the Siamese shipment is the first since the prohibition act came into effect.

Shipments of diplomatic liquor are immune from search and seizure. The opinions given several days ago by state department officials were that trucks privately driven hauling such shipments were liable to seizure and their drivers to the penalties under the law.

Most of the embassies and legations adopted the method of hiring trucks and having an attache with diplomatic immunity either drive it or accompany it from the port of entry to the legation in Washington.

GEORGE W. OLVANY RESIGNS AS LEADER OF TAMMANY HALL

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall since 1924, resigned today at a special meeting of the Tammany executive committee. He gave ill health as his reason.

The executive committee took the resignation under advisement and has been called to meet again next Friday at which time it is expected, some action will be taken.

The resignation was said to have been unexpected and to have taken several of the directors by surprise. They were quoted as having urged him to reconsider, but Mr. Olvany was said to have refused to budge from his stand.

Former Judge Olvany, who succeeded to the Tammany leadership upon the death of Charles Murphy, had been under fire since the last national election from certain district leaders, but he had been so popular with the rank and file of the hall that it was felt he could the post as long as he wished. The district leaders had criticised him because Tammany failed to give former Gov. Alfred E. Smith its estimated majority in the presidential election last fall.

Mr. Smith, Surrogate James J. Foley and former Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney are among those mentioned as the possible successor to Mr. Olvany.

HOLLYWOOD INCOME TAX COUNSELLOR INDICTED

Edward H. Hayden Charged With Violation of the Revenue Law in Filing False Income Tax Returns For Various Directors and Film Players—Case May Entail Investigation of High Salaried Stars of the Film Colony—Federal Grand Jury Had Previously Indicted Miss Marjorie Berger, Also a "Counsellor"

LOS ANGELES, March 15—(AP)—High salaried stars of the Hollywood film colony were under the limelights of the law today in another episode from real life when the federal grand jury, which has been inquiring into the income tax returns of many of the players, voted an indictment against Edward H. Hayden, "income tax counsellor," for violation of the revenue act. Miss Marjorie Berger, also a "counsellor" for moving picture folk, had been indicted previously on a similar charge.

In addition to the indictment of Hayden, the grand jury indicated that a further investigation would be made of income tax returns filed independently by some of the film stars to determine whether they had attempted to evade payment of the proper taxes. Just what this inquiry would lead to was a source of anxious speculation among some of the stars and directors of filndom.

At today's session of the grand jury Raoul Walsh and Fred Niblo, prominent in work as picture directors, testified. After their testimony the indictment against Hayden was returned. He was charged with filing false income tax returns for various directors and players whose names were not made public.

The indictment of Miss Berger recently came after William Haines, Dorothy Mackail and other film stars had testified. At that time it was stated by some of the grand jurors, that, while the actors and actresses involved would be penalized heavily for the inaccurate returns filed by their "counsellors," there probably would be no criminal action against them.

Hayden, Miss Berger and other "counsellors" are alleged to have made out the returns for their film clients on the understanding that they would receive as their "fee" one-half of the amount saved in taxes. Most of the victims, it is said, thought that the returns made for them were legal.

INCOME TAX EXPECTED TO EXCEED AMOUNT LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP)—Last minute collections were expected by treasury department officials tonight to boost the fiscal year income tax receipts, as of March 21, above the $1,624,174,198 which had been paid in over the same period a year ago.

Present collections up until March 13 amounted to $1,130,415,643. Of this $45,214,847 was received since February, an increase of $3,000,000 over the amount received in the same period last year.

It was explained at the department that the income tax receipts are calculated on a fiscal year basis, even though the returns are based on the calendar year. Under this arrangement, the collection totals as of March 31 will include payments made for the last half of the 1927 tax, along with those for the first quarter of the 1928 tax.

Officials said further that the amount which actually will be reported as reaching the treasury today probably would be less than $20,000,000. Last year the collections reported on March 15 were $14,600,000. This was said to be accounted for by the difficulty of tabulating the vast number of returns, some of which data does not reach here for ten days or more.

R. I. FIGHT AGAINST THE 18TH AMENDMENT

PROVIDENCE, March 15—(AP)—Renewal of Rhode Island's struggle against the 18th amendment, on different grounds than a similar fight in 1921, is forecast in the introduction into the general assembly of this state today of a resolution of Representative William F. Fox, representative of Woonsocket, directing the attorney general of the state to seek a ruling from the supreme bench on whether the amendment had ever been validly enacted.

The resolution directs Attorney General Charles P. Sisson to seek the supreme court's opinion on two questions: Whether 36 state legislatures have validly enacted this amendment, and whether they had a right to do so.

The purpose of the new appeal to the supreme court, according to the terms of the resolution introduced today is to re-establish the Constitution of the United States in the hearts and minds of American citizens

EXTENSIVE STUDY OF COURT ADMINISTRATION

In conference with the Yale representatives, President Hoover discussed the study of law enforcement which he has proposed, in the light of their experience in the law school investigation, which has been in effect for one and one-half years. The study is being made in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York and will be extended to other states.

HOOVER TO ADDRESS THE ANNUAL A. P. LUNCHEON

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP)—President Hoover's first address since his inauguration, will be delivered at the annual Associated Press luncheon to be held in New York city on April 22.

This was made known today after Frank B. Noyes, president of The Associated Press had called on the president at the white house. TWO CONVICTIONS IN QUEENS COUNTY SEWER GRAFT CASE

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—The fighting president of Queens borough, George U. Harvey, once major in the famous "Lost Battalion," today won his second victory over the so-called Queens sewer graft ring which has been accused of having mulcted taxpayers of $16,000,000.

A Queens county court returned a verdict of guilty against Frank Berg, one-time private detective and former political lieutenant to Harvey, and Lubert Levin, who were charged by the borough president with attempting to have him accept a $200,000 bribe if Le would "play along" with sewer contractors and politicians who, he said, form the ring.

A year ago Harvey started the investigation that resulted in the conviction of former Borough President Maurice Connock and Frederick E. Seely, engineer, for conspiracy to defraud the city in the construction of the $29,000,000 Queens sewer system. An appeal is pending for both.

The verdict against Berg and Levin was returned after the jury deliberated one hour and 20 minutes. The two will be sentenced Monday. The verdict carries a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and a ten-year prison sentence.

The conviction was based on Harvey's story that he had been approached last year at his summer home in New Milford, Conn., and offered $10,000 by Berg as a "down payment" of the $200,000 bribe. Levin, Harvey charged, was the "go-between" for Berg and Angelo Palmo, wealthy sewer contractor, who offered the money.

HOOVER TO TRANSFER SOME ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP)—Carrying to the white house the viewpoint of the practical business executive, President Hoover has decided upon the transfer of several administrative officers with a view to the improvement of the public service.

Several officials have asked to be relieved of their present duties and, while complying with their requests, the chief executive wants to retain their service and plans to take them in other posts.

The president's policy was disclosed today in a statement regarding Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, made in response to inquiries from newspaper correspondents. "Mr. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, has asked to be relieved as commissioner of Indian affairs," the president said. "I have the highest esteem for Judge Burke, and I appreciate his very long and devoted service to the country, and I propose later to offer him another important position in public service."

John H. Bartlett, of New Hampshire, first assistant postmaster general, also wants to retire from his present post and it is understood that he will be permitted to do so, and that later he will be given another appointment to a place still to be determined.

DEATH OF THE WIDOW OF "DEVIL ANSE" HATFIELD

LOGAN, W. Va., March 15—(AP)—The half century into which has faded the enmities which made the mountain feud of the Hatfields and McCoys known to a nation, has called one more of the actors in that historic drama, in the passing today of the widow of "Devil Anse" Hatfield, the latter a famed leader of the house of Hatfield.

Mrs. Levisa Hatfield, 87, died today of pneumonia, and with her passing there remains only one outstanding figure—"Cap" Hatfield, a son—who was associated with the activities of the feudists. All members of the McCoy family who were immediately associated with the feud are believed dead.

STREET THRONGED FOR ANNUAL SPRING OPENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 15—Crowds braved somewhat inclement weather this evening to be on hand for the unveiling of the show windows which officially marked the beginning of the spring opening event. All through the business section the electric lights were thrown on at just 7 o'clock, in addition to the protection from semi-darkness, a number of the merchants had also actually covered their displays, removing these covers at the given hour. The unveiling disclosed a brilliant array of colors and designs setting off the very latest spring styles in all form of merchandise. The unveiling brought to a close several days of unsparing effort on the part of the merchants and their decorators. In some instances where shipments of new merchandise had been delayed not arriving until today, the last few hours of preparation were spent in a fevered hurry to complete the plans for the display.

While the window displays were not entered in a competition this year, the public took no less enjoyment in passing judgments, many stating that making a final decision was difficult in view of the numerous attractions to be found. The "window-shoppers" found much valuable information in their inspection of the new merchandise. The stores will be open from 8.30 until 9 p. m. Saturday and the public will be invited to come into the stores during the day and secure more personal information on styles' decrees for the 1929 spring season.

It was reported as unlikely today that an inquest would be held in the double killing of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Henry Bingham of Hartford in a tragic automobile accident at Chaplin Thursday forenoon. County Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, who was summoned to this city, questioned James Ambrose of Providence, R. I., a truck driver, who was the only eye-witness to the tragedy. Ambrose told all that he knew of the accident in which the Bingham car was the only one involved. After listening to this testimony and gathering information on the relative speed of the Bingham Pierce-Arrow car and measurements at the scene, Coroner Bill termed the accident as "purely accidental," adding that the fault, if any, was with the driver.

Under the supervision of Miss Veronica McQuillan, faculty member who has been chosen coach for the annual senior play of the Windham high school class of 1929, the following cast has been selected: Dorothy Wheeler, Cecil Mastin, Earl Potter, Francis Turney, Wallace Powell, Dorothy Donnelly, Harry Cooper, Evelyn Fournier, and Adolph Warren. Dorothy Donnelly and Adolph Warren have the leading roles for the play, "Pex o' My Heart," which has been adopted for the annual presentation. In making the selections for the cast the scholastic standing as well as the dramatic ability of each pupil was taken into consideration. The play will be staged later in April and rehearsals will start at once.

Lionel Chasse, 18, of 75 Brook street and his nephew, Arthur Chasse, 19, of 7 Lincoln avenue were jointly charged with breaking and entering the Leonard Bros. Palmer, Sr. who acted as guardian ad litem for the pair, the youths pleaded guilt and were bound over to the April criminal term of the Windham county superior court by Judge Frank H. Foss. Bonds were fixed at $500 in each case on recommendation of Prosecutor Gaucher and these amounts were furnished by relatives. Just what action may be taken on several other depredations to which the boys confessed guilty in statements made to Investigating Officer Arthur Hurley, has not as yet been determined. The machine stolen from the Leonard garage has been recovered by the police.

The usual spring cry against bad rural road conditions has again come to the foreground. The free delivery route carriers working out of the local post office report the going the worst they can recall with automobiles sinking hub-deep in mud on several places. Carrier George H. Arnold who covers the route to Pleasant Valley, Babcock Hill, Village Hill and other border places in the towns of Mansfield, Windham, Coventry and Columbia, has had to divide his work into two trips daily instead of one. Carrier William Cummings on Route 2 has been forced to detour through fields to avoid muddy stretches on his route which takes him along the boundary lines of Scotland, Windham and Chaplin. Carrier Cummings' automobile broke down under the strain Thursday and he did not complete his day's work until 10 o'clock in the evening. Carrier Fred Nason reports conditions correspondingly poor on his route leading through Chestnut Hill and Leonard Bridge.

As accommodation to those unable to reach him earlier Collector Wilson remained at his office until 8 o'clock in the evening.

Benedict Twerdy and Frank Garmalinsky, neighboring farmers at South Coventry, renewed a six years old quarrel Thursday with the result that they were both arraigned before Justice of the Peace A. M. Gilman of the town court in the evening on charges of breach of the peace. Twerdy was fined one dollar and costs and Garmalinsky five dollars and costs. The court then imposed a bond of $200 in each case as assurance that the men would not re-enter into a dispute for at least a period of one year. They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Albert E. Harmon after Garmalinsky had made a complaint to Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke.

A surprise program is being arranged for the monthly meting of the Congregational church brotherhood to be held next Thursday night at the church house.

CANTERBURY GREEN

A. C. BENNETT STATES VIEWS ON GAME LAWS

Arthur C. Bennett of this place attended the recent fish and game hearing at Hartford. Mr. Bennett spoke twice before the committee opposing bills that in his opinion took away the trappers' rights and deprived farmers of privileges that belong to them. A landowner himself of over 500 acres, he feels that he should have a right to trap on the same without interference. While there was a large majority in favor of the trapping bills, this majority, Mr. Bennett says, was composed mostly of the so-called "city sport" who in most cases hardly owns enough land to keep his "valuable dog" hitched upon. Yet this sportsman is ready to hunt coons, foxes, etc., on the farmers' land and in payment for such accommodation does all he can to deprive the farmer and land owner of the privileges belonging to him.

"I reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet"

"Whirling along the ground at 231 miles per hour to a new world's record was a thrilling experience. It was speed in breath-taking fashion. When I finally brought 'The Golden Arrow' to halt, the nerve let-down was terrific. But out came my pack of Lucky Strike and I soon was smoking in complete happiness. After the strain of my ride the toasted fragrance of Luckies was like a tonic. I reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet. I want to keep trim and fit. I want to feel the glow of pep and health at all times—the thought of excess weight really frightens me. I welcome a Lucky instead of sweets and things that would make me soft."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This confirms in no uncertain terms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

ATTAWAUGAN BREACH OF PEACE CASE TO BE SNAPPY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 15—The stage was being set this afternoon for a hearing in the town court Saturday on what may be termed "the battle of Attawaugan." Advance reports on the affair indicate that it is an unsavory mess, involving at least three men and an attractive widow. Those who will face Judge W. Fenner Woodward in court on Saturday will, among other things, be charged with breach of the peace. It was indicated in official circles this afternoon that words and rocks flew thick and fast at a home in Attawaugan last night, and those alleged to have participated in the melee will be asked to tell the court all about it on Saturday. State officers had made two arrests up to this afternoon, and there was the prospect of others being made.

For many years Mr. Cook has gone south regularly every fall season and on some of his trips has been down to South America. This year he spent his time in Florida and in Cuba. Havana, Mr. Cook, says, is crowded with American tourists, and a gay time they are having of it. The city is wide open. The horse and dog races draw immense throngs. There are gaming places and cafe galore, dance halls and dance gardens, all liberally patronized by the visitors from the states. Above all Havana is a beautiful and historically interesting city.

It is understood that the $7,500 appropriation included in the recently adopted budget of the town of Killingly for gravelling roads is to be equally apportioned between the three voting districts of the town, each of the selectmen having supervision of the expenditure of $2,500 of the appropriation. Killingly, one of the largest towns in area in eastern Connecticut, has in excess of 150 miles of highway, and only a very few miles of this is in trunk line systems or of the state-aid class. Many of the dirt roads are carrying a heavy amount of travel, now that about every farm place includes an automobile among its accessories and that numbers of trucks operate over these roads. This travel means heavy upkeep costs, but suggests that the roads must be kept in reasonably good condition in the interest of those who live along them.

Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church is to preach at a service at the Congregational church in Brooklyn Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Sunday school hour will be at noon.

Mention of the fact that the Jewett City postoffice is to have enlarged quarters calls to mind, that there is real pressing need for more space at the Danielson postoffice, and it is suggested ever so modestly that Danielson would like a new postoffice building, something that has been talked about the past 15 years or more.

DEMERS DRAWS DOWN HEAVY FINE IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 15 — Edward Demers of Bridge street, arrested yesterday by Officer Joseph Page of the Putnam police, was before Judge M. H. Geissler in city court this morning on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his driving privileges were suspended. He pleaded guilty to the offense and received a fine of $100 and costs of court. As of late Judge Geissler has been imposing the strictest penalties upon offenders of the suspension laws and Demers was one to pay the extreme penalty. Demers was arrested and convicted a few months ago on a charge of operating while under the influence of liquor.

Geddes of Danielson barracks was before Judge Geissler this morning upon a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license. A third case slated for hearing in city court was that of theft by a North Grosvenordale minor, arrested Thursday afternoon by Capt. of Police Jarvis. Probation Officer Peter A. Gardner informed the court that he would endeavor to prove that the youth did not steal the wheel, if granted a continuance of one day. It is believed that sometime during the coming week the city water commission will meet to discuss the reconstruction of the city water system, at which meeting Engineer Shannock of the New England Underwriters' association will be present. At the March meeting of the common council, Commissioner Thurston told the common council that he would submit a comprehensive report of the proposed plan of reconstruction after the conference with Engineer Shannock of Boston. To hasten the report, Mayor Richard set March 21 as the evening when the council would hear the plan of the commissioners. With the date for the adjourned meeting less than a week away it is thought that the meeting of the commissioners and the underwriters' representative, who has volunteered his services to the city, will be held at an early date. As stated at the open meeting of the council held a fortnight ago, the commission will propose the erection of a million-gallon steel tank enlargement of the mains and increasing the hydrant supply. Many technical details will be explained and outlined by Mr. Shannock, who is recognized as New England's best authority on water systems.

Thursday evening's call was the 30th of the year for the department.

Edward White, one-time of Putnam is now being sought by Massachusetts police authorities, according to a dispatch received today. White has been arrested for a number of rural thefts in this vicinity and has committed larceny in other towns near Putnam. About the time a number of cords of lumber and sawed wood disappeared from woodlots in the vicinity of Putnam, White disappeared and has not been seen for several months. In addition to being wanted for questioning by the local police, the Connecticut state police are desirous of interviewing the man in connection with thefts which have occurred during the past half year. The mercury soared to its greatest heights today when it reached a temperature of 79 degrees, the highest point attained during the recent warm wave stroke. Special Deputy Chauncey E. Genung of the state department of domestic animals, who has spent several days in Putnam in connection with the quarantine on dogs in northern Windham county, said Tuesday that no definite date as to when the domestic animal department will life the ban on dogs has been announced. A jury panel for the short calendar session of superior court, slated to open at Putnam on next Wednesday morning, has been drawn for the cases to be tried.

Travel in the rural sections of the town is reported as being extremely difficult because of the warm wave that has softened the roads and left them in muddy conditions. The cars of the rural carriers of the local post office bear all the earmarks of the hard going.

JEWETT CITY

SMALL POX CASES LIGHT, BUT CAUTION NECESSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 15—Two cases of supposed chicken pox in Pachaug have been found to be smallpox. The patients are LeRoy Holmes and his son Royal, five years of age. The disease was contracted from the child's grandfather, George Kennedy in Lisbon. Mr. Kennedy's son Alfred of Bridgeport, came home for a visit and he had what was thought to be chicken-pox, which his father contracted from him. The grandfather's case was diagnosed as chicken-pox. The Holmes family visited there. When the child developed the rash, no physician was called, as the parents supposed it was chicken pox. Two weeks later the father had the same rash. Two Seifert children of Norwich visited the Holmes family and are ill with small-pox as diagnosed by Dr. George Thompson of Taftville. Health Officer Edward J. Brophy of Norwich and later Dr. Lamber of the state board of health of Hartford. The latter came Thursday evening to notify Health Officer Jennings, and they visited the Holmes family at once. Neither father or son has been very ill; but no precautions having been taken, a large number of people in Pachaug, Jewett City and Norwich have been exposed. Friday noon Dr. Jennings had vaccinated twenty people in Pachaug who had ben exposed, and they are under voluntary quarantine not to leave their premises for three weeks.

There are no other cases of smallpox, as far as known to the health officer. Every precaution is being taken by Dr. Jennings, who gives warning that it remains for every person who has been exposed to obey his orders implicitly, for the safety and peace of mind of the public, as is being done in the majority of the cases.

SEVEN HERMIT THRUSHES SEEN NEAR NEWENT CHURCH

Dr. G. H. Jennings and Rev. J. W. Reynolds were witnesses of an exhibition of attractive local bird life, as early in the season as it is, rare in occurrence. In the rear of the Newent church while walking down the Old Road early this week, they came upon and counted individually seven hermit thrushes. It is believed that having recently arrived is the reason for so many being in company. Ordinarily if one is seen during the season the observer is considered fortunate.

C. A. Stephens Writes From Maine

A local admirer of C. A. Stephens of Norway Lake, Maine, has received this week a personal letter from the distinguished author. It would be a difficult matter to enumerate the long list of local people who have been especially attracted by the writing of Mr. Stephens. Besides being invited to come to the "Old Farm" this winter, this wonderful genius in Maine woods story writing, says that the man who last wrote him up in a Boston daily, got him two years too old, and that he is only 80, having been born in 1849. Among other interesting things he wrote to his Jewett City friend, was that Boston papers have said that Addison, Halstead, and Theodore, were his brothers and sister, which he says is not so, "they were my cousins." Mr. Stephens tells that he still lives in the "Old House" on the "Old Farm" and even today at 80, is writing stories about the "Old Squire." Local lovers of his fine clean narratives have sent to Mr. Stephens this week their most cordial greetings. Miss Bessie Burton of Griswold, among his many local admirers, has every story he has written for the last 30 years, preserved and indexed for reference. There are close to 2,000 in all.

MR. AND MRS. BINGHAM AT PACHAUG CONFERENCE

Several in Jewett City, some of them descendants of the Bingham family, were much shocked at the tragic death of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bingham of Hartford, Thursday, near Clark's Corner. Those who attended the Six Church conference held in Pachaug September 21st, 1927, remember Mr. Bingham as one of the singers in the choir on that day. The Bingham men and some of the women have been very musical, and Edwin Bingham possessed a resonant bass voice. He and his wife accompanied Rev. Warren S. Archibald, D. D., pastor of the South Congregational church of Hartford to Pachaug, where Dr. Archibald preached the morning sermon. Mr. Bingham willingly gave his assistance in the choir, by a coincidence standing next to another descendant of the Binghams, neither being aware of the relationship at the time. Mrs. G. A. Haskell knew Mr. Bingham as governor of the Mayflower society descendants, of which she is a member.

Mrs. Anna Cummings is recovering slowly from an attack of grip and tonsilitis.

A number from the borough plan to be in Norwich Sunday evening to be present at the third annual concert, to be given by St. Patrick's church choir.

TAX REFUNDS.

It is a new policy that has come from the treasury department and received the approval of President Hoover, when the order is presented and signed providing for making public the facts surrounding all tax refunds involving more than $20,000.

When the government collects it insists upon payments in keeping with its requirements. In case of a dispute it is necessary to meet the government requirements and then seek redress through the established channels. The case is not kept open until the matter has been decided, for the government takes the money and makes such returns as it can be proved are justified.

This has involved large sums of money. After full inquiry or a hearing on the facts the contention of taxpayers have been upheld or compromises have been effected with the result that congress has been called upon to provide the money for making such repayments, over two and a half billion dollars having been returned in such a manner.

Heretofore, such cases have been kept from public scrutiny, because it has been the policy to keep tax returns and details connected with them out of public sight for the protection of the interests of those directly concerned. Because the refunds have been large in many instances there has been a demand to know something of the circumstances surrounding them and it is in response to this demand that the new policy has been formulated. Under it, however, there is to be no giving away of business secrets and tax returns are not to be open to inspection, but there will be a setting forth of the necessary facts surrounding the respective cases and the citations upon which the decisions have been based.

It is a step which should clear up any uncertainty which might arise concerning the tax refunds, and especially the large ones, and inasmuch as the publicity will do no harm, there is no good reason why it should not be available for the purpose of dispelling suspicion and misunderstanding. It is a move which clearly expresses the attitude of the administration.

SIGNS AND BILLBOARDS.

Kansas has expressed itself in regard to advertising signs and billboards along state highways. It did so in a manner that caused opposition to the point of carrying the legislation to the supreme court of that state to see whether it was lawful. The court upholds the legislators and the result is that signs and billboards can be removed from the highways of that state.

By the Kansas law, even though it is a big state and has some great open spaces, any kind of signs, except official markers on the rights of way of highways and any type of advertising sign within 500 feet of a turn in the road, an intersection or a railroad crossing is prohibited. In accordance with that and the decision of the supreme court in upholding it, Kansas is in the position that Minnesota was not so long ago when it got the right to remove similar signs on the highways.

Safety and the preservation of the unbroken lanscape are the chief objects in such legislation. Signs and billboards cannot be said to add to the attractiveness of the countryside and there are times when, because of the position in which they are placed, they are a direct handicap to the highway users because of the manner in which they obstruct the vision and deny a view of the road ahead which would otherwise be obtainable.

It is inevitable that the lovers of the country should be as much opposed to the manner in which they obscure the landscape as the residents of cities are to the manner in which they have at times shut off views and become decidedly objectionable to nearby property owners.

In many instances the objection to signs and billboards has been recognized by the ones erecting them and in deference to the objectors, they have been removed. They have recognized that any method of advertising that caused resentment was undesirable, but it becomes increasingly apparent where they exist that sentiment against them is growing rather than decreasing and states are making it clear that there is a remedy to be had if it becomes necessary to use it.

JUSTICE FOR ALL.

If respect for traffic regulations is going to be obtained, Magistrate Ewald of the traffic court in New York believes that they must be enforced and that the violators must be made to understand that violations amount to something. At least that is the impression that is gained from the manner in which he deals with the cases that are brought before him.

He isn't disposed to tell them not to do it again, to hand out suspended sentences, to preach on the evils of disobedience or to order them out of town. According to the offense he is inclined to impose a sentence of what he considers a sufficient number of days in jail and a fine, believing apparently that those drivers who know better than to disregard regulations will have a greater respect for the requirements in the future. He believes to make the regulations amount to something they should be properly enforced.

It was only a few days ago that a Connecticut judge was appealed to in behalf of a young man who had killed another on the highway while driving under the influence of liquor. There was an opportunity for a leniency plea and it was made but the judge rightly took the position that there was the family of the dead man who was entitled to some consideration and there was the protection of the public which could not be overlooked. If such dangers are tolerated through leniency there are certainly going to be more of them, and the New York magistrate believes that the longer the courts play with the traffic violators the more there are going to be.

It is easy to get the idea that regulations amount to nothing, that violations will bring no penalty and that obedience isn't necessary. That impression can be created by a court or the court can cause those who are concerned with such regulations to have a wholesome respect for them by letting it be known that the regulations really mean something and that those disregarding them can expect to find it out. This is well illustrated by the fact that traffic violators dread to go into court when Magistrate Ewald is presiding, but care little about it if another magistrate is presiding.

AVOIDING A DEFICIT.

One thing over which President Coolidge was much concerned was the prevention of a deficit. The thoughts of such a thing was a nightmare to him and he was ready to use every possible means of preventing it if such a thing were possible.

There were three factors on which much hinged. One was the expenditures by congress, another was the money received by the government from the various sources and the third was the curtailment of expenditures that could be made by the government.

Congress saw the necessity of keeping within bounds although it indulged in an increase in appropriations, the government departments have been paring expenditures and practicing economy and now with the early tax receipts reported it is possible to get an idea of what may be expected from that direction. When Secretary Mellon declares that receipts have exceeded expectations, up to the time of his statement, by $4,000,000, the promise is that the first quarterly tax payments will show that the government will have more funds than had been estimated. This means that conditions have made it possible for the revenue to be increased under the same taxing conditions. That reflects a healthy state of affairs and gives increased assurance that there will be a surplus at the end of the fiscal year next June.

Such is, of course, as it should be, and yet the difficulty of making estimates that will prove themselves at the end of the fiscal year can be appreciated when it is realized that by the decision of the supreme court concerning increased rates for the railroads the government must meet the sizeable bill of about $45,000,000. Should there be a surplus for the year of $50,000,000, as some think, that expense would still leave the government on thin financial ice.

JUST A LULL.

Not only has Major Segrave declared that he will do no more speed racing with his Golden Arrow but he is credited with the statement that he is through with it for good, that his car will be placed in a British museum and if there are any new records to be made it must be done by others.

It is much the same attitude that is taken by the builder of the White Triplex that was wrecked. The machine has been put out of commission but he declares that he is also through.

These are the direct outcome of the fatalities on the Daytona beach speedway. It is a natural reaction, but it is believed that it will mean only a lull until time makes it possible to dull the memory of what happened there. That isn't the only speedway where drivers have been killed and other deaths did not prevent a live interest in establishing new speed records.

Major Segrave has turned from motor racing to speedboat racing. He may yet get interested in airplane racing and try for speed honors in the air. No doubt the death of Lee Bible has had its effect upon him and brought him to a realization of the chances he was taking but it is believed that there will be others who will be eager to take his place under proper conditions. There is a magnetism about it that is about as hard to overcome as it is for a fisherman to declare that he will travel no more brooks. Just now Major Segrave can rest on his laurels without further concern. He is at the top but it may be another story if within a reasonable time his record of 231 miles an hour is exceeded.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: With March half gone there will be no further fear of the groundhog.

That Boston man who drove a robber away with a hatchet showed the right kind of tender-heartedness.

Not much has been heard this year about that old fashioned arrangement of six weeks sleighing in March.

The followers of Izaak Walton are not going to be able to contain themselves much longer if March gets more springlike.

If it is so that the small towns control the legislature, they ought to get some attention for their dirt roads without much trouble.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Horace Mann, to whom America owes more than to any other individual for its system of public school education, once said in a great speech at Boston in 1849: "In building for the future let us not forget that the boys and girls of today are going to be the nation's greatest asset of tomorrow. Your temples, your works of art, your great engineering projects will all crumble some day, but your men and women will live forever." This corresponds with the thought of the ages that the material works of man, marvelous as they are, and lasting as many of them have been, will once again mingle with the dust. The only thing necessary for this is time. But the human being alone is a candidate for immortality, and Horace Mann was dead right in doing the most for the rising generation, for it is here and now that preparation is made for the hereafter.

It is well to keep the dates of great or unusual events in mind, and there are many arguments in favor of this. A great event, whether it is a blessing or a disaster, may carry with it many important lessons for us to learn. There is not a single day in the life of any one of us when we do not stand in dire need of learning something useful. We have recently passed March 12, which is the anniversary of the day when the "great blizzard" of 1888 was at its height, and it was some height, too. There is no record of a greater snowstorm in the history of New England. At that time and since the question has been raised if it is possible to have a snowstorm three feet or more on the level, is it not clearly possible for one to come to twice the depth? And if that should occur, the amount of suffering would surpass anything known in this section of the country. That it has not shown that we are under a kind Providence.

March 4 of this year had something more than the inauguration of a new president. It was just 100 years to a day since Andrew Jackson was inducted into the seat office of chief magistrate. One can hardly help to compare the United States of those days to what it is at the lapse of another century. We can easily see that the America of that day did not cut such a swath in world affairs as it has since, and especially since the World war. For many nations the inauguration of our presidents seemed a very tame affair compared with the pump and pageantry of a royal coronation. There was nothing of the tinsel glitter that marked the bestowment of the kingly prerogative, and many foreign statesmen predicted the utter collapse of the whole democratic scheme of government. But from the first inauguration to the latest national growth has been uniform.

There were many other features that marked the radical difference between the ceremony of March 4, 1829, with that of the same date this year. One hundred years ago the city of Washington did not even give promise of the metropolitan city that today is so visibly in evidence. The most optimistic of those who listened to Jackson's outline of the purpose of his administration never dreamed that on the 100th anniversary of that occasion the little unpretending city of a few thousand would be in the half million class; that its palaces would rank with the finest in the world; that it would have a Congressional library building that would outrank any such building on earth, in point of architectural beauty and utility. Jackson himself did not surmise how many cities would have his statue as one of their civic ornaments.

There is another difference between what was seen in Washington of March 4 this year and the less pretentious ceremony of a century ago. Up to that time no man had been elected president outside of the original 13 states. "Old Hickory" was a product of Tennessee. He was a rough, uncut diamond, having all the crudities of a backwoodsman plus great virility of mind and body. He was not a university man, nor a trained public speaker, and his voice, being untrained, was weak and had little carrying power. However, his personal popularity was such that when he rose to deliver his inaugural speech he was accorded a marvelous spontaneous ovation. Only those who were near the balcony and directly in front could hear a word of his address. His fellow backwoodsmen were perfectly satisfied to see him and realize that the country as a whole had accepted their idol as one who would be at the helm, and he did it with such a manly grasp that they gave him a second term.

It would be losing a great opportunity not to draw a comparison between hearing a president's address 100 years ago with one of this age. Whereas a very small number comparatively were able to hear Andrew Jackson, it has been estimated that more than 35,000,000 in all probability heard distinctly every word of President Hoover's speech. That is only one phase of the marvelous advancement between 1829 and a century later. What would Jackson and his peers of that day have said if they could have seen the mighty processions of automobiles piling into Washington from all the states? At that day travel by steam had only just been begun—it was in 1828 that the first train for passengers was used. But even that would have astounded them less than to have heard a voice coming out of a machine, giving the address of the new president.

There are some other phases of these quadrennial occasions that need to be considered very seriously. All the papers told what a miserable rainy day it was for such a grand celebration. Those who were historically minded must have recalled the tragedy of one of our presidents who took such a cold from being soaked with rain at his inauguration that he died but a month in the white house. And these do not stand alone in the record of almost impossible inauguration days. More than once, naturally and logically, the question has been raised, inasmuch as March is one of the most dismal of months in Washington, why not have the date of inauguration changed to a milder part of the year, when such storms are at their minimum. There is nothing particularly sacred about any day in itself, even though sanctioned by the constitution. The people of the United States are greater than the constitution.

In several places it is reported that robins have been seen, and that, while not an infallible sign of spring, is a good harbinger of it. If trained men with their intelligence cannot always predict the coming of spring with accuracy, we ought not to expect the birds with nothing but intuition to guide them to be more clever in their forecasts. I think we are all willing to receive it with open arms when it comes, although we have not had a winter of unusual severity. The uniformity of the mercury at the morning hours of this winter has even been commented on by scientists. Sure it is that we have not jumped from one extreme to another as in many past winters. If you and I, fellow citizens, conformed to law as closely as even the New England weather does, not only would we have a larger bank account and smiling faces, but our chances of a glorious hereafter would be amazingly increased.

SOME ASPECTS OF MEXICAN GEOGRAPHY.

Many of the 28 states of Mexico have been mentioned in stories of the recent revolutionary outbreak, but nearly all news stories agree in the prominence of four: Sonora, Coahuila, Nueva Leon and Vera Cruz. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society gives the geographic and economic background of these four states and of three key cities, Monterrey, Vera Cruz and Tampico.

"Sonora, in northwestern Mexico, which is the fountainhead of the new revolution, has points in common with our own southwest," says the bulletin. "To many Mexicans in other states, the Sonorans are the "Yankees of Mexico." This is because of their alertness and activity and because contacts with Americans have shaped many of the Sonoran customs.

Mining and Ranching Chief Activities

"Nearly every well-to-do family among the merchants and ranchers has sent its sons and daughters to schools in the United States, and it is not difficult to find natives who speak English fluently. There has been a stream of American goods into the state, and in Sonoran homes one is instantly seeing American phonographs, sewing machines, baby carriages and brass beds.

"The state is primarily a mining and cattle country. Rich silver, gold and copper mines have been operated since the coming of the Spaniards; and there are treasures, some of the rarer minerals, never yet worked commercially. In the southern end of the state lies the valley of the Yaqui river, home of the Yaqui Indians. All Mexican governments have found these Indians an unruly lot, and sanguinary wars have been fought with them.

"Sonora has several gateway towns along the American border. At Nogales, an important railway enters Mexico from the United States, striking south to the gulf of California and thence along the Mexican west coast for 500 miles or more. Turning inland, it reaches Mexico City.

"Adjoining Sonora on the east lies Chihuahua, Mexico's biggest state, which according to early reports remained faithful to the federal cause. Immediately east of Chihuahua is Coahuila, another center of revolutionary activity. Coahuila is a semi-arid region crossed by mountains and with some desert patches; but with considerable areas on which wheat can be grown and cattle pastured. It was to this state that Texas was linked when, a century ago, that huge commonwealth was a part of Mexico. Saltillo, in the southern part of Coahuila, was a common capital, and to this remote town, across deserts and barren mountains, the early American colonists of Texas had to go to present their petitions.

Monterrey is Railway "Nerve Center"

"Monterrey, capital of Neuva Leon, lies about 130 miles south of Laredo, Texas, and 500 miles north of Mexico City. It has a population of more than 100,000, and is one of the most progressive and modern cities in Mexico. Its chief importance from a military point of view lies in the fact that it is the railway 'nerve center' of the republic. Through Monterrey passes the main railway line between Mexico City and the eastern United States, crossing the United States-Mexican border at Laredo, Texas. Two other railways from the border converge at Monterrey: one from Eagle Pass, Texas and one from Brownsville, Texas near the mouth of the Rio Grande.

"The spokes of the city's wheel of railways also include a line extending due west to Torreon and the Mexican lake district, the main line south to San Luis Potosi and Mexico City, and a line southeastward to the port of Tampico. Without this rail center, it will be almost impossible for the Mexican government to maintain railway connection with the United States.

"The state of Vera Cruz is a narrow band of territory covering the lower part of the eastern gulf coast of Mexico. About midway of its coast line is the city of Vera Cruz, which has been the water gateway of Mexico from the days of Cortez. From Vera Cruz a railway extends inland, climbing the mountain bulwark that rims the central plateau on which the City of Mexico lies.

Tampico Growing in Importance

"Vera Cruz is for the most part a low-lying country given over to bananas, sugar and rice plantations and the growth of other tropical plants. There is no north and south railway throughout the state, only relatively short stretches of track up and down the coast from the port. This situation emphasizes the importance in the affairs of the state, of the city of Vera Cruz, the sea gateway, and the city of Orizba, 60 miles inland, on the road to Mexico City. The holding of these two cities will mean control of the state.

"In recent years the port of Vera Cruz has slipped somewhat from its former dominant position among Mexican ports, while Tampico, 230 miles to the north, has grown rapidly in importance. This advance of Tampico at the expense of Vera Cruz has been due chiefly to two factors: the development of petroleum supplies in the vicinity of Tampico and labor and employment restrictions in Vera Cruz that have discouraged importers and exporters. Since a railway has been in existence from Tampico on to the plateau at San Luis Potosi, an ever-increasing stream of goods from overseas has flowed to Mexico City over this route. This geographic and economic situation is of great importance to the federal government at this time. With Vera Cruz and Monterrey in the hands of the revolutionists, the San Luis Potosi-Tampico route will give the City of Mexico its only avenue of intercourse with the United States."

"LENT AND MY GOD AND FATHER"

Memory Verse for Saturday

"The heavens declare the glory of God" (Psalm 19:1). (Read: Psalm 19:1 to 6 and Romans 1:19 and 20).

MEDITATION: Surely it is the fool who hath said in his heart that there is no God. The witness of Him is everywhere about us. Nor does it grow fast with the progress of knowledge. We have but to behink ourselves as we look upward by day to read a divine handwriting everywhere. We have but to listen intelligently to hear "earth with her thousand voices praising God." Let me think of this as I go about, remembering that He who clothes the grass of the field with beauty and feeds the birds by a wonderful arrangement is also my God and Father.

PRAYER: O God, who hast established the world and the life of all Thy creatures in a wonderful order, we pray that Thou wilt illumine our minds by the brightness of Thy Spirit that we may behold Thy glory and discern Thy goodness in all the works which Thou hast made. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

School Sickness Reduced By Simple Measure; Scholarships Improved

By J. H. Mason Knox, Jr., M. D.,
Baltimore, Maryland.

Although sanitarians and pediatricians have been advising for years that the infant and the runabout child spend as much time as possible, properly clothed, in the open air, or in rooms with open windows, and although this environment in fresh moving air has been shown to be of great advantage to debilitated or tuberculous children, it is remarkable that in this and other countries the vast majority of well children after the age of six or seven years are allowed to be without this advantage and to spend a large part of their day in school rooms with windows closed.

The kind of environment that has proved to be an aid in restoring health to the ill would be equally effective in maintaining health and preventing disease in the well child.

Open air schools for delicate children, sanatoria of various kinds and summer colonies and camps, for years have been in operation in growing numbers in many countries.

The movement for open air schools began about 20 years ago in the United States. A great impetus was given to the project by the support of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund in Chicago. Many specially constructed school buildings have been erected throughout the country. The expense was large, and to secure most of the advantages at less cost "open window rooms" have been advocated instead of open air schools, especially in cold climates.

Corner rooms with southerly exposure are preferable. It is not thought advisable to have the rooms very cold. Sufficient heat is introduced to insure the comfort of the occupants, the temperature of the room ranging from 60 degrees to 68 degrees F. It is essential, of course, that the children should be clothed sufficiently to keep warm. In all of these schools, especial attention is given to the health of the children. Rest periods are provided, and frequently supplementary meals are furnished.

A study of large groups of children in schools of this character indicated that absences on account of respiratory diseases were one-third lower than among school children taught in closed rooms mechanically ventilated. Other reports showed that the percentage of children who failed of promotion was less in the open air school, and teachers generally spoke of the increase in alertness of the pupils in free-moving air.

Apparently, therefore, if the education of children of America is to be conducted under conditions most conducive to bodily and mental health, there must be a gradual replacement of the closed for the open window school for the average child.

Stories That Recall Others

Mistaken Identity

A small boy carrying a glass jar entered a drug store and said to the clerk: "My father told me to get a dime's worth of water for his car."

The clerk soon reappeared and tendered the jar to the boy but the lad did not produce his money. Instead he shook the jar vigorously and seemed displeased with the result. Then solemnly he returned it with a confident mein as he remarked: "This ain't the kind; my pop said still water, and this is wobbly."

To Blow Her Nose

Little Rose, who is past three, frequently calls on a neighbor to play with an Angora cat named Betty. One day when she was having a delightful time, Betty had a spell of coughing and sneezing. The neighbor opened the door and told Betty to go out until she was over the spell of coughing; that it was not nice to sneeze where there were children.

Presently a member of the family came in and inquired for Betty. Rose spoke up and said she had "gone out to blow her nose."

Superstitions in Roumania

TURNU-SEVERIN, Roumania. (AP)—Roumania is a land where mediæval customs, habits and superstitions strangely mix with modern tendencies.

Weirdest of all ancient customs which still survive among the peasantry is the practice of the women beating themselves when sick. They believe their illness is due to an evil spirit having entered the body and that, if they chastize themselves, the spirit will depart. When one of their children dies, they also resort to self-flagellation, believing an evil spirit has entered their body as well as that of the child.

This superstition is particularly common among the gypsies of Roumania. Not infrequently the practice is carried so far as to cause death or permanent disability. One Roumanian gypsy woman whom an American doctor recently visited was apparently about to die. She was suffering from pneumonia. The physician found numerous bruises all over her chest, which had seriously aggravated her condition. Upon being questioned, she admitted the bruises were due to a beating she had given herself because one of her eight children had died.

Other beliefs among the Roumanian peasantry are equally strange to the American. For instance, it is considered good luck to have vermin in the house and on one's person. In fact, there is a Roumanian proverb that no living creature is without lice. It is considered unlucky to kill vermin. The simple, untutored Roumanian believes everything, even the lowliest insect, has a right to live. When he moves to a new abode, he usually takes with him some of the bedbugs and other vermin from the old house and transplants it in his new home so as "to bring good luck."

The majority of the Roumonian population live in dirt-floored huts made of woven branches and plastered with mud. There are generally only two rooms. Humans and pigs, cattle and poultry all sleep in the same room. In winter the heat of the cow's body is depended upon to keep the children warm. The men and women sew on their clothes for the winter, in order to keep out the cold, removing their garments only with the advent of summer. Among the masses bathtubs are almost unknown.

Although the Roumanian peasantry produce enough flour and grain to feed the whole of Europe, they themselves never eat bread. They prefer "mamaligia", which resembles American corn-mush. This meagre food, insufficiently supplemented with goat's milk and cheese, is accountable for an enormous amount of pellagra, a disease which afflicts more than 50 per cent of the entire peasantry.

The ignorance and superstition in which extreme conditions of life have held the Roumanian rural classes is amazing to the American. In many parts of Roumania doctors are unknown. Children are ushered into the world by ignorant "babas," or midwives, or by soothsayers. The cheapest things in the world—water and fresh air—the Roumonian seldom avails himself of. Windows are kept hermetically sealed for fear of letting in "an evil wind," and water is used only as an adjunct in cooking.

The Roumanian peasants toil in the fields from daylight to nightfall, like beasts of burden. The women look twice their age, and die prematurely from overwork and exhaustion. Nowhere in the world are the rural classes more industrious, honest or unspoiled.

Billy Owl at Home

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

I would not other folk defraud,
But what I find is my reward.
—Digger the Badger.

"Billy the Burrowing Owl is a funny looking little fellow," said Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak. "I always like to see him sitting up on one of the little watch-towers of Yap Yap the Prairie Dog. He always looks very wise. But then you know all Owls look wise."

"They look a lot wiser than they really are, if you ask me," said Peter Rabbit. "What does this Billy Owl live on?"

"What does Spooky the Screech Owl live on?" retorted Wanderer.

"Oh! Mice and small birds, and in the summer grasshoppers and other insects," replied Peter. "I guess he wouldn't hesitate to take a young Rabbit if he could get it."

Wanderer nodded shrewdly. "Just so" said he. "Well, Billy Owl lives in a good deal the same way. Only he has a few additions to his bill of fare that you don't have here. He is pretty good at catching lizards. Then there are cousins of Striped Chipmunk who live out there, called Ground Squirrels, and there are lots of them. Billy Owl likes these very much. As I have already told you, it is suspected that he could tell, if he would, where some of the Prairie Dog babies disappear to. Grasshoppers and crickets are a favorite food and I have seen Billy Owl catching them in broad daylight. However, they like better to hunt in the evening, like most other members of the Owl family."

"Do Mr. and Mrs. Billy make their nest way down at the end of a burrow?" inquired Peter Rabbit.

"So I've been told," replied Wanderer. "Of course, I never went down inside the hole. I want to be where I can use my wings."

Peter looked thoughtful. "I suppose," said he, "it does seem funny for a bird to be living down in the ground. Anyway, it seems funny for a bird to be living in a hole big enough for anybody else to get into. I wonder if anybody ever happens to visit Billy's home?"

"I've seen his home, visited," declared Wanderer.

"Who visited it?" asked Peter eagerly.

"Well, you see, it was this way," explained Wanderer. "I happened to see Billy Owl and Mrs. Bill fly away OUT HERE a-a-" from one of those holes, at the entrance of which I had seen Mrs. Billy sitting. It was dusk and they had gone hunting. Then I saw Digger the Badger come waddling along. When he reached that hole he stopped and sniffed. Did you ever see Digger the Badger dig?"

"Yes," said Peter. "Digger the Badger is living down on the Green Meadows. He was brought up from the West and escaped, and now he's living there. I've seen him dig."

"Then," replied Wanderer, "you know how the sand flew. In less time than it takes me to tell about it he had disappeared. When he reappeared he was licking his lips and he had a most satisfied look on his face. In fact, he was grinning. Billy Owl and Mrs. Billy returned just as Digger the Badger came out. They just took one look at him and flew away. I never saw them go into that hole again. Of course, I don't know what Digger found down there. Perhaps it was eggs. Perhaps it was young birds. But I know this much—I was mighty glad that I didn't live in a hole in the ground."

When he reached that hole he stopped and sniffed.

The next story: "Yap Yap's Unpleasant Neighbor."

Sunday Morning Talk

How Can We Help Loving God?

He hath set his love upon me. Psalm 91:14. We say, I have set my heart on such a thing. This is what God will have from us—an intense single-hearted love. We should gladly love him with all our heart and with all our mind, so that like Jesus, we may "delight to do His will." Just let us think of the way in which setting our heart on anything affects us, head, hands, time, thought, action—all are at work for its attainment. How we sacrifice everything else to it! Comfort, ease, present advantage, money, health, nay, our very selves, go freely for the sake of our cherished wish. The following words go on to tell of the wonderful promises given to those who love Him with the whole heart. How much more God appreciates our feeble flickering love then we value His wonderful unchangeable love. Should this thought not fill our hearts with love and appreciation. How different our lives would be! A blessing to others and a joy to ourselves. Looking in loving confidence for help and guidance at all times. Knowing that no need is too great for His power to meet.

O that these promises meant to us what they should. Let each one of us read again the whole 91st psalm and make it a part of our very being. Really believing each promise. How it would fill our hearts with joy and peace which the world cannot give or take away. God has never failed to keep His promises. Why should we so often doubt and falter when we should have perfect confidence. Knowing that "according to our faith it shall be with us."

HOOVER TO OFFER BURKE AN IMPORTANT POSITION

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP)—President Hoover announced today that Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, had asked to be relieved of his position. He said that he appreciated Mr. Burke's long and loyal service and intended to offer him another important position.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 15—About the last thing Calvin Coolidge did as president was to make a prophet out of Representative Woodrum, Virginia democrat, a prophet deserving of honor in his own land and whether he gets it or not, Mr. Coolidge vetoed via the pocket route the measure liberalizing retiremnt provisions as to annuities and age for Uncle Sam's large civil service family. The thing is dead although it passed the 70th congress unanimously.

Yet harken to the voice of Prophet Woodrum, speaking his mind frankly in the house Feb. 26. That was the day the all powerful rules committee extracted the retirement bill from a dusty committee pigeonhole and brought it in under the special rule gag machinery used to put urgent matters through in jig time.

"Mere Gesture"

"Bringing this bill up today is nothing but a gesture," spake Prophet Woodrum. "It passed the senate May 3, 1928. It was unanimously reported out by the house civil service committee. On May 23, 1928, a rule was granted for its consideration by the rules committee. Not until today, when it is safe to bring it up, has it been brought forward, knowing full well that it will sleep in the pocket of the chief executive.

"The president is against this bill, has been against it all along. He has said he would veto it. But the president must be saved the necessity of vetoing a piece of legislation that so vitally affects the happiness and very existenance of employes who have given many, many years of valuable service to the government. Therefore, the distinguished gentleman from New York, Mr. Snell, the genial chairman of the rules committee, carries the rule around in his pocket from May 23, 1928, to this good day, though congress has been ready to pass the bill without a dissenting vote and over the veto of the president if it had an opportunity so to do.

"Had the bill been brought out one week ago a very different situation would have obtained. The president would have had to take affirmative action and very speedily his veto would have been over-ridden."

"Colossal Joke"

"This is nothing but a colossal joke. You have an army of these old men and women, and some of them are in the galleries today watching you laboring under the delusion that the administration has recanted. God pity them. After March 4 this bill will never be heard of again."

And it now seems that Prophet Woodrum knew his political onions thoroughly.

OBITUARY

Edwin E. Lathrop

Edwin Ezrah Lathrop, 81, died on Friday morning at 5:30 o'clock at his home, No. 4 Wauwecus street, Norwich Town, following a serious illness for the past five months. He was the son of John Lester and Mary Harris Lathrop of Bozrah. Born on April 29th, 1847, in the old homestead, he had spent practically his life in Bozrah, where he was engaged in farming for many years. Since December 1822, the family has resided at Norwich Town, Mr. Lathrop having retired from active business the past few years. In the Gager home in Bozrah, May 3rd, 1882, he was united in marriage with Wealthie Ann Gager, daughter of Charles and Harriet Fargo Gager. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Q. M. Bosworth, then pastor of Bozrah Congregational church.

During his illness which had kept him confined to his room since December 22nd, Mr. Lathrop was devotedly cared for by Miss Alice M. Brown.

He was a member of Bozrah Congregational church, also a charter member of Bozrah grange. Besides his widow he is survived by four children, E. Le Roy Lathrop of Fitchville, Mrs. John J. Collins of Uncasville, (Maud Lathrop) Harry L. Lathrop of Washington street, and Miss Ruth Lathrop, who resides at home. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Charles A. Pendleton of West Main street and five grand-children, Helen and Willis Lathrop, of Fitchville, and Edwin, John and Charles Lathrop, of Washington street. Another grandson to whom he was deeply attached, Richard Lathrop Collins, of Uncasville, died September 3rd, 1928.

Mr. Lathrop's life interests were centered in his home. It has been said of him that he could be called a true disciple of the gospel of sunshine, because up to the last hours, in spite of intense suffering, he showed courage and fortitude and had a kindly thought and pleasant word for all.

Mrs. John L. Boswell

Mrs. Latilia S. Boswell, widow of John L. Boswell, died Thursday, following an illness of several weeks with pneumonia. She was a daughter of Captain Stiggis, commander of one of the steamers of the Norwich line running between New London and New York. Her husband was a druggist in this city and they lived for many years on Lincoln avenue. When Mr. Boswell retired from business they moved to Preston City, Mr. Boswell's early home, where he died in 1919. Of late years Mrs. Boswell had made her home with her sister, Mrs. Arabelle Baldwin who died Feb. 4th. While in Norwich Mrs. Boswell was an attendant at Park church being deeply interested in its activities and giving much faithful service to the Parish Home association.

LOCAL NEAR EAST TOTAL NOW $2,000

Miss Katherine Warren Reynolds, recently returned from Greece, Constantinople, Syria and Egypt, is conferring with Miss Elizabeth Huntington, chairman, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, honorary chairman, and other members of the Norwich committee on Near East relief, concerning the completion of its notable service overseas and the plans for completing the presentation of this work to Norwich and vicinity.

Miss Huntington desires to make it clear that while no additional children are being received overseas, those who came into American care as a result of the massacres and deportations of 1922 and 1923, are not yet all taken care of. About 20,000 remain either in the orphanages or under the supervision of this agency, whose policy now is to place them out in homes or apprentice them to trades and supervise them after the age of 11 years, which is not so expensive as keeping them longer in the institutions.

Since The Bulletin announced Norwich receipts of $1,187, Feb. 15 an additional $800 has been given, making the local contribution total about $2,000. It is desired that the community increase this to the quota figure of $5,000 by June 30, when all campaigning nationally for this work must cease. The national quota is $2,600,000.

ROTARY CLUB ENTERTAINS LARGE AUDIENCE AT BENEFIT CONCERT

Lawrence Tibbett, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, New York, appearing at Slater Memorial hall Friday evening under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club, for the benefit of the John S. Blackmar fund for boys' work, completely captivated an audience of approximately 700 in his song recital, marking his first appearance in Norwich. He was ably assisted in the delightful program by Stewart Wille, who was at the piano.

As the artist made his appearance for his initial group of numbers he was greeted with thunderous applause and from beginning to end of his program, which was prolonged by nearly a dozen encores, his appearance was the signal for enthusiastic applause, which became more and more pronounced as the program advanced. Mr. Tibbett responded with three encores at the conclusion of the program, the final number being On The Road to Mandalay.

As the opening number Mr. Tibbett gave Where'er You Walk (Handel) and immediately won the hearts of his audience with his charming voice. His tone, modulation and range were outstanding features in the singing and his enunciation was especially clear. So brilliantly did he present his scheduled numbers that the artist was compelled to respond to encores after each group. Two encore numbers, Down Among the Dead Men, an old English Drinking song, and Sail Away to Rio Grande, a sailor chante, were very enthusiastically received.

The assisting artist, Stewart Wille, contributed delightfully to the pleasure of the evening in his accompaniments and in his numbers, Romance and Rhapsody in G minor.

The beautiful floral decorations on the stage, were by Otto F. Ernst of Geduldig's Greenhouses.

The program was as follows:

Where'er You Walk, Handel; In the Heart of a Man In the Days of My Youth, Gay; Hear Me Ye Winds and Waves, Handel; Im Wunderschonen Monat Mai, Aus meinen Traen Sprissen, Die Rose, die Lillie, Ich Grolle Nicht, Schumann; Romance, Schumann; Rhapsody in G minor Brahms, Mr. Wille; Prologue, from "Pagliacci," Leoncavallo; intermission.

Before the Crucifix, La Forge; A Kingdom by the Sea, Somervell; Love Went a-Riding, Bridge; In the Silent Night, Rachmaninoff; After the Battle, Moussorgsky; Song of the Flea, Moussorgsky.

LOCAL AMERICAN LEGION OPEN MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

The members of R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, held their regular semi-monthly meeting Friday evening at the post rooms with Commander Imbert Fellows presiding. The committee in charge of the recent theatrical performance reported that plans were completed for a supper and dance to be held this (Saturday) evening at Scotland road hall, complimentary to the cast of the show. Reports of the county meeting held at Montville were made and the committee named at the last meeting to arrange for the annual glee club concert reported progress.

Harry House gave his annual report as service officer, which showed that the committee is doing active work in assisting the disabled and unfortunate ex-service men and their families. Commander Fellows impressed on the members the importance of the membership campaign which was officially opened with this meeting calling on the members to assist the committee appointed under the chairmanship of Warren E. Wilcox. He stated that reports coming from Connecticut state headquarters indicate that the Legion is making large gains in membership throughout the state and nation. This is proof of the fact that more and more veterans of the World war are coming to realize that only through organization can they assure the accomplishment of the purposes for which they fought.

The Legion has demonstrated its ability to make the voice of the ex-service men heard in national and international affairs. Therefore, it is drawing to its ranks all veterans who are determined that the things for, which they endured privations and saw their comrades die shall not be lost. The Legion has a record of past achievements which is an assurance of great accomplishments in the future. It was instrumental in obtaining adjusted compensation and in obtaining adequate relief for the disabled. It has taken steps to care for the thousands of children being left fatherless by the early deaths of men whose lives the war shortened.

That the "War to end wars" shall have in reality secured permanent peace is the end to which the Legion's major program for the future is directed. It is fighting to remove the rewards of war by the enactment into law of the principle of the universal draft, which calls for the conscription of labor and capital as well as fighting men in event of a conflict. It is carrying out, with the co-operation of the veterans organizations of the allied countries, an international program of education designed to break down the racial prejudices which are the breeding grounds of war. It is urging the maintenance of national defense at such strength that aggression will not be invited by our unpreparedness. In view of what the Legion has done and is doing it is not surprising that its membership is climbing steadily toward the million mark and that one of its 11,000 posts is to be found in almost every corner of the world.

The cost of membership is small when compared with benefits derived from such membership.

Several applications for membership were received and two new members were initiated. An invitation was received from Peter Gallen Post, No. 104 to attend the installation of officers of the Taftville post and its auxiliary at Taftville, Thursday March 21st, at Ponemah hall. An invitation was also received from Clara Barton Tent No. 7, Daughters of the Union Veterans to attend its anniversary and patriotic party in the Buckingham Memorial, Tuesday, March 19th. Both invitations were accepted and the post expects to have a good representation at both affairs.

MAD DOG'S HEAD SENT TO STATE LABORATORY

The head of the mad dog shot Thursday evening by Dog Warden Chester Bushnell, was Friday morning sent to the state laboratory for examination. Selectman William S. Murray said Friday evening that at least 16 dogs were attacked and bitten by the mad dog shot Thursday evening. The mad dog started its rampage at Yantic, went from there to the Norwich Town section, on through the Falls section, from there to Pratt street and was found in a wooded section off Boswell avenue.

The animal shot by the dog warden is a mongrel police, weighing about 70 pounds, with black head and back, shading from tan to gray. Selectman Murray said Friday evening that anyone owning such a dog should communicate with him at once. Apparently the dog came from Yantic or the Wauwecus Hill section.

TWO MACHINES DAMAGED EARLY THIS MORNING

Two machines were damaged about 12.30 o'clock this (Saturday) morning, when they came together at Bath and Franklin streets. They were a Hudson Victoria, owned and operated by Enfield F. Totten, 25, of No. 842 Bank street, New London, and a Pontiac sedan, driven by Lester William Allen, 22, of No. 14 White street, and owned by James Jones of No. 82 Franklin street. It is understood the Hudson was proceeding down Franklin street and the sedan was coming out of Bath street when they crashed together. The New London man's car was damaged to the extent of $50 and the damage sustained by the local car was $100.

STOLEN AUTO FOUND ABANDONED AT LEFFINGWELL

The Cadillac roadster, owned by Joseph C. Worth of No. 8 West Town street and stolen from in front of his residence some time Thursday night, was found abandoned in Leffingwell about 9 o'clock Friday night. Local police brought the car to police headquarters later in the evening.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME BY WOMAN'S FEDERATION

An unusually large number of women gathered at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Friday afternoon for the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church. Miss Hannah Crowell, president of the federation, was in the chair. An inspiring devotional service emphasizing the co-operation of the young, the middle-aged and the older women of the church was given by the president. Loving mention was made of the passing of Mrs. W. S. C. Perkins. Mrs. William H. Allen and Mrs. John Boswell, valued members of Park church for many years. During the business period, Mrs. George E. Johnson, chairman of the finance committee, briefly reported the status of the various groups of women, grouped according to their birth months.

The fourth and last of Dr. Jensen's entertaining and illuminating lectures pertaining to literature was noted to be given next Friday evening at the usual time and place. Early in April the Women's Federation and the men's club will present jointly two features, a playlet entitled "The Fashion Shop" and a minstrel show. An invitation was received from the women of the United church to attend a meeting Palm Sunday evening, to hear an address by Violet Nakonya, a Zulu woman.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, chairman of the parish house department. The first number on the program was the repetition of the stunt given by Park church girls at the third annual interchurch stunt night meet held recently at the Community house. The girls were coached by Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley. Betsey Ross and the Flag was the subject.

The first scene gave Marion Agnew as Betsey Ross, sitting in her living room sewing and chatting with two friends, Louise Higgins and Dorothy Prentice. Barbara Taylor as George Washington, Emily Bidwell as Colonel Ross and Louise Evans as Merchant Morris, call at Betsey Ross's and place the order for a new flag for the Colonies. After much enlightening discussion between the honored and dignified gentlemen and the earnest, business-like Betsey Ross, the design of the flag is determined.

In the second scene Mrs. Ross is seen as sewing by candle light on the flag at 3 a. m. The costumes and presentation won the hearty applause of the audience.

Miss Erwin read her story, which won the third prize in the recent short story contest put on by the literature department of the Woman's City club. This was much enjoyed. Three charades were then given by the girls. The first was presenting a word of three syllables in one act. The word was "Ingratiate," and was presented by Marion Agnew, dressed in the same gray gown she wore as Betsey Ross.

She was served tea by Betty Hitchon. The second charade was picturing "Alliteration." "Al" was presented by a brown derby on a stick held by Dorothy Prentice. "Liter" was given by four of the girls bringing in a crying doll on a litter with Marion Agnew officiating as nurse. "Ration" was presented by a line of girls at camp receiving milk from Barbara Taylor.

The whole word was shown as a school scene, each girl demonstrating one letter, as "Two toads totally tired trying to trip to Treadville." The third charade presented "Matrimony." The first syllable was given by the girls wiping their feet on a mat as they entered Barbara Taylor's home for tea. For "Ri" all the girls were stepping over stepping stones and all singing "Comin' Through the Rye." For "Mony" Emily Bidwell and Louise Evans were talking over their allowances, only one having money enough in her purse to go to the movies.

The whole word was charmingly presented by a formal wedding scene. Louise Evans, in black robes, made a dignified minister. Louise Higgins acted the part of the groom in a devoted manner. Betty Hitchon was a charming bride in veil and train as she walked up the aisle on the arm of Marion Agnew, her sorrowing father. Barbara Taylor and Dorothy Prentice were attractive bridesmaids. Emily Bidwell was at the piano.

The splendid and whole-hearted co-operation of the young women and the older women of the church produced one of the best programs of the year.

Tea was served by Mrs. Robert Colt Johnson and Mrs. Hans Hansen. Mrs. O. L. Johnson and Miss Frances Young poured, assisted by the young ladies in the programme.

The regular monthly meeting of the Veritas class of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Mrs. Boone, teacher, was held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Williams. After a business session the feature of the evening was a double shower given the Misses Mildred Hiscox and Virginia Disque. Dainty refreshments of Shamrock salad and fancy cakes were served by the hostess. The room was prettily decorated in pink and green with illuminated candles.

Those present were the Misses Dorothy Crawford, Anna Moran, Esther Coughlin, Helen Horan, Evelyn Ward, Helen Morley, Ruth Gamber and Clifford Hamill, Leonard Johnson, Kenneth Whelden, William Leonard, Joseph Cloutier, Peter Carbray, Leonard Clapp, James Dowling, Henry Bamber and William Casey.

STORRS HENS LAID NEARLY 5,000 EGGS

The hens in the eighteenth contest at Storrs laid 4822 eggs, or a production of 60.2 per cent. This is 121 less than last week but 4.2 per cent more than last year for the same period. Each pen in the contest now has an average of 769.4 eggs, or almost 77 eggs for each good, poor and indifferent bird in the contest.

A pen of White Leghorns owned by Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Penn., was an easy first for the week with a production of 66 eggs. These birds have been steadily creeping up on the other pens and last week were tied for first honors for the week. They are the third best pen of birds not only in the Leghorn class, but in the whole contest. The second honor for the week went to a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Donald L. Goodenough of Torrington, Conn. This pen came through with a total of 63 eggs for the week. Fox & Sons' Leghorns from Little Falls, N. J., was the third best pen for the week with a lay of 62 eggs. Two pens of Leghorns were both tied for fourth place with a production of 60 eggs each. These pens were owned respectively by George Lowry of West Willington, Conn., and Wm. L. Gilbert Home, of Winsted, Conn.

Ebenwood Farm's pen of White Wyandottes which has been the leading pen of this breed since the contest started last November has not been able to keep pace with the other pens during the past two weeks, consequently Fisher Poultry Farms pen from Avlon, Ontario has jumped into first place, and The Locusts from West Cornwell, Conn., captured second place. In the Rhode Island Reds, Charlescote Farm from Sherborn, Mass., was the first in this breed to pass the 1,000 egg mark. Zephrim LaBelle's pen from Baltonville, Conn., has relegated his father's pen from the second place, and a pen entered by Globus Poultry farm Attleboro Mass., jumped into third place. John Z. LaBelle from Baltonville, Conn., dropped back into fourth place, replacing the pen owned by F. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass.

MAY TRANSFER WOMEN PRISONERS TO EAST LYME

Another movement is under way seeking the transfer of women prisoners from the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield to the state farm for women in East Lyme, says The Hartford Times.

The legislative judiciary committee visited the prison Friday afternoon and went into conference with officials of the institution.

The judiciary committee made no announcement of the purpose of its trip, and it was assumed the visit was merely an inspection tour for the information of the members. It was learned, however, that the meeting of the committee was an official business session requested by the directors of the state prison who are in favor of restricting the institution to male inmates.

Warden H. K. W. Scott conferred with the committee which began its session with twelve members present after having luncheon in the prison dining room. Warden Scott and other officials of the prison, it is understood, were to present to the committee reasons for the proposed transfer of the women inmates in the hope that a bill might be originated within the committee providing for such a change.

STATE HOSPITAL PATIENT TO BE DEPORTED

Wong Lee, a Hartford laundryman, has been ordered deported to China by United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of this city. The Chinese has been since June 5, 1923, an inmate of the Norwich state hospital having been committed by order of the Hartford probate court.

John A. Carney, United States Chinese inspector attached to the immigration office at Boston, took Wong Lee to New York Friday, there to await a boat. He is 53 years old and has been a resident of the United States 21 years, he says. He pleaded guilty to a charge of not having a certificate of residence.

Boy Scout Total $2,806.50

A total of $2,806.50 by 345 subscriptions has been raised by the workers in the Norwich Boy Scout campaign. The number of subscriptions secured is less than half of the total reached the previous year. Within a short time an additional group of workers will be in the field to see prospective contributors and the committee feels that the reports will greatly swell the present amount. The goal is $6,575.

HOW ABOUT A DANIELSON AND PLAINFIELD SERIES?

The Danielson management, Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Boulaine, have had a very urgent request from the fans to obtain a three game series with the Plainfield Pros for the Eastern Connecticut title and are leaving nothing undone to arrange such a series. Plainfield has been putting on splendid teams during the winter months and meeting the country's best and so has Danielson. Therefore, why should not such a series be arranged to find out which is the better team? Danielson has won 12 out of 15 games played in Danielson, having lost only to the Philadelphia Colored Giants, one game to Millville by one basket, and one game to the Marlboro Bears, which constitutes quite some record. In view of the above facts the Danielson management would like to hear from Plainfield at once in regards to a series and feel confident that they can make Manager Salisbury's boys sit up and take notice. How about it, Plainfield?

Giants Like San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 15—(AP)—The New York Giants, spring training here, will come back again for the next three seasons under a contract signed today with the Texas League club.

Efforts will be made to bring an American league club here to train that the two might play a series of exhibition games.

INSULTING REMARK CAUSE OF BOXER'S DOWNFALL

BOSTON, March 15—(AP)—An insulting remark, not a right hook to the jaw, spoiled Lawrence F. "Big Boy" Rawson's debut as a main bout performer, the Boston heavyweight testified today in Suffolk superior court.

Rawson, knocked out by Bob Mills, of Franklin, N. H., in his first final bout here several days ago, asked the court for an injunction restraining his uncle, Thomas R. Rawson, boxing coach at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from harassing him or interfering while he was pursuing his ring career.

The boxer charged that his uncle's insults enraged him while he was boxing Mills and that, when he turned to glare him into silence, his opponent floored him with a hard right hook to the jaw.

"I had Mills down for nine three times in the third round and was about to polish him off in the fourth when my uncle started razzing me from a third row seat," Rawson explained today to Judge Elias B. Bishop. "When I turned to give him the eye, Mills hooked me so hard that I went down and injured my back. Then my uncle ran to Mills' corner and told him I was hurt."

Judge Bishop granted the injunction when the boxer's attorney said that the uncle had been offered $5,000 by a New York boxing syndicate for control of his nephew, who is under age. When the boxer refused to participate in the deal, his attorney claimed, the elder Rawson started taunting him every time he boxed, in an effort to unnerve him into losing the contests and thus injure his reputation as a boxer.

Recently the boxer's uncle and his brother, also named Thomas R. Rawson, staged a court fight to become his guardian and the brother was awarded the decision.

Hall Has 40 Point Lead

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—Taking both of today's blocks by wide margins, Allen Hall of St. Louis had a lead of more than 40 points over John Layton, world's three cushion billiard champion, at the end of the tenth block tonight of their 600 point match. Hall had 300 points to 458 for Layton.

Hall took the afternoon block 50 to 39 in 43 innings, and won tonight 50 to 27 in 40 innings.

HEENEY SUFFERING FROM INFECTION IN MOUTH

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—An infection that may cause disfigurement has developed in the deep wound Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight, suffered inside his lip in a ten round match with Otto Van Porat, Norwegian slugger, last Tuesday night at Chicago.

Heeney was treated today by Dr. Edward King at a local hospital and ordered to bed for several days. The physician told Charley Harvey, manager of the battler who fought Gene Tunney last summer, that plastic surgery would be necessary if the infection spread further.

The cut, a v-shaped gash inside the lip extending up from the base of the gum, required fifteen stitches to close after a bout Von Porat won decisively. Dr. King told Harvey that he believed the infection could be arrested.

The wound, coupled with two decisive defeats suffered by Heeney in comeback efforts against Jimmy Maloney in Boston and Von Porat, may cause the retirement of the "hard rock" from the ring, Harvey said he had no direct knowledge, however, that Heeney planned to retire.

FARRELL AND SMITH TOP FIELD IN FLORIDA OPEN

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 15—(AP)—Two of the greatest shot makers in the game led a field through a blinding rainstorm to top position in the Florida open golf tournament here today. Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, national open champion, and Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., one of the youngest stars in the golfing firmament, matched stroke for stroke to finish with 70-72—142 each, aggregate par for the Florida Country club course in the opening 36 hole grind. Behind these two came Densmore Shute of Youngstown, Ohio, and Frank Walsh, of Appleton, Wis., each with 143. Back of these trailed a field which included Craig Wood, of Bloomfield, N. J., and Willie Hutchinson, of Pasadena, Calif., tied at 146. Such stars as Walter Hagen, Henry Ciuci, Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Al Watrous, Al Espinosa and others were far behind.

CHICAGO WOMEN FINALISTS IN FLORIDA TOURNEY

TAMPA, Fla., March 15—(AP)—A pair of golfing aces from Chicago—Mrs. Melvin Jones and Mrs. Lee Mida, both experienced tournament players—today battled their way into the final round of the annual Florida women's championship links event.

Mrs. Jones, defending champion, won easily from Mrs. Leland Morrow, of Lakeland, Fla., 8 and 7 in an 18 hole start, while Mrs. Mida crushed Mrs. Johnny Holmes, of Jacksonville, 7 and 6. Mrs. Holmes won the tournament in 1927.

Mrs. Jones was out in 38, an all-time women's record here and was seven up on Mrs. Morrow at the turn. A halve on the first hole coming home and a low on No. 11 finished the match. Her 38 was only three over men's par.

INDOOR TRACK SEASON CLOSES IN N. Y. TONIGHT

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)— The last big indoor track whirl of the metropolitan season takes place tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden, with Paavo Nurmi, of Finland, Edvin Wide, of Sweden and Phil Edwards of British Guinea as the main headliners of the Knights of Columbus games.

Sad to state, the three are to do their stuff in as many different races, thereby putting a permanent end to the hopes of fans who have been expecting all season to see the foreign trio, or at least two of their number, match strides. Yet, if the meet fulfills half the prophecies of the optimistic, it should be a success.

which promises to be one of the best the city has seen in some time. The two previous games were hotly contested, the Seniors winning the first, 23 to 13 and the schoolboys the second, 14 to 11.

Interest is running high regarding the outcome. Neither team is a favorite for the final clash. The Seniors were looked to as easy winners before the series opened but the Academy has put up a stiff fight in both contests and made Y supporters feel rather shaky of their team's chances. In the first game the Academy led going into the last quarter but faltered in this session and let their older opponents romp to victory. Last Thursday, in the second encounter, the Red and White refused to falter and consequently came out ahead.

Frank Barber, Academy right guard has proved the star of both series games and he will be looked to for great things this evening. Capt. Buck LaCroix of the Academy will not see action tonight and Swatzburg, who played a very good game Thursday, will take his place. The rest of the opposing lineups are expected to be the same as in the previous games.

A fast preliminary game will start at 8 o'clock with the main game at 9 o'clock or shortly after. The main game is being held over in order to accommodate any coming after the stores close. Randy Whaples will handle the deciding clash as he has the two previous tilts. All in all, it looks like a big night for the dying basketball season.

ACADEMY BASEBALL TEAM STILL WORKING AT ARMORY

The Academy baseball team has finished another week of indoor practice at the state armory. About 25 candidates, including batterymen and a few infielders, have been going through their paces under Coach Earle E. Brigham, now for about a month at the drillshed. By the time the team takes to the outdoors, which will be shortly, it is expected that the squad will be in the best shape it has shown in years. The first game will be played Saturday April 14, with the Alumni, leaving about four weeks until that date.

CORMIER WINS HIS 18TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

WORCESTER, March 15—(AP)—Vernon Cormier, flashy Worcester bantamweight, scored his 18th consecutive victory tonight when he gained a technical knockout over Clarence Belair, another local boy in the fourth round of the main bout. Belair, badly beaten all the way, was found to be suffering a broken hand when he was examined after the fight.

Sam Lucci, of Hudson, outpointed Lou Brouillard, of Danielson, Conn., in the eight round semi-final. They are welterweights. Frankie Erne, of Medford, outpointed Eddie Thomas, of Cambridge, in the other eight rounder. Erne weighed 139 and Thomas 138.

Mrs. Stetson Wins at Belleair

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 15—(AP)—Mrs. G. Henry Stetson of Philadelphia, former national women's golf champion, won the annual women's championship here today, defeating Miss Jane Brooks of Nyack, N. Y., two up in the final round. The match was played through high winds which were a severe handicap to the players.

Mrs. Hubbard Reaches Finals

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 15—(AP)—Mrs. Charles J. Hubbard, Jr., of Cambridge, the top-seeded player in the women's national indoor singles tennis championship reached the final round today by defeating Mrs. Marry Lamme, of Rye, N. Y., 6-4, 6-4, on the Longwood courts.

PHILLY PLAYERS TO MEET FOR DOUBLES TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, March 15—(AP)—A Philadelphia pair will win the nationals court tennis championship.

Both teams winning their semi-final match today, Jay Gould, and William C. Wright, the champions, and E. M. Edwards and John C. Bell, Jr., the challengers are members of the racquet club here.

The advance of Gould and Wright to the final round was uneventful except for an exciting first set. They defeated Francis Brazer and George W. Wightman, Boston, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Edwards and Bell owe their survival today to the only upset of the championship. They took out Hewitt Morgan and Stanley G. Mortimer, New York, last year's runners up, in one of the most stirring encounters of the tournament, 6-5, 2-6, 6-5, 6-3.

DARTMOUTH-STANFORD GAME AT HARVARD STADIUM

HANOVER, N. H., March 15—(AP)—Harry R. Heneage, supervisor of Dartmouth athletics, today announced that the 1931 Dartmouth-Stanford football game would be played in the Harvard stadium.

Heneage said that both Dartmouth and Stanford have accepted the Harvard corporation's invitation to play their game, which will not conflict with any of the Crimson's football dates in the stadium.

ATHLETICS WIN IN GAME MARRED BY FIST FIGHT

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 15—(AP)—In a free-hitting game, enlivened by a fist fight between opposing players, the Philadelphia Americans today defeated the Philadelphia Nationals 15 to 14.

Playing the second game of a series, the Phillies again made more hits than the Athletics but again failed to get them when they counted. Cochrane hit a home run for the Athletics in the fourth inning, scoring two ahead of him, and in the same inning Hassler brought two in with a triple.

Susce, batting for Milligan of the Nationals, in the fifth, charged at Rommel after the first pitch came close to his head. Players separated the two before blows were struck. Susce was sent in to catch, and in the eighth Miller and Susce exchanged blows, after Miller had been declared out at the plate. Umpire Adams, aided by police, escorted Susce off the field. The score:

Philadelphia (N)	461	030	231	—	14	21	0
Philadelphia (A)	203	710	11x	—	15	15	4

Batteries: Sweetland, Milligan, Collins and Davis; Susce; Yerkes, Rommel, Walberg and Cochrane.

CARDS RALLY IN NINTH TO BEAT OUT SENATORS

AVON PARK, Fla., March 15—(AP)—A ninth-inning batting rally enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to square things with the Washington Senators by taking this afternoon's exhibition game, 7 to 6. It was a free-hitting game in which the Cardinals used two regular moundsmen but a largely rookie infield.

With the score tied, S. Johnson walked in a Washington tally in the eighth to put the Senators out in front, but a triple, a double and a single in the ninth gave the Cards the game. West, Washington outfielder, smashed out a homer in the fifth with one on.

Washington	000	014	010	—	6	12	2

BUCK LACROIX UNDERGOES SLIGHT LEG OPERATION

Aime (Buck) LaCroix, all-round Academy athlete and captain of the basketball team, was operated upon Friday night at William W. Backus hospital for a slight leg injury. This was presumably received while playing basketball. It is expected that LaCroix will return to his home in a few days and that he will be in shape for the coming baseball season. LaCroix is the second baseman of the state champions and one of the leading hitters, batting for .375 in 1928. He has also distinguished himself in football, being captain of last fall's team.

SINGER GETS CLOSE DECISION OVER BUD TAYLOR IN SLASHING BOUT

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—Al Singer, sleek, black haired little New Yorker, stood up under the drum fire of body punches tonight and pulled out a blistering ten round decision over Bud Taylor, blonde punching terror from Terre Haute, in a slug fest that proved his gameness beyond all question to the 20,000 roaring spectators.

A little over a month ago Singer, just beginning the struggle of youth for a place among the top-notchers of his division, won his first battle with the westerner on a foul in four rounds while another packed house protested that the swift fisted boy had been knocked by a fair blow.

Tonight Singer came back to prove himself Taylor's master in a gruelling punch fest that tested the New York idol's mettle to the utmost. The decision was received amid a rousing volley of boos, part in sympathy for Taylor's courageous stand, part in belief that the blonde westerner had at least earned a draw.

Ringside critics were divided in their opinions, some believing that Taylor, through his aggressiveness and heavy left hand punching to the body, had taken Singer's measure. The element of doubt even crept into the official's decision, one voting for Taylor while the referee and second judge awarded the melee to the New York youth.

The battle was just that close all the way around with round after round scaling so evenly that a draw at the close seemed the only fair verdict. Taylor stormed and bulled at his less experienced foe from the opening gong, hurting him badly in the fifth and seventh rounds with the same type of blow that brought the sudden and unsatisfactory ending to their first meeting.

Twice in these rounds, Taylor was warned that his punches were shading the foul line. The warnings seemed to handicap the battling blonde after the seventh session and he tired toward the close, losing the eighth and ninth rounds by a moderate margin and the tenth by a whisker.

From the opening gong the pace was for the fast and well conditioned only. Singer met Taylor's rushes with straight left jabs and swishing right crosses that rattled off the westerner's head with little effect until the closing rounds. Taylor did virtually all of his punching to the body, switching his left hooks and cuffing rights to the head only when Singer crouched and covered to save his mid-section further damage.

Singer skinned Taylor's nose with a sharp left in the third round and split the fading terror's lips with a right in a mad skirmish in the seventh. The New York youngster bled steadily from the mouth toward the close. There were no knockdowns. Singer weighed 128 1-4 to Taylor's 126 1-2.

Jackie Horner, rugged St. Louis middleweight, whipped Ben Jeby, reigning sensation among the New York youngsters, in the first ten round bout. Horner won the decision by pounding everlastingly to Jeby's body. The close milling brought a steady chorus of boos from the crowd of 20,000. Horner weighed 151 1-2, Jeby 148.

Leo Kid Roy, a punching featherweight hurricane from Montreal, and Irish Bobby Brady, slim Jersey City blonde, threatened to steal the show with a sparkling ten round semi-final that kept the crowd in an uproar. When the decision was given to Brady the roar of disapproval lasted several minutes.

Both were down for counts of nine. Brady in the first round from a left to the chin and Roy in the second from a blistering right to the head. Brady refused to quit when fouled in the third and had the Canadian grogGy when the slugfest ended. Roy forced the fight all the way, he weighed 124, Brady 129.

Al Rowe, spidery Philadelphian, swamped Johnny Lawson, of Brentwood, N. J., with left hand punches to win an easy decision in a six round affair. Rowe scaled 129 1-2, Lawson 130 3-4.

Leo Dazzo, New York 129, won the decision in the opening four founder over Benny Martini, New York, 123 1-2. Martini was floored three times in the second round.

SONNENBERG THROWS MALCEWICZ TWICE IN 32 MINUTES OF WRESTLING

BOSTON, March 15—(AP)—Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg successfully defended his wrestling title by pinning Joe Malcewicz's shoulders to the mat twice in less than 32 minutes here tonight after punishing him with his deadly "flying tackle". The first fall came at 31 minutes and 20 seconds, and the second required but 35 seconds.

The match appeared destined to end in a draw when the time-keeper announced that the grapplers had been working for 30 minutes. During that time Malcewicz known to the mat as the "Utica Panther," was able to check every one of the champion's holds and avoid his butting and ramming. He had Sonnenberg outside of the ropes several times with his heel headlock, a front grip with an upward snap of the arm. Sonnenberg, during that time, had tried many rushes but his opponent was fast enough to step aside or otherwise avoid this painful attack.

At this point Malcewicz became over-aggressive and, making the same mistake that cost Ed "Strangler" Lewis his crown, started applying headlocks. He pained the champion with two of his heel holds and stepped back to work a third one.

His back step gave Sonnenberg an opening and the champion was inside with a rush and a butt. Malcewicz dropped outside the ropes and when he returned, "Gus the Goat," as the champion is known hereabouts, caught him with another "flying tackle."

When Malcewicz dropped, Sonnenberg gained an inside crotch hold, then a body lift and followed by slamming his helpless opponent to the mat. Sonnenberg jumped on him and pinned him until the referee awarded him the fall.

Malcewicz appeared in great distress as a result of the torture. He was groggy when his seconds assisted him out of the ring and had to be almost carried through the crowd to his dressing room. During the rest period reports came back to the ringside that Malcewicz was too nauseated to continue the match.

Sonnenberg was the first to re-enter the ring and he had a long wait for his opponent, who staggered when his seconds pushed him through the ropes.

When he tried to grapple with Sonnenberg, the latter butted him heavily in the middle. Malcewicz's arms flew upward and, while helpless, the champion grabbed him about the knees slammed him into a corner and was about to pounce on him when the former's seconds leaped into the ring and rushed to his assistance, thereby giving Sonnenberg the victory.

Sonnenberg appeared greatly improved since the Lewis match, having added many new holds and checks to his repertoire. He has also eliminated much waste motion from his favorite tackle and by combining it with a lunge instead of a run has made it much more difficult to avoid.

The match said to be the champion's most troublesome since he won his title, drew a capacity throng of 17,500 and gate receipts of more than $56,000.

In the preliminary contests, Joe Shimkus of Worcester, downed John Maloney of Boston in 10 minutes and 40 seconds with a flying mare. Mike Nabarian, billed as the Armenian champion, held Jack Granson of Cleveland to a 30 minute draw. Stanley Pinto of Chicago flattened Frank Dutcher of Boston with a headlock in 8 minutes 10 seconds and Joe Wagner of Providence took almost that time in defeating Frank Delmano of Boston.

Freddy Meyers of Chicago and Dan Koloff of Boston were deadlocked at the end of the 30 minute semi-final match. Meyers was the aggressor throughout but the burly Koloff was able to withstand his vicious headlocks and flying mares without flinching.

DANIELSON DOWNS BOSTON CLOWNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 15 — The much talked-of Boston Clowns appeared in Danielson Town hall tonight in their usual happy frame of mind and went through with their 20-minute clown act and then to conclude the evening went down to a crushing 34 to 25 defeat before the Danielson Towners. The clown act went over big with the younger ones and gave a few laughs to the older ones and all in all was as good as could be expected from a basketball outfit.

The game itself opened with a foul by each team making the score 1 and 1 for the first five minutes of play when the Towners commenced to show their superiority and finished the half in the lead 16 to 8. Billy Schofield made his debut with the Towners during the latter part of the first half and received tremendous applause from the fans. He has been signed to play the remainder of the season, taking Gallup's place who is still on the injured list. Danielson will be greatly strengthened by this addition.

The second half opened with Armington of Danielson, who played an exceptionally fine game tonight, dropping in two neat baskets through Schofield's assistance and from then on Danielson had everything their own way. The game ended with the score 34 to 25 in their favor.

Tilt was high scorer for the Clowns, while Armington, Poirier and Williams did the heavy scoring for Danielson. The Clowns played an entirely different brand of basketball than the majority of teams, playing the ball at all times and not the man, making a more rough and tumble game than the average. This had a slight tendency to detract from their other good playing qualities.

A great attraction is on for Saturday, March 23, when the famous All-Heller team of Willimantic, all college stars, come to Danielson.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

IT IS A PLEASURE, TOO, TO REMEMBER.

GOOD LITERATURE—A CHARACTER BUILDER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I was interested in Bo-Peep's letter concerning children's reading. No one who knows and loves children can fail to appreciate the influence which noble thoughts and high ideals exercise upon the unfolding character, and no one who knows good literature can fail to realize the wealth of joy and beauty which it holds in store for the young. Hawthorne, in one of his books, gives us a picture of a boy who grew up under the influence of a granite profile on the mountainside which he saw each morning from his cottage door, expressing to him what was best in human character.

So it is with books. We all love to read of noble characters, and always wish to be like them. Every normal child has an appreciation of the good and the beautiful at least equal to our adult experience. Every child is also a hero worshipper, and unless given a true one will set up an imitation one.

Some believe that a taste for good literature is a gift of the gods received at birth, others that it begins with the grandfather, which perhaps is partly true. But environment, it seems to me, counts for more. I think one way to interest children in noble characters is to dramatize them.

A dramatic instinct is an expression of the imagination, and every child is imaginative. I was fortunate in being one of a large family of children, and as far back as I can remember we spent hours impersonating characters in Uncle Tom's Cabin, Robinson Crusoe, Fairy Tales, etc. In this way they became more real to us. Some believe that if a child's reading is carefully supervised up to the age of 12 years we need not worry about his choice of literature later.

The records of the Chicago police department show that in 1905 there were 14,897 boys and girls arrested under 20 years of age, and one wonders how much of this was due to the kind of reading they were familiar with. It is in the home that a child's familiarity with books should begin.

In the years when we are reading to our children the choice all lies with us, and later, with suggestions, interest, and a little time spent in charades, tableaux, etc., will help make the stories more interesting.

I would like to emphasize the point of reading aloud with our children. First, we know what they are reading. Secondly, it cements home ties. Every child likes to know their parents are interested in what they are interested in.

I think the old family Bible with its large print and many pictures is also a help in interesting them in biblical characters.

Charles Foster's Story of the Bible is also very good. My children read it by the hour.

We know very little about children in early colonial days, but we do know that about the only book they had was the Bible.

There were few American children grill after the Revolution who had never read any other book than the Bible, a primer or catechism and perhaps a hymn book or almanac.

The Bible gave them sacred hymns, warlike songs, stories of peril and venture, logic, legends, history—visions.

The people of Boston and Salem, who in England had been forbidden to read the Bible, reveled in it in their new homes. It satisfied them. They needed no other literature.

How different are conditions today, with our radio with its story hour, the Peter Rabbit stories in our newspapers, and our millions of books. It is our duty to know what our children are reading as well as what sort of company they keep.

One great menace today is our cheap movie picture house, with its stories of lawlessness and crime, and few class of vaudeville.

The comic section of our newspapers, while some of it is good, too much of it is bad for our children.

The problem of finding good reading for our young folk today is not at all difficult. Many of the books we wish them to become familiar with are used in our schools as a part of their school work.

So let us take time to visit the children's room in the library, where we will find many beautiful books written for children, some of which we never quite outgrow.

Skipper: Yes, I remember that in spite of my attractive appearance you transferred your affections to a richer man. Money talks!

Chelsea: I do not recognize your pen name, but if we are both grangers we ought to be friends, hadn't we?

E. L. M.: Kerosene and wire wool are fine for that iron sink. Mine is smooth as glass.

American Girl: Hurry up with that letter. Also

Dew Drop: Take notice. Time's up! Best wishes to all. COMMUTER.

OLD TIMER HAS BEEN ILL

Dear Social Corner Readers: It is several months since I have written, but long weeks of illness in the family and several deaths of dear ones has taken what little pep I had; but will try and do my bit.

Have read the several writers' opinions of dresses and bobbed hair, and hear the young people say: "It is not the young men who notice but the elderly people who do not get used to the change."

I can see no ill effect of dresses or bobs, but smokes undermine the health and what of our future generations?

Here is a question I would like to ask The Bulletin readers: What is the matter with our churches when the young people stay away from service and Sunday school? Is it the fault of the pastors in being too narrow-minded for these times, or teachers in not doing their duty?

If the churches are to be filled we must wake up before too late and get interest in both branches.

Years ago families came from three to six miles away and stayed to both services, not one Sunday but every Sunday, health permitting.

Sympathy to all who have lost their loved ones and those who are ill.

YE OLD TIMER.

PIPESTEMS OR STOVEPIPES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Oh me! Oh my! what a time everyone is having about the short skirts and smokers! In my opinion the length of the dress should depend on the person wearing it, and whether pipestems or stovepipes extend below. It seems age has nothing whatever to do with it any more, for we have scores of flapper grandmothers and none of them are hard to tell from their own daughters. Bobbed hair, permanent waves, silk stockings, pumps and straight-line dresses, knee length, have made age "faw down and go bawm." There simply aren't any more old women, not if the saying is true that "a woman is as old as she looks."

Lots of times I see some girl walking ahead of me on the street and when I get a real good look at her she turns out to be someone quite a bit older than I—and I am no spring chicken! Now while I am strong for the respectable short skirts, I don't exactly take to what I call the disappearing kind that keep going up and up, worse than an elevator, for they never seem to come down.

I remember in the "good old days," some 23 years or so ago, what a time I had getting from my home in Groton to the New London station en route to Hartford. My dress was over five yards around the bottom, trailing about two feet in back and just the toes of my shoes showed in front. I had a heavy suitcase to carry! also it rained so an umbrella was an absolute necessity. One hand was needed to carry the dress, another the umbrella and one for the suitcase. As only two hands were provided when I grew I was in quite a puzzle until I found a boy who would carry my suitcase to the ferry for a dime. So I managed that time, but the first chance I had after I arrived back home I amputated that trailing tail. I failed to state that taxies were not to be had in those days; neither did we have cement walks.

Now perhaps some of you will think I am knocking all old-fashioned things. Not at all. I have great respect for many of them. But when we look about us and see all the modern conveniences in our homes, in ways of travel and time-saving devices for nearly everything that is done on the farm as well as in town, how many of us would really want to go back to the slow hard ways of doing everything? I would prefer a 1929 model "tin Lizzie to old "Dobbin," even if new tires, repairs and gas do cost money. So do oats and hay. And we once had a horse that fell and broke his neck.

Of course, some go to the extreme in clothes as in everything else, but styles the loose, lightweight dresses are more comfortable than what we were had to wear. If only the girls would wear a little more under the dress! They certainly can't wear much less!

Well, this is enough of preaching and maybe I will get put in the waste basket now.

Some of the Club 6 ladies attended the anniversary meeting of Club 2 at Norwich today and had a very nice time. I do hope Mrs. Simpkins finds a heater soon.

Next time I write I will tell you about my yellow kitchen, but I am afraid to write any more this time.

Best wishes to all the sick and shut-ins. TISH.

MEETING WAS A "WOW"

Dear Corner Friends: The 19th anniversary of the Social Corner went over with a "wow." One hundred and twenty-five were at dinner and all towns were represented. Great credit and loud praise was given to Club No. 2 from the visiting clubs for the wonderful dinner and entertainment, which created loud applause and laughter.

Mawb certainly made a good old maid looking for a husband or male boarder. Georgette was a success as the competent Irish cook, while Lyett resigned board making her sister resign as if she was a man but turned out to be the daughter of Mrs. Simpkins' lost sister.

Mr. Libby of Quaker Hill was present and told a few stories, recited a few humorous poems and ended with a song or two. Mrs. Libby sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. George Borden. As usual Rev. George Borden of the Lefingwell Baptist church made a hit with his jovial and also serious remarks.

Georgette raked out the latest song, "I fall down and go boom," which took well with the audience.

The hostess and waitresses had green ruffled crepe paper aprons with green letters which read "Social Corner." Their nifty Napoleon caps with shamrock trimming were admired by the guests. Yellow napkins and tiny flags stuck in green gumdrops, with yellow candles in glass candle holders, used baskets with pussy willows and yellow forsythia blossoms made up the table decorations. The birthday cake with yellow and white frosting and tiny flags was made by Georgette and delivered by Calla Lily to our pedant editor of the Corner which we hope he enjoyed as much as the club writers seemed to.

CALLA LILY

DUSTPAN VS. SNOW SHOVEL

Dear Editor and All Other Friends: Isn't March some roaring lion? It looks like another snow storm. I hope I don't get snowed in again. I got up the other morning and looked out. Oh, me! oh, my! wasn't I shut in for fair! Not even a shovel to dig out with. I opened the front door; the storm door was kind enough to help me, as it pushed off part of the snow, but it left about eight inches still there. What was I going to do? I looked around and I caught up the dustpan and started in.

I cleared off the step, then there was the path. Well, I said, here goes for it and I did! I panned a path to the road, I can't say I shoveled it, for I had nothing but the dustpan. Then I went to the side door. Great suffering cats! That was far worse, but I hit in and got a path to the well. Was my poor back broken? No, not at all; but I thought it was. But the next time I only went part way to the road, as I said, let the good Lord send rain and clear off the snow. Well, my path is clear but it looks now as if it will be filled again. If it does, I think it will stay there this time.

P. S.—I think Kochia must have got snowed in or frozen up, don't you?

Kochia: Poor child, you are snowed in. Go for it with the dustpan, if you can't get a shovel. Say, it is just fun digging out with one. Just try it. I was glad to see the dear Corner page so full. It looks like there was some interest in it yet.

Velvie: Yes, there is some more good old-fashioned times. Some time I will tell you of my last surprise party. There was heaps of fun there.

Keziah Doolittle: I hope you and 1929 will be ready for a slide down hill before it is too late. I am game for it, if you are. There is just as much fun in it now as there was 50 years ago. No one knows how much fun there is in it until you try. It is all right going down the hill and have the boys draw you up again.

Ann Tenna: I hope you are fine.

Aries: I hope your arm is better. I wish all the sick ones are on the gain. May God be with them all, is my best wish.

NONESOPRETTY (Club No. 4).

THE BIG BLIZZARD

Dear Editor and Sisters: Two or three weeks ago one of the sisters asked for letters about the big blizzard of 1888, so I will write what I remember of it.

I was a very small child at the time and living in northern Connecticut, five miles outside of Torrington. It had snowed all night Sunday night, but Monday morning my father started to work in Torrington; my small brother went to school, leaving me with my sister of 17, who had kept house for us since my mother's death.

In the afternoon the big boys brought home my brother, plowing their way through very deep snow to reach our door, but my father didn't reach home again until Thursday, and in the meantime we children had had a very hard time. We lived in a large high house but we had to reach out of the second story window and get snow to melt for water. Our food supply was quite low, although we had plenty of fuel, as my father always kept a back room piled high with stove wood. On Thursday afternoon when my father arrived with the help of a much larger man he brought us a good supply of food and I think a very glad heart to find us all safe. My sister rushed to him and burst into tears. I couldn't understand why, because I was glad to see him, but I have learned that one can cry with joy, since then.

On the following Sunday a hard crust had formed on the snow and two older brothers who came home that day walked over the tops of telephone poles. Of course, the snow drifted badly.

An old conductor on the New Haven road has told me that he was snowed in on a freight train during the big blizzard and the train lay near West Mystic for two days before someone dug them out. Some snow! I hope we never have another like it.

Best wishes to all.

SKIPPER.

NO LONG SKIRTS FOR HER

Dear Readers of the Social Corner: In reading BlackEyed Susie's letter about her putting on long dresses reminded me of my first long dress. I was longing for the time to come when I could wear long dresses. At last the time come. I went down to the mill and bought some cloth for a skirt. It was when they wore overskirts. The cloth was as heavy as they make coats of now.

I made the skirt clear to the ground, with a train and an overskirt. I was some anxious to get it on and get out and show it. But oh, how my arm did ache holding up that train! It was the long train I ever had on a dress and I soon took that off and made two skirts out of the one.

Another time my mother had a sewing machine on for trial. I thought I would make the most of it. I went to the store and bought ten yards of cloth for petticoats. I wanted to use all the attachments, and the result was then I had the whole ten yards of cloth in one petticoat—a long skirt, a dust ruffle, a flounce half way up the skirt, with narrow ruffles the full length of the flounce. I very soon grew tired of dragging that. I for one enjoy short skirts.

All the time we had that sewing machine I came out of work one Friday afternoon at a quarter to three and made me a shirt waist and skirt. At five o'clock I had the dress on going down street. It was a red shirt waist with white dots and a blue and white striped skirt with a ruffle around the bottom and, mind you, the seams in the ruffle were all hemstitched together. I won't say there was a hem around the bottom of your skirt or buttons on it, either, but they used beauty pins then. So you see the abbreviated dresses didn't abbreviate the time for making all together.

I have a statement to correct which I made coming home from our last meeting. I said Milksham was sick. But I called on her on my way home and found it was not so. She can't go out much because her father is almost blind. I see someone else was asking for her in his letter. I think it would be nice if she wrote a line so we will know that she can write.

Salicka and I have planned all winter to attend all the anniversary meetings. But she has been sick for a long time and isn't able to go anywhere. But I do think she is able now to write. She didn't have paralysis. I do hope all the sick people are on the gain. JUST A NUT.

MORE ABOUT BIRDS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: As a true bluebird friend, the spring time and summer would hold little charm for me without my little feathered friends with their carols and calls and their evening songs which make an earthly paradise. And if we were deprived of their services do you know the earth would soon become uninhabitable, as birds live mainly upon seeds, insects, worms, caterpillars, rats, mice and even snakes.

The means which nature has provided to check or destroy these pests of forest, field and garden are the birds, and ignorance of this fact has led to the destruction of many of these protectors, namely, hawks, crows, starlings and others.

Havoc has been wrought among birds by thoughtless, lawless boys and hunters, and investigations have proven that we are greatly indebted to our feathered friends. Let us have more about them in the schools.

The Scout movement has done much toward saving the birds, and let us hope the good work will go on. Look out for the cats; they hold a high place as pets, but you can train them to let the birds alone. I know this from experience, but the vagrant cat should be put out of the way. Well, that's all.

Aries: I was pleased to meet you.

Willy: I'm glad I found you out.

E. L. M. and Chelsea's Friend: Was pleased to have you with us.

Mr. and Mrs. L.: Come again.

Shornie: I missed you. How are your sick ones? Better, I hope. Getting late and I will hang up for now. CANTERBURY BELL.

WET TIME IN WASHINGTON

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Well, the inauguration is over and we can get back to normal again. They certainly had a "wet" time in Washington the 4th.

Primrose: Your letter was overlooked until today, when on looking through my back numbers of Social Corner pages I discovered it. I did not take the trip you asked about. Write again. ELECTA'S DAUGHTER.

NAME BELONGS TO ANOTHER

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I have read the Social Corner for a good many years and would like to become a member.

C. I. M. B.: I will try your chocolate pie. Sounds good.

Anna Z.: I enjoyed your letter on feathered pets. I intend to get a canary some day. My folks always kept one.

Will the kind editor send me a Social Corner pin? I will take for my pen name. POPCORN.

ATTENDED ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Dear Social Corner Folks, One and All: I belong somewhere and some place in the Social Corner, but I go so seldom and write so seldom that I most forget where I am, but I hope to go with Bug next Tuesday to the Buckingham and meet with them once more. I always enjoy these meetings so much. Just now, if it's not too late, I want to thank someone for the nice little calendar. It's so handy, I keep it with my writing paper, and when writing I can so readily find the date. Why do they keep it so secret who sends it?

Well, I am doing about the same as I do every winter, sewing rag and piecing bedquilts. We have had some sickness, just now a little boy in bed, but we hope he will soon be up. I had the misfortune to fall and break a rib the 10th of January, and it still bothers me. Once before I had one broken and I don't like them at all. Neuralgia is my big enemy now and I use mustarole with good results. Tonight the wind blows very cold. I shall be so glad when warm weather comes, and I guess we all will.

Didn't Bug get something going when she started the talk about short skirts? I, too, think that the fashions never were so nice as now, only I do think the skirts in many cases are too short, by far. Just a bit below the knee for young women and a few inches longer for older ones is very nice and wise, I think. I think short hair is the best ever and wish it would come in fashion for "all" women to wear it short. I would sure have mine cut then, even if it is grey.

Well, I did have the chance to get to the Buckingham with Bug, Aunty Jane and Evelyn Burr, all of us from the good old town of Plainfield. It was a lovely day and "A" met us on the corner and as we were quite early, the ten-cent store claimed our attention for a few minutes, and oh, it's a good place to go. We certainly had a nice time at the meeting. There were 118 women and several men present, and they were all "so quiet." Oh, yes, a most bountiful dinner was served and if my old enemy neuralgia had not come to me it would have been a perfect day. When we started for home we were lucky to have kind friends pick us up and drop us at our door.

Best wishes to all from

ORIGIN OF HER PEN NAME

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Many thanks for the surprise received last week. It has purchased a nice pyrex dish so useful in social gatherings.

As someone suggested giving the origin of the pen name, I will give mine. For 24 years I was a resident of California and lived near the poppy fields. They are a most beautiful sight when in full bloom. The orange yellow color could be seen for several miles in the distance, and nowhere else do they have the luxuriant growth and rich coloring as in their native state. People come from the cities in large numbers by auto and by street cars to gather and take large bouquets of them back to their homes.

It was my good fortune and great pleasure while living there to traverse the state north, south, east and west, and everywhere was thrilled with the wonders of nature and what man has been able to accomplish by the use of his brains and hands. It is no place for an indolent person, but one who is willing to work will find ready encouragement and help and if he persists in an honest endeavor he will succeed. A man came to our locality and purchased a vineyard and announced that he would just sit on the front porch and watch it grow and come to harvest. Needless to say, he was a greatly disappointed man and soon left the place. Many are disappointed in California by expecting too much from a comparatively new state, but when one considers the present development from the vast grain fields and sandy desert of only 40 years ago, one marvels at its wonderful growth.

It has been called a "little empire," as nearly everything necessary to health and comfort can be raised within its borders. My entrance into the state was under most favorable circumstances, as I accompanied relatives upon their return from an eastern visit, and spent a very happy year with them before making a home for my own. Of course, California has some drawbacks like the rainy season and the extreme heat of the summertime, yet even those are tempered by gentle sunshine every day, and the breezes which some dislike, in the morning, cool the atmosphere for the rest of the day after the sun appears, and the hot sun is absolutely essential to the development and curing of many of the fruits.

In conclusion, I will say, like a recent writer in the Corner, that California, the state of my adoption for so many years, will always have a warm place in my affections as well as good old Connecticut, my native state and my present home.

Best wishes to all.

CALIFORNIA POPPY.

WOMEN SMOKERS NO NOVELTY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It has been such a long time since I have written to the Social Corner that I feel like a stranger entering a strange city, but felt I could not let another anniversary go by without saying "Present!"

Evidently some of our sisters think that cigarette smoking among women is a new question to be discussed. It has been "thrashed out" so many times that it is now an old story. And, after all, why is it more disgraceful for women than men to indulge in this habit? It is not a new thing for the "gentler sex" to smoke; even our grandmothers did it, but their efforts were confined to the more unsightly "pipe."

No, I am not a flapper, and I do not smoke, but I can see nothing so very shameful in women doing it if they so desire.

Olga: You expressed my sentiments.

Crimson Rambler: You have my sympathy.

Aunty No. 1: I think of you often and wonder if you ever think of the day I spent at your home in the country, and how you tried to teach me to tat and all I did was make knots, but I can make the shuttle fly now, thanks to you.

Lelight: We will be down to see you soon; expect to get our number plates soon.

Best wishes to one and all. I remain as ever, your Social Corner Sister, MERRY WIDOW.

LIKES SHORT SKIRTS

Dear Social Corner Friends: March came with her sullen face, hating to come to life, but nature always has the right of way, and soon we will rejoice in the beauties that come every spring, and forget the cold, disagreeable features.

The Corner is getting more and more interesting every day. Writers I never knew before are coming to life. Soon the editor will say "take your turn." When housecleaning is the rule we will lay aside the pen, take up the gleaming cloth and scare the men folks up attic or the barn.

In regard to smoking and drinking—who cares, if they want to? I never smoked and only drink at the Social Corner meetings—just one cup of coffee. Smoking hurts the shape of the mouth. I can tell a smoker for there is always dried saliva at the corner of the mouth, and the fingers are always dirty. You must be careful, girls, to wipe your mouth and wear rubber gloves.

Now about short skirts. When well shaped legs carry the skirt along, who can find fault? The most disgusting thing to me is a 40-year-old mother and a 20-year-old son in bathing. The mother with a band of screen cloth around her, and the son ditto. They may as well be naked. I would be ashamed to pose like that. We soon will be like the savages in a few years if there isn't a law to prevent going before the public half naked.

About the short skirts, so many go into fits when they see one above the calf of the leg. Mine are so short that I can climb a tree and jump a fence. No hamburg or rick-rack to catch and trip me. I never wore a hoop, but was doing to. Many times I have run a graveyine into the hem of the skirt or petticoat, as they used to call it. But the hoops were a sight, especially when getting into a wagon or through a door, but the hoopskirters had a way of lifting so they could squeeze into a small space.

Who wouldn't like to be in Boston to hear Gipsy Smith? Why can't he come to Norwich to stir the churches to more activity? Do you suppose he is only stirring up the emotions for the time being and after he is gone people will settle back into sin?

I won't take up any more room let some others have a space. With best wishes for all the sick and in trouble.

SEVEN GABLES.

WHY DO GIRLS SHOW THEIR KNEES?

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Why show the world your knees, girls? What do you gain? One of those young women usually described as a flapper, though the term, I understand, is passe as the pattern, sat on a recent evening exposing her knees.

The shade of her undies was kept no mystery, either. Blithely unconscious of any impression, one way or another that she might be making, she talked on about plays she had seen, books she had read and games she had played.

Entertaining young person, too. Nothing correspondingly unreserved in her conversation as with her dress. Not too high brow, not too opinionated, and willing to let the other fellow get in more than a word now and then. A reasonably good listener for a person with a mind of her own.

When she departed the very nice young man of the house ventured to his sister that "Bee would be a nice kid if she'd show a little more modesty." Just a little tip, perhaps that needs to be passed on.

If there's a brother handy in your family you might get him to verify the statement that men like girls more who show a bit of feminine reserve and modesty than girls without it or those who have adopted the so-called freedom of modern day manners too broadly.

I doubt if the current garter and "undie" exposure has behind it any motive such as an attempt to intrigue or charm a male. It's just one of those things a girl takes for granted that it's all right because so much of it is being done these days. It's due to carelessness, thoughtlessness or pure indifference in the matter.

It isn't that boys are Puritans, but they do like a bit of finesse instead of cheapness. And you've got to admit that cheapness cannot be disassociated from this sort of thing.

FLAT ROCK.

PASTIMES FOR SHUT-INS.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: May I enter this cheery circle once more for a little silent chat with you all? Having received much helpful advice myself I wish to make some return. First of all I want to express sincere thanks for the pretty little calendar sent me at the beginning of the year by some member of the club. Everytime I look at it I say, all to myself, I wonder who you are? Then I want to show deep appreciation to all the sisters who so kindly remembered me with cards of cheer and sympathy, also those who made personal calls during my recent illness.

I am sure I cannot tell you the pleasure it has given me for your remembrance and kindly thought during the long weary hours while a shut-in. Having found a pleasant pastime during my convalescence I will pass it along, hoping it may be a help to others.

It is exchanging letters of cheer to other shut-ins like myself. It helps one just to have something "on the side" in which to take an interest, and I have learned that the best way to brighten our lives is in trying to bring a little sunshine to others. As I am so much alone and confined to my home on account of poor health I have been looking up a few shut-ins like myself and find this work a pleasant pastime as it helps to:

Put away gloomy thoughts
And look ahead for brightness,
And treasure only what we know.
Will fill our hearts with lightness;
If troubles crowd around our path,
And heavy burdens bend us,
We'll turn to open thoroughfares,
And walk just where God sends us.

My next best pastime is fussing and working with house plants. How I love the work, even though I do not always have good success. I wonder if any of the sisters ever tried this inexpensive way of saving grape fruit seeds and in a well-drained pot drop a small handful of the seeds about one inch deep. It takes some time for them to grow, but you will be repaid for waiting. The plant has rich dark green leaves and makes a nice piece for the table because of its low spreading foliage. If your ferns are not doing well dig a hole near the root, put in a teaspoon of castor oil once a month. Another help is a cup of milk, tea or coffee, once a week, and plenty of water every day.

Here is a suggestion that may be helpful to some. I have found it so myself so will pass it along. To keep your tongue from skidding think before you speak, put on the brakes, slow down, and stop altogether, unless what you were about to say makes for friendliness.

Now sisters don't you think there are a few days in the calendar of the year that have especial significance for us. They may not be the same days for you that they are for me as some of them are birthdays, marriage anniversaries and days hushed with a longing for a "voice that is stilled." For me the most blessed day of the year is approaching. I love the Easter and everything about it; I love the tender sacredness of memories; memories of other Easters in a little country town where there was always a gathering in the little church with every one in town there; where the prayers and singing mingled with the ringing of the old church bell and pleasant Easter greeting, the prattle of little children; the faces of true friends. I love to believe that the dear faces which come to me with the thoughts of those other days still look on our quiet hour of worship on that day and smile their loving greetings as they did before. With what care are they garnered for memory's treasure house to be flashed before our mental vision only when they may comfort and strengthen in moments of stress or sadness.

To the sick I extend best wishes for their speedy recovery and to bereaved ones, deepest sympathy.

ZULIEKA (Club No. 6).

WE HAVE BEEN FRIENDS TOGETHER.

Dear Corner Friends: As a candle flickers and goes out, so the soul of our beloved friend, Sybil De-Grenier, sped from this earthly life down the long lane of unreturning, leaving us sorrowing with only a precious memory of one we all loved.

Alas what words are there with which to express the esteem and admiration which everyone accorded to the one who knew so well the true meaning of good fellowship. Unobtrusive but sincere, she met life's problems with a smile and we who had the pleasure of associating with her know that a more amiable acquaintance or a kinder friend could never be found.

To the sorrowing husband, who was ever devoted, and to the children her memory will linger and her influence abide. And now as we look out over the darkening hills to the westward where the sun is sinking amid roseate splendor, let us bow our heads in memory of this beautiful wife and mother, who but lately passed over the Great Divide and through the gateway of the sunset into the kingdom of life; and, as the stars peep forth and twinkle in the boundless heaven, let us raise our heads and thank God that we were given the wonderful privilege of knowing and loving such a friend as White Dawn

A NEW MEMBER'S LETTER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I am not a member but I would like very much to become one, if you feel so inclined after reading my letter. I certainly do enjoy reading the letters that are an inspiration and help such as Kitty Lou wrote, she must have been a most wonderful woman.

Perhaps I should never have written. How often it is repeated in illness, young girls, I come in contact with go to a number and find them very lovely and agree with Bud that there was never a time when fashion was as pretty as today, sensible and sanitary.

I too, can remember those dresses you spoke of, and, farther back, when I wore a hoop skirt. One Sunday in church I forgot to lift it up in the rack, and if this took place with young girls today, how shocking; in our day some is today—just style.

And a bustle to the bottom of my dress, false frizzes, puffs and long curls, and as I found the silver threads creeping through, tried to cover them up. Perhaps some are doing the same today. Then why question?

Let us not condemn another's views although they are not to our way of thinking and doing. If a thing seems wrong to us, let us live as near as we can to what seems right. What we need today is more love, faith, hope and charity.

Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Faith is the faculty of the mind and finds its most perfect expression in the spiritual nature and brings out the whole character in all its phases.

Hope is our cheerful mentor in our daily lives. We hope for better things, prosperity, love of others and a better understanding.

Where there is life there is hope, where there is life there is hope."

Charity to me is universal love, a disposition to think favorable of others, and to do them good. If we try to do good and do it willingly, sincerely, how much it means to us, and what must it mean to others.

If we haven't anything else to give, then give loving kindness, sympathy in sorrow, comfort in misfortune and aid in affliction, and we may be sure the more we give the more we shall receive.

That reminds me of a German saying: "I like to give villingly, ven I gives villingly it enjoys me so much I gives it again."

We have a woman's page in nearly every newspaper we read, but we have only one Social Corner. Then why not make this one of pleasant memories.

In the few visits to one another and exchange of thoughts and useful suggestions, let us feel, we are one big family, here for some good to ourselves and to others.

Cedy: I congratulate you for entering into the spirit of your young folks.

Calla Lily: Very good theory to love one for herself, not what she does.

Practical Polly: I think you must have been a little out of patience; nevertheless your letter was right to the point.

Wirdham Blue Bell: Your suggestion is marvelous. Stop knocking.

ABIGALL ROSABELLA.

APPROVES PRESENT STYLES

Dear Editor and Friends: I have said so many times I will write before another week has passed, but it is here before I know it. I see Cilo is a granger. I wonder how many of the sisters are? I am glad to say I am, and I also belong to the Rebekahs, Woman's club and the Congregational church.

In regard to short skirts, I must say I approve of them, but I do think it depends on the wearer. Bobbed hair is the same. I must say I am tired of hairpins and it is a bother to keep one's hair tidy during our morning work. Smoking I will pass and let Georgs do it.

What changeable weather! I hope the sisters will not forget me. I think of you all, but keep busy; only 14 in family now—mostly old ladies. You guess right when you say it. Ha! ha!

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Editor: As I have read the Social Corner pages of the Saturday Bulletin and have enjoyed them very much, I would like to join the Corner, taking for my pen name Lonely Pa.

I will send a recipe for a

Sponge Cake: Four eggs, separated, one cup of sugar, 1 1-2 tablespoons of cornstarch, one scant cup of flour, three tablespoons of cold water, one level teaspoon of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of flavoring.

Beat the yolks and sugar together until very light, add the water, sift together 3 or 4 times the flour, cornstarch, baking powder and salt, add to the first mixture, then the white of eggs beaten stiff last and flavored. Bake in angel cake pans 45 minutes.

SAW A GROUND DOVE.

Dear Social Corner Friends: During this last snow storm I had come birds come for food. Among them das a dove and I didn't know just what kind of a dove it was, so I looked up in the dictionary and found it was a ground dove. The man of the house came in and said at first he thought it was a wild pigeon. He said when he was a boy, this is quite a number of years ago, his father used to throw buckwheat on the ground and the wild pigeons would come and eat. They used to have a net which they put on the ground and when the pigeons would come to eat they would pull this net together, catching the pigeons. Then his mother would make pigeon pie. What they didn't want they would carry to Providence and sell. They also would hunt woodcocks. He said they would make woodcock pies with these. With the bills sticking out they called it a fine dish in those days at hotels in Providence.

The dictionary I spoke of I bought of Herbert, Columbus in 1892 and gave $10 for it. He came one Saturday morning with his fur gloves on. He said I would never regret it if I bought one. It was in a desk that was saved when my home burned. There are lots of new words now that were never thought of then. One would never think so many changes could be made in 30 years or more.

Will some one send in the Dicibles names in rhyme. I have heard my mother tell them but have forgotten just how they do come along in rhyme. I have read it in the Corner once some time ago. Can any one tell me what name was given the first Negro?

ENJOYED ANNIVERSARY MEETING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It was my good fortune to attend the anniversary of Club 5 and I enjoyed it very much. There was a good dinner and some fine readings that brought many a laugh. One of the gentlemen gave a good contribution. I hope he comes down with Windham Blue Bell to our anniversary and gives it again. I was very sorry to hear of the illness of Wurdy Bell. She has visited our club many times and it was always a pleasure to meet her.

Roma: I am so glad that you are feeling so well. We will all be glad when you come back this way for the summer for then we will see you once a month.

Tonsy: Thanks for the recipe; have tried it once, not quite as good as yours but think the oven was a little at fault.

Rural Aunty: I make your sponge cake very often. Now next Tuesday the nineteenth (19) is the third anniversary of Club 6 and we hope to have a big crowd at Mechanic's hall, Westerly, and if you expect to eat you must bring dishes as we have none in the hall and, of course, we want you to eat with us. Please do not bring sugar or pickles, but anything else that will help to make a good dinner.

Fannie M. K.: Can't you make the trip again?

Interested Reader: I hope the grip has deserted by then.

Mila: Don't forget the date.

Noank Brownie: Hope to see you and many of the Mystic members.

RECALLS HER SCHOOL DAYS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: We hope the sisters will pardon some personal reminiscences because we really can't rest easy until we have inoculed in a few members of school days under the teaching of the late Thomas Latham. Perhaps they will recall old times to others, for there must be a number of Cornerites who went to school to him or who at least attended some of his famed entertainments.

How we did enjoy gazing around the room and studying the different scrolls and designs with which Mr. Latham had decorated the bare plaster walls along with dates of the presidents, rules of arithmetic, geographic principles, etc. And as we were only 8 or thereabouts perhaps we may be excused for taking a sidelong glance at the rule for the least common multiple when called upon, for we never could remember the difference between that and the least common denominator, and we must confess a certain mist hung over the subject for years.

Then there were the towns of the county. These went much better for we enjoyed the way "Lebanon, Franklin, Sprague" rolled off our tongue, and the repetition of such pleasant-sounding names as "East Lyme, Old Lyme, Lyme." We have sometimes wondered where Mr. Latham got the idea or having a word stand for the name of a town. We remember speculating in a vague sort of way as to what was meant by the sentence "Old Ladies' Land," but there was no doubt in our mind as to the next line with the legend "Saucy Children Better Not Plague Little Maud."

We got along nicely, too, in boxing the compass, because we repeated it in unison, and we learned to fade out quietly whenever we were in doubt as to whether it was "south by east or east southeast."

The names of the presidents with their dates, written high on the wall are still visible in our mind's eye and we have always been grateful for learning them so thoroughly, as they have furnished us with a tag, so to speak, to identify various events in our history.

Friday afternoon was the period of the week to which we always looked forward with much pleasure, for it was then we were given various oral quizzes on geography, history and grammar. It not only gave us an opportunity to sit in another part of the schoolroom but there was the excitement of wondering whether we would know the answer to the question which came to us and the possibility of winning a prize in the form of a pencil, a penny or a roll of lozenges. The candy with the wintergreen flavoring was very acceptable, but we still remember the distaste which we carefully concealed on receiving the bright pink lozenges with the geranium flavoring and which were supposed to be extra choice because of their attractive color.

Sometimes we received big, bright red cinnamon drops, and those were best of all. We had never seen any since those days until a few years ago when we noticed some on display in a little country store. Of course we bought some for old times sake, and we were most surprised and pleased to find that they tasted almost as good as the sweets of youthful memory. BO-PEEP.

CLUB 2's ANNIVERSARY MEETING.

Dear Sisters: Didn't we all have a beautiful day for our anniversary last Tuesday? The number in attendance proved what a pleasant day could do.

In my last letter I said there was going to be some one there whom you haven't seen for a long time and I guess nearly all of us found the same one.

Everyone enjoyed themselves I guess. Luck was with us in more than the weather, as we had Mr. and Mrs. Libby with us again. We all enjoyed his subjects, also Mrs. Libby's singing. Rev. Mr. Borden came again and of course we were pleased to have him there. Our tables were pretty with a touch of spring with baskets of yellow bells and pussy willows, also yellow candles. Thanks to Mawb.

Seems everyone must have had plenty to eat, judging by the amount left to sell which helped to swell our budget. There was a fine variety of food and plenty of it, mostly home made, even the butter.

There were 125 seated for dinner which were waited on by the hostess and six helpers. Several came after who were unable to be there for dinner making a good sized crowd for the entertainment.

Don't stay away until next March because if we can we are going to have several more entertainments similar to this month's, all we need is some volunteers for parts and there'll be some more laughs. We need six ladies for our next one.

Sorry for those who had to miss a good time, but we'll look forward to seeing them with us next month.

Strawberry: Glad you got a cap and apron after all. How are you feeling? My feet were tired the next day.

Red Rose: Hope you are feeling better by now.

Sister Ready: So glad you and Auntie No. 1 were able to come. Well you and I can talk the dingle.

Scottie: My heart's sympathy to you in your hour of sadness. He passed on to his Maker in peace without suffering.

I didn't get a chance to speak to everyone I knew at the meeting, but hope to see all again. Many thanks to all those who in any way helped to make the dinner and entertainment such a success.

Mrs. Libby: Do come again. Enjoyed your company very much. Hope you had no ill effects from the service you gave us Tuesday. My, but I sure was tired Wednesday.

GEORGETTE, Club No. 2.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SOUTH

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I enjoy reading the letters and have the paper sent to me every week when I come to my southern home, Lynn Harbor is on St. Andrew's Bay and 15 miles from the gulf by water. There was an excursion Saturday by boat. There were 75 who went. It was a lovely day and they carried a picnic lunch to eat on the shore and then pick up shells. Next week we go up the creek to a fish fry. A week or two ago I took a trip down through the south part of the state. Was gone nine days and went 1,800 miles. I saw lots but for charity sake in regard to sanctuary the day after President Coolidge opened it, I would like to be at the anniversary of Club No. 1, but cannot this time.

With best wishes to all.

DOROTHY PERKINS.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Mr. Editor and Social Corner Readers: Leaving Brown's shop, we pass along down in front of the church, with its Colonial pillars that have supported the front portion of the superstructure for more than one hundred years.

Here my thoughts go back more than 70 years, when I with others watched the arrival of those who made up the congregation, coming from the north, east, south and west, from a distance of three or more miles. You count and see how many that are regular and occasional attendants at church, who bear Bible names. From the north and farthest away comes Deacon Nathan Alley; the next is Enoch, at the foot of the hill; then on the pinnacle we have Isaac, the owner and operator of the foundry; and next comes Daniel; next is a score of the Phillips family; and nearby is Elias and Hezekiah and daughter Sarah. We will pass by the Carter and Wedge families, until we

STATE SENATOR THORP RESENTS SCITUATE ACT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 15—There was a flare-up Friday afternoon in the upper branch of the Rhode Island general assembly at Providence, in the course of the senate business when what was reported, prepared by City Solicitor Elmer S. Chase of Providence at the direction of the Providence city council, to have the matter of the disputed tax assessment of the property of the Providence city water works in Scituate, R. I., referred to the senate committee on judiciary. Senator Howard E. Thorp of Westerly, chairman of the senate committee on corporations, was on his feet immediately and moved that the matter be referred to the committee on corporations, inasmuch as the matter concerned corporation taxes and was a proper matter for his committee to care for. His motion was immediately seconded by the gentleman from North Smithfield, and prevailed, while the matter of reference to the committee on judiciary was laid upon the table. It is understood that the proposed method of procedure was to have an assessor named who would place a value upon the Providence property in Scituate, a proceeding that would be resented by almost any other town in the state in having an outsider come in and fix the value of property within its borders. To make the position of the town of Scituate the more difficult in the collection of its taxes there is a Rhode Island statute which prevents a public utility like a water works from being proceeded against, as the placing of a tax lien upon the property, and Senator Thorp thought that an unfair advantage was being taken in the matter by the Providence authorities, and against pressure did not hesitate to state his position. He also resented the public affront of having the matter, although he had no personal interest at stake, taken from his committee where it rightfully belonged and referred to another.

PROMINENT SINGERS AT CONCERT FOR LIONS' CLUB

Generous encores were accorded Tuesday evening, to the audience of over 600 attending the Milk Fund concert, held at the West Broad street school under the auspices of the Westerly Lions' club. A good sum was raised for the charitable work of the organization. An excellent program was given by G. M. Fattori, bass, of the Pennsylvania Opera company; Joseph Cavadore, tenor, of the Chicago Opera company and Renata Mordina, dramatic soprano. The accompanist was Raymond Coon of Boston, a former Westerly boy. The well-known singers were secured for the concert here by Dr. John E. Rulot, an honorary member of the Lions, who is personally acquainted with them.

Mrs. Ahern Goes Abroad

Mrs. Frances McWeeney Ahern, wife of Frank C. Ahern of Elm street, Westerly, sailed Thursday on S. S. Laconia from New York for a visit to Paris, France. Mrs. Ahern, who is organist of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and a prominent member of the Westerly Music club, has been in poor health for several months, and Mr. Ahern to rest for a while at Nice, France. During her absence, Mrs. George McMahon will be organist at the church.

Mrs. Simon E. Kinney of 3 Lester avenue, Pawcatuck, suffered painful injuries Thursday in an accident which caused her removal to the Westerly hospital. Two arteries were severed when Mrs. Kinney stepped from her home door to place a milk bottle outside. She slipped and fell on the bottle, which broke, inflicting the cuts. At the hospital it was found she had severed one artery in her forehead and one in her left hand. There were also cuts in her left forearm and thumb. Fifteen stitches were required to close the wounds.

District Court Assignments

In the Third district court session before Judge Oliver H. Williams Friday morning, business was transacted as follows: New writ entered before the calling of the docket—James Saccarata vs. Maria Uzzo and Pasquale Uzzo. Continued two weeks. JUDGE CARPENTER ILL—NO SUPERIOR COURT SESSION

There was no session of the Washington county superior court in Westerly Friday, for trial of the $50,000 automobile damage case of Edwin D. Vernard vs. Harold Lihme. Sheriff Frederick T. Mitchell, Friday morning, announced that he had received a telephone call from Mrs. Carpenter, wife of Associate Justice Herbert L. Carpenter, of North Smithfield, who is on the bench at this term of the court in Westerly, to the effect that Judge Carpenter had been ill all night and his condition Friday morning prevented him from attempting to come to Westerly. As many of the jurymen, attorneys, witnesses and court officers as could be reached by telephone were warned by Sheriff Mitchell that there would be no court session. To those who put in appearance, notice was given by the sheriff that court would resume at 10:45 a. m., Monday at Westerly, when the Vennard-Lihme trial would be continued.

GOVERNOR CASE AND OTHERS PRAISE LEGION POST

At the post-prandial exercises at the banquet tendered His Excellency, Norman S. Case, governor of Rhode Island, by Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, department of Rhode Island, inaugurating the Seventh Annual Auto Show, the chairman of the committee of arrangements, Roger E. Trainer, introduced as toastmaster Capt. H. Russell Burdick, commander of Merrill post, Henry L. Burdick, attorney, of Westerly and Providence, a member of the Rhode Island safety council, as first speaker. He commented upon the continued activity of the Legion post in public affairs of the town. George O. Murphey of Pawcatuck, for the auto dealers, who were without organization, voiced their approval of the efforts of the Legion in their behalf. State Department Commander Charles R. Johnson referred to the cordiality of Merrill post, and his pleasant recollections of his last Westerly visit which included a trip to Block Island by boat from Stonington. He declared it the aim of the State Legion to make the Legion posts of the state an asset to the community, remarking adversely upon the proposed location of the U. S. Disabled Veterans' hospital in Hartford, the dissatisfaction expressed even in New Haven, and the possibility of a change in plans even yet, to get the hospital located in Westerly. State Senator Howard E. Thorp of Westerly stated that the joint efforts of the Legion and auto dealers was an asset to Westerly and closed with an expression of personal interest in the veterans' hospital location and the fact that the location of the hospital might not be decided from a political standpoint.

Governor Case related his experiences in his recent inaugural trip to Washington and as being impressed with the smile of President Coolidge as he shook hands with President Hoover in congratulation on the latter's ascendancy to the high office. President Coolidge asked, "Governor, what brings you to Washington? What do you want?" On his reply that he wanted nothing and came to extend the best wishes of the people of Rhode Island, the president invited him to be seated and many Rhode Island and Massachusetts matters were discussed. He concluded with the expressed desire that the Legion might become a service one, "carrying on" in southwestern Rhode Island for the benefit of both the state and the nation. There was an attendance of 46 at the banquet.

RADIO AND GENERAL MOTORS WERE OUTSTANDING FEATURES OF MARKET

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—Bullish operations swelled to the largest proportions since the "pre-inaugural" celebration of March 1 on the stock market today, with Radio and General Motors leading the advance, reminiscent of last spring.

The accomplishment of the mid-month turnover of about $2,000,000,000 at the banks without causing a flurry in the call money market, together with the failure of the federal reserve bank to increase its rediscount rate and the moderate drop in call loans, set the market boiling with bullish enthusiasm. A total of 3,835,170 shares changed hands during the day, and the Associated Press price index of 50 industrials was lifted more than 4 points to another new high at 223.

Operators were not generally disposed to regard the upswing as the beginning of any sustained movement, however, and profit taking was heavy. U. S. Steel, which sold up about 3 points at one time, closed fractionally lower. Although call money renewed at 7 per cent. and held at that rate all day, time money was appreciably scarcer, and little was available under 8 per cent. even for the 90 day maturity.

Bankers pointed out that the comparative ease in call money may be attributed to the temporary overdraft at the reserve banks by the U. S. treasury, estimated at $100,000,000, the major part of which sum is, in effect, put into the money market. This overdraft is customary at the quarterly income tax settlement periods. As it is paid off next week, money is expected to tighten up considerably.

The day's news was marked by still another 1-2-cent-a-pound jump in copper metal prices, carrying the domestic price to 20 1-2 cents. The general and regional committees of the American Petroleum institute met in Houston to tackle the problem of controlling crude production. Vacuum and Standard of Kansas reported marked gains in earnings in 1928. The weekly trade and business reviews were again highly optimistic.

The new Radio shares were accumulated in tremendous volume, mounting more than 7 points to a record price at 107 7-8 in a turnover of nearly 70,000 shares. Old stock mounted 37 points to 538, which lacks but a point of being 200 above its 1929 low.

Motor, copper, oil and independent steel shares all made substantial progress. Utilities and rails were quiet. General Motors, in which a new and powerful pool is reported to have formed, was sent up over 4 points to a new peak at 90 1-4, and Hudson reached new high ground.

In the coppers, Kennecott established a new top at 101 7-8. Bethlehem Steel again reached new high levels, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube, which had been long neglected, jumped about 9 points to a new top. Standard of New Jersey led the oils with a gain of 4 points, mounting to within a point of its 1929 high.

Advance Rumely rose more than 4 points to a new top, and reports were circulated that Case Threshing interests were seeking control. Commercial Solvents, Johns Manville, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Safeway Stores, Trico Products, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, and Victor all made substantial gains.

G. W. Helme was a soft spot, dropping nearly 7 points to a new low. International Telephone turned heavy in selling on the good news of the proposed stock split-up. American Radiator, Allied Chemical, Collins and Aikman, and Union Tank Car lost 2 to 4 points.

The commodity markets were generally steady. Cotton started forward but was checked by profit-taking. Wheat and corn were firmer on unfavorable weather reports and higher Liverpool cables.

In the foreign exchanges, European currencies eased slightly, although sterling cables held steady. The Canadian dollar rallied nearly 1-4 of a cent.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich grange, No. 172, met in Slicker's hall Wednesday evening with Worthy Master Albert W. Lillibridge presiding. All officers were present, with 115 members and 15 guests from neighboring granges. Mrs. Dorothy P. Rogers reported on a dance held recently and turned over $15 toward the building fund. An invitation pinochle card party held in the afternoon netted the sum of $6.50, that was also turned in toward the building fund. Six tables were in play. An invitation to neighbor with Canterbury grange Wednesday evening, March 20, was accepted and the lecturer is to furnish a half hour program.

Groton grange has invited Norwich grange to neighbor with them on Friday evening, March 22, the lecturer to furnish two numbers. Two invitations to neighbor in one week is a rare treat. The attendance Wednesday evening was 110 members and 12 visitors. Charles M. Adams, assistant state steward, was present and gave an interesting talk; also Master Swallow of Mystic grange, who spoke briefly on Grange Doings.

The lecturer's program was very interesting, the first number being songs from the grange song book. Other numbers were: A pantomime, Bluebeard: The reader, Mrs. Anna Woods; Bluebeard, Mrs. Sue Lillibridge; Fatima, Miss Dorothy P. Rogers; mother, Mrs. Nettie Fanning; sister, Miss Jane Woods; brothers, Clarence Lillibridge, Charles Rathbun; late wives, Mrs. Flora Lillie, Mrs. Anne Niles, Miss Jennie Mitchell, Mrs. William Peckham; dancer, Miss Helene Crandall; pianist, Mrs. Mabel Stebbins. It was staged by Mrs. Elsie Wigley.

The settings and costumes were very pretty and the acting of Bluebeard was excellent. The others in the cast were all unusually good. The dancing by Miss Crandall was splendid and much appreciated, calling for an encore.

Master Edwin Wigley entertained with selections on the piano: Silver Stars, Bohm; Aragonaise, Massenet; song by grange, Bud and Bloom. A play, His Methodist Foot—The cast: Agent Carleton Bowers; Mrs. Jones, Amy Coles; Mr. Jones, Leonard W. Stubbley; Bobby Jones, Percy Coles; Mary, Marion Gibbs; Mrs. Stubbs, Eliza Walker; Mrs. Binks, Gladys Bowers; Mrs. Lane, Mary L. Dow; Mrs. Johnson, Mary Adams. All acted their parts in a very capable manner and much praise is due Master Perry Coles and Miss Marion Gibbs, as they were very much at home on the stage any delightful in their parts. Mrs. Coles as Mrs. Jones and Mr. Bowers as the book agent were very good. The other ladies in the play were good and their costumes of long ago won much applause. Mrs. Eliza Walker had charge of this play and won the prize. Brother Taylor of Groton entertained with a recitation, Casey Taking the Census.

This concluded the lecturer's hour. A dainty St. Patrick's confection was served by Div. D., Mrs. Jennie Davis, chairman, consisting of green salad on lettuce, sardines, fancy wafers and coffee.

The next meeting will be March 27.

At the close of the regular meeting of the North Stonington grange recently those present, about 35 in all, were entertained at an oyster supper by John B. Perry.

This supper was served as the fulfillment of a promise made by Mr. Perry over a year ago. Wishing to see a high average attendance maintained at the regular meetings of the organization, Mr. Perry told the Grangers that if a 50 per cent. attendance was averaged through the year, he would give an oyster supper for the members.

The supper was followed by an informal program in which the officers and members of the grange took part. The chief speaker of the evening was Rev. Charles Downs of Danielson. Mr. Downs gave an interesting and inspiring address, taking for his topic, "Putting the Accents in Their Right Place in Life and in the Grange."

The Grangers feel deeply indebted to Mr. Perry for a many-many social occasion, and also for his active and constructive interest in the prosperity of the local grange.

ODD FELLOWS

SOCIAL CORNER

since her immortal soul entered spiritland. The songbird in her throat is forever silenced by death. She sleeps today in an unmarked and sunken grave overrun by briars and noxious weeds; neglected and forgotten by all but one. I with her favorite cousin visited the cemetery last Memorial day. After much searching he found the grave where sleeps all that is mortal of his cousin. He sorrowfully placed upon her grave a beautiful spray of choice flowers saying "This I will do as long as I am able to visit that neglected grave."

Mr. Greene loved and enjoyed good music, and would have it, no matter what were the surroundings. While at the fort defending his country's flag, having taken part in several engagements with the rebels, hearing the heavy bass roar of the field pieces and the high pitched tenor of the deadly Minnie ball; he with his regiment went into winter camp at Martinsburg, Va. Craving a contrast to rebel shot and shell, he established a singing school in town in which soldiers and citizens alike participated. This was entertaining and of real value; introducing the boys into the best families, and adding a genuine zest to life in the barracks.

There were many social gatherings at Westminster in my early life, such as church festivals, singing and spelling schools, lyceums and reunions of teachers and scholars. All were well attended and greatly enjoyed by old and young.

The greatest event of the winter was the yearly donation to the preacher and family. The residents of the society contributed such things as were needful and necessary for the comfort and pleasure of the family. On the day of the donation you would see men with their teams, bringing to his door loads of the best of oak and hickory wood, while others were cutting it into lengths to accommodate stove and open grate; the younger ones were storing it away today from snow and rain. It was usually good sleighing at this time and you would hear the music of the bells that were buckled around old Dobbin's neck, as those not engaged in the wood business came with the women folks in the old high back roomy sleigh, loaded down with all kinds of vegetables, apples, squash and pumpkins, nice fat chickens, a loin of pork, frozen, from some outbuilding, a generous string of home made sausage such as would keep all winter, nice cured hams of both beef and pork of large proportion, mince pies and cake such as mother used to make, a cheese or two, and perhaps a few balls of golden yellow butter. While the men were busy with the wood the women folks were doing sewing, making sheets and pillow slips from cloth they brought with them. Some may have brought woolen yarn with which they are knitting mittens for Steadman, or a pair of gloves for his sister. With the wood cut and housed, the men and boys are invited in to supper, which the ladies have prepared from the food especially contributed for this one purpose, so not to lessen that intended for the minister's larder. After the banquet the older ones gather in the living room and library to hold religious and social intercourse while the younger ones gather in some of the other rooms to play games and indulge in such sports as the young knew how to enjoy. The hour of parting has come and like other festivities it must come to an end.

The good people depart for their several homes with God's blessing upon them and having the consciousness that with their liberal donation, they have done a service to their minister, that shows and breathes a true Christian spirit.

Seventy years ago, within a radius of three or four miles from Westminster there were more than a score of thriving industries. Today, with the exception of three or four, they, with those connected with them, have passed beyond recall.

Since writing the above article, I with sorrow, have learned of the death of Deacon A. C. Greene of Danielson, one of God's noblemen, a man of unquestioned integrity and honor.

With the infirmities of old age, he fell into that dreamless sleep that kissed down his eyelids. Being weary with his burden of years, he passed into silence and pathetic dust; loved, honored and respected by all who knew him in his social and business life. His many friends will mourn his passing. "Were every one to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep tonight beneath a wilderness of flowers."

My heart's sympathy goes out to those of his bereaved family.

QUID-NUNC.

GHOSTS.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: This is my second letter this year, but I feel I must do my part in letting the world know that Club 6 is still on the map.

Now, sisters, draw your chairs close together, for I am going to talk on a very cheerful (?) subject—Ghosts. Just the day for it too, dark and gloomy and the rain coming down in sheets.

I remember reading a story in the Corner once a couple of years ago, about a tree which bore apples with a scarlet spot in each one. Supposed to be a drop of blood, from a knife with which a murder had been committed, hidden in the tree.

I am not a superstitious person who believes in "ghost stories" but do think they are very interesting to read. In nine cases out of ten there is a perfectly natural explanation of so called "supernatural" happenings. But once-in-a-while you find one that has no explanation except a supernatural one. Of such a one I am going to tell you.

My grandmother was a great hand to tell stories of every description. She had a strong vein of superstition in her makeup, and while she did not exactly believe in "ghosts" she used to often say that there were many queer happenings in this world for which we mortals could find no explanation. During the last few years of her life she enjoyed nothing so much as to let her memory travel back and to tell the many things she could remember. Her recollections of 50 and 75 years ago were as vivid and clear as though it were yesterday. One of her favorite stories was of the "haunted house," an event which happened to her own mother, when she, my grandmother, was a tiny child.

I am giving you this story exactly as I have heard it time after time, from her own lips. A story which has been handed down through four generations of my family. Make of it what you will.

If you take the train at Westerly, for Providence, you will pass through a pretty little town named Wickford Junction. Somewhere, near there, I do not know exactly where, there is a place called Belleville. At least it was so called when my great-grandmother was a young woman.

My great-grandfather, having secured work near there, looked around for a house into which he might move his family. Someone told him of a house he could get and he went to see about it. It was somewhat distant from the other houses, on a lonely, wooded road. It was offered rent-free, to whoever would live in it and act as a caretaker. As he could not be at home except week-ends, he made all necessary arrangements for his wife and family to move in as soon as they reached there.

As it was nearing night when they arrived, and she was too tired to do much in the way of "settling," my great-grandfather placed a feather bed on the floor of one of the downstair rooms, and she and the children went to bed on it.

This room was a front, corner room, having windows on two sides and a door opening into a square entrance hall. On the opposite side of this hall was another door, opening into a similar front room. In this room was a large fireplace. At the back of the hall was still another door, opening upon a narrow, walled-in stairway, leading to the upper story of the house.

Sometime in the night she was awakened by a noise, as if someone had opened the door to the stairs. A sound as of heavy footsteps ascending the stairs, a crash as if some heavy object had been thrown down and then the sound of footsteps, this time descending. Sounds as of someone moving around in the room across the hall. Immediately afterwards she heard a sharp, clear whistle, which seemed to come from outside, near one of the windows of the room in which she was. This whistle was repeated three times and, though it was a brilliant moonlight night, she could see nothing. Then silence, except for a steady humming noise, which sounded to her like the noise of a spinning wheel, and seemed to come from the room across the hall. Her first impulse was to open the door, but fear held her back.

Every night in that house was a repetition of the first. She saw nothing and gradually her fear wore away. But as soon as it was possible to secure a house in the village they did so and moved into it.

One day she told her experience to a neighbor, who told her that the house was haunted and that no one could live in it. Her story was that a family, consisting of a man, his sons, and one unmarried daughter, once lived there. This daughter gave birth to a child, and her father plotted to get rid of the infant before its birth was discovered by the community. The family kept their wood supply upstairs. One clear, moonlight night he went up and threw down huge chunks of wood and started a fire in the fireplace of the front room. One of the sons was stationed in the yard and when the road was entirely empty of travel, gave a sharp whistle. Then the baby was burned to death in the fireplace, and its bones buried in the cellar. A spinning wheel was run to drown the sound of its cries. Preyed on by remorse, the man finally confessed and then committed suicide by jumping down the well. Years after the old house was moved to another site and all noises ceased.

Such is my story, Sisters, how do you like it?

POETRY

The Saint of Spring

St. Patrick is the Saint of Spring—
His feast, when March is halfway spent,
Arrives to soothe old Winter's sting
And cheer the lingering hours of Lent.
It brings us promise of the voice
And verdure of the fields of May,
And Winter-weary hearts rejoice
On Patrick's Day.

St. Patrick is the Saint of Spring—
Now nature turns its brighter side;
The birds are coming back to fling
Their mating-music far and wide.
The Seventeenth has always had
The gift to make the Irish gay,
But who should any soul be sad
On Patrick's Day?

—By Denis A. McCarthy, in Boston Globe.

In a Great Oak Tree

Last night the wind in the great oak tree
Seemed singing a tender song to me
In whisperings and swaying and rustlings low,
Of spirits who lived there long ago.

Then all the merry spirits came out
With a ringing laugh and a rollicking shout,
In garments glowing, of softest weaves,
Colored in autumn-tinted leaves.

With autumn gleams in their flowing hair,
All dancing gaily and strangely fair,
Till I was a woodland spirit, too,
That the silver moon and the breezes woo.

I rested close in a topmost bough
While the slender leaves caressed my brow,
I dreamed and swayed in the great oak tree
As the night wind sang sweet songs to me.

A double-walled flower pot, automatically irrigating the plant growing in the inner pot with water contained in the space between the two walls, was a device before the American Society of Plant Physiologists at their meeting recently by Dr. J. Dean Wilson of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster, O. The inner pot is made of porous material, somewhat like the usual flower pot. The outer one is waterproof, and the two are united at the top by means of a flanged rim. A long series of tests has demonstrated the practicability of his device, Dr. Wilson said.

The butterfly, immemorially the symbol of inconstancy, has a heart that often beats backward, Prof. H. Cerould of Dartmouth college told the American Society of Zoologists. He has dissected numbers of these insects and has demonstrated this strange behavior many times. The heart of an insect is in its back instead of its chest, and consists merely of an enlargement in a long blood vessel, much like the bulb in the middle of a rubber syringe tube. A beat will start at its rear end and travel forward, squeezing the blood ahead of it. After repeating this several times, the heart will pause, and then a beat will start at the forward end, sending the blood in the opposite direction. Occasionally the beat will start in the middle, sending the blood both ways. It seems to make no difference to the butterfly.

Now Try Toast This Way

To Get It Crisp and Golden Brown

You make it with this slo-baked bread so many dietitians are endorsing. Please start with it today, waiting only to read the truly remarkable facts printed about it below.

MADAM, Now you can get toast golden brown practically every time. Get it through the use of a delicious slo-baked bread endorsed today by domestic science experts.

Much of the dainty toast you admire in other homes is doubtless due to this bread. For millions of women today will buy no other kind.

It is called Wonder Bread and it comes to you from the Continental Baking Company. The company, as you may know, that also bakes the famous "Hostess Cake" so many women are turning to.

Because it slices firmly, it eliminates danger of crumbling, even when exceptionally thin slices are your aim. Hence it's splendid for sandwich making. Being oven-fresh when you buy it, it keeps its freshness amazingly.

So try it, please, and be convinced. If your family is like other families you will undoubtedly be won at once.

Please Make This Amazing Test!

Here's a test that proves how good Wonder Bread really is: Toast a slice of Wonder Bread and a slice of any ordinary bread. Now, Madam, just compare them. The Wonder Bread toast will be browned evenly over the entire surface. No scorched edges! The other slice will be only partially and unevenly browned. This test will astonish you. Just try it!

As the new-day bread for toast, Wonder Bread has won women by the millions. But in considering this, please do not overlook the wonderful things it does in fostering a healthy, happy family.

In the matter of calorific value it is most remarkable. Each loaf you buy contains more than 1100 calories.

Hence if eaten daily Wonder Bread replaces as much as 30% of all the energy your children burn up in play. Thus it promotes active minds and bodies; and brings a new glow to pallid faces.

It provides in addition much necessary protein. The element, as you may know, that replaces worn-out body tissues and hence helps build sturdy muscles.

It contains also calcium and phosphate, now judged by dietetic authorities essential for growing children in the hardening of teeth and bones.

Thus "Wonder Bread three times daily" is the advice of leading present-day dietitians. In view of the facts described above, the wisdom of this becomes plain to anyone.

What Goes Into It

To maintain its quality day after day we go to great lengths

We employ a large staff of food experts to test each shipment of ingredients. We specify a specially milled, short patent flour. (We use only the heart of the nutritious wheat berry.)

We use double the usual amount of milk. Every drop is pasteurized.

We employ, too, a special method of baking. Slo-baking, it is called. A proven scientific method that seals in the dietetic value of our ingredients and vastly improves their flavor.

Hence when you get Wonder Bread you get the best. It knows no rival. Millions have found this to be so.

Won't You Try It?

So please try it at once. Simply to prove what wonderful new advantages it offers you and yours.

Note its dainty flavor. Its freshness. See how evenly it toasts. How easily it slices.

But remember! Ordinary breads are not like this. Avoid them. Insist on Wonder Bread always.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

St. Mary's Players.

Jealousy has been called by a poet "a green-eyed monster." It has been the cause of more than one blasted reputation, of more than one tragedy. In life, in drama, jealousy is something to fear; in comedy only fun comes from it. In this play some terrible threats are made, some hilarious situations arise because of it. An actress is at the bottom of the trouble. She has become popular, too popular to please one person, and with a little taunting and faking on her part his ire is aroused. He threatens to beat up a certain party; he is through with her, so he says. Well, this sounds interesting. What happens? You would like to know, no doubt, but you will have to see this play to find out.

A Masterpiece in Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

At 4 o'clock on the coming Sunday in the large gymnasium of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association, "Les Miserables" will be shown. This feature will be portrayed on two Sundays, one-half tomorrow and the other half on the following Sunday.

A great screen dramatization of Victor Hugo's masterpiece with a European cast. To live with Jean Valjean, Fantine and little Cozette through their depth of misery, to feel with them their poignant experiences is a memorable milestone in one's life.

This unusual motion picture has been shown thousands of times and always produces a profound impression upon the audience. To this showing the adult public is specially invited, and boys and girls fourteen and over will be admitted.

A brief address will be given and a free will offering will be taken.

Olympic Skating Rink.

On account of repeated requests from the patrons of the rink for an extra night each week the management has decided to keep the rink open on Tuesday nights in addition to Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Beginning Monday, March 18, the rink will be open five nights from 7.30 to 10 p. m. Saturday night until 10.30. Monday will be spot skating; Tuesday soda and peanut race and hurdle race.

Broadway Theatre

What is probably the most remarkable progress made by any motion picture company in the production of dialogue attractions is revealed in a recent announcement by Benjamin Glazer, production manager of the Pathe sound department. It has been only a few weeks since the first sound tests were made at the Pathe studios in Culver City with the R. C. A. Photophone and during that time gigantic strides have been made, equaling in many cases the advancement achieved by some organizations in more than a year.

Dialogue sequences have been made for several attractions, preparations completed for more, tests conducted of more than 100 actors and actresses and now the company's first 100 per cent dialogue production, "Strange Cargo" has been completed and it will be seen and heard at the Broadway theatre tomorrow.

The pictures for which dialogue and sound accompaniment have been completed include "Snow Folks," "The Spieler," "Sal of Singapore," "The Godless Girl," "Geraldine" and "Shady Lady."

Every artist under contract with the Pathe organization has been given sound tests and, fortunately for the company as well as the players, practically all of them were found to have voices particularly well suited for the requirements of Photophone.

Among those whose voices have been tested and found unusually attractive in reproduction are William Boyd, Phyllis Haver, Robert Armstrong, Jeanette Loff, Alan Hale, Eddie Quillan, Robert St. Angelo, Lina Basquette, Alberta Vaughn, Marion Nixon, Diane Ellis, Raymond Hatton, Margaret Livingston, Leslie Fenton, James Aldine, Carol Lombard, Mitchell Lewis, Joseph Girard, Philo McCullough, Lloyd Whitlock, Lee Shumway, Russell Gleason, Jimmy Adams, Frank Reicher and Ned Sparks. All of these players are either playing in current Pathe productions or are scheduled to appear in pictures soon to be released.

Glazer directed the Pathe first all-talking picture, "Strange Cargo," which he also wrote in collaboration with Melchior Lengyel. The scenes of the story are laid aboard a palatial yacht. The owner is mysteriously murdered and this precipitates a series of the most thrilling situations ever witnessed on the screen.

The leading roles are in the hands of capable stage players, among whom are Lee Patrick, June Nash, George Barraud, Kyrle Bellew, Russell Gleason, Frank Reicher, Claude King, Ned Sparks and Josephine Brown. The dialogue and sound effects are said to be tremendously effective.

Palace Theatre

One of the finest vaudeville shows shown in the city for a long time comes to a close at the Palace theatre today. This program is headed by George Fredericks & Co., a scenic novelty revue full of laughs, love interest and songs; Balabanow Five, a beautiful musical and dancing act with all five members of the troupe playing their accordons; Dainty Ethel Marine & Co., in a gorgeous revuette; Weber & Ridnor, in songs and dances; and last but not least, Bobby Van Horn in plenty of laughter.

"Tommy Atkins"—the only "Tommy" of the English army—can fight and love as well. This heroic figure of story and song has been tested as few soldiers. All over the world he has fought and died for his flag and around him is woven a glamor of war and love that makes him an outstanding character of heroic proportions.

Surrounded by all the romance of desert warfare, he is seen in a stirring motion picture at the Palace theatre caled "Tommy Atkins."

Five hundred assorted nationalities of soldiers, clothed in the colorful costumes of the famous Foreign Legion, were used during the filming of "The Foreign Legion," Universal's thrilling and spicy romance which opens at the Palace theatre tomorrow. Edward Sloman, the director, took his battalion of extras to Guadaloupe, in Southern California, where the desert terrain resembles closely that found in Algiers, the romantic country where the story is laid. The production staff was forced to employ regular army methods to clothe, feed, house and transport the "army" to this barren waste.

Norman Kerry and Lewis Stone are co-starred in the picture. Mary Nolan and June Marlowe are in the opposite roles.

The story was taken from the I. A. R. Wylie book, "The Red Mirage," read by thousands as one of the prize novels of last year. Persons who love the excitement and thrills furnished by a romance of the Algerian desert will find "The Foreign Legion" one of the most interesting pictures of the year.

Co-featured on the same program is "Daughters of Desire." This is a picture treating on second marriages which has caused considerable of a furore in the movie metropolis.

Irene Rich, the star, plays the role of the second wife who becomes stepmother to her husband's three children. The two younger children, twins, adore her, but the daughter who has just reached flapper age resents intensely the coming of a new mistress into her father's household.

The natural complications ensue and from then on the photoplay becomes highly dramatic in character.

Unlike the view of the ages wherein the stepmother has always been at fault, the story writer in this instance has placed the daughter at fault. Undoubtedly, and this is the view of many critics who have seen the picture, "Daughters of Desire" presents a feature of familiy life which is quite common in this day and age.

Broadway Theatre

The setting for the New York night club sequence in D. W. Griffith's "The Battle of the Sexes," showing at the Broadway theatre, was one of the largest ever constructed on the United Artists lot.

The locale was patterened after a famous New York night club, even to the extent of a large stage, two bands, separate dance floors and tables and chairs to accommodate two hundred persons.

This sequence is one of the most important in the picture and one of the most difficult he has ever handled, Griffith says, because of the diversity of elements he had to control. The scene called for strong drama in a setting of gayety.

Jean Hersholt, Phyllis Haver, Belle Bennett, Don Alvarado and Sally O'Neil are co-featured in "The Battle of the Sexes," which is a modern story of home life. Griffith produced a picture similar in theme in 1918. It was a sensation. It has been his intention to make a picture similarly motivated ever since. William Bakewell and John Batten play supporting roles. Karl Struss was chief cinematographer.

Strand Theatre.

Lon Chaney appears in an entirely new role, as a police detective, in "While the City Sleeps," his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle which will be shown tomorrow night at the Strand theatre.

The story, directed by Jack Conway, of "Twelve Miles Out" fame, is a vivid romance of police and gangster warfare in New York. Chaney, heading a band of detectives, fights a machine gun duel with a gangster army, participates in a running gun battle across the roofs of the city, and intimate details of such police practice as the "shadow box" and third degree, fingerprinting and other identification tricks of detectives are shown in an inside view of police procedure.

"The Apache Raider," the new Leo Maloney picture for Pathe, the added feature on this bill, is located along the Mexican border and fully conforms to all the recent understandings between the Mexican and United States governments concerning Mexican characters in motion pictures. There are no Mexican villains in "The Apache Raider."

HANOVER COMMUNITY MOURNS FOR DOUGLAS W. DEAN

The Congregational church was well filled with friends and relatives of Douglas W. Dean, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson W. Dean, of Canterbury, whose funeral was attended there at 3:30 p. m. Saturday last. There were exceptionally beautiful floral tributes. Noticeable was a floral automobile wheel with one spoke broken, this being sent by the employes of the Ford Motor company, Willimantic, where Mr. Dean had been employed for some time previous to his illness. The service was conducted by the pastor of the church, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, the music being arranged by the organist, Miss Jennie Gallup. Mrs. William G. Park and Mrs. Frank L. Smith sang Some Day We'll Understand and Abide With Me. The bearers were Peter Christensen, Merritt Hewes, Joseph Kuldaga and Paul Miller, all neighbors of the Dean family. Burial was in Hanover cemetery. Mr. Dean was born 25 years ago in Cornwall, whence the family moved seven years ago. A number of friends as well as relatives came from there as well as Groton, Hartford, New Milford, Norwich and Willimantic and attended his funeral. He was a young man whose cheery, jovial ways endeared him to all as one whom a community could ill afford to lose, and universal sympathy has been expressed for the bereaved family.

Judge Avery denied a motion to set aside the defendant's verdict in the appeal from probate case brought by George Floyd Stewart, and others of Stonington, against Charles L. Stewart, executor. The court took the papers in the case of Joseph Scroggie against Mary and William Scroggie. Attorney John McGarry, representing the plaintiff, told the court that the action was brought to settle the title of land in Richard street, which was given to him by the late Mary E. Scroggie. The deed gave her a life interest in the property. After her death it went to Joseph and after his death to his heirs. Attorney McGarry said there came a time when Mr. Scroggie wanted to sell and there is a question whether or not he has the right to do so.

The court granted Attorney V. P. A. Quinn of this city permission to withdraw as counsel for Wladislaw Wilczek in the action for divorce brought against him by Sophie Wilczek.

GAVE FIFTH TALK IN SERIES OF LENTEN ADDRESSES

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth gave the fifth in his series of Lenten talks Friday noon at the local Y. M. C. A. There was a large attendance and C. Edward Smith presided. Y. M. C. A. State Secretary Harry Hedley Smith of New Haven, offered prayer. Louis Morsel officiated at the piano. Rev. Mr. Danforth spoke on the topic, "With Christ in Samaria," and, in part, said:

A little more than a year ago an earthquake struck Palestine. It damaged houses on the Mount of Olives. But it did its worst at Nablus, up in what was Samaria. There are the two low rounded mountains, Ebal and Gerizim. There once Israel listened to blessings from the one and penalties from the other, according as God's law should be kept or broken by them.

Later a mixed multitude was brought to that region to replace the people taken to Babylon. Slowly they accepted part of the Hebrew law, but never in a way to make them acceptable to the Jews when Jerusalem was restored. Even now there is a remnant of Samaritan faith who practice their own version of the laws of Moses.

Jerusalem never loved them, nor did they love Jerusalem. The Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans. So it surprised the disciples one day to find their Master seated by Jacob's Well talking with a Samaritan woman. Samaria had a past. She had one, too. The water from the well was good. It is yet. We drank from it ourselves. But the water of life that Christ offered to her and to us all is best of all. It quenches a thirst which nothing else can reach.

Review in your mind the talk there by that ancient well. Think of the woman and think of Christ. How different they were. Yet how well each understood the other. This understanding was all due to the Master's power to meet all human need. That woman needed understanding and she got it. Then she went into the village and told people there to come and meet one who could understand. People who really understand are all too scarce. So they came and He understood them, too. And on the basis of that understanding they believed in Him, and He stayed to teach them more of what they should also understand.

The power to understand the person who is different is a divine gift. It belongs pre-eminently to God who is most different from all of us. And, as man draws nearer to God, man gains the kind of sympathy and understanding which can look over the boundaries of our human resemblances and can see and sympathize with the different.

When the Greeks called all others barbarians they made themselves provincial. The land which regards itself as the only "God's Country" may have many square miles but it is not a really big country. You cannot judge the size of a man's mind by the size of his body. It takes other measures. We can all understand our own language. How many of us are at home in any other?

There by the well in Samaria Christ showed His understanding, the understanding not of the mind alone but of the heart. He had a heart big enough to forget all differences and to give the very best to the most different.

Later disciples came to Him upon another journey and fire was in their eyes. A Samaritan village had refused its hospitality on account of the age-old controversy. They were on their way up to Jerusalem and the Samaritans felt that in their mountain men ought to worship rather than in that city. Should fire be called from the sky to destroy the village? Christ understood and they did not. They came not to destroy life but to save it. And so they went to another village.

Again a lawyer was arguing with Him. Who is my neighbor? If I am to love my neighbor as myself I want to be careful who my neighbor is. And Christ gave him the parable of the Good Samaritan. When you think what He meant by that story you marvel. Priest and Levite had passed by on the other side. The Samaritan did what Christ did and would have us do. No wonder a high priest condemned Him, and no wonder a whole world full of ordinary Samaritan folk like ourselves adore Him. We are with Christ in Samaria because He comes to our Samaria and He understands us.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

O'Mahoney was crowned champion pedestrian of New England in the great contest held 50 years ago in Treadway hall, having a big advantage over his nearest competitor. Other items of interest taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin beginning with the week of March 10, 1879, are in part as follows:

Monday, March 10, 1879—The great pedestrian contest in Treadway hall for a purse of $500 was completed five minutes before midnight Saturday. At the close of the march O'Mahoney's record was announced to be 248 miles, Dwyer's 186 and Law's 178 miles. The object of the tournament was to discover which man could cover the greatest number of miles inside of 100 hours.

At a meeting of Trinity church parish on Thursday evening last a call was extended to the Rev. Dr. Jewett of Dayton, Ohio, tendering him the pastorate of the church. Dr. Jewett's wife is a cousin of Mrs. Storrs O. Seymour and a niece of ex-Governor Seymour of New York state.

Tuesday, March 11, 1879—The backers and starters of James O'Mahoney, the champion pedestrian of New England, made an ineffectual effort to enter their man for the international contest now going on in Gilmore's Garden, New York city, but their application was filed one day late.

The exterior work on the Catholic church is almost completed. The St. Patrick's day celebration is to be marked by appropriate ceremonies on Sunday next.

Billiards have given ground to pedestrianism. Civilization is working downward.

Friday, March 14, 1879—In regard to St. Patrick's church, we find that ground was first broken on March 17, 1870, instead of March 17, 1869, and the excavation was commenced on Good Friday, 1871, instead of 1869. FEDERAL PLANE BROUGHT DOWN BY MEXICAN REBELS

Insurgents at Torreon Report That the Aviator Was Shot Through the Head—Two Air Raids Have Been Made Over Torreon in Two Days—A Non-Combatant Was Among Four Persons Killed—A Frenchman Was Wounded—The Bomb Dropped About 30 Yards From the American Consulate—Four Persons Have Been Killed by Bombs—200 Men Were Killed in Battle at San Pedro.

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mex., March 17—(AP)—Revolutionists at Torreon sent word to rebel military headquarters in Juarez today that a federal airplane was brought down Saturday near Torreon. The aviator was shot through the head.

REBELS CLAIM VICTORY IN BATTLE OF SAN PEDRO

NOGALES, Sonora, Mex., March 17—(AP)—Revolutionary headquarters here late today received a telegram from Gen. Gonzalo Escobar in Torreon describing a battle fought at San Pedro, Coahuila, as a victory for rebel troops. The 61st federal regiment and part of the presidential guards "were destroyed completely," the message said.

Colonel Tafoya of the 61st regiment, and Col. Rodolpho Caclias, whose command was not identified, were reported by General Escobar as among the federals killed. Rebel losses were reported as six dead and five wounded, including three officers among the wounded.

FEDERAL PLANES DROPPED TWO BOMBS IN TORREON

TORREON, Coahuila, Mexico (With the Revolutionists' Army)—March 17—(AP)—Two air raids over this city have occurred in two days. In the second raid today a non-combatant was killed and a Frenchman was wounded. The bomb dropped about 30 yards from the American consulate.

It was this bomb that killed the non-combtant. The French consulate was ready to file a complaint at the wounding of Salvatore Lizarrague, who was struck by shrapnel from a bomb which exploded close to his quarters. Citizens were indignant at being exposed to the air raids of the federal airplanes.

The federal plane appeared over the city shortly after 10 a. m. and dropped two bombs. The first struck in the heart of the city and the second near the American consulate. The plane was reported to have left Empalme at 9:45 for its raid, indicating that the federal forces were nearby.

SQUADS OF SOLDIERS IN HILLS AROUND NOGALES

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, March 17—(AP)—Squads of soldiers deployed into the hills surrounding Nogales today after additional rebel regiments had arrived from the south. The soldiers occupied old trenches which had not been used or repaired for years. The move was interpreted as a precaution against the threats of federal Gen. Abelado Rodriguez of Lower California to send airplanes with federal literature or "something more" to Nogales today.

Gov. Fausto Topete of Sonora, whose whereabouts were a mystery for three days, reappeared with the troops in Nogales. His private automobile was brought in on a flat car of the troop train.

H. L. Obregon, former consul at Philadelphia and nephew of the late Gen. Alvaro Obregon, is registered at a hotel in Nogales, Arizona, as also is Adolfo Ibarra Seldner, one of the signers of the revolutionary "Plan of Hermosillo."

Fiery Mexican orators addressed crowds in the plaza, taking the United States to task for allowing Rodriguez "to campaign against the revolution from American soil." They asserted that General Calles "has blindfolded President Hoover and Ambassador Morrow."

200 MEN WERE KILLED IN BATTLE AT SAN PEDRO

WITH REVOLUTIONISTS' ARMY AT TORREON, COAHUILA, Mex., March 17—(AP)—Rebel chieftains announced today that 200 men had been killed in a battle between federal troops and rebels at San Pedro, east of here. It was assumed that this included the casualties on both sides. Three hundred federal troops were reported captured.

Troops of Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar returned to headquarters at Torreon today with their prisoners from the scene of the conflict, which occurred Saturday. General Escobar's troops engaged those of Gen. Juan Almazan, federalist, at San Pedro, and the battle was described as spirited.

The revolutionary forces, said the rebel leaders, displayed such fighting determination that their officers had difficulty in keeping their men from charging the federals after they had been ordered to withdraw.

FEDERALS PREPARE FOR THE OCCUPATION OF TORREON

MEXICO CITY, March 17—(AP)—President headquarters late today said that federal preparations were continuing for the occupation of Torreon, the industrial Coahuila city which has become the rebel stronghold in central Mexico. It was believed that the federal troops already might be there or might enter the city tonight, although reports had only said that the armies commanded by General Calles were closing in on their objective from every side.

The reports said nothing of what the rebels were doing although previously it was reported that they apparently had begun to abandon Torreon to retreat northward. In every movement of the insurgent forces so far in the present revolution they have torn up railroad tracks behind them as they retreated. If they repeat this maneuver the army of General Calles might have to move as slowly northward as it has on Torreon, rebuilding the railroads as it goes.

The federal government continues positive that it is certain to crush the revolution. It does not know, however, how long the insurgents by retreating and tearing up the railroad tracks can prolong military operations.

Some observers here doubt that aid rebel Gen. Gonzalo Escobar can hold his forces together very long and feed and pay his rebel army in desert country if he retreats to Chihuahua City. They think that this section does not contain enough cattle and crops for the armies to live on, as it did in the days of Madero and Pancho Villa.

INDIANS PROTEST THE PROHIBITION OF PEYOTE

SHERIDAN, Wyo., March 17—(AP)—Two Crow Indians are in Sheridan to use the white man's methods to obtain their "rights".

Firm in their belief that the Indian church is endangered by the action of the Wyoming legislature in prohibiting the sale of peyote plant, Barney Old Coyote, former Haskell football star, and Holman Ceasely, veteran head of the native American church in Montana and Wyoming, have come for the advice of attorneys for contemplated court action.

They want the peyote plant to use in the sacraments of their church just as the whites use wine.

"You have killed our game," said Coyote, oratorically, "you have substituted your civilization for ours until we have only one right and that one right is embodied in the constitution of the United States. It is the right of adoring God".

The peyote plant is chewed in communion services of the Indian church it was explained. The Indians are not addicts to use of narcotics, Old Coyote said, and he asserted the peyote plant is not a drug.

Doctors who testified before members of the Wyoming legislature declared that the peyote plants were used for the manufacture of a habit-forming drug. Under a measure sponsored by Senator Willis Spear of Sheridan, the drug is prohibited in the state.

MISS. RIVER AT MEMPHIS 34 FEET ABOVE FLOOD STAGE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17—(AP)—The Mississippi river reached 38.4 feet on the Memphis gauge today, 34 feet above flood stage, and F. W. Brist, meteorologist, predicted it would touch 40 feet by Friday.

At Cairo, Ill., where a crest of 51 to 52 feet was forecast by Thursday, the stage today was 50.4, a rise of three-tenths of a foot in 24 hours. Barring heavy rains—and generally fair weather has been predicted for this week—the Mississippi river should crest here by the middle of next week.

Hickman, Ky., was the only town along the main river affected by the high water. On the north side of Clinton street, the main retail thoroughfare, water was two to three feet deep and running through the stores. Two blocks of the street were roped off, as traffic was impossible.

On the south side of Clinton street, the water had not reached the sidewalk. The Cairo crest prediction gave hopes that little more water would enter Hickman, the residential section of which is situated high enough to be safe from floods. The old site of Columbus, Ky., which moved to higher ground after the 1927 flood, was partly inundated.

The peak of the high water on this rise would not exceed 42 feet here and the levee system was believed capable of caring for that amount.

GUESSING WHETHER POPE WILL REVIVE OLD CUSTOMS

ROME, March 17—(AP)—With Easter only two weeks away, and with the lateran treaty between the holy see and Italy signed well over a month ago, speculation was rife in Roman circles as to whether the pope would revive any of the old customs observed by his predecessors prior to the fall of the temporal power in 1870.

Most picturesque among these was the washing of the beggar's feet—symbolical of the act performed by Christ for his 12 apostles at the last supper. Twelve poor Roman mendicants each year were led to the vatican where the pope, doffing his costly vestments, performed the humble rite. After that the chosen dozen were given a substantial dinner and sent away with gold pieces clinking in their ragged clothes.

This custom still is observed by "his most Catholic majesty," Alfonzo XIII of Spain. But since 1870 when Italian troops put an end to the papal sovereignty, no pontiff since Pius IX then reigning, has revived it.

SHOT BY POLICEMAN WHO WAS FIRING AT ROBBERS

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—Leaving church just as an automobile bearing three youthful robbers sped past with a policeman in pursuit, Edward Kilroy, 32, a post office employe, today was seriously wounded by a bullet from the patrolman's revolver.

The bullet, fired by Patrolman James McAssey, struck Kilroy just above the right ear, passing almost through his head and lodging on the left side.

The three robbers had held up a delicatessen dealer in Queens borough. Patrolman McAssey, who was following their automobile on foot, said Kilroy heard the first two shots he fired at the automobile and I nan apparent effort to get out of the line of fire, ran directly between him and the car. He ceased firing and called an ambulance when he saw Kilroy fall.

1,350-POUND TURTLE DRAGGED FROM THE GULF OF MEXICO

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., March 17—(AP)—Fisherman A. Wiltze hitched four horses to a seine Saturday and dragged a 1,350-pound turtle from the Gulf of Mexico. The turtle, whose protective shell had been cut, perhaps by a ship's propellor, put up a hard fight before the horses finally won. It was estimated to be more than 300 years old.

WOMAN KILLED HER THREE CHILDREN WITH POISON

CHATHAM, Ont., March 17—(AP)—A mother was seriously ill in a hospital here today and three of her children were dead as a result of what police said was an effort of the woman to kill herself and children with poison. She also was believed to have set her house afire, from which she and the children were rescued with difficulty.

Mrs. George Smith, her two sons, Billy, 5, and Samuel, 3, and a year-old daughter, Mary, were rescued from their burning home Friday night by the husband and father and Hector, a 17-year-old son. Then it was found they were suffering from poisoning.

Samuel died Friday night and his brother and sister died last night.

Smith told police he and his son were working on a neighboring farm when they saw smoke coming from the windows of their home. They rushed home and rescued the mother and three children, whom they found in bed. The home was destroyed.

Mrs. Smith, who is in a serious condition, is technically under arrest in the hospital.

Accompanied by Princess Ileana and Constantine Diamandy, Rumanian minister to Paris, Marie was received by Madame Foch and Major L'Hopital, the marshal's favorite aide-de-camp, who saw service in Rumania and is well acquainted with the queen. The marshal was in such a weakened condition that he was not permitted to see his distinguished visitor, nor was he told of her presence until later.

The marshal appeared in no immediate danger tonight. His temperature was 98.3 and his pulse 98.

SIX PRISONERS PUNISHED AT WHIPPING POST IN DEL

WILMINGTON, Del., March 17—(AP)—Six prisoners went under the lash yesterday in the New Castle county workhouse. Four received 40 lashes, two, 20 lashes each. Elmer J. Leach, "laid it on well," as the law directs, before a small crowd in the workhouse yard.

He was followed by James Pryor, an accomplice in the robbery and shooting, and Grant Brown, both Negroes. Daniel Jones, the only white man among the six, was next whipped. George D. Butler and John Edwards were next with 20 lashes each.

NEW MARKET, N. H., March 17—(AP)—More than 800 striking textile mill workers employed by the New Market Manufacturing company here, rejected in mass meeting today recommendations by State Labor Commissioner John S. Davies for settlement of the wage question sat issue. The strike thus opened its fourth week with no sign of yielding on either side.

The strike was started after the mill owners announced a decrease in the wages of men employed in the silk winding, cotton winding and basket cloth departments.

Gradual Abatement Of Flood In Alabama

Some 15,000 Persons Have Been Made Homeless — Death List Stands at Twelve

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 17—(AP)—South Alabama's flood waters were slowly receding today, and the task of rescue forces became one of emergency relief for some 15,000 homeless in a flood zone embracing seven counties. The death list stood at 12.

The national guard relief base at Enterprise today reported to Governor Bibb Graves that all refugees were being fed in the Elba-Geneva flood sector in the southeastern area, and attention was given acut situations in the region south of Brewton, Garland, and other communities in the southwestern corner of the state.

Word came indirectly from Garland that medical supplies were needed immediately and Dr. J. L. Cannon, a state health officer, left here with typhoid serum.

Brewton, between Murder and Burnt Corn Creeks, Escambia river tributaries, was two-thirds under water. Captain W. D. Lewis of the sheriff's office there told The Associated Press that the supply of food on hand would last about 24 hours.

The National guard immediately dispatched planes to the Brewton, Garland area with medical supplies and bread. Meanwhile, evacuation of nearly 3,000 persons had been completed at Elba by the national guard and Colonel W. E. Persons was relieved of his duties at the rescue camps in that vicinity. He proceeded at once to Brewton to take charge of relief in that sector, leaving the Elba sector to Colonel W. A. Gayle.

Planes continued today to drope supplies in the two flood sectors. Half of the Maxwell field army planes were relaying supplies to the Brewton sector in the Alabama watershen, and the other half to the Elba-Geneva area in the Choctawhatchee basin. Clothing, food and medicine to prevent disease outbreaks were of first concern, and the Red Cross and state authorities concentrated their supplies at Maxwell field where they were picked up by planes and trucks bound for the flood zones. The planes have been averaging 3,500 pounds of supplies a day.

Marianna, Florida, safe on hills between the Chattahoochee and Choctawhatchee rivers, faced a food shortage, if bridges of railways and highways now threatened by the raging floods gave way.

Newton, Georgia, on the Flint river, was deserted. A photographer reaching the town today reported that not a sign of life was seen, and water flowed across even the highest point in the flood area, evacuated Friday and yesterday before what they believed to be a record rise in the river.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS FOR RELIEF WORK

WASHINGTON, March 17—(AP)—Headquarters of the American Red Cross announced here today the receipt of a request from Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, that it take complete charge of relief work among the flood sufferers of that state.

An immediate campaign for funds will be launched by the Red Cross with most of the money being raised in the states affected—Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi. Continued spread of the floods may make necessary a larger fund than is now contemplated, Red Cross officials said, and donations to chapters throughout the country were urged.

It was announced that relief measures are now in operation in every affected country in the flood area.

FEAR THAT FLOOD WILL SWEEP BRIDGE AWAY

MARIANNA, Fla., March 17—(AP)—Fears were expressed here tonight that part of the span of the Victory bridge, at Chattahoochee, near here, would be swept aside by the roaring waters of the Chattahoochee river within the next 24 hours.

River men also felt that the Louisville & Nashville railroad bridge over the same stream would be swept aside.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., GIRL ATTACKED IN HER BEDROOM

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., March 17.—(AP)—Police of this city are mystified by the assault on 15-year-old Rose Zarchen, who was attacked in the bedrom of her home, 44 Summer street, by an unknown assailant shortly after 1 o'clock this morning.

The young girl was struck on the head with a stone as she slept and when she screamed and covered her face with her hands the attack continued pounding her with the crude weapon. The blood-covered rock was found by the bed by police, who arrived within a short time.

The assailant had entered the room by placing a box outside the window.

Warden Of Atlanta Penitentiary Resigns

Had Protested "the Planting" of Dept. of Justice Agents in the Prison as Prisoners.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 17.—(AP)—Warden John W. Snook, of the Atlanta federal penitentiary announced today that he had tendered his resignation to Attorney General Mitchell effective April 1.

It was made known at the department of justice in Washington yesterday that Snook had been given 30 days in which to resign, the period expiring on April 4.

The warden said his letter contained an unqualified determination to leave the service. He came here as warden in 1926.

The request for his resignation followed Warden Snook's protest against "the planting" of department of justice agents in the prison here as prisoners.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney gentral in charge of prisons, at Washington yesterday said the warden had been asked to resign "because of lack of administrative ability." It was also said other things entered into the request but that the warden's integrity and character were not involved.

FACTS ABOUT THE MAY 30 ELECTION IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 17.—(AP)—Three striking facts stand out from the maze of political uncertainties on the eve of England's general election which is to be held May 30.

The first is that if the election were held at this moment labor might sweep from power the dominant conservative party with its huge majority of some 200 in the house of commons.

The second is that in any event the conservatives must wage a bitter struggle to keep from being ousted by labor.

The third is that women voters are for the first time in the majority and will decide the election. Added to this is the fact that between five and seven million of these feminine voters are newly enfranchasised and nobody knows how they will vote.

The great strength of the labor party at the moment is due in no small measure to the fact that the conservatives are more or less at sixes and sevens because the government has announced no inspiring or definite program although the election day is only ten weeks away. Another week, however, may alter this circumstance since Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's announcement of policy is expected.

GLORIOUS WEATHER IN IRELAND ST. PATRICK'S DAY

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 17—(AP)—Glorious weather today put the Irish people in high spirts for St Patrick's day. Reports from various parts of the Free State and northern Ireland said that the day passed without untoward incidents while everywhere there was the customary holiday with festival spirit.

President William T. Cosgrave, in a statement appearing today in Irish papers, "the year just passed has been remarkable for the great efforts made by the government of the United States in the cause of peace. The visit of Secretary Kellogg to Europe was momentous and the inclusion of Ireland in his itinerary was a marked compliment to our people.

"We trust here that the world movement in favor of peace will continue in the years to come."

Since the day fell on Sunday the prohibition on opening public houses was not applied and the hours of sale of liquor were the same as on ordinary Sundays. Many license holders, however, did not avail themselves of this privilege.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF GIRL AT ALLENTOWN, PA.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 17—(AP)—Police were confronted with a strange mystery tonight in trying to solve the death of Miss Verna Octavia Delp, 22 years old, who was last seen by her foster parents when she left her home Friday morning to take a "pow wow treatment" from a man in Allentown.

The girl's body was found yesterday with no visible signs of violence in a field near Catasauqua. An autopsy will be performed to determine if she died from poisoning.

Police tonight were searching for a close friend, Frank Masters, as well as for a man known as "Belles" from whom she was said to have taken the "pow wow treatments" several times. The latter was not at his home here this afternoon.

The young woman's foster father, August Derhammer, said she was in a cheerful mood when she left her home at Green Pond Friday. He said he understood she had been taking the "pow wow treatments" from Belles in an effort to cure eczema.

Two notes were found in the girl's dress. They contained a number of crosses and a request for divine protection.

13 PERSONS WERE KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHED

All Thirteen Were Killed Outright—Two Men Who Occupied the Pilot's Cockpit Were Seriously Injured—Scene of Accident Was One Mile East of the Newark Metropolitan Airport—Freakish and Gusty Winds Are Believed to Have Caused the Crash—One Motor Went Dead—Plane Had Been Unable to Gain an Altitude of 100 Feet From the Time It Took Off—Was on Sightseeing Flight.

NEWARK, N. J., March 17—(AP)—Thirteen persons were killed outright and two seriously injured in the crash late today of a tri-motored Colonial Airways plane which was beaten to earth by strong winds near Newark airport.

The tragedy was the greatest in the history of heavier-than-air craft in the United States.

Lou Foote, the pilot, and a friend, Belmont Parsons, who sat with him in the cockpit forward and above the cabin, in which the thirteen passengers were crushed, were the only two members of the sight-seeing party to escape instant death.

Unable to gain more than 100 feet in altitude after leaving Newark airport, Foote apparently sought to make a forced landing as he saw himself losing the battle to bring his ship into safe areas.

When a strong gust of wind caught the plane, witnesses thought the motors weakened, the big ship crashed into a freight car standing on a railroad spur, a triangular hole was torn in the underpart of the fuslage. The machine broke in two. The pilot and his companion were thrown from their seats into the air. The passengers, thrown in a heap in the forepart of the cabin, were impaled by pieces of metal, crushed and mangled.

The car against which the airplane hurled itself was filled with sand and crushed the bottom of the plane upward, ripping a great triagle into the metal fuselage. The entire wing broke off and port and starboard motors were hurled a distance of many feet. The center motor remained on the fuselage.

The tragedy occurred at the edge of a desolate strip of meadow land which separates North Jersey's metropolis Newark, from the cities on the Hudson river. Two weeks ago Lieutenant A. Peyton Schneck and a student flier met death less than a mile away from today's accident. Their plane nose dived and buried itself in the mud of the meadows.

Foote had been employed by Colonial Airways only three days. He came from Detroit, where he had worked at the Ford plant as a pilot. Mrs. Foote, who visited her husband at the hospital, said he told her the motors had failed.

Thomas J. Donovan, night manager of the airport, expressed belief that the motors failed and laid the probable cause to foreign matter in the gasoline.

Motorcycle Patrolman Clayton Hopkins, who witnessed the fatal dive of Schenck and the student flier two weeks ago, and who was one of the first to reach the scene today had ambulances started for the meadows as son as he saw the machine wavering at an altitude of scarcely 100 feet.

"The other crash flashed to my mind and I knew the consequences of a forced landing in that mud," he said. "so I gave the wheel the gas and went to number 22 firehouse on Wheeler Point road and sent a call to headquarters to send all available ambulances.

Thomas P. Doyle, towerman of the Jersey Central railroad, saw the crash from his post of duty 100 yards away. He was one of the first to send out a call for aid.

"I was ready to go off duty," he said "when I heard the plane overhead. The motors sounded funny, as if they were coughing, so I ran to the window. I saw the plane low over the meadows and then I looked down the track and saw it crash into the string of freight cars on the siding. There was a great cloud of sand and the crash of the ship hitting the freight. I heard the splintering of wood and then I turned around and telephoned central asking them to notify all the authorities.

"Then I set the signals so that no trains could proceed and ran to the scene to try to help. When I saw all were dead I returned to the tower."

The witness probably closest to the crash was Mathew Torhan, of Elizabeth, a maintenance man of the Jersey Central. He and William Murtagh of Woodbridge, another railroad worker, were about fifty yards from the place where the plane struck.

"We were walking along the track on our way towards the tower, when we heard the funny sound made by the motors of the ship" Torhan said.

"I turned around and saw that the ship was apparently in trouble. One motor was running very slow and the others seemed to flutter, speed up and then run slow again.

"The plane was coming down fast, but going at least 60 miles an hour. It dipped up for a moment and then suddenly it dipped down and hit the string of freights with a terrific crash." Describing the wreckage, Torhan said, "it was the most gruesome sight I have ever seen in my life. All the passengers were piled up in a great heap in the forward part of the cabin. All the heads I could see were smashed and arms and legs were all broken."

The victims included brother and sister W. Clifton Steever and Miss Gertrude Steever, of Bloomfield. The young woman's fiancee, Reginald Woodward, also was killed and their lifeless arms were clasped about each other in the wreckage.

The two survivors were brought to the Broad street station of the Central railroad in Newark on a locomotive pressed into service near the scene of the wreck.

Police Lieutenant William Weidman, who organized a squad of traffice officers stationed near the airport, for the removal of the bodies, said Foote inquired whether he was in "New York" when the police picked him up. At the hospital he lapsed into unconsciousness and could make no statement. However Parsons made the following statement to police:

"When we first honped one of the motors went dead before we reached a fair altitude and when we were up just a short distance. Foote said we would have to make a landing. He turned the plane to come down on a dump but as we descended, the plane hit a freight car or something and I was knocked unconscious."

Shortly after Foote left the field at the controls of the huge plane, N. G. Brown took off with another plane of the same type and a load of passengers. He flew over the wreckage and one of the women passengers became hysterical, but Brown guided the ship over New York harbor and brought it back to the field.

Yesterday during a gale estimated to have had a velocity of 60 miles an hour, the plane which crashed today took off and returned from the airport. The wind caught a Burnelli monoplane, up at the same time, and caused it to bank and strike the field with a jolt. Slight damage was done the ship which is the third largest in the world.

SUBSTITUTES FOR TAIL LIGHTS FOR PEDESTRIANS

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., March 17.—(AP)—By fastening to pedestrians various substitutes for tail lights, engineers of the General Electric company have found out when and how walkers may venture upon highways at night with greater safety.

The object was to learn what natural conditions make for safety, and not to find any kind of a warning signal to be worn by pedestrians. White objects on the pedestrians or as part of his clothing, proved to be the only sort of signal of the tail light class that worked with any reliability on unlighted roads. A white suit of clothes did very well; while a man standing in a dark suit about 100 feet ahead in the beams of bright headlights was found to be virtually invisible to the auto driver.

One of the best signals was a white handkerchief, held with the arm hanging at the side. In this position the handkerchief caught and reflected in the top of the bright light beams. If it happened to flare open, it became momentarily a true beacon. The engineers concluded that pedestrians could not be expected to be wearing or carrying clothing of the signalling type.

They rated bright headlights as inadequate in themselves, because unless assisted by good reflecting qualities in the clothing of the pedestrian, they brought him into clear view after it was too late to be sure of avoiding accidents.

Highways lighted with street lamps were given the best sfiety rating and judged the only practicable method. The basic safety factor in street lighting was fond to be the silhouette of the pedesirian in the street. If he was not revealed in direct light, his black silhouette against the diffused glow was found to give a clear warning of his presence.

POPE TENDERED LUNCHEON TO THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS

VATICAN CITY, March 17.—(AP)—The first luncheon tendered by the pope to the vatican diplomatic corps today was probably the most brilliant function seen here since the fall of the temporal power in 1870. Pius XI was represented by Cardinal Gasparri at the luncheon served in the second of the robing halls next to the Ducal hall. Around the papal secretary of state were grouped in order of precedence about 70 diplomats, all wearing uniforms with their decorations.

Cardinal Gasparri said that he welcomed them in behalf of the pontiff with wishes for ever increasingly improved relations between the holy see and the nations accredited to it. The invitation of the pope was to express his satisfaction at their joint congratulation and homage at the conclusion of the Italo-Vatican accord.

Ambassador Azeredo of Brazil, dean of the corps offered a toast of thanks to Pope Pius for his courteous act. He called upon all present "to lift your glasses in honor and to the health of the holy father, to whose sacred person we desire every happiness and for whose pontificate we wish new and fecund initiatives, successive prosperity and immutable glory."

Cardinal Gasparri thanked the corps spokesman briefly and more informal conversation continued through the meal.

MAY BE CRUCIAL WEEK FOR REPARATIONS COMMITTEE

PARIS, March 17—(AP)—The sixth week of work of the second Dawes' committee on revision of reparations begins tomorrow with all interested circles saying that it is likely to prove the crucial one, bringing the expected favorable solution. This had been said, however, by the same circles at the start of every week since the first was concluded but the public has seen little indication of the "crucial."

Today every one concerned believed that the difference of opinion which at first appeared inaurmountable had been reduced to discrepancies in figures which are not considered likely to prove irreconcilable.

THREE ARRESTED IN THREE LIQUOR RAIDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 17—The police formally opened their spring drive against alleged speak-easies Saturday by staging three raids against liquor law violators with the result that an arrest was made in each case. Headed by Sergeant Grant Bombria the police split into three groups and struck the places at various hours during the evening. The arrests made were: Mike Stelzer, 38 Carey Hill; Sigmund Sokilowski, 57 Chapman street and John Markowski, 130 Union street. All three furnished bonds of $1,000 each for their appearance in police court Monday morning on charges of keeping liquor with intent to sell.

The raid at Stelzer's place was conducted by Sergeant Bombria and Officers John Kearns and Joseph Lariviere. One quart of liquor was found. At Sokolowski's home Officers F. Rudolph Laramee and Leo Piche secured two pints of moonshine. Officers William Hurley and Alfred Nichols staged the raid at the Markowski home where they found about one gallon of liquor for evidence. Markowski is an old-time saloon keeper and according to the police he had appeared in federal court some years ago on a liquor violation charge. The records also show that his wife Julia Markowski was once arraigned in police court on such a charge.

HOPE TO HOLD WINDHAM TAX RATE TO 14 MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 17—The Windham board of selectmen have issued the notice for the special town meeting to be held at the town hall Thursday evening of this week at 8 o'clock to take action on three matters of considerable importance. The first clause of the warning provides for the fixing of a tax rate on the corrected 1928 grand list which amounts to $17,915,975. Those conversant with the funds necessary to meet the expenses of the town for the coming year believe that an effort may be made to retain the present tax rate of 14 mills. Such a rate would raise $250,920 in taxation. The total of the budget is $338,000, but there are other sources of income other than taxation that are secured by high and grammar school tuition from other towns, personal taxes, rents, etc. The budget as prepared is now considered to be exceedingly low in estimate by town officials inasmuch as at the time it was drawn up the county tax was not figured as high as it has since proved to be. The town's share of the county tax is $23,000 and this amount must be paid before the end of March. In view of this increased tax and other forms of expenses that the town must meet those in political office are struggling hard on a plan to "get out from under" before the town is brought into heavy indebtedness.

This matter of increasing expenses coupled with the large number of complaints presented to the board of relief as the result of an attempt on the part of the assessors to increase valuations, has led to the second clause of the warning which is to see if the town will vote to authorize a revaluation and reassessment of all taxable property in the town of Windham, as provided by law. The action, if granted, would be followed by a second vote to make the necessary appropriation for this work. It is expected, as a matter of course, that many property owners will be on hand to object to this vote on the ground that in consideration of present real estate values in the town, the properties are in the tax list for the maximum amount.

The only time that the town property was subjected to a thorough revaluation was in 1911 when, as a result of the work, the grand list was increased from $6,859,682 to $14,047,189. Comparative figures from 1912 to 1929 show that the grand lists have increased but 27 per cent in 17 years while the tax rate has been forced to jump nearly 200 per cent, or from five mills in 1912 to 14 mills in 1928.

This year the assessors attempted several increases and out of the flood of complaints which followed the board of relief caused a total reduction of $41,814.

While the 1911 revaluation was done by the local assessors, the proposition at hand is to secure experts from out of town at a cost of several thousand dollars. Several Connecticut cities and towns that have had expert revaluation signify that the work was very satisfactory and especially beneficial in that it did not tend to cause heavy increases on properties already fully valued but caused a fair re-apportionment that more evenly divided the burden of taxation.

The third clause is on the matter of making a settlement with Contractor Oliver L. Willard for a balance of $1,410 claimed by him for the completion of the contract on the trade school building at the corner of Valley and Park streets. The resolution on this clause will ask for the appropriation of the amount claimed.

SIDEWALK CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 17—The contract for the building of sidewalks in the city during the 1929 season will be let Monday by the street committee of the common council to one of three bidders whose bids were opened at the committee session held Friday night. Bids were also received for excavation work on Tingley street but these were tabled as the figures were too high in the opinion of the councilmen.

The three bids for sidewalk, gutter and curb construction as entered follow: Daniel Capotosti, 23 1-2 cents per square foot for sidewalks; 65 cents per lineal foot for curbing; 32 cents per square foot for gutter; 85 cents per lineal foot for resetting curbing. Merrill H. Jones, 22 cents per square foot for sidewalks; 50 cents per lineal foot for curbing; 32 cents per square foot for gutter; 25 cents per lineal foot for resetting curbing. David P. Ahern, 21 cents per square foot for sidewalks; 49 cents for curbing; 30 cents for gutter construction and 25 cents per lineal foot for resetting curbing. The rejected bids for excavation work in Tingley street were entered by David P. Ahern at $4.80 per square yard and Daniel Capotosti at $5.50 per square yard.

The huge Mack pumper of Engine Company No. 1 was assailed on two sides almost simultaneously in a triple accident on Main street just east of the foot of Mansfield avenue at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening. The pumper, driven by Fireman Clifford C. Smith and in command of Fire Chief Wade U. Webster and Lieutenant Charles Reynolds was returning from a bell alarm from a bell alarm from ETAOINSHR from Box 19, which proved to be a chimney fire on Mansfield avenue. The fire truck had come out of the avenue and had proceeded a distance of about 50 feet in an easterly direction on Main street when the accident took place. The first car to figure in the mishap was a coach driven by Mrs. John Killourey which came down Main street in an easterly direction. Mrs. Killourey feared to bring her car to a quick stop because of the presence of another machine in the rear. She applied her brakes gradually but the machine skidded and came to a stop against the right hand curbing. The damage to the Killourey car was slight.

The car in the rear of the Killourey machine was a light sedan owned by the Bouas Auto Sales company and operated by Joseph F. Fiorentine, a salesman. This machine skidded into the left rear of the fire engine breaking two ladders fastened to the side of the truck and slightly damaging the passenger car. Fiorentine agreed to settle for damages according to the police report. Chief Webster stated today that the truck was proceeding at a rate of 15 miles an hour at the time of the accidents.

GRASS FIRE APPROACHES SMITH HOME, PAWCATUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 17—The Pawcatuck fire alarm whistle from Box No. 88, Mechanic street and Mystic avenue sounded about 12.40 this afternoon for a grass and brush fire near Clarkville. The fire started in lots at the rear of the home of Albert Smith, off Mystic avenue. The first known of the fire when Mr. Smith sat in his home reading a Sunday paper and looking out saw the flames sweeping up driven by a high wind to the rear of his garage. He rushed to the fire box and pulled in the alarm. The combination ladder truck and brush fire cart of the Pawcatuck department, with Foreman Charles Connors and Foreman John J. Donahue, responded. The truck was driven to a point near the Smith house and the entire length of hose from the booster tank was taken out by fifteen firemen and half the contents were sprayed upon the burning grass and brush. A pile of old lumber near the Smith garage became ignited and this was pulled over and wet down by the firemen to prevent the flames breaking out again. The adjoining lot of Oscar Martel on which is the completed foundation for a new house was burned over and had it been necessary water could have been taken from that which covered the basement floor. But for the arrival of the firemen sparks must have set fire to the shingle roofs of houses in the vicinity of the blaze which at one point came within several feet of the Smith house. The recall sounded at 1.45 p. m.

Too Ill to Try Case.

There will be no session of Washington county superior court this morning in Westerly for trial of the $30,000 automobile damage case of Vennard vs. Lihme before Judge Herbert L. Carpenter and jury. Friday there was no court session as Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell received a telephone call from Mrs. Carpenter, wife of the judge that he was ill and continuance was made to the following Monday. Court Clerk W. Herbert Caswell has announced that Judge Carpenter's continued ill health would prevent his appearance Monday and continuance was made to Tuesday, if the judge's health improves.

DANIELSON

C. H. WELDON KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTO TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 17—Charles H. Weldon, 69, was almost instantly killed at 1.05 this morning while he was walking along the state highway between Danielson and Elmville at a point near the Munroe filling station. A light truck, coming south, and operated by Lionel Fournier of School street, struck Weldon. Fournier later told officials investigating the case that he did not see Weldon, being blinded by the headlights of a northbound car operated by Harold Eastham of Goodyear. The impact of the machine against Weldon's body gave Fournier, who was riding with two companions, the first intimation of what had happened, and Fournier promptly brought his machine to a stop.

A hurry call for aid was sent out, and Dr. F. P. Todd responded, from Danielson. Weldon was past all human aid, it developed. Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner, was called and viewed the body, which later was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Dr. Burroughs' examination of the body at the scene of the accident showed that both of Weldon's legs had been broken, the left leg in two places between the knee and ankle, the right leg having a compound fracture of both bones. There was a scalp wound on the back of the head, an injury probably sustained when Weldon's head struck the concrete highway. Dr. Burroughs said there also may have been a fracture of the inner table of the skull, but an external examination did not reveal this.

The accident, which appears to have been unavoidable, was investigated by State Officer H. Theodore Strand. Fournier was not held; nor any charges preferred against him.

Mr. Weldon, a native of Moodus, this state, had been resident here and hereabouts for from 30 to 35 years. He generally was engaged with farm work and had been employed at various places in eastern Windham county. A relative said this afternoon that his most recent employment had been at the Dr. T. Morris Murray estate in Abington. Just where Weeldon had been during Saturday evening or whence he was bound at the time he was killed was undetermined this afternoon, though one report was that he had been seen at a social gathering in East Killingly during Saturday evening. Identification was made from an identification certified, carried in case of accident, that was found on the body. It had been established today that Weldon visited with his daughter at North Grosvenordale on Saturday afternoon, and upon leaving there had announced his intention of returning to Pomfret.

Mr. Weldon leaves four sons, Charles H., Jr., and Raymond of Brpoklyn, Roland of Webster, Walter of Worcester, and two daughters, Mrs. Richard Olson of North Grosvenordale and Mrs. Jennie Quinn of Woonsocket. Weldon was the fourth victim of fatal automobile accidents in Windham county within a week.

Arrested After Auto Crash.

Fred H. Paul of Putnam will appear in the town court Monday to answer to a charge of reckless driving growing out of an accident in which the car he was operating figured at 12.15 this morning on the state highway between Danielson and Elmville, near the home of F. Clifford Davis. Paul's car was in a crash with one operated by Walter Stawarz of Moosup. It will be charged that Paul, who was proceeding north, cut out of line, and smashed his Studebaker into a Chrysler being driven southward by Stawarz. Paul's car went through a state highway fence in the crash. Both cars were considerably damaged, but there were no personal injuries. State Officer H. T. Strand investigated the accident and ordered Paul to appear in court.

Dies from Injuries.

His father and mother and his brothers, all residents here, were today mourning the death of Francis T. Theriaque DeForest, 26, who died at the Day Kimball hospital ni Putnam Saturday morning at 10 o'clock as the result of injuries he received while operating his automobile on the state highway just north of the Killingly town farm just before 11 o'clock last Wednesday morning. The car went out of control, flashed into an embankment, kicked back and shot across the highway and overturned, pinning DeForest underneath. His major injury, a compound fracture of the skull, precluded from the first any real hope that he might recover.

He was a native of Webster, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Deforest, and had lived here before going to Putnam to make his home on Battey street. He had made considerable of a reputation as a boxer. He leaves his wife, who is an expectant mother, his father and mother, of Danielson, and six brothers—Adelard, Arthur, Henry, Ovila, Napoleon and George—all resident here. There are also four sisters, Mrs. Florence Robbillard of Springfield, Mrs. Eva Goldmitzer of Manchester, this state, Mrs. Lillian Breayea of Bristol, Conn., and Mrs. Agnes Laparle, of Danielson.

Never Heard of Operator's License.

William W. Clutter, whose residence is at Brookfield Center, in the western part of this state, told Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court on Saturday that he had never heard of such a thing as an automobile operator's license. He was presented in court by State Officer Emil Castagna for not having one. Strange as it may seem, Clutter never had heard of the necessity of having one, though he is an experienced driver. It so happens that he came into this state from Florida in January. Florida does not require its drivers to have operators license, the car registration being sufficient authority to be abroad with a car. In view of the circumstances the court imposed a fine of only $2, which was paid.

Mrs. Annie Smith, 79, died Saturday at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Smith, widow of James Smith, was a native of Ireland, but resident of this country for many years. Her husband has been dead a number of years. Prior to coming to Danielson to make her home with her son, Raymond, of Prospect avenue, the family had lived in Ballouville. She also leaves another son, William, of Ballouville, and a daughter, Mrs. John Gartland.

Aldei Desarcy and Louis Auger, both of Putnam and James Lyons of Attawaugan, all were before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Saturday to answer to charges of breach of the peace, committed about the premises occupied by Lucy Dolan at Attawaugan. The court found all of them guilty, imposing a fine of $10 each on the Putnam men, and a fine of $1.00 and costs on Lyons. The disturbance they were charged with creating was committed outside Mrs. Dolan's home.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Putnam was a visitor today with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter, Broad street.

It is close to a sure bet that David Witter of School street will have the first home grown green peas of the season in Danielson some early day in June. He has made the planting, in fact, made it Wednesday of last week.

Dirt highways are cut up to about the consistency of porridge all through this territory, but most of the frost already is out of the ground and that's some consolation.

Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of Broad street preached at a service at the Congregational church in Brooklyn this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Danielson's observance of St. Patrick's day this day consisted, for some, of listening to Irish airs as they came in over the radio receiving sets.

Flood lights put in position on the Gallup building and on a pole on Main street, just north of the building, bathed the Danielson division office structure of the Eastern Connecticut Power company in what practically amounts to daylight for the first time at night on Saturday.

President E. B. Wilbur of the chamber of commerce is to have members of the executive committee of the organization in session for consideration o fseveral matters of importance Monday afternoon at the office of Attorney Harry E. Back.

Floyd Ennis, Brooklyn, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. Mr. Ennis was seriously ill at his home for several weeks prior to being transferred to the hospital.

Because of the Easter season being so early this year, a number of Danielson people who have been in the south during the winter, and who usually return for Easter, will not come back this year until dates from April 15 and on.

Mrs. Francis X. Ducharme and Mr. and Mrs. Aldei Lamothe were visitors today with friends in Southbridge.

Henry C. Jacobi of Boston was a visitor today with friends in Boston and other communities in this vicinity.

On Tuesday Rev. Harding W. Gaylord will consider with his class in Christianity and Church Membership this subject: The Westfield Congregational Church.

Comparatively few witnesses will be heard, it is understood, when Coroner Arthur G. Bill resumes here on Tuesday his inquest in the case of County Detective W. E. Jackson of Willimantic.

PUTNAM

PASTORS PAY TRIBUTE TO IRELAND'S PATRON SAINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 17—(AP)—Thoughts of the faithful returned across the sea to the evergreen shores of Erin today as Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of the Holy Trinity church at Pomfret, Rev. U. O. Bellerose and Rev. J. D. Casey, pastor and curate at St. Mary's church in this city, in their sermons at the masses today paid tribute to the memory of St. Patrick, patron saint of the isle of wit and sadness, Ireland. Hundreds, to whom the "old sod" is still dear filled both churches today and as the priests in their sermons recalled the years of suffering endured by the Irishmen of Erin, tears rolled down the cheeks of a number of those who witnessed and remembered.

A bit of sentimental green, appropriate once a year, on St. Patrick's day, was displayed today with an air of pride and tenderness by women and children of Irish birth and descent as they strolled about the city.

As St. Patrick's day brought a break in the Lenten season a number of card parties and dances were held in the city and in adjoining towns Saturday evening, which were largely attended by Putnam people. The radio brought the Irish melodies and airs to many homes in Putnam last evening, while the same compositions were rendered by the choirs this morning at St. Mary's church and at the Holy Trinity in Pomfret.

Frank Theriaque Dies.

Frank Theriaque, 27, of Battey street died shortly before eleven o'clock at the Day Kimball hospital in this city Saturday morning from injuries received in an automobile accident in Elmville Wednesday forenoon. The young man was taken to the hospital unconscious and did not regain his senses. According to the hospital report the man was suffering from a compound fracture of the skull, internal injuries and severe gashes.

Frank Theriaque was born in Webster, Mass., on Feb. 15, 1902, the son of Albert and Mary (Robitaille) Theriaque. He received his education in the schools of Webster and later took up textile machine operation as a life work. He has worked in the various mills in Webster, Danielson and Putnam and was employed in this city when the accident occurred last Wednesday. He was quite widely known in Putnam and Danielson where he possessed a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Frank Theriaque, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Misaell Basinet of Pomfret street, Putnam and two children, four sisters, Mrs. Amedee Breayea of Bristol, Mrs. Joseph Rawlins of Springfield, Mass., Mrs. John Gollmitzer of Manchester, and Mrs. Eugene Laparle of Danielson; six brothers, Aldor, Arthur, Henry, Olvid, Napoleon and George all of Danielson. Mr. Theriaque is also survived by his parents who make their home in Danielson.

A four stroke alarm Saturday morning brought the members of the hook and ladder company of the central fire station to Marshall street where they extinguished a chimney fire. The flames were confined to the soot-filled chimney and were soon put out with the aid of chemicals. Saturday morning's call was the 21st of the year for the firemen and the tenth in a week.

St. Mary's church was filled to capacity this afternoon with the male members of the parish for the closing service of the mission which was held during the past week. This is the second annual visit of the mission priests to Putnam and this year's mission conducted by them has been adjudged a great success. The morning and evening services conducted during the past week were largely attended and at this morning's session over a thousand men received the sacrament of holy communion.

At all the masses today Father Bellerose announced that the mission for the English speaking members of the parish would open early in May and would be conducted by the Dominican priests. Father Bellerose stated that every effort would be made to procure the services of Rev. Father Brockbank and Rev. Father Farrell, who delivered the mission sermon here last year.

Receiver George M. Coffin, of the defunct First National bank said this afternoon that he has heard nothing from his son, Frank T. Coffin, who is somewhere in Mexico. Mr. Coffin became alarmed for the safety of his son a few days ago when the mails brought no word from him in several days. Saturday was the eighteenth day which has elapsed since word had come to the banker from his son.

Mr. Coffin has dispatched word to the American consul at Mexico for information pertaining to the whereabouts of his son, but as yet has heard nothing. Mr. Coffin said today that he felt his son was in Mexico City and held every hope he would hear from him during the coming week. The younger Mr. Coffin is connected with the foreign interests department of the Wright Aircraft corporation and was sent to Mexico when a Mexico-American airline was recently opened between the two countries. Mr. Coffin has been connected with the Wright company since the inventors of the airplane first commenced their experiments with heavier than air planes.

The local Salvation Army corps held their annual tag day, in connection with their drive Saturday. The "Sallies" were well received and the drive realized a total of $140.41, according to a statement from Captain Robt. Stickley of the local corps today. The sum netted Saturday will be devoted to the drive for funds. Capt. Stickley said today that the local corps expects to hold similar public drives in Webster, Danielson and Moosup in the near future. Captain Stickley and the members of the local corps are today highly appreciative of the generosity of the people of this city and wish to extend their thanks to all who contributed. The Putnam army leader intimated that the amount derived from the tag day was much larger than was anticipated.

Farand Labonte of North Grosvenordale was committed to the state reformatory in Cheshire Saturday morning when he was found guilty of the theft of a bicycle tire and wheel. Labonte is seventeen years of age. On Thursday while on his way to his home in North Grosvenordale he punctured the tire on his bicycle. Labonte then walked as far as the Putnam foundry where the vehicle of his uncle was parked. He took the rear wheel and installed it on his disabled bike. Capt. Jarvis of the local police arrested the boy on complaint. He pleaded not guilty before Judge Geissler in city court Saturday morning but previous police records against him in the town of North Grosvenordale, discounted his plea that he was intending to return the stolen wheel. At this Judge Geissler ordered the youth committed to the state reformatory to serve an indefinite sentence.

Howard Tourtellotte of Farrows street was in Providence Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reardon and William Reardon, Jr., of Wilkinson street spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Providence.

Putnam police were besieged with inquiries today concerning a false report that Gov. John H. Trumbull had been fatally injured near Putnam today. Reports differed as to the "accident," some of those who called being under the impression it was an auto and others in an airplane mishap. The rumor seemed to originate from a report from a Boston radio station in the late morning. Inquiries were received from many metropolitan papers by the local police. It was stated tonight by one prominent in the republican party that the governor had not left his home in Plainville during the day.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Blanket Flowers.

It was on a Sunday morning on a
June morning early.
That as I was walking, I walked in Brattle Street;
Birds in the Cambridge elms were singing very clearly
And from the Charles River the wind was soft and sweet.

Old-fashioned flowers in the gardens
nodded gravely.
Larkspur and roses and red hollyhocks,
And one lone gaillardia was smiling
very bravely
Among the day lilies and the purple standing phlox.

Gaillardias are blanket flowers on the Caddo Reservation.
And I know a valley, that the blanket flowers fill;
As big as all of Cambridge, by Old
Caddo Station,
Between a little river and a long
sand hill.

The wild wind of the prairie shakes the sagebrush above it.
And spotted Indian ponies go straggling, one by one.
To drink at the river, as the meadow larks love it.
And the blanket flowers are blazing in Oklahoma sun.

And I forgot New England and her
pale winds and the airy Thrilling of the thrushes where the storied elms stand,
To dream about gaillardias over miles
and miles of prairie,
That make an Indian blanket on the Oklahoma sand.

Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Mocking Birds.

I woke with the first flush off dawn,
While the mocking-bird out on the lawn
His paean was shrilling, unresting, and filling
My heart with the promise of morn.
Mocking-bird,
My heart with the promise of morn.

I lay while the gathering light
Was surely defeating the night
And, tunefully swelling, thy music was telling
Of happiness, love and delight,
Mocking-bird,
Of happiness, love and delight.

I lay till a lancet of flame,
Dashed swift with the passionate aim
Of sunlight, was launched at the cottonwood branched,
Whence the voice of thy melody came,
Mocking-bird.
The voice of thy melody came.

Edward McQueen Gray in "The Mocking-Bird."

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAWAKES.

The extraordinary habits of the harvester ant have long been known to naturalists. Certain species not only harvest and store in granaries the seeds upon which they feed, but actually plant and cultivate an annual crop of their food seeds.

Still more remarkable stories are told of an ant that is common in Dalmatia, the Messor barbarus. According to a certain doctor of the Dresden Forestry school, this ant not only cuts leaves and gathers seeds, but actually makes bread or biscuit! The seeds are first sprouted, then carried into the sun and dried, then taken back to the underground chambers, where they are chewed into a dough. The dough is then finally made into tiny cakes, which are baked in the sun, then carefully stored for future use.

From these observations it would appear that the art of cookery is not confined to the human race. All cooking is done by the sun, whether in the ripening of fruit or in the baking of bread in the stove. The heat obtained from fuel is simply stored up sunlight set free.

The Arab and the native Mexican speak of ripe fruit as fruit which has been cooked in the sun. The ant has somehow learned the art of sun cookery, the saliva with which it moistens the grain probably taking the place of yeast and sweetening through changes set up by its influence upon starch.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Enjoyments of Winter.

Dear Uncle Jed: The season of winter consists of snow and ice. When the day is dark, gloomy and cold all youngsters expect snow. Before the snow begins to fall most sleds are prepared for the coming snow. Often it fools them but this is unusual. The snow begins to fall and the children hop about in glee. When the ground is blanketed with snow a clang is heard from the impact of the runners against the hardened ground. Children enjoy this day. The following day is one of warmth and the snow disappears. Down the gutters water which was formed from the melting snow is flowing in streams. Now the children are disappointed for the snow has vanished.

Older boys and girls are anxiously waiting for a cold spell to freeze the water for skating. Their wishes come true and soon with their skates slung over their backs they trod to a nearby pond. Skates are put on but the skaters are not in form and fall. They are perfectly in shape after practicing and go skimming over the ice with ease. Some skating with fancy while others are enjoying themselves in some other manner.

The elders are not satisfied for they are wanting a heavy snow fall to go sleigh riding. During the night a heavy snowfall arises with fiercely howling wind and before morning the earth is covered with a blanket of light and fleecy snow. In the morning they bundle themselves heavily and hitch the horse to the sleigh. Slowly the horse furs away to the county while the bells ring chimes and the people wave to their friends at times and are being showered by snowballs.

Thus young and old desire winter for its snow and ice.

Dog Does Tricks

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story. It is the story of my pet dog. Every morning my dog comes to me and barks and that means "let me out." One day it happened that while my mother was doing her work she heard a noise an asked me what was the matter. I said it was the dog. I taught my dog some tricks. I showed it how to stand on its hind legs and walk like a rabbit. His name is Bell and he is black and white and has big brown eyes.

Learning to Play

Dear Uncle Jed: I live with my aunt. I thought I would like to take piano lessons, so she bought one. I have a nice teacher and I like her very much. I take my lesson every Saturday at 2 o'clock. I have been taking lessons since last August and missed only one day. I have had several pretty pieces. My sister often says she never would bother practicing so much. I tell her she ought to learn so when she gets older she will know how to play.

Our Cats

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and the Wide-Awakes.

Our cat's name is Tommy. One day he went away and did not come back for three or four days. We wondered where he was.

We have another cat. He runs away whenever we go near him, so we call him Wild Tom. When Tommy was gone he would meow and meow for him.

When Tommy came back one of his toes was almost off. My aunt bathed it in Lysol. In a little while his toe came off and his foot began to heal. Now you would never know his foot had been caught in a trap.

Her Family of Dolls

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to thank you for the nice book you sent me. I was very much surprised, as I did not expect to get a prize.

Now I would like to tell you about my family of dolls. I have a large doll carriage that I keep them in. The name of the largest and oldest is Susie. I got her four years ago and like her the best. Then I have four more, Jennie, Bettie, Jack and Tiny. Tiny is the baby and very sweet. I keep her in a small crib. I play with them often. Mother taught me to sew for them. I can sew very well, mother says.

I hope you all will like to hear about my dolls.

From your friend,

My Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my pet dog. My dog's name is Bobby. He is black and white. He is very fond of playing. He likes to play with a ball the best. Sometimes when we try to take anything away from him Bobby runs away and won't give it to us. He likes to eat meat, candy and cake. He always bothers the cat if he can get hold of it. Sometimes the cat scratches Bobby and he runs away from the cat. Bobby is only 10 months old and is about 11 inches in height. His fur is a little curly. He likes to chase after chickens. Bobby likes to slide on the sled with us. When we take him to get on the sled and we slide with him down the hill, the second time he gets on himself. When he gets hold of a doll Bobby tears it up. He did that to one of my sister's dolls. When we go to school my sister always plays with Bobby because she hasn't anybody lse to play with. My pet dog does a lot of funny things. I guess I will close now. I hope you enjoy my letter.

The Carnival

Dear Uncle Jed: As this is my first attempt in writing to you and the Wide-Awakes I hope you will enjoy reading my story.

When I went to the carnival on the East Side I went on everything except the Ferris wheel. All the girls who were with me were teasing me to ride with them, but I felt very nervous, as it was going up pretty high. After a while I finally decided to go, but I did not want to stop at the top if I could help it. When I got on it was going pretty fast, which made me frightened. I held tight on the girl's hand beside me. I stopped almost at the very top and I screamed to get off. When I got down at the bottom I got off. I decided never to ride on a Ferris wheel again.

Receives Letter from Friend

Dear Uncle Jed: We are having a week's vacation and as it is raining and I cannot go out to play I would like to write to the Wide-Awakes about an interesting letter we received from a friend visiting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

He writes: "There are 100 large hotels, more than 500 apartment houses, also the best pictures for 10 cents and 15 cents admission. There is a mile of yachts tied up on the waterfront. They say there are more than 2,000,000 people this winter in the Tampa district, which has a territory of a 30-mile circuit. The sunshine is very bright there, brighter than it is here in June. At the beaches they have to wear shaded glasses. There are many free entertainments every day, and some wonderful addresses by such men as Will Rogers and foreign speakers. Seats $3 and up.

No city in the world does so much to entertain tourists. There are many beautiful parks which are growing finer each year. Fishing is a great sport here. You can catch from a three-pound mullet to a 300-pound tarpon. Zane Grey and other writers come here to fish. The city of Longo, 20 miles from here, held a big free fair and the whole expense is paid by the concessions, and there are more than a mile of these. This fair is a wonderful thing, far superior to any of our northern fairs. The poultry show is a wonder. One man has a ranch with over 20,000 chickens. Poultry does well here, as they have green feed all year. Free meals by the scare are given by food promoters." He wrote much more, but it would take up too much space.

I would like to live in St. Petersburg, but I think I would miss the snowstorms.

Playing House.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about playing house. I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story.

One afternoon, after helping my mother I thought I would play house, so I went upstairs and put on a green middy blouse. Then I put on a long white skirt. With these things I looked very much like a woman. I was supposed to be a woman, and my doll my child.

I played a very long time, going to the store, sending my doll to school, eating in a restaurant, working, playing and many other interesting things. After a while I got tired and went somewhere else to play.

Lives On Farm.

Dear Uncle Jed: I love to read the letters in the Wide-Awake column, but I have never written before. The world is so full of a number of interesting things that I hardly know just what to write about, but first I will tell you a little about myself.

I am 11 years old and live on a farm. We have cows and horses, dogs and cats, baby pigs and hundreds of white chickens. On Columbus day one of our cows had twin calves and we called them Columbia and Columbus.

There are lots of interesting things on a farm. I love to help my father pick up the eggs at night. We get about 300 every day. Last summer when the pullets started to lay my sister and I used to see which of us could find the most eggs because the chicks used to run outside before the new coop was ready and we used to find them in lots of funny places. Once I found a nest in the horses' manger and there were 64 eggs in it.

I go to school on the trolley car every morning. I am in the seventh grade. I will write another letter to tell you about some of the things that happen going back and forth. I will close now. Good-bye Uncle Jed.

A Snowball Fight.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time that I have written to you and I hope that you will like my story. I am going to tell you about the snowball fight that we had. It had snowed very hard the day before so my brother and a playmate and I suggested to build a snow fort and have a snowball fight. It did not take us very long to finish building the fort. Then we had the fight. What a great time we had. Just as the snowballs were giving out my friends were called home to supper and shortly after my brother and I had to do the same. We certainly did have a fine time.

A Present I Couldn't Use.

Dear Uncle Jed: From my mother I received a pair of skates for Christmas. A few weeks later I determined to learn how to skate. Going to a neighboring pond I took off my shoes and replaced them with my shoe skates. No sooner did I stand up when my feet decided to take an opposite course and I executed the split. However this only encouraged me. I would stand up and flounder around for a while then I would sit down good and hard. I tried to keep control of my feet but they would rather mind themselves. They would start in one direction and then part, then come together, but mostly I skated on my trousers. Even though a few lumps adorned my head I stubbornly kept it up.

my friends gave me a nice push, so when I began getting onto it one of nice that it made me do a couple of handsprings, leaps, bounds and slides until I was wise enough to stop myself by falling down. But I kept at it until I fell into a hole which was chopped out by some fisherman, so he could deposit his tilts therein. This was enough. I took off my wet shoe-skates, put on my own shoes and ran home dripping wet.

After I had changed my clothes I took the skates and oiled them up to dry.

My Polly.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story about my polly, or rather a parrot, as you may say.

Every day when I come from school I always feed my polly. He always hollers when he sees me coming. Once he even flew on my shoulders. My polly had been with me for about two months when he began talking. I am glad I have a polly for when I am lonesome I let him out and have lots of fun.

My Dream.

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes enjoy my story.

One afternoon I got a headache, so I went to bed. I had to take an aspirin pill; it didn't taste very good. When I went to bed again I had a dream. I dreamed that we went out into the woods to play house, and when I went to get a bag of leaves from the barn for a cushion and somebody grabbed me. I hollered for help. The girl I was playing with came and asked me why I was hollering. She was my mother. I said that somebody grabbed me. She said, "There was nobody there to do it." So we played the rest of the game. When I was dreaming I fell off the bed and bumped my head, because I fell head first.

Playing Indian

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about playing Indian.

One afternoon my friend Thelma came over to my house. We decided to play Indian. I asked my brother for two pennies and he gave them to me. I gave one to Thelma and kept one for myself. We ran down to the candy store and we bought some red candies with which we spotted up our faces. Then I got the wheelbarrow. Thelma got into the wheelbarrow and I pushed her a little while, then she pushed me. After we each got a ride I heard mother calling. She told me she wanted me to go to the store. As I reached the door she came out with the money. When she saw our faces she asked me where we got all the blood on our faces. We told her it was only candy. We told her we were playing Indian and painted our faces as real Indians do and she laughed till tears came from her eyes.

Learning to Ski

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for quite a while and I am going to tell you how I learned to ski. Saturday morning when I got up it was 7 o'clock. I came down and ate my breakfast. When I got my skis I went to my cousin's. He got his skis too. There were five of us. We went up a hill at first. I couldn't ski, but I got used to it. We were skiing to twelve o'clock and then we went home.

Nutting

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my brother, another boy and I went nutting. As we were picking up nuts two squirrels came near us. They took some nuts and ran up the tree. They were doing this when two boys came with guns. They took aim at the poor squirrels. We told the boys not to shoot them. The boys said, "We will shoot you then." When the other boy and I heard that we crept behind them. They were going to shoot at my brother when the other boy and I jumped on them. We were rolling over and over, each trying to get on top. We were rolling until we went into the river. They knew how to swim. My brother got me out. Then I helped to get the other boy out. We made a fire and got dry. The other boys went home and we kept on picking nuts till we each had a bag full. Then we went home.

Unfortunate Bird

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about an unfortunate bird.

One day as I was coming home from school I saw a small bird lying in the gutter. I picked it up and saw that one foot was broken. I took the bird home, put its leg in place as well as I could, bandaged it up, and made a birdhouse into which I put the bird. I fed it for two days. These two days were very unpleasant for the bird. As I came to see the bird the third day I found that it was gone. The bird did not leave for good, but came back the next day and made a nest in the birdhouse. I was glad to see the bird use its leg once more.

Her Second Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: Saturday I went to the show and I saw Rin-Tin-Tin. There was a man who whipped Rin-Tin-Tin and then the dog got loose. He bit the man so hard it killed him. Before he killed the man the man stabbed him in the leg. The dog got married and had 10 little puppies.

The First Snowfall

Dear Uncle Jed: This is a story which I have written to you in hopes of winning a book. It reads as follows: The first snowfall. The season I like best is winter. Every day I wished it could be winter, and one day my wish came true. My next wish was that it would snow. Many days I wished the same until it really did snow, and snow hard. The first thing I did was to go out and make a snowman. Then I had many snow fights with my sisters and brothers, all which I won. The other part of the day was spent in about the same way. When night came I ate supper and went happily to sleep.

Frees Barred Owl

Dear Uncle Jed: I live on a farm. My father and I set a number of traps for skunks. One day when I came home from school, my father said he had a surprise for me. In a box he had a very large barred owl that had been caught in a trap.

The owl was black and grey with white bars across his feathers. His eyes were very large and when I came near him he snapped his bill. He was about one foot high when he sat up. He never moved except to turn his head when someone came near.

We kept the owl for two days, but because he would not eat anything, we decided to let him go. I opened the box on the evening of the second day, but the owl sat stupidly for a minute or two, then realizing he was no longer a prisoner he flew away on silent wings.

The 4-H Club

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the 4-H club in Preston. The name of it is, "The Do-Well Cooking club." The leader's name is Cynthia Crary. She is very nice. We have a president, secretary and treasurer. Our president is Winifred Burdick, our secretary is Florence Pendleton, and our treasurer is Lois Woodmansee.

Some of the things we have made are maple tapioca cream, chowder, souffles, and other things. Once I had to give a talk on "How to Set a Table." One of the other girls talked on "How to Decorate a Table."

The 4-H clubs are very interesting. It helps the girls and boys a great deal. On the 23th we had a meeting and Miss McDonald from Storrs talked about health. We have charts on which we write down what we cook and when we cook and when we do housework. In August some of the girls go to Storrs to attend the Junior short course. I would like to go this year. I hope you will like my letter.

THE NEWARK DISASTER.

In every line of transportation there have been deplorable disasters. They have occurred on railroads, on trolley lines, on steamships, on sailing vessels, on motor driven vehicles. From time to time there have been fatalities among those who undertake flights in airplanes. All of them have been tragic and yet the crashing of the tri-motored passenger carrying plane at Newark where 13 were killed outright and two others seriously injured directs attention to the peril which still surround aviation, especially where the transportation of passengers is involved.

While it is seldom so, the pilot of the big plane was not numbered among the killed. In the investigations which will be made concerning the cause of the affair he should be of great assistance, in case death doesn't claim him as the result of his injuries, in disclosing just what happened and why. It is of the utmost importance to know, not only for the purpose of getting at the cause of this appalling tragedy but to serve as a guide in future cases.

No flying accident has reached such an extent in this country, but if others are to be prevented it must be known what happened, whether the machine was in fit condition to carry such a load, whether the engines were adequate and up to requirements, whether there was an overload, whether the driver was able to meet his responsibilities, whether he did all possible under the circumstances to avoid the forced landing and whether the fuel of the machine was up to requirements.

In other modes of transportation there are safety devices for the protection of human life in case of trouble. The crash at Newark came at a time when it was impossible for anything to be done by the helpless passengers. They had to sit there and take it and the fact that all were killed outright indicates the position they occupied. It also indicates the need of a thorough inquiry for the prevention of any repetitions.

It is inevitable that such a fatality will have its effects upon flying for the time being, and yet they will probably not last long for fatalities are, happily, very infrequent on such a scale and greater safety, rather than less, has featured flying in the years of development.

THAT, AND SOME MORE.

It hasn't appeared as yet that the legislature in the state of Pennsylvania was delaying its action on the repeal of the coal tax because of any uncertainty as to whether the operators would bring about an equivalent reduction in the price of coal. Nevertheless the operators have indicated their further desire for the removal of the coal tax by unanimously voting that if the tax is removed they will immediately "reduce the mine price of anthracite to correspond to the amount of the tax removed."

That is, of course, no more than should be expected, except it be that more than the equivalent of the coal tax was charged up to the consumers when the tax was imposed. It would be a rediculous situation if the state of Pennsylvania were to remove the coal tax only to have the operators continue to collect it from the consumers.

At the present time there is a movement to increase hard coal consumption, an effort to get back lost business. There is an opportunity for a start in this direction by getting the objectionable coal tax removed, but that gives no assurance that those who have given up the use of anthracite will return to it. While the coal tax might have been the last straw that drove householders to the use of some other fuel there was a series of price increases and several instances when shortages had to be faced which figured in the decision.

Thus, the coal operators have something to worry about besides the state tax. That might well be a starter, but if its removal and the assurance that the equivalent will be taken from the price of coal could be accompanied by a unanimous statement that there would be a further reduction in the price of anthracite to the consumers there would be a stronger inclination on the part of consumers to wean themselves of substitutes, especially if they are not saving any money by the use of substitutes and get no greater advantages than they would be willing to sacrifice in case expenses could be reduced.

There could never be any other thought than giving the consumer the full benefit of any tax repeal which Pennsylvania might make, but if Pennsylvania is looking for that the consumers are looking for something more.

ON A WRONG TACK.

Perhaps nothing in a financial way has stirred much more interest between this country and England of recent date than the declaration from abroad that Americans, not even American stockholders, would not be permitted to participate in the proposed stock increase of the British General Electric.

While the reason for it was the apparent fear that there might be such a thing as American control, it was an apparent attempt to entirely ignore the rights of the American stockholders, which should have been provided for quite the same as those of stockholders elsewhere.

This one-sided proposition evidently made a bad impression at home. Thought as to inevitable results apparently caused a change in plans, but what they are to be remains to be seen. A delay in the offering of the issue coming after plenty of protests and a discussion of the situation in parliament indicates that there is a disposition to correct a mistake before it is actually put into operation.

What it was planned to do is directly contrary to what they are doing themselves. It is not a difficult matter to point to extensive British holdings in many countries and it can be appreciated what the British sentiment would be in case the companies, located in other countries, declared that no stockholders outside of those countries could participate in the benefits coming from such companies. Or on the other hand, if the British should initiate such a practice, it is easy to appreciate what a precedent it would be for industry in other countries to declare that their British stockholders could not participate in any new stock issue. That is no more than could be expected in case the plan of the British General Electric is put through. It is a move that encourages retaliation and creates resentment. Naturally there is opposition to anything that will arouse any such feeling and it would appear, that the British are giving heed to some good advice in changing their plans, or in giving better reasons than have as yet been advanced for such a step as contemplated.

PAY-AS-WE-BUILD PLAN.

Connecticut has been going on the pay-as-you-go plan because of its recognized benefits. The city of Detroit is getting to the point where it sees the mistake in not doing so and is seriously considering the pay-as-we-build plan in connection with schoolhouse construction.

If it were like the city of New Orleans which has been given a fund which yields a fine new schoolhouse every year all would be well, but it isn't so fortunate and in addition to the $60,000,000 which has been raised for schools through bond issues it needs a new school each year.

The idea of changing the practice strikes the Detroit News favorably. It says, "The argument for the pay-as-we-build scheme is a strong one. We need five or six million dollars worth of schools each year. But we are bonded for schools to the extent of over $60,000,000 and we pay each year, in interest and sinking fund on these bonds, almost enough to provide the schools we require. In other words we lay out some $5,000,000 to pay an old debt, and at the same time assume a new debt of like amount. If we didn't have the old debt the $5,000,000 could go into new schools which would be paid for on the spot."

This idea of paying as you go is not a new one, but it is a recognition of the desirability of eliminating the large amount of money which is spent every year for interest on bond issues. It is a case of meeting current needs out of the pocket instead of borrowing the money and paying twice as much for the same thing in the end, with new demands causing the bond situation to pyramid rapidly, especially when allowed to run on indefinitely.

TAMMANY LEADERSHIP.

When a change is made in the head of Tammany Hall there is interest beyond the borders of the state of New York. This is because of the influence he is supposed to wield in the political affairs of the big city and the big state.

George W. Olvany in announcing his determination to quit as chief of the organization gives ill health and the advice of doctors as the reason. That is an excuse that is frequently resorted to when the real reason is being covered up.

Olvany has differed greatly from some of his predecessors. He has played a different game and if the reports are true he has failed to measure up to the requirements. He has carried the organization through political fights and gotten democratic majorities, but he hasn't always landed the man he supported in office. In other words he has failed to get a sufficiently large majority to overcome the opposition elsewhere. Such a claim can always be raised. Political figuring can be made to accomplish just about what is wanted.

The Olvany resignation comes at a time when its effect upon the mayoralty campaign in the metropolis may depend to a large extent upon his successor. Mayor Walker has depended upon Tammany for his office and his vacations and he must continue to do so. Changing horses in the beginning of his campaign isn't going to be helpful unless the new chieftain is going to be a bigger and stronger leader than the one who has resigned. At best there is bound to be created a breach that will not be helpful and especially so when it is known that there is plenty of Walker opposition. A headless Tammany is in a sorry plight but the next leader is getting a fair warning that he must produce votes. It is necessary in order to take care of the faithful.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

As usual, there are those who never have a good word for March, but it has shown that it knows how to make friends.

Now that inauguration is over the popular pastime among democrats is to guess why Mr. Hoover doesn't do differently than he does.

The man on the corner says: Everything considered, the wise man is the fellow who kicks because his income tax wasn't larger.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

White paint may be cleaned by rubbing with a damp flannel which has been dipped in whiting.

A coil spring be dmay be easily cleaned with a radiator brush.

Do not peel rhubarb before cooking, as the red skin gives an attractive color to the cooked fruit.

To revive wilted asparagus cut the stems freshly and stand them in an earthen dish of very hot water.

Flavor apricot tapioca with a little lemon juice and grated rind.

Pour boiling water over rice before cooking it, and use the water for starch for muslins and laces.

Shake a coal fire until you can see the fire through the grate. An ash-clogged fire will never burn well.

When making cake, if eggs are scarce, add 1-2 teaspoon extra of baking powder. This amount of baking powder is equivalent to one egg.

If a loaf of cake is cut in the center, the slices cut from each side of the center first, and the two ends pressed closely together, the cake will not get stale as quickly as it would if cut from the end.

Palms should never be kept in a room where there is artificial light. They ought to be removed to another room before the lamp or gas is lighted.

Enameled furniture is nice for a child's room as it can be cleaned so easily.

Lamb contains much fat, and something acid like mint sauce should be served with it to counteract the effect of the fat.

Wash wicker furniture in warm soap suds to which a little salt has been added. Rinse, and when dry polish with a flannel cloth saturated with oil.

Brussels sprouts are excellent cooked au gratin with celery.

After cyclamen is through blooming, water it only every three or four days. Let it dry and the leaves will fall off. When spring comes, put it in the garden in the shade until August, when it should be repotted.

DISHCLOTH

Just the usage in the dishpan is not washing enough for your dishcloth. It should be washed in clean, hot suds, rinsed in clear water and dried out of doors every few days, so it will keep sweet an dreally clean.

WHIPPED CREAM

When there is whipped cream left over, soak a teaspoon of granulated gelatin in a teaspoon of water, then dissolve over hot water and add this to a cup of whipped cream and it will keep firm until next day if kept in a cool place.

STUFFING FOR VEAL

The stuffing for veal should be very highly seasoned, as veal is the most tasteless of all meats, and the stuffing adds greatly to the dish.

FRENCH TOAST

Dip left-over toast in egg and milk and brown in a small amount of fat. This is French toast and may be served for breakfast with powdered sugar or syrup.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Before administering a dose of castor or mineral oil to a person, rinse the spoon first in cold water. Then none of the dose will be wasted by the oil sticking to the spoon.

After bathing the feet, they should be thoroughly dried, especially between the toes, as any moisture allowed to remain there is quite apt to result in soft corns.

If you are troubled with insomnia, try taking deep breathing exercises before retiring. Put on a coat and stand before an open window, inhaling and exhaling as deeply as possible for about 23 breaths. When you retire be sure your feet are warm; if necessary, wear bed socks. Sip a glass of warm milk and go right to bed. Do not read for a half hour in bed unless you are a person who always gets sleepy when you read. Usually the person suffering from insomnia will grow more wide awake as he or she reads.

ALL FOR BEAUTY

A really clever make-up box is of wood painted a delightful shade of dull pink, with a floral design upon the cover. The box has all the usual conveniences, but the unusual part is that it is mounted upon a stand like that of a tip-table and so can be moved from room to room or placed in the most advantageous light.

NEW PICTURE FRAMES

Especially appropriate for men's photographs are large picture frames of wood painted in two tones, and ornamented with very large dull nail-heads of brass. Scrap baskets to match may be purchased.

FOUNTAIN PEN

If your fountain pen runs dry and you have no ink on hand, fill the pen with water. There is usually enough dry ink crystallized in the barrel to make a writing fluid sufficient for your purpose.

MATCH MARKS

If careless members of the family have left match marks on woodwork, rub the marks carefully with lemon and then cleanse with warm water in which onions have been boiled.

FRUIT PICTURES

Go up into the attic and find one of the old fruit pictures that used to hang in the dining room. Have it renovated and then hang in the living room. They are stylish.

STICKING DOORS

Doors and drawers that stick are a nuisance. If you rub the offending article with soap or beeswax the annoyance will cease.

OLD LEATHER

Old leather has a charm all its own, and so a case to hold writing paper and stand upon the writing desk is doubly attractive when it is covered with brown leather tooled in gold and treated so that it has an antique finish.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The early spring fashions are summed up for the ordinary woman in:

Color emphasis on blue and black.

Sports materials increasingly popular.

Woven designs in silk take precedence over printed designs, and silhouettes will be tailored and simple.

Fine linens, used infrequently, should be kept folded between blue tissue paper to keep from turning yellow.

A Jenny frock in mist gray wool crepe has a skirt yoke joined to the circular flaring portion by a hand-scalloped edge in a design of five little scallops, making one big one.

For novelty, a beige crepe Roma frock uses matching lace to line the sash, jabot and widecuffs. As Milady moves they swing and show the lace.

A rather formal little afternoon suit is made of British green sheer velvet with a pale blond satin blouse with teal lace touches.

The new sleeve for afternoon frocks is the saddle sleeve that joins the blouse in raglan style, and fits more or less closely until the elbow and then flares to width and originality to the wrist.

A gay little frock of printed silk has a very small pattern upon a red background. A short coat of the same is worn over the frock after the pleasant fashion of the moment.

The best fabrics are made of fine yarn, no matter whether material is silk, wool, cotton or linen. Materials are all a little finer in type, more closely woven and lighter in weight than before.

Considerable stitching is used to decorate plain fabrics. Buttons and buttonholes, as well as pockets, are seen. V-necks and tie bows finish most dresses. Pleats are used in all fabrics. Belts fasten in the center front and are tighter.

LACE JABOTS

A black velvet afternoon frock has a collarless neck that fastens at the left side, from which point a lovely lace jabot falls. The skirt's yoke fastens the same way and has a similar lace jabot, only longer and fuller.

NEW LINGERIE

Exquisite new lingerie, which comes in shades of pink and deep cream, is trimmed with string colored lace and is exquisitely embroidered and made by hand. This lingerie comes in matching sets of night-gown and bed jacket, pantie, step-in, slips, etc.

NEWEST IN JUMPERS

The newest of the jumpers are of crepe de chine and are of hip length. At the bottom they are ringed with a broadw band of elastic which holds them down. This band is concealed by stitching and embroidery so that it is not noticeable.

SUN-TAN FASHION INFLUENCES MODE

If you've wondered whether the sun-tan fashion still influences the mode in swimming suits, you'll find it does, both in fabric and styling. Cellanse materials which allow the violet rays of the sun to pass through make some of the newest bathing tunics in colors or prints.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Eight thousand women hold common stock in the American Tobacco Company.

Ninety per cent of the 8,000,000 workingwomen in the United States get less than $40 a week.

Miss Bessie Kempton has been elected to the Georgia legislature for the fourth consecutive time.

Texas has one county which is ruled entirely by women, all of the county offices being held by women.

The latest fashion dear to the women of China to come under Nationalist disapproval is the wearing of earrings.

Though married women still lack the right to vote in Spain, the vote has been extended to unmarried and divorced women and to widows on an equal basis with the men.

SANDWICHES.

Sandwiches, says New York Evening World, will keep fresh if you wrap them immediately in a napkin wrung out of hot water and set them in a cool place.

CHEESE.

Cheese will not mold if it is wrapped in a cloth dipped in vinegar and kept in a covered dish.

RECIPES.

Potato Omelet: Cut enough raw potatoes into very small dice to make one and one-half cups. Melt two tablespoons of butter or bacon fat in frying pan, and add the potatoes and one tablespoon of minced onion. Cover the pan and cook rather slowly for about 10 minutes or until the potatoes are tender and brown. Meanwhile beat six eggs slightly, add one-half cup of milk and salt and pepper to season. Pour over the potatoes and cook slowly until firm. Fold over, turn out on a hot platter and garnish with watercress.

Pecan Muffins: Mix and sift one and one-half cups of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one tablespoon of salt. Beat one egg until light, add three-fourths cup of milk and two tablespoons of melted fat. Stir the liquid into the dry material, and beat until smooth. It may be necessary to add two or three tablespoons more of milk; the batter should be just thick enough to drop easily from the spoon. When well mixed stir in one-half cup of finely chopped pecan nut meats. Pour the batter into well greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven—425 degrees—for 20 to 25 minutes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Holes Need Attention

Mr. Editor: In view of the fact that Jack Frost has been making whoopee with the roads in Norwich, and that good weather should be here before long, I think that something ought to be done about the roads in and around Norwich. There are a half dozen nice holes in the road on Thames square, and every time you drive over the holes it sounds as if your rear end was going to drop out.

There are two more dandies on Water street in front of Levine Bros. Fruit and Produce Co., that you can't miss if you want to because of the cars parked on both sides of the road, and there is another good one on Main street in front of the Silberman Furniture Co., North Main street, is terrible and others are too numerous to mention. It is a crime to drive a car over such roads. Well here's hoping that the street department will wake up and repair these roads so that it will be a pleasure instead of an effort to drive over them. Yours for better roads.

A DISGUSTED DRIVER.

A Lesson That Might Be Learned

Mr. Editor: As an ex-citizen but not an ex-lover of good old Norwich, I have carefully read the numerous letters relative to gas and electricity and the cemeteries there in. I have threshed the sheaves with the flail of practical common sense, I have winnowed the chaff from the grain. Without expressing any opinion, relative to the merits of the questions involved, I now recall a gathering that I attended as a guest. It was the 85th birthday anniversary of an old lady. Attending the gathering were her three daughters and six sons, all leading lives with honor to their mother, and father. I congratulated her upon her noble family. Smiling she thanked me, and then earnestly said to me: "My children had their faults, and made mistakes. As they were growing up their father and I with quiet rebuke, banished their faults and with quiet advice we corrected their mistakes."

Then very earnestly she said, "We never humiliated or disgraced our sons and daughters by publishing their faults or mistakes, to the world."

Methinks, if some of thee ritical citizens of the Norwich municipal family would learn a lesson from the manner in which the old mother reared her family it would be well if they would remember that "Those that the gods would destroy they first make mad." It would be well if they would not carry all their respect to the cemeteries. If they would distribute a share of it among the hosts of mighty good citizens now in Norwich it would be well.

If they would cultivate the roots of the Rose of New England with the hoe of love and fertilize them with their smiles it would beautify and broaden the petals thereof, instead of blasting them with killing frost of criticism.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 17— The world do move. The incidents of the latest Mexican revolution, including the battle of Juarez, number V or VI or whatever it is, all have been seen before. But the spectacle of the Mexican president and his leading generals on one side and the outstanding figures in the army revgolt on the other, providing American papers with signed news stories on the exciting events in which they play the leading roles, is an up-to-the minute addition to the processes of civil war.

So far as American enterprise which produced these signed stories is concerned, that is not so new. The Bystander was an Associated Press reporter "covering" with others the American occupation of Vera Cruz in 1917. He recalls receiving a long and very expensive cablegram one day from an American lecture impressario he had never heard of.

Wanted Dictator to Lecture

It asked that he see the Mexican dictator of that day, the late General Huerta, who was about to skip hastily for Europe. What was wanted was a contract with Huerta at about $2,000 a lecture, under which the Mexican leader would make a long tour in the United States. The impressario thought Huerta would be a great drawing card.

The Hoover administration perforce must look at the new Mexican disturbances in other fashion. Already Mr. Hoover has been called upon to exercise considerable magnanimity toward the constitutional authorities in that country. Last time the United States sold weapons from its own military surplus to help the Mexican government put down a revolution, some of those very guns bobbed up again in most disconcerting fashion for Washington.

Guns Sold Twice

The previous sale was made four years or more ago to help President Obregon smash the de la Huerta revolt. A year or so later, with President Calles in power, the United States sought vainly to get Mexico to join in an arms embargo as a means to stop the civil war in Nicaragua.

And when the American marines looked over the guns of the Nicaraguan revolutionaries they were astonished to find a lot of American army rifles among them which also bore the stamp of Mexican government arsenals. That set off fireworks in Washington and led to the special message to congress on Nicaragua January 10, 1926, in which President Coolidge stressed this Mexican angle.

President Hoover has ignored all this in authorising new government arms sales to the Mexican constitutional authorities. The fact is significant of just how urgently Washington desires stable government in Mexico.

YOUR HEALTH

One Minute in the Sun Promotes Protection from Disease

By Ellen S. Stadtmuller, M. D., San Francisco.

The sun has been shining on this old globe for unknown eras, and from the earliest time men have held a reverence for the great incandescent mass that gives us heat and light. Sun worshippers for ages have recognized the sun as the source of all life on this planet, but it is only during recent years that practitioners of medicine have come to a full realization of the essential powers of sunlight in the production of health and the prevention of disease in babies.

Doctors know now that sun baths are as important for babies as water baths, and that as soon as a baby is two weeks old, he should be given his first sun bath, which consists of exposure of the entire body for one minute to the direct rays of the sun, half a minute on each side.

The eyes of the baby must be protected from the direct rays of the sun, however. Each day, one minute is added to the schedule, until, at the end of two weeks, the baby is in his sun bath for a period of at least ten minutes daily.

Exposure to the direct sunlight for about ten minutes a day is sufficient during the first year of the baby's life. Afterwards, the daily sun bath may be extended so as to cover a period of one or two hours a day. This depends upon the individual child and upon how his skin reacts to the exposure. A deep, healthy tan should result from the use of sun baths, but care must be taken lest sun bathing be carried to the point of burning, and harm results from too long an exposure to the sun's rays.

Sun suits are now manufactured for clothing children while taking their daily sun baths. During the first year of life, however, the body of the infant should not be covered at all. At whatever age sun baths may be given, particular care should be taken to protect the eyes from exposure to the direct rays of the sun.

Sun baths are helpful in preventing tuberculosis, rickets, anemia and other diseases. If all mothers were to give this simple treatment to their children, much would be accomplished in the prevention of tuberculosis. Direct sunlight also helps to build up a resistance against communicable and other diseases that often occur in children, and makes them better able to withstand attacks of any disease.

Artificial sunlight, through the use of special electric lamps, may be obtained and used when sunshine is not available. In California, where large numbers of motion picture studios are located, children who act in the movies seem never to be afflicted with rickets or similar diseases and possibly because of the fact that the klieg lights used in making motion pictures give off the ultra-violet rays that constitute the vital factor in the beneficient effect of sunlight.

Exposure to the direct rays of the sun is much to be preferred, however, to any type of artificial sunlight that may be obtained. It is doubtful if there is any simpler or cheaper attribute available in the promotion of child health than the use of sunlight.

Babel Of Tongues In Italy

SIENA, Italy, March 16—(AP)—Peasants in the fields, workmen in the towns and untutored children of this region of Italy habitually use in their every day life a variety of Italian so pure as to seem culled from the pages of Dante, himself a son of Tuscany.

Casual conversations are studded with old words fallen into disuse elsewhere. Except for several slight corruptions of accent, such as softening of hard consonants, the language of Tuscany is pure Italian.

Only in this region do a majority of the peasantry and commonality understand and speak Italian currently without lapsing into local dialects sometimes bearing no resemblance at all to the official language of the country.

There literally are hundreds of dialects in Italy. In some regions there are several distinct ones within the space of several score square miles, ignorant peasants living almost within a stone's throw of each other for decades being unable to converse with each other.

Of the most important local tongues the major ones are Turinese, Milanese, Genoese, Venetian, Abruzzese, Friulana, Romanesco, Neapolitan, Sardinian and Sicilian.

In some cases the languages have clear similarities with Italian. Romanesco, spoken in the region of Rome, merely consists of changing certain consonants, such as "l" to "r" and injecting a peculiar singsong into the intonation. Turinese and its variants, Valdotian, for example, are like French. Other dialects of frontiers regions resemble languages spoken there in centuries gone by. The oriental influence is strong in Venetian, the Spanish in Neapolitan and certain types of Abruzzese.

At Cefalu, Sciacca and other cities in Sicily, Arabic underlies the local language as it does in Malta. Greek plays a strong part along the Ionian sea between Otranto and Reggio Calabria.

Near Pozzuoli, a short distance north of Naples in the barren section below the Pontine marshes, four separate dialects are spoken in territory covered by an hour's motor ride. A guide from Pozzuoli was unable to speak three and to understand one of these tongues. In no case were the peasants able to speak more than a few simple words of ordinary Italian.

"LENT AND MY GOD AND FATHER"

Memory Verse for Monday

"He that is of God hearetr the words of God" (John 8:47). (Read: John 1:1 to 18).

MEDITATION: "No man hath seen God at any time." That need not disturb me, for no man hath truly seek me at any time. My body is seen but my soul is hid in a light into which no man can approach. And yet though my soul and my friend's soul are invisible to each other, we are fully persuaded of each other's spiritual existence and we communicate soul with soul. Words, mere words! But they are the only ships that traverse that infinite sea assuring me that I am not alone, bringing comfort to my sad heart, companionship to my lonely life. And God—I do not see Him, but I am assured that He is there and His words come sailing in, argosies of them, telling of infinite companionship, sympathy and help.

"Speak thou to Him, for He hears,
And spirit with spirit can meet;
Closer is He than feeling,
And nearer than hands and feet."

PRAYER: Holy and loving Father, Thou wilt not leave me desolate. Give me ears to hear and an understanding heart. Amen.

POSED AS A. P. AGENTS TO OBTAIN MONEY IN BOSTON

BOSTON, March 17—(AP)—Several recent attempts by two men posing as representatives of the Associated Press to obtain money fraudulently from local business men have been discovered here and are under investigation by local police.

The men, who have no connection with the Associated Press, have sought "contributions" and have offered to sell faked press cards bearing the name of the organization. They have attempted also to sell what they termed "memberships" in the Associated Press.

Several of the attempts were frustrated by the fact that the association sells no memberships and that it authorizes for its representatives only the customary business cards and police identification cards issued by the Boston police commissioner.

BARGES COLLIDED WITH BOATS IN DANUBE RIVER

BELGRADE, March 17—(AP)—Thirty-two huge barges and other ships, suddenly released by the spring thaw from their ice-bound moorings, crashed down the Danube today, colliding with other boats and catapulting themselves against stone piers and bridges with such force that five of them sank.

Just aftermidnight Saturday the slumbers of a Norwich residential neighborhood were suddenly disturbed, as a radio loud speaker started into the rippling meloy of "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" on a harp from some quarter. Since like Christmas, St. Patrick's day comes but once a year, the melodious interruption was pardoned.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY SERMONS IN NORWICH CATHOLIC CHURCHES

"Hail, Glorious Apostle" was the keynote of the services at the four masses and evening vespers in St. Patrick's church Sunday, March 17 patronal feast of this great and flourishing parish. The religious observance of the feast began with a special high mass taking the place of the regular low mass Sunday morning at 7:30, sung by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Henry May. The day was also Passion Sunday, beginning Passiontide, which lasts until Easter. Altars, crucifix, statues and pictures are now draped in violet, and it is a time of special reflection on the passion (suffering) and death of Christ; but breaking the solemnity of Lent, there were calla lilies in tall vases on the high altar of St. Patrick's, while the lights on the three marble altars had been veiled in green by members of the Altar society. During the day, the American flag floated from the staff in the church grounds; and the national flag was also conspicuous on the gospel side of the main altar, while flanking it on the epistle side was the green banner of Erin, with its symbolic harp of gold, the flag of the local branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Members of both branches of this organization, with their auxiliaries, occupied special pews on the epistle side of the nave, receiving holy communion in a body from Monsignor May and his assistant priest, Rev. John J. Reilly.

Before the mass, the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, played his own arrangement of Irish hymns and familiar airs, the melodies of Moore, also at the offertory and during communion. Following the last gospel, the chorus choir sang with stirring sweep and volume the hymn to St. Patrick, "Hail Glorious Apostle," and this formed the recessional. Throughout the mass the gifted volunteer singers made the service noticeable by their finished work, the sweet, true soprano of Miss Sadie A. Driscoll, in particular, standing out against the harmonious background of choral harmony and sympathetic organ accompaniment.

Having read the gospel for Passion Sunday, John 8.46-59, Monsignor May from the pulpit felicitated the large congregation on this recurrence of another anniversary of the great religious and patriotic day of the Irish people the world over—day sacred to and beloved by descendants of Erin, of the exiled sons and daughters of the Gael. Especially did the rector single out the splendid body of men organized as the A. O. H., those pioneers who for half a century, in some instances, have "fought the good fight, have kept the faith," pioneers in the erection of the magnificent cathedral church in which they were assembled, by the Holy Sacrifice of the mass glorifying the great Apostle of Ireland as he was being glorified in countless churches the world round. Briefly the preacher touched upon the mass as the test of their loyalty, the sacrament which has bound the Irish to their God, manifestation of their gratitude to Patrick, who taught and worked and prayed in that island to which first he was taken as a child.

The island was an old nation when St. Patrick carried to her shores the gospel of Jesus Christ. She was old in arts, in philosophy, hers was not a barbarous, uncivilized race. Her people were ready for St. Patrick and his mission. While the Nordic countries were in naked barbarism, Ireland was a cultured, teaching nation; yet the prized heritage of the Irish the world over is not this tradition of the arts, the sciences, but the faith handed down through centuries of persecution, for the exiled sons and daughters carried deep in their hearts and souls the precious faith brought to their island home by St. Patrick. In their glory in their origin his people were asked by the preacher to rededicate themselves anew to the honor of St. Patrick, to carry on unfettered, unsullied, in its purity, the faith inherited from Patrick, that it may be so transmitted to the generations yet to come.

Unmistakable proof of the solidarity and vigor of this faith upon which the rector had felicitated them, nearly every person in the congregation later went to the sanctuary rail for holy communion, following hundreds of confessions during the day and evening before.

The third annual concert of Irish folk music in honor of St. Patrick, at 7.30 o'clock Sunday evening by the church choir assisted by Miss Loretta P. Higgins, soprano, was a feature of the evening vesper service. There was a congregation of 2,200 present. The choir is well known for its fine singing, but on this occasion it exceeded all other efforts and from the opening strains of the Minstrel Boy to the closing church hymn to St. Patrick, sung as a recessional, the singing was a noteworthy achievement.

The soloists, in their respective numbers, were all worthy of the highest praise and the choir is fortunate to possess so many outstanding voices. The male chorus was in unusually good voice and their contributions to the evening's entertainment was a performance of excellence. Preceding the programme, Henry J. LaFontaine, the organist and director, gave a delightful organ programme of Irish airs.

A forceful sermon on the life and service of St. Patrick and the sufferings of the Irish people in early days was delivered by Rev. Father Adrian of the Passionist monastery from West Springfield, who has been the speaker at other vesper services. "The conversion of the Irish people was committed in the hands of St. Patrick by God," said the preacher. Wherever he went he converted the leaders to the true God and with them came their subjects. The history of Ireland is one of the saddest and most glorious in the history of the world. She received from St. Patrick the one true faith. It was because of the devotion to that faith that she suffered. No other nation under God's heavens has suffered the oppression that the Irish people have in order to be loyal to their faith. The method used against Ireland was one of the most dastardly and cruel oppression that we can read in the annals of any civilized people.

Some of the sufferings are indescribable, but still the Irishmen endured them and coming to the United States to seek a haven of rest they were at first repulsed instead of being received in open hands. Boston lifted up her skirts as she might touch the vulgar Irishmen, said Rev. Fr. Adrian. And yet today we see established true Irishmen in leading positions in every city in the eastern seaboard of the United States. An Irishman who lives up to his faith is respected.

In closing his sermon Rev. Fr. Adrian admonished his congregation not to weaken in the true faith, but to preserve the faith of their ancestors.

CONCLUDES LENTEN SERMONS AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Rev. John J. Finn, pastor of Our Lady of Grace church, Fishers Island, concluded a course of Lenten sermons at St. Mary's church Sunday night. His subject was "Catholicity, a Mark of the True Church." He said that a distinctive thing about the Catholic faith was its claim to be a universal faith; that the church had carried out at all times, and in all places its Divine Founder's injunction to "teach all nations." Beginning with Pentecost he traced her history throughout the ages, showing that, in spite of opposition and persecution she has continued her divine mission, confident in the promise of Christ that He would be with her all days.

"Geographically, also," said Father Finn, "the church is Catholic or universal. From the beginning she realized that her efforts were not to be confined to any particular country or any special race. The world was to be her classroom. And so Catholic missionary effort began when the church began. A very notable example of that effort is recalled by the feast we celebrate today. No missionary did more for the spread of the gospel of Christ than Patrick, the apostle of Ireland. St. Patrick labored in the beginning of the 5th century. Today, fifteen centuries later, he is being honored throughout the world. His memory is recalled in every corner of our own country, which was not discovered for a thousand years after his death. So he must have done something 'worth while.' And he did. He came to a land of pagans and he left it a land of Christians, a land studded with churches, monasteries and schools. He left able and enthusiastic followers to carry on the work he began. From the sixth to the tenth centuries the Irish were the teachers of the western world and Ireland was the "land of saints and scholars". Those desiring education flocked to Ireland from all over Europe, even from the shores of the Mediterranean. During this period the Irish were making beautiful books and jewelry. They were cultivating a love for music and producing melodies that are now the world's heritage. They introduced rhyme into poetry. St. Bridget was a pioneer in education for women. For several centuries after Patrick the history of Ireland is a record of peaceful activities in the spread of religion and learning. Nor was his influence confined to Ireland. Irish missionaries founded schools in what are now France and Germany as well as in Switzerland, Italy and Scandinavia. St. Columcille converted the Scots and Picts. Although forty years had elapsed since St. Augustine had landed in England, the church was still confined to the kingdom of Kent in the southeast corner of the island, and it is principally to St. Aidan, an Irish monk and his fellow Irish missionaries from Lindisfarne, that the English owe their conversion to Christianity. St. Gall gave his name to a town and canton in Switzerland. St. Fridolin labored along the Rhine. St. Fursey along the Marne. St. Cataldus pushed down into southern Italy, became bishop of Tarentum, and is still patron of that Italian see. The influence that St. Patrick has exercised on the civilized world for fifteen hundred years is inestimable, and he is but one of a vast number that the church has sent out to preach the gospel, as her Divine Founder sent the apostles in the beginning."

The musical programme was as follows:

Echoes from Erin, organ: Minstrel Boy, choir; Come Back to Erin, Miss Josie Hartie; Meeting of the Waters, Nicholas J. Spellman; The Harp That Once Thro Tara's Halls, choir; Veni Creator, choir; Wearing of the Green, M. J. Farrell; O Salutaris (by Montani) choir; Tantum Ergo (by Nicoli) Messrs. Farrell and Spellman; Divine Praises, choir; Hail Glorious Apostles, choir.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOLS NEAR SASON'S CLOSE

Enrolled in them are members of the different churches of each community who wish to become teachers in Sunday, vacation and week-day schools at their churches. The students attend five or ten weeks, depending on the courses they are taking. Each course is given in ten hours. The sessions are held in the evening to enable the students who work during the day to study for their vacations at their leisure.

Schools have been held at Putnam and Willimantic.

G. AND E. BOARD ASKS OPINIONS BY CORP. COUNSEL

The board of gas and electrical commissioners has sent a list of seven questions to Corporation Counsel Edmund W. Perkins, for advice on the operation of the plant. The board's letter to the corporation counsel reads as follows:

Acting upon the advice and suggestion of Mayor Robbins made in a recent communication to us we desire to know and would request that you advise us in writing on the following questions with reference to our duties and responsibilities as members of the board of gas and electrical commissioners:

In the absence of any ordinance of the city upon whom does the responsibility rest for the operation, control and management of the city's light and power plant?

Is there now except as to the method of rendering accounts any ordinance of the city which limits the powers entrusted to the city's lighting commissioners under the provisions of Chapter 39 of the general statutes or any amendments of that statute?

Has a committee of citizens the legal right to fix and determine rates to be charged consumers for gas and electricity even though a special city meeting ratifies, approves and confirms the findings and rates recommended and fixed by such special committee?

What specific power or authority does a meeting of the electors of the city have over the action of the city's lighting commissioners relative to the power conferred on the commission by the laws of the state?

Aside from the authorizing of withholding of appropriations and the authorizing of the issuance of obligations of the city and the placing of conditions and limitations on such authorizations what power is vested in an annual or special meeting of the electors of the city to limit the powers of the lighting commission, except that such annual or city meeting may authorize the sale of the city's lighting plant?

Did the two special city meetings recently held have the power to regulate, curtail or prohibit the sale of appliances?

Did the recent special city meeting have the power to fix rates for gas and electricity?

We would request a prompt reply in writing to these queries as the difference in income to the city between the rates fixed by the last city meeting and the rates now in operation and as promulgated under authority of Section 506 of the general statutes amounts in a year to about $145,000 and the question of charging off for depreciation, maintenance of required reserves and meeting sinking fund requirements bears a close relation to the rates to be charged.

Hartford Girl Got Well Quick

"My little daughter, Virginia, had a serious case of constipation," says Mrs. M. V. Robinson, 87 Franklin Ave., Hartford. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her.

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—The week in business and industry was marked by increasing pressure for deliveries on steel mills, further increases in copper metal prices, and a substantial drop in crude oil production.

The textile industry encountered increasing demands for fabrics, and many mills were working day and night shifts. Competition remained keen, however, and profit margins narrow. February consumption of cotton was the largest ever reported for that month.

TOURTELLOTTE BEATS PUTNAM FOR TITLE IN STORRS C-D TOURNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 17—Tourtellotte high of Mechanicsville, is champion of the Class C and D basketball by virtue of the impressive victory, 24 to 22, over Putnam in the finals played here yesterday afternoon. Tourtellotte came to the finals by virtue of a 15 to 9 victory over Terryville in the semi-finals. Putnam became the other finalist by turning back Washington high, 24 to 16.

Tourtellotte was forced to fight an uphill battle most of the way and it was only in the closing minutes of the fray that they forced ahead to take the title. At the half Putnam was one point in they an, 12 to 11. At the opening of the third quarter Putnam piled up eight points and as the period closed the score stood at 20 to 14 in Putnam's favor. With their captain, Canty, on the sidelines because of personal fouls, Tourtellotte started a rally that swept through the Putnam defense and resulted in the spectacular victory. Led by the flashy forward, Bousquet, the Tourtellotte team functioned beautifully and through Bousquet's uncanny ability to cage the ball from all angles Putnam's lead faded out. Bousquet with only a minute to go cut loose a shot from past mid-floor, the ball looping gracefully through the hoop. A few seconds later St. Marie dropped in a run-under shot which was the final basket of the game.

Leo and Shann did the best work for Putnam, while Johnson, Sherry, Canty and Bousquet starred for the new champions.

Immediately after the final horn Acting President Charles B. Gentry of Connecticut Agricultural college presented the trophy cup to Captain Canty and his victorious mates. Summary:

COLCHESTER, March 17—The Bacon academy basketball team which recently closed its season with a victory over the strong and fast Nathan Hale high school team of Moodus, has made an enviable record during the past few months. The Bacon boys have won six out of eight games. Two games were won from Lyman Memorial high school team of Lebanon, two games from Nathan Hale high school of Moodus and one game each from Killingly and Wethersfield high school. The two defeats of the season were encountered in return games with the Wethersfield and Killingly high school quintets.

The four star players of the season were John Hurin, Joseph Polakevich, I. Levine and Harry Deitch. Hurin has a total of 58 points, Polakevich a total of 63 points and Deitch a total of 45 points. Deitch, the star center, has seen three years' service on the Bacon team and Hurin, right forward, Polakevich, left forward, and Levine, left guard, have each seen two years' service. All four of these feature players will be members of this year's graduating class, so that Bacon academy's basketball quintet will lose some very strong and fast men for the next season. Goodrich has ordered the battery candidates to report for practice Monday afternoon and under Mr. Goodrich's leadership some good baseball games are expected during the coming months.

CONGER SHOWS HIMSELF TO BEST OF MILE RUNNERS

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—The "Jack the giant killer" of the current indoor track and field campaign is none other than Ray Conger, slender Illinois A. C. middle distance star.

Conger has been the one exceptional figure in an otherwise somewhat drab campaign. His victories in the Rodman Wanamaker mile at the Millrose games Feb. 9 when he conquered Paavo Nurmi, and in the "mile of the century" at the Knights of Columbus meet last night, have placed the middle western flash at the top of the one-mile class in this country at least.

Conger's role as a slayer of track giants is now a new one to him. He gave Lloyd Hahn his only defeat of the 1928 indoor season and also whipped Dr. Otto Peltzer but both these races were at 1,000 yards, heretofore Conger's best distance.

But the Illinois A. C. star somewhere has found the stamina, heretofore lacking, for running a mile in close to record time.

He was only one and two-fifths second behind the world's indoor record of 4:12 held by Nurmi and Joie Ray when he trounced Leo Lermond, of the Boston A. A. Eino Jurje, of Finland, Edvin Wide, of Sweden, Joe Hickey of New York university, the intercollegiate mile title-holder, and Galen Elliott, of the University of North Carolina in the "mile of the century," last night. Conger won a outstanding race in 4:13 2-5.

Never a front-runner, Conger ran well back of the leaders during the early part of the race, toward the closing stages he began to move up and two laps from home displayed a dazzling spurt that carried him past the leaders to victory. Lermond made the unexpected American triumph a bit more complete by finishing second by ten yards. Purje, the highly-rated Finn, was another ten yards back with Wide, the favorite, fourth, five yards back of Purje. Hickey was fifty while Elliott found the pace too hot and dropped out two laps from the finish.

It was Wide's first reverse of the season whether in handicap or scratch races. Purje, in his only other scratch start, broke the world's record for the two mile steeplechase at the National A. A. U. championships.

Conger thus boasts of decisions over the three leading foreign middle distance men now in this country—Nurmi, Wide and Purje. His place at or near the top of the world's milers cannot be denied.

After watching Conger win the mile, Nurmi went out on the track and broke four world's records in a four-mile run although his countryman, Ove Anderson, handicapped at 200 yards, beat him to the finish line. Nurmi set new marks for the full distance—19:27 3-5; three and a quarter miles, 15:51; three and a half miles, 17:05; and three and three quarter miles, 18.23 3-5.

WEALTH OF FOOTBALL MATERIAL AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 17—(AP)—Some of the finest football material in Harvard's history is booked to start the annual three weeks of spring practice here tomorrow without the presence of Head Coach Arnold Horween.

The athletic association reported today that Horween would not arrive in Cambridge until Tuesday and that Jimmy Knox, coach of the second varsity eleven, would have charge of the opening session. The head coach, officials said, would be with his squad during the first and third weeks.

Plans for this year's spring work includes the usual punting and drop-kicking drills put on by Vic Kennard, the kicking coach, and much forward passing training. The line and backfield coaches expect to uncover replacements to fill vacancies which will result from graduations in June.

The present outlook appears exceptionally bright, as the only regular lineman graduating is Tim Clarke, a tackle. Frank Pickard, an end, and Art French and Dave Guarnaccia, backs, also expect to win their degrees in June.

The squad due to report tomorrow afternoon promises to provide a strong veteran nucleus from end to end and backfield candidates galore, including such seasoned performers as Wally Harper, Tom Gilligan, Art Huguley, Tom Mason, Sam Batchelder and Sam Graves. Several of Eddie Casey's freshmen backs also are listed as available for spring work.

ATHLETICS EVEN SERIES BY BLANKING NEWARK

MIAMI, Fla., March 17—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics evened the count in their exhibition series with the Newark Internationals today, shutting them out, 3 to 0. Shores, Malicky and Quinn held the minor leaguers to a total of three hits. Shores allowed one, Quinn two and Malicky none. Each pitched three innings. The American leaguers collected only four hits, but they came at opportune times.

CUBS SWAMP ANGELS IN EXHIBITION GAME

LOS ANGELES, March 17—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs got pitching as well as hitting today, plastering Los Angeles, 17 to 0, in an exhibition game.

Hal Carlson and Mike Cvengros, two question marks of the Cub pitching staff, limited the Angeles to five scattered blows, while their mates smashed out 18 hits. The Cubs put a finishing touch to their triumph by pushing seven runs across in the 9th inning.

WINDHAM HIGH NOT TO PLAY PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 17—Definite announcement that the Windham high school basketball season is now closed and that a decision had been reached not to meet Putnam high school's quintet at Putnam, March 22, has been made by Coach Thomas A. Callaghan, who is confined in his room by illness.

In reaching this decision, the local school causes an unquestioned revision of the championship of the eastern Connecticut conference to Chapman Tech of New London, which at present is leading Windham by a half game. Coach Callaghan's statement was nothing more in a sense than a re-affirmation of a similar statement made previously, but was made in view of the decision of the conference which placed the "postponed" game between Putnam and Windham on schedule for next week at a meeting held in Norwich Thursday evening. By virtue of this decision of the conference Windham would have to play and win two games to attain the championship, that is, first defeating Putnam next week and then engaging Tech in a final play-off game. The local school authorities feel that such a course would be prolonging the basketball season to a point where it would be unfair to the players. The illness of the coach is also taken into consideration. The team has not been practicing at all the past week since the game with South Manchester and this fact presents still another handicap. Notice to the effect that Windham's basketball season is formally closed is understood to have been forwarded to the conference board.

M'LARNIN-MILLER BOUT TOPS WEEK'S FISTIC BILL

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—A There's fighting all along the line this week but a ten round slugfest between a Vancouver Irishman and a Chicago Hebrew at New York's Madison Square Garden seems to top the list in national interest.

The Vancouver Irishman is Jimmy McLarnin; the Chicago Hebrew, Ray Miller. They clash in a return match at the Garden Friday night. Mill generally considered the possessor of the most deadly left hook in the business kayoed McLarnin a few months ago. This triumph, coupled with knockout victories over Sid Terris, Lopé Tenorio and Tommy Grogan have established Miller as the leading contender for Sammy Mandell's lightweight title. McLarnin, however, appears to have graduated from the ranks of the 135-pounders. Friday's fight is at 140 pounds although Miller possibly will not scale more than 133 pounds. McLarnin's last start was against Joe Glick whom he knocked out in two rounds.

At Philadelphia, Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., a leading contender for the light heavyweight crown, battles Maxie Rosenbloom, the New York "Trial Horse," for the third time tomorrow night. Lomski holds one decision over Rosenbloom and earned a draw in their other scrap. The fight is for ten rounds. King Tut, Milwaukee lightweight, and Pinkie Kaufman, of Hartford, Conn., are to meet in the semi-final also of ten rounds.

Kid Chocolate, the sensational Cuban featherweight, makes his first appearance in Boston on Friday night, meeting Johnny Vacca of Boston. Ernie Schaaf and Al Friedman, rival Boston heavyweights, are down for another battle on the same card.

George Courtney, the Oklahoma cowboy, and Nando Tassi, of Italy, are to engage in a return battle at the Broadway arena, New York, tomorrow night. Courtney stopped the Italian in four rounds in a recent bout.

DOROTRA GETS AWAY TO FINE START IN TOURNEY

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—The return of Jean Borotra, French Davis cup star, to the National indoor tennis championship has brought the tournament back to the important position it has occupied in past years. The entry of the bounding Basque, winner in 1925 and 1927 brought Frank Hunter into the field and made the entry list much better than last year when William Aydelotte swept through a mediocre field to the title.

Borotra started along the road to his third victory and permanent possession of the "U. S. L. T. A. tennis trophy" yesterday with two easy victories. Drawing a first round bye, he conquartered Arthur S. Cragin, 50-year-old New Yorker, in the second round, 6-1, 6-0 later he returned to the court to win his third round match from Harry Sachs in two 6-1 sets. He did not have to exert himself in either match, but in an exhibition set against J. Gilbert Hall of Orange, N. J. young Canadian champion, his game was just enough to contradict his statement that he is "growing old." He won it at love.

Hunter, first of the Americans on the tournament's seeded list, will not get into action until Wednesday. He postponed his second round match which was scheduled for yesterday. The tournament will be suspended until Wednesday, because of the death of General Daniel Appleton, colonel of the Seventh regiment for 20 years. His body will lie in state in the armory until Tuesday.

The postponement will keep several of the seeded players out of action until Wednesday. Julius Seligson of Lehigh university, runner-up last year, and Gregory Mangin, did not play yesterday. The defending champion, Aydelotte, went through two matches without difficulty to reach the third round while four other seeded stars, Hall, Herbert L. Bowman, Lawrence Kurzrock and Merritt Cutler, won their second round matches in straight sets.

T. F. FLYNN, BOXING JUDGE, DIES OF HEART ATTACK

NEW YORK, March 17 — (AP) — Thomas F. Flynn, one of the most dependable members of the New York state athletic commission's staff of boxing bout judges, died today at the age of 55.

Stricken with a heart attack while on the way to his home in Haverstraw after attending a bout at the Olympia A. C. here Saturday night, Flynn succumbed at 2 o'clock at the Nyack hospital where he was taken by Mike Hylas, referee, and Patrick Lavelle, boxing commission inspector. With his two companions Flynn had gone to what proved to his last fight not as a judge but as a spectator.

An ardent boxing fan for 30 years, Flynn was appointed a judge on the recommendation of James A. Farley, present chairman of the commission, after the latter became a member six years ago. He served as one of the judges at the Tunney-Heeney world's heavyweight championship bout at the Yankee stadium last July as well as at many of Madison Square Garden's biggest shows.

"He was a very dependable fellow," said Chairman Farley today. "Tom Flynn was never swayed by the crowd. He called them as he saw them."

At Haverstraw, Flynn was a cigar dealer and a lifelong resident. His widow survives him.

GOLDEN PRINCE TAKES COFFROTH HANDICAP

TIA JUANA, Mexico, March 17—(AP)—Golden Prince, owned by the Sunshot stable, won the Coffroth handicap at Tia Juana this afternoon. Naishapur was second and Scimitar third. Fourth place went to Quick Return.

The time for the mile and a quarter was 2.02 3-5, equalling the track record, held jointly by Little Chief and Cariaris.

Six lengths back of Naishapur, at the finish was Scimitar, closely followed by Voltear, host and Cantankerous. Gifford A. Cichrane's Genie, favorite of the race, was never prominent.

The winner paid in the mutuel machines, $7.80 to win, $4.40 to place and $3.60 to show. Naishapur paid $6.00 to place, and $4.40 to show, while the third horse, Scimitar, who was in the mutuel field, paid $3.00 to show.

SENIORS TAKE CITY COURT TITLE BEATING ACADEMY IN FURIOUS GAME

The Y Seniors scaled the heights of local basketball supremacy Saturday night at the Y gym, winning the third and deciding game of the city championship series from the Academy five. The score was 25 to 19 and the title again passes to the older fellows after the schoolboys had held it for the first time.

It was a great battle. Action was the vogue throughout the entire 22 minutes. It was easily the most thrilling battle of the season.

In the last half and especially the last quarter the teams went at a torrid pace, spurred on by the cheers of their supporters.

Seniors Start Slow.

The Y got a bad start, trailing at the end of the first quarter by 6 to 1. They forged ahead in the second quarter, however, holding the Wildcats scoreless while they scored six points, leading 7-6. In the third period the scoring was even, six points apiece, leaving it 13-12 at its end.

Roland Harris and Frank Barber stand out as the stars of the game. Harris scored nine of his team's points besides playing a great all-round game while Barber continued to distinguish himself as he has done in the two previous series encounters. He had two long shots that were "beauxies" and he generally was a most useful fellow.

Another player who did very well was Cecil Henschel of the Academy, who went great guns until being forced out in the third quarter on personal fouls. Dickerman, his successor, also did creditably. He was hardly in the game before he dropped in one from the corner and right after that converted two fouls. These four points came when the going was thick and helped the Academy to stay in the swim as long as they did.

Academy Play Best Game.

The Academy played probably their best game of the season Saturday night. Their passing was much sharper and more accurate than anything we have seen in this campaign. The Y won the game on three or four 'sucker' shots in the last quarter and it was a wonder they got a chance to do it by this method. The Seniors were under the basket many more times than when they scored. The Academy's guard, Barber, acting captain and Swatzburg, had Pingree and Brown hurrying just about all the time. For Pingree and Brown to get only five baskets between them is something not seen every night they play, but that's all they could gather in the 37 minutes in this final "big" game.

The Seniors seem to have lost much of the pep and dash that characterized their early-season play. A month ago forecasters would have given them a two-game victory in the titular series by probably a 25-point margin each time. Probably of course, that the Academy knew their style a lot better than they did those of some scholastic opponents this year, but the Y failed to impress in the three games.

The Seniors concluded their season by this game. They have won 10 and lost 12. The Academy, with one more game to play, has won 5 and lost 17.

Emps Are Victors.

In the preliminary the Y Emps easily defeated the Phi Delta Nu quintet of the Church league, 39 to 16. Tommy Lynch, right forward, was again the leading player for the Emps. It will take a good team to beat the Emps these days.

YALE AND NAVY LEADERS IN COLLEGE WATER SPORTS

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—By maintaining a perfect record of eight straight triumphs, Yale's swimming and Navy's water polo teams are the new 1929 Intercollegiate Swimming association champions. The Navy's triumph in the water polo is the first in the history of the association. Yale has held the water polo title since 1924 when it was tied for the crown with columbia, and has been swimming champion since 1924 when Princeton won the title.

The annual individual championships will terminate the activities of the league on Friday and Saturday at Princeton.

In the swimming race, Rutgers with its sole defeat at the hands of Yale, is in second place with Syracuse in third and Dartmouth in fourth place. The water polo team standing finds Yale in second with its sole loss to Navy, Princeton in third place, and Syracuse and Penn tied for fourth place.

Yale's triumphs were gained over Columbia by 52 to 10; Penn 37 to 25; Dartmouth 36 to 26; Princeton 28 to 24; C. C. N. Y. 42 to 17; Syracuse 41 to 21; Navy 44 to 18; and Rutgers 4 to 31. The meet with Rutgers last Friday at New Haven was the sole really close contested event of the season for the Eli swimmers. Yale tallied a total of 324 points during the season as against 173 for its opponent.

Navy's water polo team conquered Dartmouth, 36 to 2; Princeton 22 to 18; Syracuse 42 to 5; Columbia 32 to 9; Penn 59 to 15; Yale 46 to 28; Rutgers 71 to 7; and C. C. N. Y. 50 to 14. The superiority of the Middle sextet was clear throughout the season.

The starting teams were:

McNamara and Horan, American team; Spencer and Walthour, American "kid" team; Georgetti and Deulberg, German-American team; Beckman and Debaets, Belgian-American team; Stockholm and Winter, Chicago-New York team; Belloni and Zucchetti, Italian team; Detourner and Brocardo, French "Red Devils"; Horder and Rodak, Australian-Polish team; Van Nek and Croly, Holland-American team; Grimm and Lands, New Jersey team; Petri and Hill, German-American team; Gucnot and Blanchonet, French road team; Kockler and Merkner, Chicago; Hanley and Keller, San Francisco-New York team, and Gaffney and Garrison, New York-New Jersey team.

DRIVER MAKES LONG TRIP WITHOUT NUMBER PLATES

PITTSFIELD, Mass. —(AP)— The seemingly impossible feat of driving an automobile without registration plates from Chicago to Massachusetts was accomplished by Gerald La Lynch of Chicago. The experience cost him $20 in court here.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Choral Society Rehearsal

On Thursday next, March 21, the first rehearsal for the spring concert of the Norwich Choral society will take place.

The rehearsal will be in the Slater Hall Annex again. Dr. Lawrence Erb has completed a most interesting program for the coming event.

As there will be only one rehearsal before Easter on account of the demands for the Easter music, it is hoped that the chorus will make every effort to be present.

St. Mary's Players.

"Brother, shake." The brothers shake. 'I understand that you are a movie director?' "Sure." "Did you make that picture—Give Women a Chance?" "I did." "Great picture. And the titles! I'll never forget the one which begins—Came the springtime. The chords of the eagle's heart melted' "I wrote that." "You did! What a brain!" Now what is all this about? Simply a situation that is cleverly worked up in this play, and if it doesn't get a laugh or two some of us are going out of the show business. The news has already got around that this play is the best one that St. Mary's has had. That's the truth. Do not miss it! Some rush seats and general admission, Wednesday, 50 cents.

POETRY

Learning

I have learned laughter from living
And leaping young mountain streams,
Friendship and courage from oak trees;
And—from the aching sky, dreams.

I have learned love from the whisper
Of winds through the wistful hours;
I have learned hope from refreshing
And friendly mid-afternoon showers.

I have learned patience from rivers;
Poise from the cliffs and the peaks;
I have learned, always, to listen
For whispers when beauty speaks.

I have learned wisdom from watching
The beavers and birds and bees;
I have learned music and rhythm
From swaying of wind-swept trees.

I have learned faith through some flowers
That dare to a further height
Even than timberline darest—
In crimson and Alpine white.

I have learned peace and its beauty
Deep in the heart of the night,
Up where the full moon is sailing
The skies in a silver flight.

I have learned prayer through the subtle
Soft lights of the afterglow;
I have found God and His dreaming
In the sea where the star-streams flow.

—Rev. W. L. Stidger, in Christian Advocate.

Mountain Flowers

Climb by the path, and you find mountain-mallow, narcissus, restless in the wind, as though
she heard a voice beseech her bloom to follow, and softly drown in the reflective snow.

Or higher still, like little red macaws in green, sequestered cages, brooding, see:
the Alpine rose, obedient to the laws which rule that vertical mute aviary.

Then, last of all, only the edelweiss, not soft like any other flower else,
but a small cuttle-fish against the ice, clutching the rock with pale grey tentacles.

These and a thousand others, how small, how brittle, how easily pulled, how folded in the hand,
and how long afterwards a single petal
is all we keep of vision's Oberland.

—Humbert Wolfe, in "This Blind Rose."

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Who is going to score the new opera you intend to produce?"

"I'm afraid it's going to be the critics."—Boston Transcript.

"To make business, the dry-goods men feature white goods in January." "I'm in the candy business." "Try marshmallows." — Louisville Courier-Journal.

"So you're a young man who both feet on the ground, eh? What do you do for a living?" "I take orders from a man with both feet on the desk."—Chicago News.

"Is the country very thickly settled out around your farm?"

"Heavens, no! There aren't more than six filling stations to the mile."—Motorland.

REPORTS OF STEEL CORPORATIONS SHOW MARKED IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, March 17—(AP)—The annual reports to stockholders of the United States Steel corporation, and the Bethlehem Steel corporation both published today, describe a marked upturn in this basic industry in 1928.

The U. S. Steel report, however, points out that steel prices were somewhat lower during the year, while production reached a new high record explaining that this reflects a substantial excess producing capacity in the industry.

It states, however "the reasonable price charged for iron and steel products have undoubtedly stimulated consumption to a national extent, thereby enabling plants to maintain satisfactory operations. In this the public is well served."

"While the operations of the properties of the corporation show a fair, but not fully commensurate, profit return of the investment employed," the report says, "these results are due largely to the foresight in devoting a liberal portion of surplus and reserve to improving and establishing the plants and facilities on a more efficient basis of operation."

In reviewing the earnings statement for the year, U. S. Steel gives its net income after deduction of interest on funded debt and addition of special income receipts and net adjustment of various accounts, at $114,173,774. This compares with $87,896,900 in 1927. Bethlehem's earnings were $18,383,922, as compared with $15,326,742.

At the end of the year, U. S. Steel had cash on hand of $132,107,633, as increased from $112,867,479, at the end of the previous year. Bethlehem had cash totaling $28,470,936, a marked increase from the $16,721,586 at the end of 1927.

U. S. Steel's undivided surplus increased to $410,277,249 from $363,044,906. Its net property investment was carried at the end of the year at $1,691,123,962. A decrease from $1,709,779,[illegible] at the end of 1927. Bethlehem carried its property at $454,322,853.

U. S. Steel produced 20,105,749 tons of steel ingots during the year, against 18,486,444 in 1927, while Bethlehem produced 6,478,981, against 5,390,734. U. S. Steel's mills operated at an average capacity of 83.4 per cent, in comparison to 78.9 in 1927, and Bethlehem operated at 82 per cent, compared with 73.6 per cent.

Employes of U. S. Steel totalled 221,702, a decrease from 231,749 at the end of 1927. Bethlehem had 92,039 employes, practically unchanged from the previous year. U. S. Steel paid in wages $413,699,720, and Bethlehem paid $114,401,334.

The Bethlehem report points out that the large rebuilding and modernization program instituted by the corporation in 1923 was completed in 1928, the cost of additions and improvements to properties in those years totalling $187,032,289, which was paid largely out of earnings and depreciation, maintainance and other reserves, and the proceeds of $35,000,000 of preferred stock sold in 1926. Cash expenditures for additions and improvements during 1928 totalled $19,947,804.

JEWETT CITY

TEACHERS OF FIVE TOWNS SPEND PROFITABLE DAY

The March meeting of Sterling, Scotland, Lisbon, Canterbury and Voluntown teachers was held at Newent school Friday. Each teacher brought with her some articles made by her pupils both in problem project work and junior achievement. These displays were arranged around the hall. All exhibits showed much work on the part of both teacher and pupils. One of the best displays in junior achievement work was that of Raymond school, Canterbury, taught by Mrs. Cunningham. The meeting was called to order by Supervisor E. B. Floyd, who gave interesting points concerning the convention that was lately held in Cleveland, Ohio. Notices and suggestions were made at this time. Mr. Floyd gave each teacher a copy of a list of 14 points which he considers possessed by a good teacher. Some were: 1. A pleasing personality; 2. Love for children and a never ceasing desire to help them mentally, physically and socially. 3. Sincere co-operation and willingness to be guided; 5. Ability to create constructive, positive discipline vs. negative restrictive; 6. Ability to teach rather hear recitations; 7. Ability to create and maintain pupil interest (activity and satisfaction).

Following Mr. Floyd's talk the teachers were divided into groups with a leader to discuss problems confronting the work along problem project lines. The discussions were well carried on and a number of problems were discussed. The teachers were then called together again in the main hall. The pupils of 7th and 8th grade sang some of their songs. The music was 8-part singing and the children did excellent work, winning praise for Miss Keenan, their teacher. N. S. Light, state director of rural education, then led an informal discussion of the problem method and was kept busy trying to answer questions and solve problems raised by the teachers.

Mr. Floyd then presented Mrs. Cunningham of Canterbury who talked on "How I Promote Problem Teaching." She gave a very interesting talk on work carried on by her pupils. The children had taken an imaginary trip on board one of the Dollar liners. They built a large ship and loaded it with American products for other markets. In each country they visited they left articles which that country would import from the U. S. and then loaded on exports for the U. S. The lessons were very instructive and formed a vital part of the child's actual life.

At noon through the efforts of teachers, pupils, school boards and parents of Lisbon all were enabled to enjoy a fine luncheon of soup, salad, sandwiches, cake and coffee. The money realized from this source is to be used toward paying for a new moving picture machine.

An opportunity at this time was taken to view the work of the other schools.

The afternoon session consisted of primary conferences held in the class rooms, and junior achievement work under Mr. Barber, Mr. Hazen and Miss Sprague, held in the main hall.

Fourteen long tables, as well as the platform were necessary to hold the display of the children's work. On the platform was a good sized log cabin thatched with birch bark made by the Lisbon Center pupils under direction of Tony Jurewicz. The scenery was done by Robert Bromley, Joseph Dudek, William Krasnabihra and John Tsangoe. The dolls were made by Irene Bromley and Anna Dubatowska. Voluntown schools had a wonderful display of hand work and research results which demonstrated the evolution of clothing problem.

To Remedy Water Taste

Owing to the fact that there has been an unpleasant taste to the drinking water of this city, City Engineer George E. Watters is to take drastic means to have it remedied. Just as soon as weather conditions permit and ice vanishes the big volume of water at Lake Konomoc will be treated with a solution of copper sulphate, which it is claimed, will eliminate the bad taste and odor. A report from the Newland laboratory received yesterday showed that the disagreeableness of the water comes from a microscopic organis but that there was nothing in it to cause injury. Contrary to the general impression that the taste comes from fish in the pipe lines, City Engineer Watters has issued a statement assuring the public that such a report is wrong.

His condition is not considered serious. Besides a fractured skull Belosloski also has a fractured jaw. Belosloski was driving to New London about 4 o'clock when a machine traveling in the opposite direction crashed into the New London car at the location known as Hubbard's gate, near Haughton's. Both cars were damaged and Belosloski was thrown violently about the car. He was given medical treatment at the site of the accident, but tonight when Belosloski experienced hemorrhages from the ears, he went to police headquarters and requested that medical aid be summoned. When a physician examined Belosloski the latter was ordered taken to the hospital. Constable George Sisson, of Montville, is investigating the crash.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Several stage and screen artists of wide reputation and popularity are featured in the Pathe 100 per cent dialogue picture, Strange Cargo, which opened at the Broadway theatre last night for a four-day run. They are Lee Patrick, June Nash, George Barraud, Kyrie Bellew, Russell Gleason and Frank Reicher. There are 14 players in the cast and every player was chosen with care by Benjamin Glazer, the director. These include Claude King, Ned Sparks, Josephine Brown, Charles Hamilton, Andre Beranger, Otto Matiesen, Harry Allen and Warner Richmond.

Lee Patrick, who plays the feminine lead in Strange Cargo, makes her screen debut in this talking picture. She has a splendid stage record as actress. She was featured in The Common Sin, The Nightstick and A Kiss in the Taxi, three stage productions that scored heavily in New York. She has marked histrionic talent and her rich voice adds vastly to the enjoyableness of Strange Cargo.

June Nash, a Brooklyn girl, started her stage career at 4 years in Duddies under David Belasco's tutelage. She also appeared in The Return of Peter Grim and in Scandals. She shares leading honors with Miss Patrick in Strange Cargo.

George Barraud, an English stage player of reputation, was seen to fine advantage in Ned McCobb's Daughter and other Pathe pictures. In Strange Cargo he plays opposite Miss Patrick in a role in which his mimetic talent is well displayed.

Kyrie Bellew, son of the celebrated actor of the same name who was among the most popular stage players of the last generation, has had an eventful career. He was on the London stage for several years and before the outbreak of the World war, he was engaged in gold mining in South America. He served throughout the war in the British Intelligence service, then engaged in film work.

Russell Gleason, a young actor who scored in "The Shady Lady," is only twenty years old, but most of them were spent on the stage with his parents. He has had considerable stock experience and his work in motion pictures has won him an army of admirers.

Frank Reicher, veteran stage and screen actor-director, has an important role in "Strange Cargo." Reicher was a motion picture director for many years and he is well known for his direction of "An American Tragedy" and other stage hits. He was seen to advantage in "Four Sons" and "The Blue Danube."

Breed Theatre.

Mack Sennett has turned from the slap-stick, for the time being at least, to offer a feature-length picture that ranks right along with the most brilliant dramatic and romantic works of the motion picture screen.

"The Good-Bye Kiss," which opened at the Breed theatre last night, is a wonderful tribute to the career of the man who developed so many able actors, directors and technicians in the motion picture profession.

It cobines melodrama, comedy, pathos and suspense in a way that leaves nothing to be desired in the form of screen entertainment. It presents a former vaudeville star in a comedy role that is unusual. It gives us two new juveniles who are exceptionally clever and appealing.

As a spectacle, "The Good-Bye Kiss" is marvelous. As a comedy it is a riot. As a love story it has not been surpassed.

The story deals with two boys, one of whom is a coward, but is regenerated through love for a girl. Thrilling air scenes and an unusual and terrific explosion are among the incidents in the picture, through which a constant vein of comedy relieves the more somber moments.

"The Good-Bye Kiss" is a great picture, and one that Mr. Sennett may well point to as a crowning effort in his years in motion pictures.

Palace Theatre

The most spectacular and powerful drama in many months is playing at the Palace theatre. It is The Foreign Legion, co-starring Norman Kerry and Lewis Stone, supported by beautiful Mary Nolan and Julia Marlowe.

This is without a doubt one of the finest pictures of the year and should rate high when the selection of the year's greatest pictures is made.

It is sheer drama, of romance and revolt, relieved with comedy masterfully placed at just the right spots. It cannot hurt your enjoyment by being told that the story revolves around the powerful situation of a son and his father opposed to each other, neither knowing who the other is.

The action takes place in the colorful locale of Algiers and is featured by sensational photographic beauty. On the dramatic side, highlights are the troops and the mutiny in the desert led by Kerry, unknowingly, against his father, the commanding officer. They also are pitted for the smiles of Mary Nolan, blonde and dangerous. Another powerful sequence is where the father is presiding judge at his son's trial.

Stone and Kerry give powerful characterizations. Mary Nolan is equally strong in her role and photographs beautifully. She brings a new type to the screen—the blonde whose kiss is disaster.

Co-featured on the same program is Daughters of Desire, the new photoplay, starring Irene Rich with an uncommonly good supporting cast which came to the Palace theatre yesterday. It is a highly interesting and at times thrilling portrayal of what may happen when a man marries the second time.

In the instance of this story, the second marriage brought into Thomas Burke's household not only a wife but also a stepmother who had to supervise her husband's three children by his first wife. The younger ones adored her, but the eldest daughter was plainly set against her from the outset, and it is the clash of this jealous young girl's antagonism that makes the complications which make Daughters of Desire such an interesting photoplay.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not wait and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person.

Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

Yap Yap's Unpleasant Neighbor
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Unpleasant neighbors are a curse;
I know of little that is worse.
—Yap Yap the Prairie Dog.

"Yap Yap the Prairie Dog doesn't pay much attention to Billy Owl, although the latter is such a near neighbor," said Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak. "At least, I have never been able to see that Yap Yap pays much attention to Billy. But Yap Yap has one unpleasant neighbor. He gives me the creeps every time I see him."

"Huh!" exclaimed Peter Rabbit. "That sounds like a snake."

"You have said it," replied Wanderer. "It is a snake. It is Buzztail the Rattlesnake. He certainly likes a Prairie Dog town. Many a time I've seen him sunning himself on one of those mounds. I suppose he finds an easy living there."

Peter shivered. "Meaning what?" he asked.

"Oh, young Prairie Dogs and perhaps baby Owls. Of course, I cannot say, but he always looks very well satisfied."

Peter shivered again, although he wasn't cold. "I wouldn't want him for a neighbor of mine," said he. "No sir, I wouldn't want him for a neighbor of mine. I've had some unpleasant neighbors in my time, but never Buzztail the Rattlesnake, and I never want him."

"Well, anyway, he's an honest snake," said Wanderer.

"What do you mean by honest?" demanded Peter.

"Well," replied Wanderer, "He rattles a warning, excepting when he's looking for food. Of course, he doesn't then."

"Huh!" replied Peter. "That's just when a warning is needed."

Wanderer began to chuckle. "People are queer," said he. "Yes, sir, people are queer. The longer I live the more I realize how queer people can be."

"Do you mean me?" demanded Peter somewhat sharply.

"No, no, indeed!" Wanderer hastened to say. "Oh, no, Peter. I don't think you're queer! I was simply thinking about what I have heard so many times in regard to Yap Yap the Prairie Dog, Buzztail the Rattlesnake and Billy the Burrowing Owl."

"What have you heard?" demanded Peter.

"That they all live together happily, using the same house," explained Wanderer.

"Absurd!" cried Peter.

"Of course," agreed Wanderer. "But people believe it just the same. So far as he himself is concerned, Yap Yap isn't afraid of Billy Owl. Billy Owl isn't big enough to be afraid of. But when it comes to Yap Yap's babies, that's another matter. Yap Yap takes great care, however, not to come too near Buzztail. He knows perfectly well that Buzztail is dangerous. So the idea of believing that Yap Yap, Billy and Buzztail live together is, as you said, absurd. Yap Yap wouldn't have either Billy Owl or Buzztail around if he could help himself. But he can't help himself, so he makes the best of a bad matter. You may be sure, however, that Buzztail is a most unpleasant neighbor to have around."

"I cannot think of a worse one, unless it is Shadow the Weasel," said Peter. "Yap Yap ought to be thankful that Shadow the Weasel doesn't take it into his head to live neighbor to him."

"Oh!" exclaimed Wanderer. "A cousin of Shadow's often does become neighborly—altogether too neighborly."

Peter pricked his ears up then. "Who is this cousin of Shadow's?" he cried.

ONLY RIGHT MAKES RIGHT, SAYS SPEAKER

The 4 o'clock service Sunday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian association building was largely attended. It opened with scripture reading and prayer. The audience sang "America" as the words were thrown upon the screen.

The first part of Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables," was shown in moving pictures and the picture story strongly gripped the audience, especially when the good bishop showed such unusual kindness to Jean Valjean, a criminal.

During the service, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and he spoke in part as follows: "The difference in folks is largely because of the difference in their ideals. The good bishop in this story had a very high and holy ideal, while the man he so greatly helped followed a low ideal, until the bishop influenced him to follow the higher one.

Every individual is following some ideal. What ideal are you following? Tell me that and I will tell you your probable destiny. The leaders of some nations have thought that might made right, which is a low ideal; other nations feel that only right makes right, and that is a high ideal.

Some young fellows have their fingers badly stained with the yellow nicotine from the constant use of cigarettes; they hang around the corners and waste their time and ruinea their lives. Other young men spend their time in self improvement, taking advantage of their opportunities and they refuse to heed the call of the loafing type; these have different ideals.

Here is a person who loves the church and the Bible, and endeavors to follow the Christ of the Bible, but others seem to have no use for these high and holy things; they rather laugh about the church and the bible, and as for any serious thought about the claim of Christ on their lives, they seem to almost ignore it. Let me close by quoting this passage from the bible, "whatsoever a person soweth, that shall he also reap I sincerely hope that the youth will be very careful what they sow that the reaping may bring to them rejoicing and not sorrow.

Louis Mell officiated at the piano in the absence of the regular pianist Hugh Kinder, who is ill at his home.

GARDNER LAKE

Although the sunshine on Sunday brought out many people to the lake they were surprised to see ice still on the pond. The wind was in gale form and raised havoc with the ice, which will probably disappear this week.

Bill Ricker, DeWitt Parsons, Walter Weidman, Miss Mildred Tortiseshell, Miss Mildred Dunn, Mrs. Edwin Anderson and daughter Edith enjoyed a dinner prepared in fine style by Guide Ricker assisted by Miss Mildred Dunn and Miss Mildred Tortiseshell. This closes the winter sport season at the lake for the party which proved to be a most delightful one. The dinner was served at Bill Ricker's lodge, Camp Smiles. The Winter club is now looking ahead for the good old summer time when the canoes and fishing will be the sport.

George Day entertained a party at his home Saturday evening. Dancing, refreshments and music were enjoyed by all.

Charles Harris was a visitor to Colchester last week.

Elmer Harris is fast completing his bungalow.

WELL KNOWN HARPIST HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Four were baptized at the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church. Announcement was made during the service that Miss Louise Melvin, harpist and reader, will feature the evening service at the church next Sunday.

Miss Melvin has become known, in Boston and throughout New England, as a harpist. Her personal charm and simplicity add much to her work. She has the unqualified praise of every audience before which she has appeared.

Miss Melvin studied with Miss French, Miss Phinney, and Alfred Holy, composer and first harpist of the Boston Symphony orchestra. She has been teaching the harp for five years. She has played at revival meetings, church services and concerts, and is now harp demonstrator at Oliver Ditson Co.

During the summer of 1922, Miss Melvin played at the big revival services at Wiscasset, Me., and has played at innumerable concerts in greater Boston and near-by cities and towns. She had the distinction of being one of the first American musicians whose music was heard by radio in England, when she broadcast from Medford Hillside a concert that, by special arrangement, was heard across the water.

Miss Melvin is an accomplished reader, as well as harpist. She studied with Mrs. Harry Raymond Pierce, of Boston Lyceum school, and reads plays, monologues, pianologues, and does child impersonations. She has entertained, with high success, at clubs, churches and Masonic entertainments.

This wide versatility enables Miss Melvin to give an entire evening's program of harp selections and readings.

DEER, CRIPPLED BY AUTO WAS SHOT

Chester G. Thurston, of No. 256 Boswell avenue, reported to the police Saturday night that his machine had struck and badly injured a deer on the Norwich-Westerly highway, about a mile below Hallville. Two of the deer's legs were broken.

Selectman William S. Murray and Humane Agent Frederick H. Wyant, drove to the scene of the accident and after some difficulty trailed the injured animal to where it was laying. The animal thrashed around so much in the darkness that Selectman Murray held it around the neck while Mr. Wyant put it out of its misery.

With the aid of a rope and tackle and the assistance of Walter F. Drew, the carcass was loaded into a machine and brought to this city to be turned over to the game warden.

For many years she made her home with Attorney and Mrs. Edward Wilson (Eva Capron), the latter her niece and namesake, of Brooklyn. At intervals, while Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were traveling in Europe, she spent a number of months at a time with another niece, Mrs. Henry Miller, and the latter's husband, of Central Park, Long Island. When Mr. and Mrs. Miller located in Eau Claire, Wis., Mrs. Sims came to Norwich Town, July 18, 1927, to make her home. She spent a winter at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with another niece, Mrs. Edwin Foster, now in the General hospital at that place. Mrs. Foster's permanent home is at Central Park, Long Island.

Foster of Brooklyn and Florida; Mrs. Edward Wilson, Brooklyn; Mrs. Henry Miller, Eau Claire, Wis.; also Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Norwich Town, and a nephew, Dr. Clarence B. Capron, of Norwich. CONDITIONS IMPROVING IN THE FLOOD-SWEPT SOUTH

Waters Are Receding—Death List Stands at 20 and the Damage at Several Millions of Dollars—Typhoid Anti-Toxin and Other Disease Preventives Have Been Sent to the Flood Territory—Airplanes Are Delivering Mail, Food and Other Supplies to Southern Alabama.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 18—(AP)—Receding waters today improved conditions rapidly in most of the flood swept regions of the south while the known death list stood at 20 and property damage at several millions of dollars.

Two principal exceptions were noted. One was in the lower reaches of the Flint river, Georgia, and at River Junction, Florida, where the Flint and Chattahoochee rivers form the Apalachicola.

The other was along the Alabama river east and south of Montgomery, Alabama, there a new flood menace of such proportions was reported to Governor Bibb Graves that he personally inspected the area by airplane. Returning aviators said in that region persons were seen on house tops and clinging to the limbs of trees to escape rapidly rising waters.

Rehabilitation work went on rapidly as the flood waters drained from Alabama and Georgia through northwest Florida into the Gulf of Mexico. Announcement was made that one thousand adult residents would be permitted to return to Elba, one of the towns evacuated after it was inundated. Children under 16 years would be kept at Troy. It was expected that Geneva inhabitants, who were also removed when water over-ran their town, would begin to go back tomorrow.

Typhoid anti-toxin and other disease preventives were sent to the flood territory to guard the health of those affected by the waters. Red Cross officials cooperated with state authorities in administering relief and starting the work of rehabilitation. The facilities of the public health service were offered by Surgeon General Cumming to the Red Cross. The national medical director of the Red Cross, William De Kleine, was directing sanitation measures in relief camps.

Supplies of food, clothing and other necessities were dispatched to the centers affected while Red Cross chapters received contributions for the flood sufferers.

Airplanes from the Pensacola naval air station carried food, mail and other supplies to southern Alabama. Until the emergency is over Flomaton and Brewton, Ala., will be sent food daily by land and seaplanes, while five will deliver food to Geneva, Ala.

Sufferers along the Choctawatchee river will be given Red Cross and medical supplies by five coast guard vessels which today were ascending that stream. A picketboat, four outboard motors and three 75-foot patrol boats were ordered to proceed as far as possible and leave supplies at needy places. The business district of River Junction, Fla., at the confluence of the Chatahoochee and Flint rivers was under water, but the population in the affected region was safe in the homes of friends on higher grounds. This was the second time during the month that the Apalachicola river had inundated the town. The river this morning was 33 feet and was expected to go two feet higher before the crest was reached.

Red Cross officials directed emergency work west of the Apalachicola and they were assisted by state authorities under the direction of Governor Doyle E. Carlton, who kept in close touch with the situation.

The governor said he had heard that 32 homes of Milligan were destroyed by the Yellow river flood, and that everything possible was being done to alleviate suffering there.

Water was receding at Caryville, which was badly damaged by the inundation.

Conditions at Newton, Ga., on the Flint river, were described as critical. This is the second time within two weeks that the Baker county seat has been under water. D. H. Bowers, editor of the Baker County News, said today that the river was rising fast and that every home and business house in th ecommunity seemed doomed to inundation.

Inhabitants have already fled in many cases taking their household goods with them.

West Bainbridge, farther south, reported the river rising at the rate of an inch an hour. Huge dykes have been built there to protect industrial plants and most of the inhabitants have been moved although no serious damage has been done as yet.

The river at Albany was rising slowly. A two-mile dyke built by city workers in the southern portion of the city, appeared amply adequate to hold back the predicted 35 feet stage from the cemetery and Negro houses. Train service out of the city was normal except on the Dothan division of the Central of Georgia.

The main business and residential sections of Albany are on high ground and safe from flood water.

The small portion of eastern Mississippi affected by the flood waters was back to normal conditions.

Indications at Memphis were that the Mississippi river would crest next Monday at about 41 1-2, to 42 feet. The government forecaster said reports showed a fall in the Tennessee river indicating there would be no serious flood conditions in its lower reaches.

The Ohio will fall between Shawneetown, Ill., and Paducah, Ky., and the fall at Shawneetown was expected to be enough to take care of a new rise showing in the Ohio from Louisville to Evansville.

Planters went forward today with plans to begin plowing back of the levees the latter part of this week.

MANY STREAMS OUT OF THEIR BANKS IN IOWA

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 18—(AP)—Iowa streams swollen to record proportions by spring thaws continued their destructive courses today with little hope of relief in prospect.

At Cedar Rapids, the rampaging Cedar river submerged streets in the lowland section, forced industrial plants to close and scores of families to abandon their homes.

Residents of Vinton, where the city power was inundated, were forced to obtain water from wells. A factory was supplying a limited supply of electric power for the business district.

A levee five miles below Wapello on the Iowa river broke today and 3,000 acres of land in the district faced inundation. A smaller break Saturday had put about 900 acres under water. All levees were being patrolled.

Keokuk watched the swelling of waters in the Mississippi tonight with apprehension. Predictions were that a stage of between 19 and 19.5 feet would be reached by Tuesday. Such a stage, it was said, would affect power cables and force all industries along the river front to suspend.

At Waterloo where authorities estimated the property damage at more than $500,000, three thousand persons are said to have been forced to abandon 800 homes by the high water.

FRESH ALARM SOUNDED OF FLOOD IN FLORIDA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 18—(AP)—With rescue work completed and the task of caring for approximately 3,000 refugees from the area of northwest Florida from Caryville to Milton, near Pensacola, fresh alarm was sounded tonight in the rapidly flooding basin of the Apalachicola river.

Half of the 800 residents of River Junction where the Chattahoochee and Flint rivers form the Apalachicola already have deserted their homes, which were flooded by a 32-foot stage in the river.

Edward H. Cavin, a Red Cross worker at Bainbridge, Ga., about 40 miles north of River Junction, gained permission to ride down the river and warn riverside inhabitants to seek higher ground.

CAPTAIN EAKER FAILED IN DAWN-TO-DUSK FLIGHT

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, March 18—(AP)—Capt. Ira C. Eaker abandoned his attempted dawn-to-dusk flight from Panama to Brownsville, at Tampico at 6:30 tonight, the naval radio station here was informed just before 8 p. m. tonight. No reason was given.

Eaker was in good condition and will resume his flight probably tomorrow, it was added.

Eaker brought his Boeing plane safely to rest on the Huasteca Oil company field at Tampico and will remain there tonight. He is expected to make the 200-mile hop to Brownsville early in the morning.

Two thousand persons who had gathered to welcome the flier here, slowly deserted the field when announcement of his landing was made.

This makes the second failure by Captain Eaker within a few days to span the distance between Brownsville and the Canal in a dawn-to-dusk flight. His first try was the south-bound effort several days ago. This attempt was defeated by bad weather conditions.

WINS CASE AGAINST IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS

BOSTON, March 18—(AP)—Chin Jong Du, Chinese laundryman of Portland, Me., brought his case into the United States district court here today and defeated the immigration authorities in their determination to deport to China his 3-year-old son, Chin Ying Suey.

Chin, who was born in the United States, returned to China to be married. He returned to the United States and later a son was born to the wife in China. Chin anticipated the day when his son would join him here and, as the son of a United States citizen, have the advantages to which a son of a citizen is entitled.

This ambition approached the point of realization recently when the little boy arrived here from China. The immigration authorities differed with Chin, however. They were not satisfied that Chin was born here and, therefore, a citizen. They ordered the boy deported.

Chin's counsel brought the case before Judge Elias B. Bishop in U. S. district court on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Bishop was convinced and granted the writ.

ONLY ONE MAN OF A CREW OF SIX RESCUED

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 18—(AP)—George Day was the only one of the six-man crew of the schooner Russell Lake rescued after the boat was wrecked on an island at the entrance to Burgeo harbor during a snowstorm last night, according to latest reports received here today. Earlier reports were that all members of the crew drowned.

The dead were Frank Studley, master; Ronald Martin, mate; William Spencer, George Whiterow and an unidentified Portuguese boy. The addresses of the men were not known.

The schooner, owned by Clyde Lake, minister of fisheries of the Newfoundland government, was bound from Fortune Harbor and Burgeo, with a cargo of fishery salt.

MORE ENCOURAGING REPORTS FROM MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 18—Crest stages, as indicated today, relieved considerably the tension of the high water situation in the lower Mississippi valley.

Based on the forecast of a 42-foot crest at Cairo, Ill., by Thursday, the Mississippi river would crest at Memphis on 41.5 to 42 feet by next Monday. That stage, while 6.5 to 7 feet above flood level, would be several feet under what the levee system can stand without serious strain, engineers said.

Weather reports indicated no rain in sight, either in the lower valley or along the tributaries drained by the upper Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri rivers.

The fall in the Tennessee river between Florence and Savannah has been sufficient to remove danger of flood conditions in the lower reaches of the Tennessee. At Johnsonville the river will rise for the next few hours, then begin to fall, it was predicted.

Mexican Rebels Are Evacuating Torreon

Federal Cavalry Advance Guard Has Invaded the City—Planes Play Big Part in the Campaign.

By the Associated Press

The main army of the Mexican revolutionists was in retreat last night, 16 miles north of the principal rebel stronghold at Torreon while the federal cavalry advance guard invaded the city. General Escobar, rebel commander-in-chief was at Escalon, in the state of Chihuahua, at the head of his command.

Evacuation of Torreon, a great natural fortress and railroad junction, where the rebels have been strongly entrenched and concentrating their troops for ten days, is the first decisive turn in the campaign since suppression of revolt in Vera Cruz.

The federals are now in possession of nearly all the state of Durango, headquarters close to Torreon from General Calles himself was moving his Durango City, which an Associated Press correspondent reported already resuming its normal aspect.

Airplanes have played a big part in the campaign. Torreon was repeatedly bombarded Saturday by federal planes, and the first air combat in the history of Mexican revolutions took place near Torreon when a lone rebel aviator who attacked them was beaten by larger federal planes. One of the federal aviators was reported to have been brought down.

Rebel headquarters at Juarez in northern Chihuahua, admitted early yesterday that federal raiders had torn up tracks and burned bridges on the railway line to Torreon. The line was cut at Bermejillo a few miles north of Torreon.

Two agents of the revolution are on their way to confer with President Hoover. Francesco Sabta Maria, lawyer, and Serrain Ugarte, former secretary to President Carranza, were expected in Juarez from Torreon by train and then to fly to Washington from Juarez.

Brigadier-General Mozeley and a platoon of U. S. infantry were ordered to Columbus, N. M., to investigate conditions there as a precautionary measure.

ATTEMPT TO BURN HOME OF GENERAL MURRIETA

CHIHUAHUA, Mar. 18—(AP)—An attempt to burn the home of General Marcelona Murrieta, chief of the rebel forces in Juarez, failed today. Several shells stored in the house exploded before the flames were brought under control. A youth giving the name of Jose Perez, was arrested, charged with starting the fire. The damage was not heavy.

PASSENGER TRAIN WAS ATTACKED BY REBELS

MEXICO CITY, March 18—(AP)—Dispatches to El Universal and El Grafico from San Miguel and Allande in the state of Guanajuato, say that rebels attacked a Laredo-Mexico passenger train early today. The rebels tore up tracks and derailed several coaches but inflicted no casualties.

Railroad headquarters in Mexico City received new confirmation of the attack.

OSLO, NORWAY, READY FOR ROYAL WEDDING

OSLO, Norway, March 18—(AP)—A festival spirit pervades the entire city at the prospect of a royal wedding on Thursday. In anticipation of the arrival tomorrow morning of Prince Olaf, Norway's heir, and Princess Martha, of Sweden, the principals, tens of thousands of visitors drifted about the streets today admiring the decorations and displays in store windows where busts and pictures of the royal couple are entwined with the Swedish and Norwegian colors.

Programs, souvenirs and national badges are being sold. The street leading from the railroad station, where the bride and groom will arrive, to the palace, has been converted into a triumphal avenue with a row of white flag poles on either side.

Formula Of Elihu Root Accepted By Jurists

Includes Fundamentals For Entrance of the United States to the World Court of Justice.

GENEVA, March 18—(AP)—The first definite step for the entrance of the United States to the world court of justice has been taken. The commission of eminent international jurists today unanimously accepted the fundamental ideas of the formula of Elihu Root for acceptance of the American conditions for membership.

The American senate must ratify what the veteran American statesman has done at Geneva. The more than 40 states which now belong to the court must also set their seals of approval on today's agreement before American adhesion can become an accomplished fact.

League officials tonight seemed convinced that there will be no difficulty about the American senate because the text of the agreement was cabled to Washington and Mr. Root, himself, was believed to have given his final approval only when he had received advices from Washington that the text was agreeable to the government.

The officials did not seem so sanguine as to the 40 other states.

They pointed out that there is always a possibility that some one state may rebel against the American conditions as according too privileged a position to the United States.

The agreement reached today will be sent to the United States and to all members of the council of the league of nations. The council at Madrid in June will receive a covering report from Sir Cecil Hurst, British jurist who took a leading part in bringing the agreement into force, and will send the text to all members of the court. If no objection is forthcoming, the protocol may be signed by all states during the September assembly of the league.

Should two thirds of the states denounce the document which outlines the American conditions, the United States would not thereby be driven from the court. She could stay, but only as a regular member without any privileged position.

The world court was created in 1920 by what is called "the protocol of signature of the statute." In 1926, there was elaborated a special protocol treating on American reservation which the United States found unsatisfactory. Today's agreement is a new protocol to replace the unsuccessful one of 1926.

DIFFERENCES OF OPINION ABOUT "DIPLOMATIC" LIQUOR

Secretary Mellon Maintains That Embassies Do Not Come Within the Scope of the Prohibition Law—A Decision by Former Attorney General Palmer Had Declared That Transportation of Liquor For Diplomats Was Illegal—Secretary Kellogg Has Decided to Investigate the Matter—Embarrassing to State Department.

WASHINGTON, March 18—(AP)—Three major departments of the government took steps today to deal with the technicalities which have risen since the Friday seizure by the Washington police of 60 cases of diplomatic liquor consigned to the Siamese legation.

Immediately after the seizure and the delivery of the consignment to the legation by the police themselves, the situation was one of discussion only among the members of the diplomatic corps.

With the announcement today, however, that Secretary Kellogg had decided to investigate the case, the possible ramifications of the whole question filtered at once into the treasury department and the department of justice and resulted elsewhere in a number of unofficial opinions.

The department of state declined to comment or even speculate on the matter. Some officials expressed the opinion that the department regarded the situation as one of the most embarrassing it has been called upon to face in a long time.

At the treasury, Secretary Mellon said the transportation of liquor for the embassy did not come within the scope of the law because it was an act within the rights of the embassies and not illegal in any way.

A search of decisions of attorney generals disclosed an opinion by former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer to the then Secretary of State Robert Lansing, in which he said.

"It is unlawful to cause intoxicating liquors to be transported from Baltimore, for instance, to Washington. I apprehend that one could not successfully defend against an indictment for such transportation by showing that the liquors transported were the goods and chattels of a foreign diplomatic representative."

It is understood that Secretary Kellogg may ask an opinion of the department of justice in the present case to determine just what the diplomatic missions must do to have their liquors legally transported to their homes from any port of entry such as Baltimore.

Secretary Kellogg conferred with Miss Margaret V. Bennett, "liquor expert" of the state department; Green Hackworth, solicitor-general of the department and James Dunn, head of the protocol division.

It appeared that the department was vexed by the interference by Washington police in a matter which has been running smoothly ever since prohibition came into effect.

Officials of the state department feel it is their duty to protect the interests of the diplomatic corps, and, placed between this duty and a desire to put no obstacles in the way of prohibition enforcement department officials are seeking a way out.

INVESTIGATING PLANE DISASTER AT NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., March 18—(AP)—Officials of the Colonial Airways, owners of the plane which carried 14 persons yesterday to their death on a pleasure flight from Newark airport, today expressed conviction in the competence of the pilot and in the fitness of the plane before it left the field.

Rowland also said that the tri-motored Ford monoplane had been officially inspected by the department of commerce inspectors once since the ship was licensed last November. The plane had been unofficially inspected by the department of commerce representative a day or two before the crash, he added.

Rowland also submitted figures to show that the plane had not been overloaded. He said it had a pilot and passenger capacity of 2,641 pounds, which would leave ample allowance for its cargo of 15 persons.

I would like to ask him some questions in regard to the people and heppenings in the village of Greeneville, now part of the city of Norwich.

I should like to know of the date of the death of Major Crary, who taught the N. F. A. boys military tactics before the civil war. The teaching of the major advanced some of these boys very rapidly. One was Billie Ross who went with Co. A. 18th regiment, as a private soldier. On the 2nd day of April, 1865, the day Billie was 21, he led 80 men into Richmond. He was then a major and the men he commanded at that time had volunteered to go into the city or die in the attempt. Major Ross was the youngest officer in the regiment and his men were all boys.

He lost some of his men by bombs set under the surface of the ground. This was before light, but as it grew lighter they discovered that wherever there was a bomb there was a small flag stuck in the ground. This was to protect the rebels themselves. The federal troops were so close to them that they did not have time to pull up the flags. Following this command was a small Negro boy riding a big brown mare on which, after entering the city proper Major Ross mounted and rode to the courthouse and there pulled down the Confederate flag and raised a small U. S. flag.

Then on to Libby prison (from which he had escaped two years before.) As the day advanced the people of the city of Richmond became much alarmed on account of the looting and burning of buildings. Ross posted two men at each doorway with orders to shoot to kill if any of the Union troops should attempt to enter to rob or destroy.

I am wondering if Major Crary lived to know that some of his N. F. A. boys had become officers of high rank.

I think S. Alpheus Gilbert was in the Academy at the same time with Billie Ross. At a certain period the boys of the N. F. A. wore a uniform the same color and style as the U. S. cadets at West Point.

A NOTED PHYSICIAN OF FINE PERSONALITY

Concerning the late Dr. Dudley Carleton, whose funeral was attended by Jewett City relatives, a Springfield, Mass., paper had the following high praise: Dr. Dudley Carleton, 60, who died at his home, 45 Tonia street, Springfield, Wednesday last, was one of that city's foremost surgeons. He had been affected with heart trouble for several years but had been able to keep on with his professional duties, both at the Springfield hospital, where for the last three years he had been president of the staff, and at the City hospital group, in whose work also he took a keen interest. About five weeks ago he had a grip attack and heart and other complications set in from which he could not rally.

He was born in Norwich, Conn., Feb. 19, 1869, the son of Dr. Charles M., and Mary Greenwood Carleton. His father was a widely known physician of Connecticut and was the first to perform the operation for appendicitis in that state. Dudley Carleton studied at Harvard medical school, graduating in 1895 and coming to Springfield in 1896, after serving for a year at Boston City hospital.

He soon became a member of Springfield hospital staff, having served continuously there for nearly 30 years and holding the positions of consulting surgeon and consulting orthopedic surgeon on the staff up to the time of his death. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical society, the New England Surgical society and the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Carleton belonged to several Masonic organizations, being a member of Springfield lodge, Samuel Osgood lodge, Springfield commandery of Knights Templar, the Connecticut Valley consistory and Melha temple. He was fond of music and formerly played the violin with skill, being at one time a member of Springfield orchestra. For many years he spent his vacation at Quabbin lake, Greenwich, where he has a summer cottage. Dr. Carlton leaves besides his widow, a son, a daughter, a grandchild, and a brother, Dr. Ralph Carleton, an eye specialist, who came to Springfield at about the same time and has also been prominent in the medical profession in Springfield.

A Boston paper, Monday, carried a fine cut of Miss Helen Bakanowski of Jewett City, captain of the Posse-Nisson school, of Boston.

Miss Ruth Morgan, daughter of Attorney William Morgan and Miss Eleanor Hartell of West Newton, Mass., were guests Monday of Miss Morgan's cousin, Mrs. Earle M. Palmer in Lisbon.

Mrs. Clifford Lanclais has been greatly annoyed by an agent who is using her name alleging that she is selling a certain toilet cream.

A cutting from the Sunday Post, principally relative to the night postal express contains an item which happens to concern matters near home:

A railway mail clerk Uncle Sam expects, must know a lot of things besides the speediest connecting lines. His fund of general information must be far above the average.

Before the train left Boston a man mailed on the train a package of films for a moving picture theatre, which was addressed to "Norwich, Mass." The clerk, when this package fell into his hands, had a hunch that there was no movie house in Norwich, Mass., in the western part of the state. He took pains to find out if his judgment was correct from a clerk in another car. He learned that he was right and he sent the package to Norwich, Conn. It had been carelessly addressed to Norwich, Mass., and was intended to go to the city of that name in Connecticut. This incident is typical.

Officials say that it takes six or seven years before a railway mail clerk reaches the peak of efficiency. Most people would be ready to admit without argument that the task would be too much for them in far less time than that.

And the maximum pay is exactly $2,450 a year.

At that time Massachusetts had a little post office, Norwich, not far from Northampton about the size of Pachaug today.

FEASTING AND FUN AT ENGLISH TEA PARTY

The 26th annual English Tea party, under the auspices of the Baltic M. E. church, was held in Sprague hall Saturday evening. The supper consisted of cold roast beef, cold boiled ham, tea cakes, bread pickles, cake and tea. Two hundred and seventy-five enjoyed the supper.

The members of the Men's league had charge of soliciting for the supper, and with the assistance of the members of the Ladies' Aid society and members of the church, the supper was served from 4:30 to 6:30.

The program was by local entertainers. The music was under the direction of Matthew Bailey, assisted by the members of the church choir, who rendered two selections.

The play, "The Deacon's Honeymoon," a farce-comedy, climaxed the evening, and in connection with the play two special features helped greatly in what was considered one of the best programs given at an annual tea party. The first feature, "The Surprise," was a novelty duet, "Sparking Peggy Jane," Mrs. Constance Charron as Peggy Jane and Mrs. Theo. Swanson as Zachariah, in their unique makeup won great applause from the audience.

The second "special" feature was the singing of "The Old Oaken Bucket," by the quartet dressed as hay-makers.

Rev. and Mrs. Harvey H. Conklin were directors of the play. The program follows: Chorus—"The Mill," (Ira B. Wilson) the choir: The Deacon's Honeymoon: Deacon Briggs—With a kind heart for everyone, Theodore Swanson; Tom Briggs—An efficient superintendent, Harold Sargent; Bob Gray—Tom's chum, Hartley H. Conklin; Silas Pettingill—The hired man, Carl Benker; Sam Brown—Colored chore boy, Dora Sargent; Jim Hooker—Alias Stephen Briggs, Elwin Chase; Mrs. Martha Briggs—The Deacon's helpmate, Bertha Froemel; Minnie Briggs—Her daughter, Lillian Amquist; Miss Perkins—A neighborly spinster, Florence Firth; Miss Tackley—The school mistress, Marie Heible; Esther Horn—Minnie's school friend, Florence Barnes; quartette: Matthew Bailey, Wilfred Houghton, John Faulkner and Percival Collins. A surprise: Peggy Jane and Zachariah. Chorus—A Star's Lullaby, (Ira B. Wilson) The Choir.

GALES FERRY

The colonial residence at Great Oak farm in the Lester district, one of the finest in the town, owned and occupied by Dr and Mrs. Charles B. Graves of New London, during the summer season, caught fire Friday morning from the chimney in the part occupied by Mr. and Mrs. James Abbott. Residents from the village were summoned to help fight the fire which was brought under control with a comparatively small loss.

Dr. and Willard E. Uphams were in South Manchester Sunday evening where Dr. Uphams is leading in a series of three discussions on Jesus' Attitude Toward War, at the Epworth league service in the Methodist Episcopal church.

An Epworth league social, arranged by the committee, Miss Doris Wightman and Miss Lillian Atkins, as a St. Patrick's party, was held recently at the vestry of the M. E. church. The games and contests were under the direction of the president, Courtland E. Colver, Jr. These included the opening game, Laugh a Little, a Shakespearean play contest, a contest for the use of the word green, an Anatomy Quiz and a Shamrock Hop. Prizes were awarded Miss Marjorie Gates, Mrs. A. P. Perkins and the Misses Helen and Margaret Colver. The decorations were in green and white and refreshments of green jello with whipped cream, green fruit punch, green and white cakes and candy were served.

At the Community M. E. church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Jerome Greer, spoke on The Unchanging Christ. A trio, Miss Grace A. Chapman, D. R. Povey and Courtland E. Colver, sang Tarry With Me, as the offertory selection, the solo part being by Mr. Povey.

At the opening of the church school session a short missionary program was given under direction of Supt. C. E. Colver. The responsive reading and song was followed with prayer by H. W. Hicks, secretary of the boys' work at the New London Y. M. C. A., and reading, Line Upon Line Story, by Miss Lillian Atkins, at the senior department session in the vestry and at the junior school, held at the new school building, a reading, Charity, was by Janice Wightman, and a song, We Are a Band of Children, by the school.

The topic at the Epworth league evening meeting was For Their Sakes I Dedicate Myself, and was led by Mrs. C. E. Colver. The Time and Tide contest of the league closed with this service. The side captained by Miss Lillian Atkins was in the lead with 65 points while that led by C. E. Colver, Jr., had 77 points to its credit. The losing team will entertain the winners.

James F. Tourjee of New London was a recent caller on friends of Long Cove and the village.

Mrs. Jerome Greer, corresponding secetary of the New England Southern Conference Woman's Home Missionary society, was the speaker at a meeting last week of the New London auxiliary of the Methodist Episcopal church.

DANIELSON

TWO NEW INDUSTRIES MAY LOCATE IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 18—This town has talked about and dreamed about, new industries so long and in such a degree—with no results—that it is a particular pleasure to report today that real prospects are in sight. It is an old and rather uncouth adage that "things come in bunches," but there appears to be some truth in the saying. President E. B. Wilbur of the chamber of commerce had members of his board of directors together for a conference this afternoon. Tonight officials of the chamber had a conference with a representative of a concern that may locate here.

Better than all the prospects of getting new industrial activities located here, as to the proposition of growth industrially in a general way, is the fact that two concerns that are now considering Danielson as a center of the manufacturing activities have interests that are entire apart from any that is being done in the town of Killingly. This town has gone along for at least two generations almost exclusively dependent upon textile plants as a guarantee of community prosperity. The town is still going that way, thanks be! The chance for diversification appears to have arrived. The two concerns that chamber of commerce members will bring something different to Danielson if they decide to locate here, probably something different to some other part of the town of Killingly, of which Danielson is only a part.

Obviously, this is not the time to broadcast the details of the prospects. But if Danielson should obtain two industries entirely different from any now doing business within its borders, most people would admit that it would be a nice opening of the spring season. The chances appear to be good.

Owners of radio sets in Danielson are impatient to an unpleasant degree. This item has to do with the woes, rather than with the happy prospects of this community. These radio owners, several weeks ago, voiced their complaints about interference with reception due to noisy and uncontrolled electrical devices. They insist they have been very patient. They even more vehemently insist they are not going to be patient much longer. They want action. They happen, however, to be in the unfortunate position of being unorganized, as a group, and are fully aware that not much attention is paid today to individuals with a protest, however legitimate it may be.

They have this to say, however: Owners of radio receiving sets have invested not less than $50,000 in these devices. These owners use electricity to run the sets, burn lights to sit up with them, are patrons of the telephone service, in the majority of instances, and on these grounds should have some consideration from the wire service companies, whose representatives are genial enough in talking about radio interferences that may be caused from their lines, but do nothing about correcting it. It may not be out of place to mention that the interference is hampering the business of dealers in radio sets, all of them patrons of the lighting and telephone companies. Set owners insist that their radios are not toys, but sources of pleasure, entertainment and instruction. Their joint investment in them runs into big money. They are wondering just why there continues to be delay at correcting what amounts to an intolerable situation. They contend they are not getting due consideration.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Annie Smith was held from the home of her son, Raymond Smith, on Riverview, with funeral services at St James' church at 9 o'clock. There were many in attendance. Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. James' cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. The bearers were John Doyle, Richard Doyle, William Gartland, Peter Levernoch, Etienne Favreau and Eugene Rickey. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

It did not appear today that there would be any opposition Tuesday evening to the nomination of Richard D. Banigan, member of the court of burgesses, as a candidate for warden to succeed Attorney Harry E. Back, who has declined again to be a candidate. The forecast today also was that practically all of the present board of burgesses will be re-elected. Danielson's borough caucuses and elections are non-partisan. For years only one list of candidates has been named. In this the situation is decidedly different than in town politics, over which the republicans and democrats indulge in stirring campaigns.

Members of the Junior class of Killingly high school who are included in the cast of the junior play to be presented in early April are: Florence Loiselle, Ruth Mellor, Robert Princeton, George Couture, Cecilia Baranski, Janet Kennedy, Herbert Parker, Eugene Shippee, Clarke Wood, Dorothy Lathrop and Monroe Knight. Oh Kay is the title of the play, a farce comedy in three acts.

While Coroner Arthur G. Bill is engaged with a session of the inquest relative to the death of County Detective W. E. Jackson at his office here on Tuesday, attorneys for Trenor A. Rice, held under indictment at the county jail in Brooklyn for murder in the first degree, will be appearing in a hearing at the state capitol in Hartford on a measure proposing a change in the penal code that would permit of their obtaining copies of the notes found on the person of Mrs. Gertrude Jackson after she had committed suicide. One of these notes is said to have been addressed to Attorney W. A. King, one of the counsel for Rice, and the other to Rice personally. Both Coroner Bill and State Attorney Howard C. Bradford have closely guarded the contents of these notes since they came into their possession.

The interior of the central fire station in Academy street is to be repainted and redecorated. The modest appropriation made available for the work by the officials of the borough does not come under the head of extravagance. The interior of this very substantial building has needed attention for several years and the work deferred as long as possible. Exteriorly, the central fire station needs little attention.

The first of the holy week services arranged by the Danielson Federation of churches will be held on Tuesday evening of next week at the Baptist church, this service to be in charge of the Laymen's league. On the following evening the service will be held in the Westfield Congregational church, with Rev. Albert Abbott as the preacher, and on Thursday evening there will be a union communion service at the Methodist Episcopal church with Rev. C. J. Armstrong as the preacher. The final service of the holy week series will be on Good Friday, at the Baptist church, with Rev. Harding W. Gaylord as the preacher.

CATHOLIC PARISH EXPANDS—NEW SCHOOL PLANNED

St. John's Catholic parish has started a campaign for a parochial school. Active solicitation is now under way. Twelve teams of three persons are approaching every working person in the parish for cash and pledges for the project, the biggest undertaking of the parish since the erection of the church building. The pastor, Rev. Fr. John Landry, has every expectation that the goal of $25,000, which he has set, will be reached with no great difficulty. Plans are being made by an architect from New Haven and New York for a two-story, six room building of modern brick and steel construction, to be as nearly fire proof as possible. It is not expected that $25,000 will meet all the expenses involved, but with some small funds the parish now has on hand, Fr. Landry feels there will be no difficulty in shouldering the debt which will be left. The rooms are planned to be modern, standard school type 22 by 28 feet, each seating 40 pupils. The plans are being drawn so that if at a future day it should be necessary to enlarge the building this can be done easily. The entire property owned by Benjamin R. Briggs was purchased, three dwellings occupied by Mr. Briggs, Miss Jennie McStay and Mrs. Dawley, with about an acre of land. The parish will not take over the property for some time. The remodelings of these properties into a modern rectory, erection of the school in the lot east of the present rectory and the remodeling of the latter structure into a convent, will provide for the parish a piece of property of considerable value.

PUTNAM

ARMORY BLOCK IS CONDEMNED, MAY BE REBUILT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 18—The old Armory block on Main street, another of Putnam's old landmarks, is soon to be erased from the business section of the city within a few months, according to a statement from Charles A. Seder, owner of the property. Mr. Seder said today that state building inspectors were recently in this city and after a thorough examination of the large three-story business block condemned the second story of the structure, advising Mr. Seder to tear it down as soon as possible. Mr. Seder intimated today that he would comply with their orders as soon as possible. He said that he has given notice to all tenants to vacate as soon as they obtained suitable locations.

The Armory block was purchased by Mr. Seder about two and a half years ago. At the time he made the purchase the third floor, which was the old drill shed for the long since disbanded Company G, C. N. G., had been condemned to public use. Since Mr. Seder made the real estate purchase he had made a number of repairs and improvements, but was unable to overcome the toll that nature has exacted from the building during the last half century.

When asked as to whether or not he intended to rebuild, he said that he had not as yet made any definite plans for the future, but thought that he would replace the old Armory block with a modern structure such as he has erected in two other sites on Main street.

On Pomfret street, where the Armory block has considerable frontage, walls of the building are bulging out of position. This is one of the facts which has brought about a condemnation order from the building inspectors and in view of the safety of the public Mr. Seder is now contemplating plans of immediate destruction of the block.

On the ground floor of the three-story brick block are three business houses, while the second floor is occupied by the law offices of Searls Russell and Bradford and a women's clothing store.

Rumors to the effect that a well-known mail order house, which for several months has been seeking a site to establish a retail house in this city, had purchased the Seder property were flatly denied by Mr. Seder in an interview this afternoon. Mr. Seder stated that he had heard the rumors but said they were unfounded as far as his interests were concerned.

The verification of the report that the Armory block is to be torn down, perhaps to give way to a new structure, proved to be welcome news to many today. While the block in its present condition has a fairly presentable exterior appearance a new structure on this site will be one of the greatest civic assets to the business section of the city.

During the past five years, Mr. Seder has constructed two of the most modern types of blocks on Main street. The Seder block on lower Main street greatly improved the general appearance of that section. Less than two years ago, Mr. Seder wrecked the old Wright block in Union square, which was the worst eyesore to the business center of the city, supplanting it with a modern two-story brick building, bearing its name. The block now in the shadow of the wreckers' bar is the second block on the same street from the new Seder block in Union square. Mr. Seder was unable to state this afternoon the exact date when he would begin to tear the Armory block down, but hoped the task would be started before May 1.

The members of the Hook and Ladder company at the Central fire station in Union square were called this morning to Deihsle's garage on Woodstock avenue, to extinguish an automobile fire. When the firemen arrived they found a Chrysler sedan owned by Roy Payne of Church street burning briskly. With the aid of chemicals they quickly extinguished the fire before further damage was done to other cars, which were for a few moments endangered. The Payne car was in the repair shop for overhauling and it is believed that some sparks from a match ignited the blaze.

J Herbert Smith, of Sunnyside avenue, returned to this city Friday after an extended cruise to the West Indies. While on his visit to the southern isles, Mr. and Mrs. Smith spent a short time in Santiago harbor, where Mr. Smith headed an engineering enterprise for the government, which took place a number of years ago.

An auto truck fully loaded with a shipment of eggs, butter and cheese and other dairy products, en route to Providence, failed to make Tucker's corner and leaped over a six-foot embankment, shortly before noon today. The accident was investigated by State Officer Donald E. Geddes, of Danielson barracks, and Capt. W. J. Jarvis, of the local police. When the officers arrived on the scene, a few yards beyond the site, where two women lost their lives in an auto crash a few months ago, they found the truck turned on its side and the shipment scattered about the premises. Eggs were cold scrambled and butter and cheese received additional churning as the result of the accident. The driver of the truck was slightly injured. A check-up disclosed that the truck was the property of Cooper & Sisson, Providence wholesalers.

Peter Pepin, of Danielson, driving a Packard sedan, figured in a crash with another car operated by Ralph W. Spencer, of Woodstock avenue, Saturday evening. The accident occurred on Woodstock avenue and Marshall streets. Both drivers hold that the encounter was unavoidable and neither was held to blame. Little damage occurred to the cars involved.

LOSS AT NELSON FIRE ESTIMATED AT ABOUT $10,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 18—A group of some 200 men tried in vain to prevent fire from enveloping the home of Charles Nelson in South Woodstock, about two miles from Putnam, early this morning. As stated in a brief dispatch to The Bulletin this morning, the flames were first discovered creeping up the outside of the southwest corner of the structure and fanned by high winds raced through the entire dwelling, reducing it to ashes in less than two hours' time.

As the skies became reddened with the light of the leaping flames, hundreds were attracted to the scene from miles around. As no water pressure was available no emergency calls were sent to Putnam or Webster fire departments for help. Neighbors attempted to organize a bucket brigade, in view of preventing the march of the flames to the opposite end of the house, but within 15 minutes the furious heat drove the bucketeers back several feet from the fire. It was then that a fruitless effort was made to save the house furnishings. A few valuables were rescued but the majority of furnishings accompanied the house when it crashed to the cellar, a mass of burning wreckage.

Early this morning it was believed fire loss would amount to about $20,000 but a daylight examination today by Woodstock fire wardens caused the loss to be reduced to $10,000.

Mr. Nelson is employed in Springfield and works between that city and Woodstock. He acquired the property only a few months ago and caused it to be thoroughly renovated, equipping the house with the most modern furnishings and fixtures. The origin of the fire was said today to have been traced to a defective chimney.

John J. Whitehead, of New York city, was in Putnam Saturday and Sunday.

A four stroke fire alarm Sunday evening at 6 o'clock sent the members of the hook and ladder company at the Central fire station scurrying to 43 Lincoln street to extinguish a chimney fire. The task was accomplished with no loss to the property.

At 10:45 o'clock Sunday evening, the firemen were again called for chimney fire work when a chimney fire broke out at the home of Mrs. A. Perrin, on Bradley street. The soot-filled chimney from top to bottom was ablaze within, giving one the impression of a small volcano as the sparks were hurled from the cylinder to the roof, before the firemen poured water from the booster tank on the No. 1 Hose company truck into the chimney. The second call of Sunday was the 33rd of the year and maintained an unbroken record of two calls a day for the past nine days.

Chester Paine, of Springfield, Mass., has been spending the week-end with his sister, Mrs. Ruby P. Davison, of Mechanics street.

She was born in Ireland, the daughter of James and Ann Feeney. She came to the United States a young woman, making her home in Pomfret. Hed husband, William Slattery, for many years a resident of Pomfret. Her husband, William Slat-Mrs. Slattery was a devout member of the Holy Trinity church in Pomfret and was also active in church societies until a short time before illness confined her to her home. Surviving Mrs. Slattery are two children, Miss Mary Slattery and John Slattery, office manager of the National Rhea company in this city, both of whom make their home in Pomfret.

A Fundamental Economic Fact No Motor-Car Buyer Can Ignore

IN THE purchase of a motor-car—or any other commodity—the most vital and compelling factor, regardless of any other consideration, is intrinsic value.

No business institution can ignore this truth and survive. No motor-car buyer can afford to ignore it.

It is the only sure basis of sound, judicious buying.

The principle underlying this fundamental economic fact has long been a tradition and a faith with the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

The buying public understands and appreciates this. It realizes that the highest quality product—the product of greatest intrinsic value—is inevitably the most economical product.

That public has actually itself evaluated Cadillac and La Salle—and not the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

It knows full well the traditional excellence of Cadillac-La Salle craftsmanship.

It sees at work in Cadillac and La Salle the vast buying power of General Motors deliberately planned to permit value-giving in excess of any other standard.

And it quite logically concludes that no other manufacturer can produce as fine a car as can the Cadillac Motor Car Company without exacting a price premium that would make the product prohibitive.

That the public has confirmed its judgment is attested by its loyal allegiance to Cadillac and La Salle and by the new hosts who are constantly flocking to Cadillac-La Salle ownership.

This is proved by the fact that in 1928 Cadillac-La Salle dollar volume exceeded the dollar volume of any manufacturer in the fine car field; and Cadillac-La Salle's business in Fleetwood custom-built models—the very ultimate in luxurious motoring—exceeded the custom-built business of all other American motor-car manufacturers combined.

In fact, the whole and incontestable truth of the matter is that today Cadillac and La Salle actually command preferred position and dollar volume dominance in the fine car field.

And the Cadillac Motor Car Company is the only motor-car company in history that has achieved this preferred position in the quality field and this dollar volume dominance solely because of intrinsic value.

It is the enthusiastic satisfaction and loyalty of the Cadillac-La Salle public that has inspired and, in a very real and literal sense, created the characteristics that make Cadillac and La Salle the finest and smartest cars on the streets of the world.

It is this enthusiasm and this loyalty that have made it possible for the Cadillac Motor Car Company to be constantly raising quality, constantly increasing value, constantly giving more and more for the purchaser's dollar—

More in fine manufacturing; more in beauty, exemplified by Cadillac and La Salle's exquisite Fisher and Fleetwood bodies; more in brilliant performance, through the high refinement and efficiency of the superbly smooth Cadillac-La Salle 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder power plant—

More, too, in progressive engineering as most recently evidenced by Cadillac-La Salle's three ultra-modern and exclusive safety features—the Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission, Duplex-Mechanical System of Four-Wheel Brakes and Security-Plate Glass in all windows, doors and windshields.

It is perfectly obvious to all the world that this process has been continuously widening the value gulf between Cadillac-La Salle and cars aspiring to compete with them, until today it is revealed—more emphatically than ever before—that Cadillac and La Salle have no real rivalry.

OIL LEASES.

In connection with the new oil policy of this administration, it will be noted with interest that the department of the interior is to make a thorough investigation of the oil leases on government-owned land now totaling about 20,000. This indicates a determination to discover just what the situation is at the present time concerning them, in the belief that some of them have become invalid because of the failure to comply with the requirements.

When leases are made there are provisions for certain work to be done. There may be cases where unfavorable results may have been obtained, where drilling has been abandoned or not started, and where tests have failed to produce profitable yields. In such instances there is opportunity for terminating such leases and returning the property to the full control of the government, and thus providing an opportunity for extension of the territory over which the policy of conservation will be spread.

It is in connection with this work that President Hoover was desirous that Dr. Wilbur should become the head of the department of the interior. It is work of this character that he will direct, and it is noteworthy that a start is being made at the very beginning of the administration.

There have been oil policies and oil inquiries. They have had their bearing on conditions and their results. It is the purpose now to deal with present day situation to start with a clean slate and deal with the situation as the requirements of today demand. What met the situation a score of years ago may not be advisable now. The scene has changed, and what is done now should be in keeping with conditions which prevail at the present time.

This is apparently a part of the program which the president has had in mind for the department of the interior. The developments will be followed with keen interest not only in the belief that it gives promise of much benefit therein but that similar advantageous steps will be set in motion in other departments of the government when and where needed.

DOWN AT ATLANTA.

Nobody likes a snooper, and there is nothing astonishing about the fact that Warden Snook at Atlanta penitentiary should be much disturbed over the fact that he has been having his administration of that institution checked up by a person posing as a prisoner, and regularly committed as such, but who was in fact involved solely in keeping tabs on what was going on.

The upshot of it all is that Warden Snook has resigned and will complete his service as warden with the passing of March.

From statements which have been made it would appear that conditions at Atlanta have not been what they should have been. Evidently it has been impossible to learn where the trouble was and as a last resort it was decided to send an agent of the department of justice there in the guise of a prisoner to make observations. Naturally, as such, he could interfere in no way with the administration of the institution. His hands were tied, but it was possible for him to get in touch with affairs so as to know what was going on, what laxity prevailed and who was responsible for it, and report. And that, it is supposed, is what has been done. Whether the report was good or bad is not known.

Warden Snook doesn't like it, and he will get much sympathy in the attitude he takes. He doesn't regard it as fair treatment, but there remains, of course, the story on the other side as to what the conditions in the penitentiary were, the difficulties experienced in overcoming them, and the responsibility of the warden concerning them. When a statement is made concerning them, it will be easier to reach a fair judgment as to whether the course that was adopted was justified. Ordinarily, if a house-cleaning is needed it is resorted to without employing such a method of getting at the facts in the case. Whether the situation at Atlanta was so different and practices had become so established that they could not be uncovered in any other way remains to be shown. From the course followed, that is open to inference until the whole story has been told.

WHERE BETTER SHIPS PAID.

Much hesitancy has been displayed in building and placing ships on established lines, because of the uncertainty as to the business that would be obtained. Fears that it would not be a paying venture, especially under the American flag and the American law governing ships, retarded action.

As the result of that it is an interesting development which has taken place. On the run between New York and Havana, there have been sufficient ships to take care of the passengers and freight, but there has been nothing very large and modern. It was one of those routes which was not getting much attention and where it would appear it was not realized that there could be a development of business through new and faster ships.

It was thus an interesting illustration of what big and fast vessels will do when a spirited bit of competition was started by the Cunard line in using one of its large vessels, which was not busy during the winter, for the purpose of handling this traffic. It was a move that was looked upon with resentment among the American ship lines because it had always been regarded as coastal service. Cuba is not part of this country, and it was possible to regard the run as a legitimate one for a British vessel. But no sooner had the service been established than the shipping board brought the President Roosevelt into the same service. There was competition of the strongest kind. The latter vessel was in all ways the equivalent of the British ship and it was faster. It therefore had no difficulty in making speedier trips and in getting all the business it could handle. On the other hand the British ship was equally fortunate in its passenger list. It is a case where they have both done a successful winter's business and it cannot help being noticed that not only did they prove that "competition is the life of trade" but they showed what an added attraction was created for that route by the placing of large, commodious and fast ships on the run, even though they were not running in harmony. Had there been sufficient American ships in the class of the British vessel running between New York and Havana it can be readily be understood that there would have been no chance for a British ship to be interested. The officers of the line, nevertheless, saw the chance that existed and made the most of it. The lesson cannot be wisely overlooked in regard to other ship lines.

OUR COUNTRY ROADS.

If all who want to be heard upon gravel roads, aid to town roads, or the improvement of dirt roads throughout the state, appear before the committee on roads, bridges and rivers at their session this afternoon at Hartford, we doubt whether the committee would be willing to stay until all had given expression to their feelings.

The question of bettering the country roads has been gathering support for a number of years and there is justification for the feeling that those living on such roads are entitled to some consideration. If they feel that it is a one-sided proposition at the present time when they pay their proportion for the construction and maintenance of modern highways and get no benefit from their outlay in their immediate vicinity they can hardly be blamed.

They are limited as to the use they can get of the state system of highways unless they happen to be among those who live on one of the improved roads. As it is understood they are not asking for cement roads but they would like to experience the sensation of being able to drive over gravel roads and be able to have those who must come to their homes in professional service, as tradesmen or visitors do likewise.

When we stop to realize the many country roads that are deserving of attention, roads that would be used by other than country residents if they were in condition to be used, it is evident that the residents on such roads have a fair proposition to present and are deserving of thoughtful consideration and relief in the plea they make. If the country towns have the influence which is claimed in the general assembly there ought to be no question as to the outcome.

WHERE MANY STATES CAN HELP.

Flood problems concern all sections of the country. Frequently it is along the Mississippi and its feeders. Then it may be in New England where Vermont has hardly recovered from its last inundation and now it is in southern Alabama and other sections of the south where high water has caused conditions not dissimilar to those which prevailed last year during the Mississippi flood.

While the government is at work on the huge problem of effecting the control of the flood waters of that great river and is giving consideration to the flood problems which have developed in other sections from time to time, it becomes apparent that heavy storms at certain seasons of the year produce a flood problem which many of the states must consider for themselves.

It cannot be overlooked that if reforestation is a help in preventing floods that it lies within the power of states which have reasons to anticipate floods to influence or undertake such work for the good it may do. Further than that there is the opportunity to apply similar remedies to what the government is undertaking for flood control, even though it may be on a much smaller scale.

The conditions in Alabama make it evident that while all possible help is deserved at the present time in order to combat the conditions, including disease, it would be a grand thing if adequate measures could be taken that would prevent the recurrence of such serious conditions.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, March 18—Congressman Tilson of Connecticut is at home for a portion of the recess, but will return next week to take an active part in forming legislation for the approaching extraordinary session of congress called for April 15th.

Every one is of the opinion that the colonel and his assistants will find it next to impossible to confine legislation to the farm relief and mild revision of the tariff, as has been planned. Even now it crops up on all sides, that the difference of opinion as to what constitutes "necessary revision" is as far apart as the two poles. New members of the house will clamor for recognition. The senate will be eternally striving to get some of its "left-overs" before the house, and although the house is quite willing to have reapportionment and the census brought up, it may find itself in an embarrassing position regarding certain other matters which the senate will persistently press to its attention. The census committee has no power to introduce other legislation than that for which it was created, so the house is willing to organize that committee but just now draws the line on further extension. Chairman Fenn of Connecticut is still hopeful that his bill will pass muster and become a law, even though it must go through the process of reintroduction and consideration by congress as it died with the 70th congaress.

It is not expected any rivers and harbors matter, in which Connecticut is specifically interested, will come up before the convening of the regular session next December. Congressman Freeman, now ranking member of that committee will continue to serve as such when the 71st congress is organized.

The "Bible table," which played a big part in the Hoover inauguration has played that same part in every inauguration since Lincoln was president, except when Mr. Taft was inducted into the office.

At the ceremony at the capitol this small mahogony table is placed at the side of the chief justice of the supreme court, who administers the oath to the president, and on it rests the Bible on which the president places his hand when he swears as follows: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

The table is owned by Watson F. Clark, whose father was architect of the capitol when the wings were erected many years ago. Mr. Clark loans this table for each inauguration, but when Mr. Taft was inaugurated there was a terrific blizzard and it was not deemed wise to take the precious table to the capital so another was used in its place, and the oath administered in the senate chamber.

But the little table this year served a double purpose, for a microphone was so installed that it rested on the table, directly in front of Mr. Hoover, in order that his address could be carried to millions of listeners throughout the nation. It is the first time that radio formed a part of the ceremony, although amplifiers were in use during recent inaugurations.

Accounts of the inauguration of Washington in 1789 show a vast difference both in personal attire and customs. It is written that Washington wore on that occasion "a blue coat, buff waistcoat, and buff knee-breeches." It adds that when the oath was administered by the chancellor of New York state he added "Long live George Washington, president of the United States" and that Washington "then proceeded to St. Paul's church where divine services were conducted."

Nowadays a president wears conventional morning clothes, and a silk "topper." He does not proceed to a church for divine service, but is rushed back to the white house to entertain a hundred or more guests at a luncheon arranged for him as a courtesy from the out-going president. Moreover it is not customary for the out-going president to return to the white house for luncheon, however friendly the two presidents may be. From the moment of taking the oath at the capitol "The king is dead: Long live the king." So attention concentrates on the new president and the out-goer quietly slins away in order not to have friendly expressions of regret mingle with the welcome and congratulations accorded the newly installed chief executive.

Once in a while some out going president has shown signs of resentment, and taken French leave, when the hour of 12 noon March 4th arrived, but as a rule courtesy prevails and official customs are fully carried out.

There are several new and notable features connected with the Hoover administration.

President Hoover is the only Quaker elected president of the United States; President Hoover took the oath of office and "swore" he would keep the trust, instead of affirming, as is customary with Quakers; Vice President Curtis is the only man of direct Indian blood ever elected vice president.

And what ever may be their blood or their religion, every one here agrees they are men of poise, dignity and to be trusted. No skeletons in their family closets were uncovered during the campaign.

Mrs. Hoover has declined the secret service guard usually assigned the wife of a president, although she will, of course, have that protection on stated occasions. For the last half century, at least, the wife of a president has had some police protection to insure her safety. Not that the women feared for themselves, but those in authority thought wise to take such a precaution rather than have them subjected to possible danger from cranks and criminals. Stories are told how the young and pretty wife of President Cleveland rebelled against the restraint. They say" that on one occasion the little bride of the president longed for freedom and an ice cream. Eluding the secret service men she picked up her skirts and skipped through the great iron gates, scampered across the broad avenue to the corner drug store. When the secret service men found her, she was calmly perching on a stool, eating an ice cream coda, just like other folks.

Mr. Chief Justice Taft is very fond of walking the whole or a part of the way from his residence in the northwest, to the capitol, far away up on the hill, when the supreme court is in session. He is frequently recognized by pedestrians. One day recently a woman and her little seven year old daughter met the chief justice and the mother said in a stage whisper: "That is Chief Justice Taft; once he was president." A few days later they again met Mr. Taft on the street—not taking her eyes from him the child dropped her tiny glove. The chief justice gallantly picked it up and handed it to her. The mother all smiles, said, "Do you remember who this is, Betty?" The big chief justice smiled down on the tot who came about up to his knee cap; the little girl looked up into his face and said "Oh yes, I know who you are; you used to be Mr. Coolidge."

President Hoover has a young woman for his personal stenographer at the press conferences. This week she wore a short dress of some light color, all splashed over with bright colored figures.

Vice President Curtis will retain as his secretary, Miss Williams who has long occupied that position for him in his senatorial career.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 18—That sometime ghostly, anonymous voice from the white house, "the official spokesman," is to be heard no more. President Hoover is intent to evicting it for keeps.

True it has not been heard in just that guise for many months, due to senatorial and editorial kidding of the phase so often employed by white house reporters to indicate presidential views without directly revealing the presidential source; but that was just negative action by President Coolidge.

President Hoover apparently plans affirmative action. Presumably he hopes for evolution of the spokesman into the voice of the president himself, speaking for public quotation. That is what lay behind his announcement March 5, his first business day at the white house.

Precedent Broken.

And by the way of experiment, perhaps, the president immediately made what he had to say on the subject available for publication. It was said at his first press conference. And in making his words public Mr. Hoover broke his first presidential precedent. The rule of presidential non-quotability at these conferences is of long standing.

Counter impressions to the contrary notwithstanding, Mr. Coolidge did not create the spokesman. That device, a very old one in news reporting, was invoked by hard worked white house reporters. It gave authority to their reports of presidential views despite the non-quotation rule. Everybody knew that the president was his own spokesman and that all recent presidents have met the press in person in the same way.

President Wilson did it very informally up to the outbreak of the World war. He enjoyed verbal tilting with reporters. He also opened the gates to all Wasnington correspondents, foreign or domestic, republican or democratic. He did it, although he knew, as a minority president, that most of them represented papers politically hostile to his administration. They were very enjoyable wordy skirmishes at times while they lasted.

Written For Harding.

President Harding restored these informal gatherings. An unfortunate experience or two forced him to change the methods. He required written questions for the first time. To answered those he saw fit and ignored the rest without embarrassment.

President Coolidge just carried on Harding policy in that regard. President Hoomer presumably hopes to speak at times for direct quotation, but will require opportunity to prepare his statements carefully. That may prove a desirable development; but the Bystander doubts that anybody could get better publicity for his views than Calvin Coolidge achieved consistently by his press methods. He far outdid both Wilson and Harding in that respect.

MAKING AN IMPRESSION

"It's all right," stated the young woman who was letting her hair grow, "to be as natural as an old shoe, but I insist there are some people on earth who absolutely compel you to throw on dog, put on side or what have you! To bolster up your own self-respect you are obliged to insist to them that you are just as good as they are, to say nothing of being a trifle better.

"They are the kind who mention that they are not going to run over to Paris for their summer frocks this year because little Lester acts as though he was about to get a cold in his head—and that the last limousine that they ordered is quite a disappointment because it carries two ounces less of nickel than they expected!

"There's a girl like that married to Dick's best college friend, and I had to bring her out home to the suburbs with me one day. Now I think I have a nice house and two perfectly interesting children, but I give you my word that before we finished our luncheon downtown I was fast shriveling into an utter wisp of secondrateness under the highbrow conversation of this Alicia Bramer.

"That woman hadn't a shred of interest in anything on earth but herself and her affairs, and she murmured on monotonously about the yachting party on the sound and the house party at the Vandergrifts estate, and how difficult it was to find a French dressmaker who really understood one's type! And I said yes, indeed, wasn't it, hoping my new $15 bargain dress I had just bought would not be delivered while she was with me.

"Naturally, I couldn't compete with the yacht and the house party, but luckily I didn't have to talk, merely listen. And adjust my expression to a perfect blend of mere polite interest just touched with absorption in weightier things and quite unimpressed. A 'we-girls-understand-each-other' attitude, you see, putting me on the same rarefied plane as herself.

"And I was absorbed in weightier things, let me tell you! One was calculating whether I would have time to make a molded salad before luncheon, and another was trying to recall whether the children's prettiest frocks were clean.

"Rain was coming down in torrents when we reached the Chicago station, so I telephoned out to my house and told my one maid to have little Harriet meet me at the suburban station with umbrellas. I couldn't have Alicia getting soaked tripping the fifty feet to our suburban cab stand. She gave one the impression that she was accustomed to have an awning spread from the train to her limousine as a daily routine.

"We rode for forty minutes through a pouring rain and all the while I listened to Alicia's remarks about herself and her embroidered, perfumed and expensive life. I was girding myself for a day and a half of intensive splurge in case Alicia ever came out of her personal trance and really observed me and mine.

"And then we drew into our station and descended in the downpour to the platform, which was totally empty of my child and the very necessary umbrellas, and as Alicia futilely grabbed at her $40 headgear we both stared at the procession approaching down the hill.

"There were my two offspring and six assorted of the neighbors, all looking as draggle and drowned as though original passengers of Noah's, tossed overboard. With wet hair straggling over their grimy faces and mud splashed and smeared over their clothes and shoes soaked and sloshy, they paddled toward us, umbrellaless—and with two goats in tow!

"I forgot to explain that all children for miles are crazy about our goats and constantly trail them about. The goats also were sopping wet and exceedingly sad of expression. I know of nothing that looks more tin-canny and poverty-stricken that a wet goat, and here were two of them!

"'Here we are, mamma,' the children piped interestedly. 'Mary said you wanted us to meet you. Whadyuh want us to meet you for?'

"'Nothing particular—but you've accomplished it.' I groaned, and, attended by the entire tribe, we sloshed over to a cab. Anyhow, I'd given Alicia something new to talk about to the rest of the world—and if that doesn't make me a good Girl Scout I want to know it!"—Exchange.

DAILY LENTEN DEVOTION

"LENT AND MY GOD AND FATHER"

Memory Verse for Tuesday

"I will say of the Lord, he is my refuge and my fortress; my God, in whom I trust." (Psalms 91:2). (Read: Psalm 91.)

MEDITATION: This thought is of frequent recurrent in the Psalms. In those stormy and perilous times the devout souls sought refuge in the unseen Presence. So when my cup of bitterness is full, when every human resource is exhausted, I take flight to God. In the last emergency all flesh comes to Him. Is this making of God only a last resort? Perhaps it is. But from this extreme experience I may learn to make God my first and my constant resort.

"We do not trust Him as we should.
So chafes weak nature's restless mood,
To cast its peace away."

This lovely Psalm has some luminous words—"dwelling," "abiding." To be at home with God is to be in constant security and peace.

PRAYER: O God who are my refuge and my strength, teach me the humility that belongs with my ignorance and weakness, that I do not vainly seek to fight my battles alone or to bear my burdens in my own strength. Amen.

CHILD TRAINING

What To Do With Jimmie.

Willis and Lenora Bailey

"I just don't know what to do with Jimmie. He is so restless and seems to be always doing something he shouldn't," complained Mrs. Hobbs to Mrs. Dixon, her neighbor, who had very recently moved near, as they sat in Mrs. Dixon's pleasant living room.

"Jimmie!" she broke off to say, "please close the piano bench and leave the music alone."

"Children must be active, Mrs. Hobbs, and Jimmie is exercising a very natural curiosity," replied Mrs. Dixon.

But before she had finished, Mrs. Hobbs had to take Jimmie away from the reading table where he seemed determined to wreck a cut-glass vase.

"Jimmie, dear, please go over there and play with Frank. — See his pretty books and blocks!" said his mother.

"Come on, Jimmie, and help me build this bridge," invited Frank Dixon.

"How have you trained Frank so well in entertaining himself? I don't have a minute's peace unless I am playing with Jimmie."

"Well," said Mrs. Dixon, "I am sure I cannot claim any credit for Frank's ability to play by himself. Eight months ago he was just as hard to deal with as your little son is now. That he is improving is because of the training he is getting in Miss Dooley's Kindergarten."

"Tell me about it," requested the neighbor.

"But, in the meantime, let us watch the children a few minutes without appearing to do so."

The women seemed to become very much interested in their needlework, but they could steal quick glances at the children and hear them talking as they played.

"Now be real careful, Jimmie," said Frank. "We got to put each brick just so in this bridge and not let them get crooked or it will not hold up the cars that want to go over it."

"Let's put this one over like that."

"Oh, no! if you do the bridge will wobble. We got to put our blocks all nice and straight, then our bridge will be strong."

Next, Frank got a little chair and seated Jimmie in it.

"Now I'm Miss Dooley. We will sing.

" 'Did you ever see a laddie
A laddie, a laddie,
Did you ever see a laddie
Do this way and that,' " sang Frank in a sweet baby voice.

"Now you sing your part."

"I don't know how," said Jimmie.

"Well, you will have to go to Kindergarten with me and let Miss Dooley show you how. We just have the best time. Come on, let me show you my animals. I cut out a turtle today. See my dog, and this is a bear. Do you know the story of 'The Three Bears'? Here they are, all three of them—Great Big Bear, Middle-sized Bear and Little Baby Bear. Aren't they nice? We play 'The Three Bears' up at Miss Dooley's."

"Mother!" exclaimed Jimmie, "I want to go to school with Frank and cut animals."

"Now there is your solution, Mrs. Hobbs," suggested Mrs. Dixon. "Miss Dooley is perfectly wonderful with the children. She teaches them lovely little songs, stories which they dramatize and interesting games. She also has them do a great deal of simple hand-work including paper cutting, clay modeling, building with blocks and toy constructing. Then, too, she is so clever in helping build a set of good moral habits. I know of one little boy, who had been taught to swear and now you couldn't hire him to use such words. In fact, I think he has forgotten most of them. Children do, you know, when they no longer hear them."

Mrs. Hobbs tried the Kindergarten and she declares there is no happier or busier child anywhere than Jimmie Hobbs.

YOUR HEALTH

Pep Sometimes False Energy; High Blood Pressure May Delude; Examination Important

By Lena K. Sadler, M. D., Chicago, Illinois

Like the heart beat, the blood pressure varies within wide limits in different individuals. It is important to know your normal blood pressure so that in the course of years you can tell whether or not it is increasing. Some people naturally have a rather low blood pressure. For them, blood pressures that might ordinarily be considered normal would, in reality, be a pathological increase, which could be recognized only if the normal pressure were known. On the other hand, certain individuals—in fact, certain families—show a natural tendency to increased pressure.

High blood pressure is directly and indirectly responsible for numerous bodily ailments and certain grave physical catastrophes. It is intimately connected with such serious disorders as chronic headaches, arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries, apoplexy and its subsequent paralysis, heart failure, Bright's disease, insomnia and even certain forms of mental disorder.

A great many persons who seem to be filled with vim and surcharged with pep are victims of high blood pressure. They are deluded by this false energy into the belief that they are enjoying extraordinarily good health, when, in reality, they are flirting with premature death.

Many things can increase blood pressure. It sometimes develops that high blood pressure is due to several factors—the mental state, the diet, as well as to the arterial condition. The significance of blood pressure should be evaluated from the viewpoint of its cause rather than the exact degree at any given observation.

Some persons, when they learn their pressure is up, begin at once to worry about it, and this only serves to send it up still further. A slight elevation in pressure is not cause for undue alarm. Many times with but little attention to one's habits of living, the pressure will come down to normal. Of course, if the blood pressure is considerably elevated and continues to stay up, even though we do not allow it to worry us unduly, we should give careful thought to its regulation and possible reduction.

Remedies for high blood pressure are disappointing. Only by removing the cause are we able to contribute to a permanent lowering of the pressure.

Rising blood pressure is a signal for a life of moderation in all things—mental and physical. These blood pressure victims must not run for street cars or indulge in other sudden spurts of muscular excercise. They must be careful not to lose control of their emotions, not to indulge in emotional sprees or explosions of anger.

The only safe policy is to have an annual medical examination. Most of the disorders associated with high blood pressure are symptomless. They creep upon their vicitim so gradually that the individual is unaware of his danger, but urine analyses and blood pressure tests would early serve to show the presence of these disorders.

Stories That Recall Others

A New Kind

Little four year old Wilbur had been watching his mother make cookies one afternoon. After a while he became interested in another subject. His mother, in the meantime, had washed out a yellow powder puff and hung it up on the line to dry. It was not long before he came running into the kitchen. Suddenly his eye spied the powder puff, and he exclaimed: "Oh, mother, why did you hang up that cookie to dry?"

There's a Reason.

Two friends were discussing their Scotch acquaintance, Sandy.

"Why do you suppose Sandy looks so worried lately?" asked one.

"Oh, he lost a pound a week, and he is worrying how to make it up without eating more," was the answer.

The Old Wheelock House.

A curiosity of history: "The town of Columbia, Conn.—a township which up to the year 1804 was a part of the township of Lebanon—is just now celebrating its 125th anniversary as an incorporated town, and in doing so it exhibits a building which was the original seat of Dartmouth college. It seems that in this building the Rev. Eleazer Wheelock started his Indian school, which was afterward removed to Hanover, N. H., and became Dartmouth college. In 1743 Samson Occum, a Mohegan Indian, was a member of Dr. Wheelock's family, and the success of his education was such that land was given to Joshua Moore of Mansfield to build a schoolhouse for the education of Indians—and others. The number of pupils at that time ranged from fifteen to twenty-five. The school grew to such proportions that a larger building was needed. Dr. Wheelock was unable to obtain a suitable tract of land and in 1770 resigned as pastor of the church and removed his whole enterprise to New Hampshire. It appears that the people of Lebanon would not sell Wheelock any land upon which to place his enlarged building because they foresaw that it would become a college and they feared that the college students would steal their apples and otherwise be a general nuisance. Because of this, Dartmouth college is now located not at Columbia, Conn., but Hanover, N. H. Perhaps the farmers of the vicinity to this day would think that their ancestors were wise. At any rate, the old Wheelock schoolhouse still stands, and is now serving as a district school. You can't keep education down—Nomad in Boston Transcript.

Sorry! I've got a "date"

You would have thought that Marian played a saxophone, or had read one of those books on How To Be Popular, to hear her telephone ringing. And yet the explanation of what kept her "dated up" was simple.

Right at the height of the winter social season, most of the girls in her set were ill at home, down with sniffles, red-noses, and stopped-up heads. But not Marian. She had found an old and trusted remedy: GROVE'S BROMO QUININE.

Whenever she got her feet wet, or felt chilly or vaguely ill, out came the little white box of tiny tablets. The laxative benefits though mild, were quick. The tonic effects though stronger, were equally quick. So she knocked the cold before it really got started. Or threw it off quickly.... Make sure of the right prescription by emphasizing GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

MAY MAKE CHANGE IN NORWICH DISTRICT

One of the major questions that will come up at the 89th session of the New England Southern Conference of the M. E. church, is a discussion on changing three districts, New Bedford, Norwich and Providence, to two districts. The conference will be held at Brockton from April 2 to April 8. Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf, D. D., will preside.

From the present outlook this will not be "moving day" to any great extent in Methodist parsonages, although Rev. Robert L. Roberts, D. D., district superintendent of New Bedford, is completing his six-year term and the new appointment to fill this vacancy may necessitate several shifts.

The recent fire at the Haven Methodist church, East Providence, raises the question of whether Dr. William H. Bath, formerly of this city, will be continued there as pastor, or whether some man specially used to church structural problems will be appointed.

The annual celebration of holy communion will formally usher in the conference Wednesday morning with Bishop Waldorf and the three district superintendents, Dr. Roberts, Rev. Edward E. Wells, Rev. Myron E. Genter of this city officiating.

Rev. Harold H. Critchlow of Willimantic will deliver the address at the memorial service, Rev. O. J. Aldrich of South Street M. E. church Brockton, presiding at 11 o'clock.

Rev. Richard C. Raines, pastor of the Mathewson Street church, Providence, will deliver the conference sermon Wednesday afternoon, April 3, at 2 o'clock, with Rev. E. E. Story of Washington Park church presiding. Dr. J. Newton Davies, Drew University, Madison, N. J., will address the hour of inspiration at 4 Wednesday and Thursday, with Rev. R. V. Kelley of Stoughton and Rev. L. C. Harris of New Bedford presiding.

Dr. A. Z. Mann and Dr. E. V. Hinchcliffe will be the speakers Wednesday evening at the anniversary of the board of hospitals, homes and deaconness work. Rev. Ira W. LeBaron of Trinity Union M. E. church, Providence, will preside.

One of the features noticeable at this year's conference is the large number of new men appointed at the last general conference, who will speak. Dr. George Butterick, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, will give an hour on the parables of Jesus Thursday morning with Mr. Raines presiding.

That evening at 7.30 Dr. L. H. King, editor of the Southwestern Advocate, will address the anniversary of the board of home missions and church extension with Rev. G. G. Scrivener of St. Paul's church, Newport, presiding. At 8.30 Dr. L. R. Fulkerson will speak at the anniversary of the board of foreign missions with Dr. Bath of East Providence presiding.

"Big Bill" Stidger of Boston will address the annual rally of the Young People's societies Saturday evening, April 6, with Rev. James V. Claypool of Middletown presiding.

MAYOR ROBBINS DOES NOT FAVOR SALE OF GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT

Informs Council At Adjourned Meeting That He Is In Favor of Sale of Appliances By Department Under a Modified Plan—Expresses Hope That Controversy Over Present Rates and Appliance Sales Will Be Satisfactorily Settled Without Necessity of Council Action.

So long as I believe, as I do today, that the great majority of the electors are against selling the gas and electric plant, I will not favor selling or take any steps towards encouraging a customer to make a bid, said Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, in a lengthy statement on the gas and electric situation, which he read at the adjourned meeting of the court of common council in the council chamber Monday evening. Mayor Robbins in his statement, said that he is in favor of the sale of appliances by the gas and electric department, under a modified plan. He expressed the hope that the present controversy over electric rates and the sale of appliances by the department will be settled without the necessity of action by the common council. The meeting, twice adjourned, owing to the mayor's recent illness, was called to order shortly after 8.30 o'clock.

Petitions were received and acted upon as follows

From William P. Stoudt and others, asking for the improvement of Joseph Perkins road from the fire station, easterly. Referred to the public works committee.

From Emil Bausch for the laying of macadam on Smith avenue from the Greeneville bridge to Hamilton avenue. Petitioners ask that an appropriation be placed in the estimates to be acted on at the next city meeting. Referred to public works committee.

From Howard A. Spalding, et al., asking for the improvement of Hamilton avenue from Corning road to the city line. Referred to the public works committee.

A claim from Louise W. Haskell, totaling $286.50, for compensation for injuries received when she fell on a defective sidewalk at 185 Broadway. Referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

New Park Commissioner.

Mayor Robbins announced that the terms of office of two members of the board of park commissioners, Alexander Jordan and Harry M. Land will expire April 1st. He stated that he would like to re-appoint both, but that Mr. Land is not eligible for re-appointment as he has moved outside the city limits. The mayor then announced the re-appointment of Mr. Jordan to succeed himself and the appointment of Arthur L. Peale to succeed Mr. Land. The appointments are for three years from April 1st and both were approved by the council.

A claim was received from Harry B. Ford for $32.40 for damage to his automobile when it struck a projecting hydrant on lower Broadway. It was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

Three Claims Disallowed.

The following claims were then disallowed by the adoption of resolutions:

for damage to his automobile.

a broken spring on his automobile.

Claim of Oliver L. Johnson, $82.90, wor damage to his automobile when it struck a projecting hydrant on lower Broadway.

Claim of Harry B. Ford, $22.40, for damage to his automobile when it struck the same hydrant.

New Supernumerary Officer.

The board of police commissioners recommended the appointment of Edwin J. Williamson as a member of the supernumerary police force. The clerk was authorized to cast one ballot in favor of Mr. Williamson's election and he was declared elected.

The police commissioners reported the following petitions granted:

Petition of J. L'Heureaux for a bug light on Dunham street.

Petition of J. Falcone, et al., for lights on Ore and Copper streets.

The commissioners reported that they had authorized the placing of an arc light at Thames square.

The monthly reports of the street commissioner and city treasurer were received and accepted.

Mayor Reads G. And E. Statement.

Mayor Robbins then read to the council the following statement on the gas and electric situation:

Gentlemen of the Council:—

Your attention should be called to the unfortunate situation existing today in respect to the management of our gas and electric department. For years this department has operated under the control of five men known as the board of gas and electric commissioners. The membership of this board has been maintained at a high standard by appointments by the mayors in office from time to time, of citizens of recognized business ability and integrity, who gave, and still give their services without pay. While the operation of this business with all its complexities has continually enlarged and become more and more intricate, with surprisingly few exceptions, our citizens have been generally well satisfied with the control of this department as well as with the results and benefits obtained.

For the past few years, under the able general management of Mr. Charles W. Taggart, and due to the remarkable prosperity of the time, the production, sales, and consequent revenue of this business has steadily increased. At the present time this department reports a yearly profit of about $200,000. The general manager is on salary at $8,000 per year.

The Appliance Department

In keeping with the practice of privately owned plants, our local department began to sell gas and electric appliances, a number of years ago. This was appurtenant to the business and a convenience and accommodation to citizens. Of course, the management realized the advantage to be gained through the resultant increased use of gas and electricity.

This branch of the business grew gradually during the first few years. It did much to develop our plant and to acquaint our citizens with the benefits to be derived from appliances, few of which were then carried in stock by local merchants. Eventually a change in policy took place. Instead of waiting for the customer to come and buy, the department started out to sell. The past few years the sale of appliances has been intensely exploited under modern methods including the deferred payment plan. Although sales have increased materially, the venture has not proven a financial success for the city and has elicited many complaints of unfair competition from local merchants. This branch of the business, starting as a mere incidental or side line, was never kept separate and, although it now runs into thousands of dollars annually no effort is made, so far as I know, to place and show it upon its own footing.

Mr. Earl Taggart, son of the general manager, is in charge of this line upon a small weekly salary plus commission basis with total earnings unacknowledged, but reputedly large.

Last summer the board of commissioners, at the sugestion of the general manager, adopted a new schedule of rates for electricity, based upon a new theory, with the object in mind,

1st:—Encouraging the use of more appliances.

2nd:—Reducing the rates to all except the very small consumer.

3rd:—Reducing the revenue or income.

These new rates went into effect October 1, 1928, and almost immediately developed such a great inequality, such increases in charges upon the small consumer, and such substantial reductions to large consumers, as to cause general dissatisfaction.

Policy Changes Caused Trouble

At this point I wish to divert long enough to emphasize two points that may otherwise escape your notice.

First:—The change of policy in relation to the method of selling appliances.

Second:—The change of policy from the small initial rate charge to the larger initial rate charge.

In my opinion these two changes have caused all the present trouble.

Dissatisfaction over the new rates increased rapidly and soon formulated into a demand for relief from the burden imposed by them.

Many complaints were made to me. On October 16, 1928 I sent the following letter to the commissioners.

Gentlemen:—

Many citizens have expressed themselves to me as not comprehending the necessity for the recent changes in your basic rates for electricity. Much more dissatisfaction seems to exist than would ordinarily follow an increase in the cost of a commodity. Many have pointed out to me increases in their charges for electricity amounting to as high as three hundred per cent. The necessity for such increases in the face of your showing of profit for the last fiscal year does not manifest itself. The basis for the new rates is not readily understood by the average tax payer and many inform me that they have been unable to obtain a satisfactory explanation.

While I personally understand that these new rates are the result of careful study by experts and are fixed upon a business basis, nevertheless, even if theoretically correct, results so obtained are not always practical and often fail to work out equitably.

I fully appreciate that you are working for the best interest of the tax payer by trying to improve local conditions for consumers of electrical current with the object of making electricity cheaper to the majority of them.

I believe it to be equally true that your earnest endeavor is to sell this wonderful convenience cheap enough so that even the small consumer may afford to enjoy it.

Under the circumstances, if there are exceptions where the new rates fail to meet both of your efforts, would it not be well to learn of them and try to correct them?

Therefore, I respectively submit for your serious consideration the advisability of holding a public hearing where those interested may learn your side of the question and present to you instances where the application of the new rates appears to be resulting in hardship.

Our town hall is available for this purpose and a better understanding of the respective problems would be sure to result from such a meeting.

At this same time it might also be desirable to sound public opinion upon the question of the sale of appliances by the gas and electric department.

As a commission acting in a governmental capacity you surely desire to carry out the wishes of the people to whom you are accountable and I propose this method with that thought in mind.

Very truly yours,

Did Not Want Meeting

The next day, accompanied by Mr. Taggart, Commisioners Goldberg, Munz and Crickshank called at my office. They said they did not think a public hearing would do any good. I said it would acquaint them with the fact that the new rates were unsatisfactory to a good many people. They said they knew that. They suggested that I appoint a committee of five to meet with them and study the question and see "whether they were right or not." I said I would not undertake to appoint a committee and if they wanted one, so far as I was concerned, it would have to be "approved by a meeting." They did not want a meeting and asked what I would recommend to avoid it. I replied, "give the people the relief they want and no meeting is necessary." I said I believed all that was necessary was to reduce the initial charge to approximately the former meter charge and correct all errors and instances where the new rates worked a hardship and to allow exceptions where such ought to apply and to cut out the ice box motor, etc. charges.

When Mr. Taggart assured them this could be done, they agreed to handle the mater in this manner. We also discussed the appliance question.

When the commission left they agreed to send me a letter in which they would state their immediate action on the rates as agreed and that they would look into the appliance question and give me an answer regarding that in two or three weeks.

Mr. Taggart did not agree to any part of this proposition.

If this agreement had been kept I am convinced general satisfaction would have resulted and a proper solution of the appliance problem would have been found.

Mayor Receives Letter

The next day, however, I received the following letter:

October 18, 1928

Dear Mayor Robbins:—

Your letter of the 16th wherein you sugest that we investigate and correct the recently established rates for residential and commercial consumers, received. We find more or less dissatisfaction with the new rate, especially from those consumers using the commodity for commercial use. We realize and appreciate the fact that while some of the consumers in this class have been penalized, many have been benefited. The following resolution adopted at a meeting held on Thursday morning will assure you and all others of our desire to cooperate with and to assist all consumers effected by a change in rate.

RESOLVED: That the general manager be instructed to investigate the recently installed commercial rate with a view of bringing in recommendations for relief for that class of consumer.

Very truly yours,

Except for the expressed desire, "to cooperate with and to assist all consumers," this letter was a distinct disappointment. In talks that I had about this time with Mr. Taggart and the commissioners, and subsequently with the rate experts, they all expressed themselves as thinking that the only real trouble with the rates was confined to the commercial schedule. I could not seem to make them understand that the greater proportion of complaints to me came from the residential class of consumers.

I promptly wrote back as follows:

October 19, 1928

Gentlemen:—

Your answer to my letter of the 16th, while it evidences the knowledge upon your part of "more or less dissatisfaction with the new rate" fails to convey assurance of your "desire to cooperate with and to assist all consumers affected by a change in rate."

The resolution passed, instructing the general manager to "investigate the recently installed commercial rate with a view of bringing in recommendations for relief for that class of consumer" assures no result satisfactory to that aggrieved class and clearly excludes from all hope of relief the small, residential consumer whom I submit is equally entitled to your consideration.

In view of the conference had with a majority of the board at my office Wednesday afternoon, your communication fails to carry out my understanding of the course of action you decided at that time to adopt.

As I sense the public pulse at this time nothing except a complete revision of your new rates resulting in actual relief to all classes of aggrieved consumers will be adequate to allay the present general dissatisfaction. Taking care of a portion of them does not meet the issue.

My purpose in suggesting that your board hold a public hearing was made in the belief that through this medium you would become convinced that,

1st, The new rates are inequitable in many cases to all classes of consumers and those affected demand relief.

2nd, The policy of selling appliances does not meet with the approval of the people and for that reason should be discontinued.

If your board disagrees with these conclusions, what else can make a public hearing more imperative?

Respectfully yours,

The Commissioner's Reply.

They replied to this under date of October 27, 1928.

Dear Sir:

This commission has given your letter of the 19th careful thought, but still feels that the suggestion offered while at your office on the 17th should be given consideration, i. e. that you appoint a committee of five or six citizens and that this commission appoint a like number, to act as a fact finding committee in the matter of electric rates. This commission believes that by this procedure the consumers will receive the benefits of rates which are just, non-discriminatory and in keeping with modern rate making practiced by utility companies of the present.

You will undoubtedly be interested in knowing that the rate schedule which became effective on October 1st, was placed in effect only after months of study by this commission, assisted by competent rate engineers, one of whom represented a major group of business interests in this city.

We submit for your consideration the following exhibits:

"A" Comparative Data of Rates with other cities which have recently been placed in effect.

"B" Data on the application of residential schedules effective October 1st. (Note the decrease in income.)

"C" Graphic charts showing the effect of the former and new rate on average monthly bills.

"D" Graphic charts showing the effect of the old and new rates on actual customer's accounts. Note that there is a marked decrease in high monthly bills, thus eliminating many high bill complaints which occur during the winter months.

"E" A letter of recommendation.

This commission takes this opportunity, through you, to acknowledge their duty to the tax payers of the city who are the direct owners of the gas and electrical property. It's success can be continued or failure brought about by inexpedient action at this time.

We assure you that our endeavors have been to establish rates which will be of benefit to the greatest number of customers. The step taken is one of direct progress and we feel that the schedule adopted should be given a fair trial.

We ask for your cooperation.

Yours very truly,

Expert Gave Lecture.

About this time Mr. Reed, one of the experts who helped fix the new rate schedule, gave a public lecture on this subject at the Community house for the commission. About a hundred citizens attended.

You will remember, I have previ-

WIDE PAYS TRIBUTE TO RUNNING ABILITY OF CONGER AND LERMOND

(By Ted Vosburgh, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—The finish that won the "mile of the century" for Ray Conger here Saturday night was hailed today by Edvin Wide of Sweden as the greatest flash of closing speed ever seen in a mile race.

The 23 year old Swedish veteran who finished fourth had time to admire as Conger flitted past him to the tape and to estimate that the lithe young Illinois A. C. flyer covered that final 220 yards in 25 seconds.

Conger's final furlong which carried him to victory in 4 minutes 13 2-10 seconds brought a burst of superlatives from the Swedish athlete and had the sports scribes setting down the "Conger Kick" alongside the Garrison finish in horse racing and the Hagen wind-up in golf as one of the biggest thrill-producers in sport.

With such a "terrible kick," Wide went on to declare that Conger has it in his power to lower both the indoor world's record of 4 minutes and 12 seconds held jointly by Paavo Nurmi and Joie Ray and the outdoor mark of 4:10 2-5 held by the Finn.

Leo Lermond too, Boston A. A. youth who ran a brilliant second to Conger, may shade the classic figures before another year has passed in the opinion of the Stockholm school teacher who sizes up his runners out of the experience of some ten years of international track competition.

"They are very much alike," said Wide. "They are young and strong with plenty of natural speed.

"Both are very likely to beat the present mile records if they get fast competition to carry them along until they start their sprints and if they know how to keep themselves in condition for their best efforts.

They have no rhythm in their stride. Such a runner is constitutionally unfitted to running against time. He must have speedy opponents to match himself against.

Conger's gait, Wide said, "is sleepy-like"—until he starts that wild dash near the finish."

Lermond is about as good a prospect as Conger for the Olympics of 1932, Wide added.

Although he has not been able to retain the furious finish of his own younger days, a sprint that once gave him a 59 second final quarter mile in a 5,000 meter race, Wide has kept much of his running ability at an age when many another great athlete is entirely burned out.

What may be his last indoor race in America is to be a handicap affair at New Haven Wednesday night.

SIXTY CANDIDATES OUT FOR HARVARD FOOTBALL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 18—(AP)—Sixty Harvard football candidates, forming the most impressive squad in years, held their first spring workout today under the direction of Jimmy Knox, second team coach, who assumed charge in the absence of Head Coach Arnold Horween. The latter was expected here tomorrow. It was said he would be with the squad during the first and final weeks of the three weeks spring season.

Most of the candidates were members of last fall's varsity or second squads and a large number played on the undefeated freshman team. Harvard will lose but a few regulars in June, notably Arthur French and Dave Guarnaccia, last fall's backfield aces, but several of those who practiced today indicated that they would be ready to fill all holes caused by graduations when September rolled around.

Today's workout consisted of setting up exercises and kicking and passing drills. Frank Shaughnessy, former rugby coach at McGill college, Montreal, was in a coach's uniform and drilled the backfield candidates on passing, indicating that Harvard would stress laterals again next season, despite the departure of French and Guarnaccia.

BRAVES TURN BACK CHAMPS IN EXHIBITION

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 18—(AP)—The Boston Braves' old timers proved better in the pinches and took the St. Louis Cardinals, National league champions, to a 6 to 2 trimming here today. The Braves got three runs in the fifth when Mueller walked, got to third on two outs and scored on pinch hitter Lester Bell's single—another hit and a pass paved the way for George Sisler's single to drive in two more.

Grover Alexander gave his third exhibition of masterful pitching this season, turning in another good three innings. The score:

St. Louis (N) .. 001 001 000—2 6 1
Boston (N) ..... 001 130 01x—6 9 3

Alexander, Elliott, H. Bell and Earl Smith; Robert Smith, Cantwell and Taylor, D. Smith.

OLD TRICK WORKED ON ROOKIE ATHLETICS PITCHER

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 18—(AP)—Six singles, a double and an error, in the first inning, gave the Philadelphia Americans a lead that the Newark Bears, International league, could not overcome, and they were defeated today, 8 to 4.

An unusual play occurred in the ninth inning when Coach Onslow of the Bears asked Pitcher Hinckle of the Athletics to throw him the ball. Conlon of the Bears, scored from second and Wrightstone took third before the Athletics got the ball away from Onslow.

Score by innings:

Newark (I) ..... 000 001 201—4 7 2
Philadelphia (A) 600 011 00x—8 12 5

Fallenstin, Etner and Skiff, Uzmunn; Cramer, Leary, Hinckle and Glowacki.

M'GRAW USES REGULARS TO WIN FROM BEAUMONT

BEAUMONT, Tex., March 18—(AP)—John J. McGraw started his regular team against the Beaumont Oilers of the Texas league here today and the Giants had little difficulty in winning by a score of 8 to 3. Karl Hubbell, Beaumont lefthander purchased by the New York club last summer, pitched the first four innings for the visitors. The score:

New York (NL) . 000 240 020—8 10 1
Beaumont (TL) .. 100 001 010—3 9 2

Hubbell, Kelly, Boney and O'Farrell, Witry, Schalk; Newman, Christian, Beasly and Wiley.

JOE DUNDEE SIGNS TO BOX AT BOSTON JUNE 24

BOSTON, March 18—(AP)—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, today signed a contract for Eddie Mack, boxing promoter at the Boston Garden, to defend his title here at Braves Field on June 24. Mack was authorized to name either Al Mello, Jack Fields, Jimmy McLarnin or Young Jack Thompson as Dundee's opponent.

Mack said that Dundee demanded the largest guarantee ever given to a welterweight champion before agreeing to risk his crown.

The Boston promoter has not decided which challenger he will attempt to match with the champion. Mello, a Boston favorite, has already outpointed Dundee in a non-title bout and will meet him in another such contest in the Boston Garden on April 12. If Mello again defeats Dundee, Mack said, he would be forced to give him an opportunity to fight for the title.

PLAINFIELD PROS PLAY COLORED GIANTS WEDNESDAY

The basketball attraction at the Plainfield Community house on Wednesday evening will be the Philadelphia Colored Giants who will engage the Pros for the third time this season. The Pros have won both encounters from the Giants, each by a very small margin. This will be the last appearance of the Giants in the north this season as they leave shortly for the south to begin training for the coming baseball season, many of the members of the basketball squad being members of the baseball outfit.

The Giants come back to Plainfield seeking revenge for the two defeats and have notified Manager Salisbury that they will fairly overwhelm the Plainfield outfit, a fact that remains to be proven.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 18—(AP)—Lloyd Waner, famous holdout late today confirmed reports from San Francisco that he had received a salary agreement with the Pittsburgh National league management. He will leave for the Pirates' training camp in California tomorrow, he said.

The agreement does not affect Paul, his older brother, who also has been holding out for an increase. Lloyd said. He declined to make public the amount he agreed to.

Lloyd confirmed the report when he returned home from a fishing trip with Paul and found a final telegram from the Pirate management awaiting him. Relatives previously had denied that he had come to terms.

I., March 18—(A.P.)— Stanislaus Zybzsko, former wrestling champion of the world, makes his debut at Providence, tomorrow night by meeting Pat McGill, leading Irish grappler, in an elimination tournament to determine the next opponent of "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, present titleholder, at Providence. Twice winner of the championship after he had passed the forty-year mark, Stan wants to score a third time and prove it is possible for a 50-year-old man to rule the mat realm. McGill has easily won all his bouts since coming east this winter on a comeback campaign.

"Cowboy" Jack Wagner grapples Joe Shimkus, Lithuanian star, and Stanley Pinto, sturdy Bohemian, meets Freddy Meyer, Jewish champion, in the preliminaries to the Zybzsko-McGill finish match at the Arcadia.

The phantom gradually pulled away from Dalrymple in the last quarter to win by fully 40 yards.

Leo Lermond, slender Boston A. A. distance chaser, paced into the limelight in a sterling exhibition to capture the one mile run from Ray Conger, Illinois A. C.

No records fell during the evening. About 2800 people attended the meet which was sponsored by the Detachment, Headquarters 43rd division of the National Guard. Lawson Robertson, coach of America's championship Olympic team, was referee.

HOME RUNS IN EIGHTH HELPS SEALS BEAT PIRATES

Steve Swetonic, rookie hurler, relieved the veteran Burleigh Grimes after the fourth inning and pitched airtight ball until the eighth, when Jones, Seal pitcher, doubled and scored on an out and a single, and Jolley, outfielder, poked the ball over the wall with two ahead of him.

Swetonic allowed only three hits in four innings, while Grimes gave the opposition six. Thurston and Jones gave the Corsairs eight hits. Score by innings:

DEMPSEY TO PROMOTE MANDELL-MILLER BOUT

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, the promoter, announced tonight he had persuaded Sammy Mandell to defend his lightweight championship against Ray Miller, the Chicago left hook artist, "sometime in June." The fight, Jack said, probably would be held either in Detroit or New York.

The Manassa Mauler said all of his plans for the lightweight titular battle were more or less indefinite at this time but that he expected to be able to set the exact date and site within a few days.

At the present he hopes to be able to stage the bout on June 7 either at Detroit or New York with the former city the most likely site.

Dempsey said he had signed Mandell in Detroit several days ago and that he had completed arrangements with Miller here today.

FAST GAME EXPECTED AT Y THURSDAY

A banner crowd is expected Thursday night at the Y gym for the "Benefit Night" basketball attractions. A girls game between Norwich and New London misses will open the evening, at 8 o'clock, and at 9 o'clock, the Academy and Eastern Connecticut Coaches will get together. The receipts from these games are to be used to defray expenses of the Y Seniors on their coming trip to New York, which starts immediately after Thursday's games.

Season Ends in Jam

Windham's voluntary demise in the Eastern Connecticut league race is a rather weird ending to an otherwise good race. It robs Putnam of one of its big games of the year, for the game that was scheduled for Friday at Putnam between Windham would no doubt have packed them in. A playoff game between Windham and Chapman Tech would also have meant a capacity audience, no matter where it was played.

Tech Deserves Title

Chapman Tech deserves the title for they played consistently good basketball all year. They made the best showing of the five teams during the campaign, and all things taken into consideration, they are to be commended. It's too bad they had to finally get the title without playing a deciding game but that is not their fault. Jack Conway especially should get much praise for turning out such a team in his first year as coach at the school.

Danielson Vs. Plainfield

About the only thing remaining to close the basketball season in this section now is a Danielson-Plainfield series. That will, in all probability, be played.

Kenna and Yoter Go To Millers

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—The chin-cracking industry expects plenty of thrills this Friday night when Baby-Faced Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller exchange wallops, also a big "gate," perhaps $100,000, which would be a record for Madison Square Garden at a top price of $10. Speculators are asking, and getting, considerably more than that already for such of the pasteboards as they have obtained.

This is the outward evidence of another wave of bullish sentiment in lightweight stock, New York, and the radio fraternity at large, has come to expect excitement in this division. Not often has it been disappointed.

Sockers and boxing masters, iron men and glass jaws—there have been all kinds among the lightweights. Down through the years they have fought—Jack McAuliffe, Kid Lavigne, Bat Nelson, Joe Gans, Ad Wolgast, Willie Ritchie, Freddie Welsh, Packey McFarland, Tommy Murphy, Joe Rivers, Benny Leonard, Lew Tendler, Charley White, Sid Terris, Sammy Mandell, all have figured large in boxing history.

The lightweight class slumped after Leonard's retirement but Mandell, a real champion when he cares to fight, McLarnin, Miller and others have helped put the division back into popular favor again.

The gloom with which Gil Dobie had enveloped his football environment at Cornell appears to have spread. Talk of dissatisfaction, especially among alumni, over Cornell's football slump in the last few years is now linked to discussion of Dobie's possible departure from Ithaca.

The lean master of the off-tackle slant, it is asserted, may decide to take his talents elsewhere, even though he has an iron-clad contract at about $10,000 a year, with some five years more to run.

Not since the famous $100,000 international race at Belmont park between Zev and Papyrus nearly six years ago has any turf classic attracted so widespread interest as the American bid for victory in the historic grand national steeplechase at Liverpool this Friday.

American sportsmen have flocked to England for the event, where Yankee homebred hopes are pinned on the veteran Billy Barton, owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore.

Billy Barton seemed a certain victor last year but stumbled over the last hurdle and Tipperary Tim, a 100 to 1 shot and the only other finished romped to victory.

Two American owned but foreign-bred horses have captured the grand national—Stephen Sanford's Sergeant Murphy in 1923 and A. C. Schwartz's Jack Horner in 1927.

Ray Conger, the Iowa youth with the soft western drawl, is the new sensation of the track, perhaps also he is the answer to America's need for another great miler to carry on in the foot steps of John Paul Jones, Norman Taber, Abel Kiviat, Joie Ray and Lloyd Hahn, his mark of 4:13 2-5 in beating Lermond, Wide and Purje, should have the necessary confidence.

NO CHANGE IN CHURCH LEAGUE AS LEADERS WIN THEIR CONTESTS

First division teams all won their games last night from the second division clubs in the Church league so that after the night's play there was no material change in the standing. The Gammas still top the league with a clean slate while the Baltic Methodists are in second place closely followed by the Brothers of Joseph.

In last night's games the Brothers of Joseph defeated the tail-end Trinity quintet, 28 to 13. The Central Baptists took a close game from the Kappas 34 to 29, and the Baltic Methodists retained their place by trouncing the Goal club 24 to 14. The Baptists and the Kappas furnished the best game of the evening with very little to choose from up to the final whistle. The game was close all the way and was featured by the playing of Nevins and Burke for the Kappas and Lambert and Armstrong for the winners.

The other two games were more or less one-sided, the first division teams piling up good leads which were never threatened during the contests.

TASSI WINS FROM COURTNEY ON FOUL IN THE FOURTH

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Nando Tassi, of Italy, won over George Courtney, "Oklahoma cowboy," on a foul in the third round of their ten round bout at the Broadway arena tonight. The low blow came after about a minute of fighting in the third frame.

It was a return fight between the two. A short time ago Courtney kayoed Tassi in the fourth round.

Courtney started out to finish the matter in the third round but after a minute of fast fighting he let fly a low blow hat sent Tassi down.

Tassi weighed 173 pounds. Courtney 164.

In the semi-final, Andy Mitchell, Long Beach, Calif., heavyweight, outpointed Lou Barba of New York. The weights: Mitchell 185, Barba 188.

Sylvio Mireault, 138 1-2, of Montreal, scored a technical knockout over Jackie Tannerhill, 139, New York, in the third round of another ten round bout.

KID CHOCOLATE POLISHES OFF RACKOW IN FOURTH

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 18—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, the Cuban flash, finished Al Rackow of Buffalo, in the fourth round of a ten round bout here tonight. The bout had gone one minute and two seconds of the fourth round when the referee stopped the slaughter after Rackow had gone down for the fourth time in two rounds.

Chocolate opened the way to the technical knockout in the second round with heavy body blows and a right under the ear. In the third round Rackow took three counts, one of three, one of eight and one of nine. A right to the head put the local boy down for the fourth time. The count was at seven when the referee stopped the bout.

Chocolate weighed 121 and Rackow 122.

MITCHELL CUTS HARVARD BASEBALL SQUAD TO 42

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 18—(AP)—Coach Fred Mitchell of the Harvard varsity baseball team, started his fourth week of practice today by cutting his squad to 42 players. He announced that he would reduce it to 22 men before the team started on its annual southern trip early next month.

The players who survived the first cut included 13 pitchers, seven catchers, 12 infielders and nine outfielders. In former years, Mitchell has held his squad down to 17 players. He said he would make his final selections at the end of the southern trip.

Broken Rib for Boxer

HANOVER, N. H., March 18—(AP)—Pugilistic aspirations of Tom Maynard, Dartmouth high jumper and former intercollegiate champion, received a setback today in his first workout with Dick Black, Green football captain and boxer. Black drove his fists into Maynard's mid-section with such force that the latter received a broken rib.

PLAINFIELD PROS WILLING TO MEET DANIELSON

Relative to the indirect challenge of the Danielson Town team Manager Salisbury of the Plainfield Pros writes the following letter to The Bulletin: Sports Editor:—

Noticing an article in the Morning Bulletin under the caption "How About a Danielson-Plainfield Series?" My Answer is "Fine, let's go." Of ccurse, I mean if satisfactory arrangements can be made for such a series and the basgetball fans can be given a run for their money. The article said that there had been an insistent demand from the public for such a series. Well, that's what we run a basketball team for—to satisfy the public.

But will the public be satisfied if Danielson uses its regular lineup? It must be admitted that the Plainfield Pros, whom I have the honor of managing, have been playing far superior teams than those played by the Danielson team. We have had great success against these strong teams which proves we have an exceptionally strong club. Now with Plainfield using its regular lineup and Danielson doing the same would the series be worth seeing or would it be a walkaway for the Pros? In justice to the public I would suggest that the Danielson management strengthen their team before engaging in a series with my club.

LESTER SALISBURY,
Mgr. Plainfield Pros.

WASHES HALF MILLION DISHES IN WEAR TEST

PITTSBURGH (AP)—William Nauerburly and blond Lithuanian, has washed nearly 500,000 dishes here since August.

At the rate of eight hours a day and six dishes a minute, William is doing a job of literal scientific dish washing. The objective is to discover how soon soap and water and a dishcloth will eat or wear off the surface of a set of synthetic trays made by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company from carbolic acid and an odorless formaldehyde.

Engineers have decided that the hardest wear to which the trays may be exposed is plain dishwashing. Even some bootleg liquor was found in a test to be less powerful in its abrasive action than soap and water.

A woman, the first dish washer, quit because too much soap and water was marring her hands. Next came a man, an Italian steel mill worker. The monotony got him and he went back to the mills.

Then came Nauer, who yet shows no sign of weakening. He sits on a bench, with a stack of 20 trays before him, washing, rinsing, drying and repeating, his motions as regular as those of a machine, and most of the time as silent, for there is seldom anyone for him to talk to. His big hands have turned baby pink.

BUYS OLD SCHOOLHOUSE FOR SAKE OF MEMORIES

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—The axe that hovered over the old one-room Shawhan school house in Scott township has been stayed.

While the county superintendent and others looked with pride at the new four-room brick structure one man reflected sadly upon the impending fate of the old school, soon to be reduced to lumber.

Hadn't he been tutored there 35 years ago? Hadn't his five children learned the mysteries of readin', writin' and 'rithmetic?

That settled it. George W. Watson bought the old building the other day. With hard-earned money he is having the structure moved a block and a half to his own property.

There is not much practical use, perhaps, for an old frame building with an old-fashioned bell-tower and windows that reach two-thirds of the way up the walls.

Once the old place is moved there will be none of the band music and the speeches that greeted the new school. But memories are more precious than dollars to Watson. It will be good just to have the old school around and know it is safe.

ITALY PLANS NATIONAL SCIENTIFIC EXPOSITION

FLORENCE, Italy—(AP)—This art center of Italy in April and May will be the scene of the national exposition of the history of science.

This promises to be an unusual event in the scientific history of Italy. The works of two of the world's greatest scientific pioneers, Italian both, will be illustrated graphically. One is Galileo, who evolved the theory that the earth is round and discovered the principle of the pendulum. He is buried at Florence. The other is Leonardo Da Vinci, painter of the immortal "Last Supper" and also a profound geologist, botanist, anatomist and aeronautical engineer. He constructed the first heavier-than-air machine.

Mussolini backs the exposition and Prince Piero Ginori Conti is its chairman. Ministers of war, navy, aviation, public instruction and other cabinet members head various sections.

GIVE FURNACE EARS AND ORDER HEAT ON

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP)— Three words, "Gee, I'm cold," spoken over a telephone to the family furnace, may turn on the heat in a not-distant future.

The device to perform such a trick is perfected in the General Electric company laboratories here. It now is merely a toy, used to start and stop electrical mechanisms, but electrical control of heating plants points in that direction as a possible application.

The choice of words is unimportant; it is the number that counts. Whether in classical diction, or slang, three voice sounds start the instrument. It stops on one and reverses on two. In its present stage it is especially responsive to hissing.

LIGHT TRAINING PLANES TO CAMPAIGN COUNTRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Six light training planes of the Fairchild Aeronautic institute will be flown to every section of the country on a campaign to teach the rudiments of airplane design and operation to the public.

Inter-city distances, weather conditions, airports, landing fields and servicing facilities will be studied by the flying lecturers as they hop from place to place. Fuel consumption and flying time will be recorded in detail and recommendations made later for plotting air lanes.

POETRY

The Old Home

An old lane, an old gate, an old house by a tree;
A wild wood, a wild brook—they will not let me be:
In my boyhood I knew them, and they still call to me.

Down deep in my heart's core I hear them and my eyes
Through tear-mists behold them beneath the old-time skies,
'Mid bee-boom and rose-bloom and orchard lands arise.

I hear them; and heartsick with longing is my soul
To walk there, to dream there, beneath the sky's blue bowl;
Around me, within me, the weary world made whole.

To talk with the wild brook of all the long ago;
To whisper the wood-wind of things we used to know
When we were old companions, before my heart knew woe.

To walk with the morning and watch its rose unfold;
To dream with the noontide, lulled in its heart of gold;
To lie with the night-time and dream the dreams of old.

To tell to the old trees, and to each listeping leaf,
The longing, the yearning, as in my boyhood brief,
The old hope, the old love, would ease me of my grief.

The old lane, the old gate, the old house by the tree,
The wild wood, the wild brook—they will not let me be:
In boyhood I knew them, and still they call to me.

—By Madison Cawein.

The Appeal

The March wind called the snowdrop,
"Come out, wee flower!" he said,
But the little snowdrop answered
The sun's soft call instead.

The March wind roared and blustered,
A braggart of his power,
But the crocus cups came peeping up
In a wooing sunny hour.

The March wind shook the jonquil,
But her petals drew apart
To the winsomeness of sunlight
Goldening her little heart.

—Dorothy Whipple Fry, in Boston Transcript.

"I know. I'm just waiting for you to get on your feet."—Tit-Bits.

A young man remarked to Dean Inge at a dinner: "They sent a lame bishop to Blankton, and they've got a deaf dean, I believe at St. Paul's."

"What we need is a dumb layman," returned the dean.

WESTERLY

BRADFORD MOTORIST FINED $25 AND $18 COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 18—Edward Greenhalgh, 22, residing at Bradford, was before Judge William A. Wilcox Monday morning in a session of Stonington town court charged on two counts by Prosecutor George R. McKenna, operating an automobile recklessly and failure to keep to the right of a silent policeman in Pawcatuck. The offenses were reported by Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon when Saturday afternoon a speed of 35 miles per hour was charged and the traffic beacon at the junction of West Broad and Mechanic streets was passed on the wrong side. Greenhalgh was held in $100 bail for his court appearance. A plea of guilty was entered by the defendant who claimed that although he did not attain th espeed of 35 miles per hour he was guilty of reckless driving. Prosecutor McKenna recommended a fine of $25 and costs on the first count and that the second one be nolled. Gerenhalgh was fined $25 on the first count and costs of $15, a total of $40 which was paid.

Herbert Barnet of Hartford, investigator connected with Highway Commissioner R. S. Stoeckel of the Connecticut motor vehicle department was in Stonington Monday. He visited the Stonington town hall and in Pawcatuck called on Town Court Clerk Albert G. Martin to go over the town court records with especial reference to the disposition of court cases involving violation of state motor laws, checking the records with payments of fines and the continuances of cases on appeal, a matter on which he has been going about the various towns and cities of the state. He found the Stonington town court records O. K. and left Pawcatuck to check up at the Franklin street jail, New London for New London county.

Palmer chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons, of Pawcatuck, Excellent George Smith, high priest, held a convocation in Masonic hall Monday evening. The Royal Arch degree was exemplified on a class. Monday evening next the annual chapter inspection will be held by Grand High Priest Colin Buell of New London.

BEARING BURNED OUT CAUSING FIRE IN K. OF C. HALL

There was all the appearances of a fire on St. Patrick's day morning at Knights of Columbus hall Main street. Early visitors to the club rooms detected the presence of smoke in large quantities in their rooms, with the odor of burning wood. Miles Market which occupies the street level and basement was filled with smoke which was seen by a market employe, William Clarke. He notified the proprietor Henry M. Clark. In the basement they found that a five-horse-power electric motor used to pump brine in the refriegrating system had burned out a bearing. This allowed the fields and armature to drop and a short circuit resulted which burned out the motor and the smoke from the burning insulation found its way into all parts of the brick building. It was necessary for Proprietor Clarke to use a temporary hook-up until the arrival of a new motor.

DeMolay Chapter at Church

Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay for Boys, recently organized in Westerly with Miles Coulbourn master councilor, observed Devotional day Sunday. On invitation of Rev. G. Edgar Tobin the chapter attended the morning service of Christ Episcopal church. The day's activities were in charge of "Uncle" Carl Anderson of Watch Hill. Fifty-four boys, representing 98 per cent of the chapter's membership, marched from Masonic hall to the church and occupied a reserved section of pews. Thomas McKenzie, junior warden of the church and a past commander of Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly led the marchers.

Rev. Mr. Tobin, rector of the church, delivered a special sermon to the boys, taking as his text John I, 2:14, "I have written unto you, young man, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one."

Smoke from a brush and grass fire which began in Elmhurst, Randall district, town of Stonington, about a mile to the westward of Maple Breezes on the Westerly-Norwich state highway was blown into Westerly by strong winds Monday afternoon. A force of firefighters in the vicinity kept the flames from doing property damage to any great extent.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Shadow's Black-Footed Cousin.

By Thornton W. Burgess

Too many neighbors are a curse,
But none whatever may be worse.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was all curiosity. Yes, sir, Peter was all curiosity. Wanderer the Evening Grosbeak had mentioned the fact that Shadow the Weasel has a cousin—a black-footed cousin—who makes life most unpleasant for Yap Yap the Prairie Dog. Now, the one person whom Peter Rabbit fears most is Shadow the Weasel. He can escape from Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote or a member of the Hawk family or the Owl family by plunging into a bramble-tangle, but a bramble-tangle is no protection from Shadow the Weasel. Wherever Peter can go, Shadow can go, and Peter knows it. So, of course, right away he wanted to know about this cousin of Shadow's. "Does he look like Shadow?" he asked.

Wanderer nodded. "He does and he doesn't," said he. "He is a lot bigger than Shadow. Do you know Billy Mink?"

"Of course, I know Bily Mink," was Peter's prompt reply.

"Well, this cousin of Shadow's is just about the size of Billy Mink, though he doesn't look at all like Billy. In form he is more like Shadow the Weasel. But he has black feet and a back band across his face."

"Is—is he as fierce as Shadow the Weasel?" demanded Peter.

"I guess he is," replied Wanderer, "by the way Yap Yap acts. When Blackfoot is around there is no happiness in Prairie Dog town. You see, he can go right down into the holes and no Prairie Dog has a chance in the world. You ought to see those Prairie Dogs disappear when some one gives the warning that Blackfoot is about."

"Do they call him Blackfoot the Weasel?" asked Peter.

"No," replied Wanderer, "they call him Blackfoot the Ferret. He is known as the Black-footed Ferret. The Ferrets are really Weasels. They belong to the same family."

The very thought of Blackfoot made creepy chills go all over Peter. Shadow the Weasel was bad enough, but somehow or other it seemed to him that Blackfoot the Ferrett would be worse. "I'm glad he doesn't live around here," said Peter. "Did you ever see him very near here, Wanderer?"

Now, Wanderer knew just how Peter felt. "Don't worry, Peter," said he. "I have never seen Blackfoot anywhere, excepting in a Prairie Dog town. So don't worry about Blackfoot. Leave all that worrying to Yap Yap."

"Does Blackfoot live right in the Prairie Dog town?" inquired Peter.

"I guess so," replied Wanderer. "It would be the handiest place to live. He could use a deserted house and I guess that is what he does."

"Johnny Chuck is sensible," declared Peter.

"What under the sun has Johnny Chuck to do with it?" demanded Wanderer.

"Well, Johnny Chuck is Yap Yap's cousin, and I was thinking of the difference in the way they live. Johnny Chuck and Polly Chuck live by themselves," said Peter. "Yap Yap and Mrs. Yap Yap live in a town. No enemy of Johnny Chuck's would think of making his home close by. But if there were a lot of Chucks living close by, some enemy might make his home there, just as Blackfoot does where Yap Yap lives. There is such a thing as having too many neighbors."

"That is what Yap Yap said when Digger the Badger moved over to the edge of Prairie Dog town," said Wanderer.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

PROFIT-TAKING HEAVY THROUGHOUT SESSION OF STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP)—Control of the stock market shifted between opposing factions in a confusing manner today, with the bears gaining the advantage in the last hour, when call money began to tighten.

Profit-taking was heavy throughout the session, particularly in the Radio shares, the old stock losing 49 points of a 108-point gain of last week, but operations for the advance aided by merger and stock splitup rumors met with marked success in various sections of the list, particularly in the coppers, rubbers, railway and office equipment issues, and specialties.

The expected stringency in call money this week, resulting from the sending of the income tax checks to the banks for payment, made its appearance late in the day with an increase in the rate from 7 to 8 per cent. Time money held firm, with practically none available under 8 per cent.

A somewhat bullish interpretation was placed upon the statement of Gov. Roy A. Young of the Federal Reserve board that a higher rediscount rate would be employed only as a last resort. Wall street bankers were disposed to the belief that the Reserve officials regard the rediscount rate as a possible means of effecting liquidation of stock market loans, but fear that its use would seriously hamper business.

The day's news was meagre, although it included a further upward tendency in copper prices, with a little moving at 22 cents a pound, a jump of one cent, but with producers for the most part undecided as to what price to quote. Youngstown Sheet & Tube published a good earnings statement.

The old Radio shares fell back to 500, while the new shares sold at one time below 100, but closed at 101. Victor Talking Machine, however, which is being consolidated with Radio, mounted more than 24 points to a new top at 200.

Baldwin Locomotive soared 26 points to a new 1929 peak at 256 on rumors of a four-for-one stock split-up and revival of reports that the Cutten-Fisher interests are planning to merge it with Westinghouse. Otis Elevator, also mentioned in splitup rumors, shot up 15 points to a new high.

The non-ferrous metals were generally strong, National Lead mounting about 10 points to a new top at 166, and Greene Cananea gaining new high ground with a jump of more than 8 points. Anaconda, Nevada, Miami and Kennecott also tallied new peaks, but receded toward the close. U. S. Steel lost more than a point, but Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Follansbee both gained new high ground.

Underwood Elliott Fisher sold up about 5 points to a new top. A similar gain in National Cash Register revived talk of a merger of these companies, but this was denied by Underwood officials. It was stated that Underwood's earnings are running at the rate of about $10 a share this year. Burroughs Adding Machine also reached new high ground.

American International made an extreme gain of about 6 points on reports that it had realized large profits from holdings in Chase National Bank and Radio stock. Lambert recorded a new top at 151 in buying attributed to estimates that 1929 earnings will reach $15 a share, and on reports that the company is making rapid progress in the British market. Trico Products touched 51, then reacted. The recent advance in this stock is said to have been in anticipation of an announcement of a $3,000,000 order from General Motors.

Merchandising shares were generally weak. Macy and Filenes losing more than 4 points each. Rossia Insurance lost 10 points. Johns-Manville 5, and Commercial Solvents 6 points. Allied Chemical, American and Foreign Power, Calumet & Arizona, Coty, Houston Oil, General Electric, and Wright Aero were among issues sagging from 2 to 5 points.

The commodity markets were generally heavy, cotton losing more than $1 a bale on lower Liverpool cables and fair weather over the belt. Wheat eased on lack of export demand and better weather, despite a decrease in the visible supply, and corn sagged.

Foreign exchanges were generally firm, with sterling rulling a fraction higher. The pesseta continued its decline, however, going below 15 cents.
